This is the first time these figures have gone out to the public. There are only a few men in the United States to whom the secret was ever intrusted, for Mr. Bliss and his confidants have never considered it essential to the happiness of the people to make a formal statement on the subject. Ever since 1896 there has been a pretty general impression throughout the country that the fund raised by the Republicans that year was the largest in the history of American politics, and partisan politicians have drawn upon it for inspiration in the heat of debate in Congress and on the stump. Men who had no definite information on the subject unblushingly exaggerated the amount, and did not hesitate to do so, because they felt confident their statements would not be contradicted by those who were in possession of the exact data. Representative BOURKE COCKRAN, of New York, while greatly agitated over the accusation of Representative DALZELL, of Pennsylvania, that he had received money for supporting McKinley in 1896, dramatically declared to a spellbound audience in the House of Representatives a year ago that "$16,000,000 was used to purchase a Republican victory in 1896."

CLEVELAND'S FUND $4,000,000.

But the 1896 fund was not the biggest ever raised in the interest of a Presidential candidate. The late Senator Hanna knew that when he was alive, but never publicly stated so. Mr. Bliss also knew it, but likewise was silent. There were other men who more properly could have taken the public into their confidence, but they apparently saw no reason for so doing. The largest amount of money ever collected to conduct a national campaign was in 1892, when Grover Cleveland was a candidate for reelection. The late William C. Whitney obtained the bulk of that fund, and it was a trifle over $4,000,000. I have this on unimpeachable authority, and the statement can not be successfully controverted any more than the other figures herein given can be proven incorrect. But Mr. Whitney's fund was not used to purchase the election of Mr. Cleveland thirteen years ago. It was expended in legitimately furthering the interests of the Democratic nominee, just as the money contributed in 1896 and 1900 was devoted to the intelligent promotion of the Republican cause. Every sensible, practical man who knows anything about the financial requirements of a national campaign knows that a Presidential election can not be purchased with any such sum, or, in fact, any sum at all.

It is possible for me to give not only the size of the fund raised by the Republicans last year, but also to present a recapitulation of the manner in which it was disbursed. Two items consumed nearly two-thirds of the entire fund, namely, literature and assistance to State committees. Very nearly one-third of the $1,900,000 at the disposal of the national committee was expended in the printing and distribution of political pamphlets, documents, etc. The postage and expressage alone amounted to thousands of dollars. It would be correct to state that about $550,000 was utilized in this way. Fully a third of the fund was sent to the Republican managers in a dozen or more States where the local committees had exhausted their own financial supplies. It is well within the limits of accuracy to say that at least between $650,000 and $700,000 was paid out in this manner. The chairmen of the State committees who were the recipients of such aid doubtless have records to show that the money was expended in stimulating interest in the campaign by the employment of bands and the customary popular attractions, and for literature on topics which were of special interest in certain localities.

Another big item consisted of the salaries to employees at the headquarters in New York and Chicago and the rent of the offices. At the two headquarters there were fully 250 men and women engaged in a score of different capacities. Throughout the campaign the weekly salary expense and rent roll aggregated about $15,000, and by the time the contest was ended and headquarters closed up $150,000 was paid out on this account. Next came the lithographing and advertising account. Millions of lithographs and campaign buttons were distributed throughout the country, and in the neighborhood of $150,000 was expended for this purpose and for advertising in magazines and periodicals. It will be recalled that Chairman Cortelyou introduced an innovation in 1904 by printing highly attractive advertisements in the leading magazines, and in this way reached something like 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 people. Those who are familiar with some of these details of campaign management will recall that the Democratic national committee here was much discomfited when it learned of this ingenious and sagacious method of advancing the Republican cause.

ORATORY WAS EXPENSIVE.

Even larger than the lithograph bill was the account of the speakers' bureau. President Roosevelt's managers made it a rule at the beginning of the campaign that every man who was speaking under the auspices of the committee should get his transportation at headquarters. In other words, the chairman placed a ban upon the use of free passes. Thus most of the large corps of stump speakers had their traveling expenses paid out of the committee's treasury. A large majority of them, moreover, received compensation for their services. Altogether it required between $175,000 and $200,000 to maintain the speakers' bureau. This item completes the recapitulation, with the exception of the balance which was left in the treasury at the close of the campaign. This was between $95,000 and $100,000.

Exaggerated reports concerning the size of the balance have appeared in the last two or three months. One story had it that it amounted to about $400,000, and this report gained extensive circulation. To any person who may think the actual balance was excessive or useless it is only necessary to state that the national committee maintains headquarters at Washington, and will continue to do so until the next campaign opens. To support the headquarters costs in the neighborhood of $10,000 a year, and this sum includes the salaries of the secretary and two clerks, office rent, stationery, etc. Thus $40,000 approximately will be expended before the Republican headquarters are opened in 1908. What is left of the fund at that time will be devoted to establishing the new headquarters and starting the tremendous machinery of the national committee before the treasurer again starts out to collect funds.

MONEY FOR STATE COMMITTEES.

Of the money which was distributed by the national committee among State committees that had exhausted their own funds, a large proportion went to New York, New Jersey, West Virginia, Indiana, Nevada, Illinois, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Wisconsin. It was these States which the Democrats regarded as the chief battle ground, and it was in them that the bulk of their funds was spent. There are other States in the Middle West and Northwest which received assistance from the Republican national committee, but in no instance was any money furnished near the close of the campaign. In other words, no State committee received a large lump sum a day or two before the election. The remittances came earlier, so that there could be no ground for the suspicion that the money was to be used improperly on election day. State committees that went "broke" on the eve of election stayed "broke" over election day. Moreover, before Treasurer Bliss came to the relief of any of the State committees he knew for what purposes the money was to be expended, and in no case was money advanced except for purely legitimate objects. Mr. Roosevelt's plurality in these States aggregated 1,500,000; so that if the $650,000 or $700,000 was used corruptly the price of votes averaged 40 or 45 cents each. And certainly votes are worth more than that to people who are selling them.

The contributions to the Republican treasury last year came from an astonishingly large number of sources. There were over 4,000 known contributors—about 40 per cent of the whole number. This means there was no record of the identity of 60 per cent of the subscribers. Practically the same ratio obtained in the collection of the Republican national fund that was shown to exist in the subscriptions which were made to the campaign of District Attorney Jerome in New York this fall. I am satisfied that the estimate of 10,000 individual contributions to the Republican committee in 1904 is a conservative one, and therefore the average amount received was less than $190.

SOME ONE GAVE CLOSE TO $100,000.

The largest single contribution was either $75,000 or $100,000—I have been unable to learn which, but was authoritatively informed that it was one or the other. Strange to relate, this large sum came from an unknown donor. It was turned in to Treasurer Bliss by one of the men who were soliciting funds, and even he did not reveal the identity of the giver.

There was a great deal of speculation at Republican headquarters on the subject, but the mystery has not been revealed to this day. Some people may think Andrew Carnegie made this healthy donation, because he publicly declared before the campaign opened that he was willing to give any sum that was necessary to advance the political interests of Theodore Roosevelt. Still, it may have been any one of a score of other multimillionaires who had nothing to ask of the President, but wanted to give a little of his spare cash to the party whose principles he subscribed to and to aid a man whose personality he admired.

But the bulk of the contributions was collected by Mr. Bliss's corps of assistants and by committees in such cities as Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, St. Louis, and San Francisco. Mr. Bliss had subcommittees for various lines of trade, who confined their efforts to specified channels. These collectors carried subscription books, and every man who contributed either set down the amount opposite his name or inscribed the word "cash" only.

Some conception of the number of small contributions that were made may be gained when it is stated that in Chicago alone more than 200 of these books were placed in circulation by the subtreasurer of the committee in that city. Much of the money thus collected was turned into the treasury in New York in lump sums, and necessarily there could be no record of the individual amounts given.

Chairman Cortelyou and Treasurer Bliss both declined many large voluntary contributions because there were conditions attached to them. More than one man went to the headquarters in New York and offered to give a snug sum of money if the chairman or the treasurer would agree to use his influence in getting a Federal appointment or in securing him some other material reward after the election. Every such proposition was rejected peremptorily, and the proponent was given to understand that the national committee was not doing business on such a basis. There positively is no doubt whatever that Chairman Cortelyou made no pledges involving a reward of any sort to a single contributor to the Republican fund. He started out on that principle and adhered to it until election day, and the result has been that he since has suffered no embarrassment, nor has the President.

HYDE AND THE AMBASSADORSHIP.

Neither Mr. Cortelyou nor Mr. Bliss knew that James H. Hyde, late vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Company, had made a contribution with the idea of being rewarded with the American embassy at Paris. If they had personal knowledge that he gave money from his own pocket, they certainly knew nothing of his diplomatic aspirations. When, after the election, Hyde's name was presented to the President for consideration, it is said upon unquestionable authority that Mr. Roosevelt in the course of a conversation with Mr. Cortelyou referred to the application. And it is known that the national chairman emphatically dissented from the opinion of those who suggested Hyde for the Paris post. Chairman Cortelyou is on record officially as having made no promises of any character to contributors to the Republican fund. In a public statement, issued at the close of the campaign, he said:

"Every part of this fund has come from voluntary contributions made without demand, importunity, or pressure, and without any agreement, pledge, promise, assurance, or understanding, express or implied, regarding the policy or the action of the Administration, or looking to any benefit or advantage to any contributor, except the benefits which will come to all business and to all our people from the continuance of Republican policies and Republican administration."

Should the officers of the Republican national committee ever be called upon to show how the money was spent last year, they could produce one of the cleanest statements ever prepared. The business of the committee was conducted according to high-grade methods that would be the envy of many a successful mercantile establishment. Every important purchase made was on the basis of the lowest bid, and Republican contractors and printers were favored only if their proposals were the lowest and best. Mr. Cortelyou and Mr. Bliss had expert accountants employed to keep track of every expenditure, even to a single postage stamp. And it may be said in this connection that the contracts for literature, lithographs, and other campaign novelties demonstrated that there were astute business men in charge of the campaign.

THE MOVEMENT FOR PUBLICITY.

Republicans in this city who were identified with the management of the President's campaign are gratified to learn that Perry Belmont is active in a propaganda whose object is to secure the publicity of campaign contributions and disbursements. He has assurances of the moral support of a large number of prominent Democrats throughout the country, and it is believed this will tend to insure earnest consideration of Mr. Roosevelt's recommendation to Congress on this subject. In his message last December the President urged publicity of this character, and he intends to renew his recommendation next week. It has been the understanding in Administration circles in Washington that he will go further in urging Congressional action than he did a year ago. Those active in the publicity movement ought to be able to get some valuable information on this question from Postmaster-General Cortelyou. Some months ago the legislature of Connecticut passed a corrupt practices act, which is one of the best enactments of its kind on the statute books of any State.

The inspiration for the law came from Chairman Cortelyou in the summer of 1904, when he was in the midst of the Presidential campaign. Among other things the Connecticut law provides that only the treasurer of a committee may receive contributions and pay campaign expenses, that a full list must be published after election, and that no pledges must be made in consideration of subscriptions.

JUDGE PARKER'S FUND.

Very likely accurate data concerning the expenditures of the Democratic national committee last year will be obtained soon. It probably will astound most people, who may have formed the idea that the Democrats were hard pressed for funds, to learn how much money actually was collected and disbursed by Judge Parker's managers. They had a plethora of cash, as may be shown later.

FRED STAREK.

Mr. TILLMAN. Now, Mr. President, I have only a few more words to say. It is very clear to my mind that the insurance companies are not the only rascals that have been engaged in this practice, if we consider the fact that several national banks—a good many of them—are great beneficiaries, particular pets of the Treasury Department, that at one time and another one bank and another have been selected by the Secretaries of the Treasury for deposits running up into the scores of millions, and that the use of this money in banking has been the instrumentality through which great fortunes have been piled up for the owners of the banks, directors, etc. But there was a mutuality of interest undoubtedly, aside from the "16-to-1" business, which would almost compel these national banking corporations to contribute to the campaign fund of a party which had created them, which had been their uniform and consistent friend and supporter, and, therefore, I think that the investigation, if honestly and zealously pressed, will give us light on a great many subjects about which we now have unpleasant suspicions.

It is a sad thought to me that the Senate is discredited by the people of the United States as being a body more or less corruptible or corrupted, and that we are the instrumentalities and agents of corporations in a great measure who dictate our conduct here or our course in legislation, and whose interests are sedulously watched over and guarded.

We have had some misfortunes to come our way in the recent past. We got one or two lame ducks among us. I saw a squib this morning in one of the papers—with mortification and shame I read it—that it was about time, at least it was apropos, for the Senate to unite in singing the chorus of the song—I never heard it—

Are we all here and none in jail?

[Laughter.]

I wish to say for one Senator that while I do not claim to be any better than my brethren, and admit that I am more than liable to temptation and to fall when tempted, I would be glad if we could begin without partisanship, without any array of Democrat against Republican or Republican against Democrat, or for any benefit of any party, to cleanse the Augean stable, if it is here. We have been called the "gray wolves of the Senate." I do not happen to belong to that category because I am not quite gray yet, but still there are many men here whom I respect and admire whose heads are white. Death comes along once in a while and strikes down one after another of us. I honestly believe that with the temper of the people as it is now, and the condition of the public mind which at present prevails, it is opportune and a good thing for this body to try to lift up Senate investigations above the suspicion of dodging, or collusion, or cowardice, and to lift the Senate as a whole in the estimation of our fellow-countrymen out of the bog of dishonor and disgrace which now envelops us.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the resolution of the Senator from South Carolina will go to the Calendar.

Mr. TILLMAN. I had supposed that there would not be any objection to its passage, and unless there is objection I should like to have the inquiry go to the Treasury Department. If it may be done by unanimous consent, I ask that the resolution be put on its passage.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that the resolution which he offered be now acted upon. Is there objection? The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

FUNERAL EXPENSES OF THE LATE SENATOR ORVILLE H. PLATT.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted yesterday by Mr. BULKELEY, reported it without amendment; and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to pay from the miscellaneous items of the contingent fund of the Senate the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the committee appointed by the President of the Senate in arranging for and attending the funeral of the late Senator from Connecticut, Hon. ORVILLE H. PLATT, upon vouchers to be approved by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

LAWS OF PORTO RICO.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Referring to section 32 of the act approved April 12, 1900, entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," I transmit herewith eleven ordinances enacted by the executive council of Porto Rico, which ordinances have been approved by the President of the United States.

Attention is invited to the accompanying report of the Secretary of State.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 7, 1905.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. FRYE. If there is no further legislative business, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After fifteen minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 2 o'clock and 18 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, December 11, 1905, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 7, 1905.

DISTRICT JUDGES.

Luman F. Parker, jr., of Indian Territory, to be judge of the United States court of the northern district of Indian Territory, vice William R. Lawrence, resigned.

William H. H. Clayton, of Indian Territory, to be judge of the United States court of the central district of Indian Territory. A reappointment, his term expiring December 16, 1905.

Hosea Townsend, of Indian Territory, to be judge of the United States court of the southern district of Indian Territory. A reappointment, his term expiring January 9, 1906.

William R. Lawrence, of Illinois, to be judge of the United States court of the western district of Indian Territory, vice Charles W. Raymond, whose term will expire December 16, 1905.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Lewis I. O'Neal, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905), in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

Samuel C. Mills, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905), in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

Luke C. Strider, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905) in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

Robert H. Terrell, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905) in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

Thomas H. Callan, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905) in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

Charles S. Bundy, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia. A reappointment (his term expiring December 31, 1905) in accordance with the provisions of the act approved June 30, 1902, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia.'"

MEMBER CALIFORNIA DÉBRIS COMMISSION.

Capt. Charles H. McKinstry, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, for appointment as a member of the California Débris Commission provided for by the act of Congress approved March 1, 1893, entitled "An act to create the California Débris Commission and regulate hydraulic mining in the State of California," to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate, vice Col. Thomas H. Handbury, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, relieved.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Lieut. Newton A. McCully to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 22d day of April, 1905, vice Lieut. Commander Washington I. Chambers, promoted.

Lieut. Marcus L. Miller to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. Commander James P. Parker, promoted.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Edison E. Scranton to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. William V. Pratt, promoted.

Ensigns Daniel P. Mannix, Harry K. Cage, and Benjamin G. Barthalow to be lieutenants (junior grade) in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Daniel P. Mannix to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. Thomas Washington, promoted.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Benjamin G. Barthalow to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. Louis A. Kaiser, promoted.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Harry K. Cage to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. Marcus L. Miller, promoted.

Asst. Surg. Robert A. Bachmann to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 20th day of March, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. Howard F. Strine to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 8th day of May, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. Joseph P. Traynor to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 8th day of May, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. John L. Neilson to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 4th day of October, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Francis M. Shook, a citizen of Minnesota, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 15th day of March, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE NAVY.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 3d day of May, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Richard A. Warner, a citizen of the District of Columbia.

Paul R. Stalnaker, a citizen of Texas.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 24th day of May, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Ernest O. J. Eytinge, a citizen of New York.

George M. Olson, a citizen of Minnesota.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 7th day of July, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Curtis B. Munger, a citizen of California.

Edward R. Marshall, a citizen of Tennessee.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 14th day of July, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Fletcher H. Brooks, a citizen of Maryland.

John B. Mears, a citizen of Virginia.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 1st day of August, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date.

George S. Hathaway, a citizen of Rhode Island;

Frank E. Sellers, a citizen of Virginia.

The following-named citizens to be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 21st day of September, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Edward H. H. Old, a citizen of Virginia;

George H. McConnon, a citizen of Virginia;

Edward C. White, a citizen of New Jersey;

Thurlow W. Reed, a citizen of New York;

Edward U. Reed, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

Edward L. Woods, a citizen of Virginia, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 14th day of October, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Robert C. Ransdell, a citizen of the District of Columbia, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 24th day of November, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 7, 1905.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Charles Joseph Bonaparte, of Maryland, to be Secretary of the Navy.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

Truman Handy Newberry, of Michigan, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

POSTMASTER.

MISSISSIPPI.

Anna D. Cook to be postmaster at Laurel, in the county of Jones and State of Mississippi.

EXTRADITION WITH DENMARK.

The injunction of secrecy was removed December 7, 1905, from a supplementary extradition treaty between the United States and Denmark, signed at Washington on November 6, 1905.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 7, 1905.

The House met at 12 o'clock m., and was called to order by the Speaker.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

TOBACCO GROWERS.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, on the 4th of December I introduced a bill for the relief of tobacco growers, but in the great rush in introducing bills the Clerk was unable to note the fact that it was introduced on that day, but erroneously noted on the next day that it was introduced on the 5th. I desire this fact to go into the RECORD, so that the true history of the bill may appear in the RECORD.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House of Representatives by Mr. BARNES, one of his secretaries.

PANAMA CANAL.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 480) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriations for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes.

The motion of Mr. HEPBURN was agreed to.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, with Mr. VREELAND in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is now in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H. R. 480. Section No. 1 of the bill has been read for amendment. No amendment having been offered, the Clerk will read section No. 2.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 2. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $16,500,000 to continue the construction of the isthmian canal, to be expended under the direction of the President in accordance with the said act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, approved June 28, 1902, and for each and every purpose connected with the same, the said sum to continue available until expended: Provided, That all expenditures from the appropriation herein made shall be reimbursed to the Treasury of the United States out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds authorized in section 8 of the said act approved June 28, 1902.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out, in line 3, on page 2, the words "sixteen million five hundred thousand dollars" and to insert in lieu thereof the words "six million eight hundred and fifty-eight thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars."

I announced yesterday, Mr. Chairman, that I would move to strike out the sum named in the bill and substitute for it a sum to be ascertained and which would, or ought to, fully cover all payments necessary to be made by the Commission during the month of December, including the payments on January 1.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the amendment be reported.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman send the amendment to the desk for the information of the committee?

The Clerk read the amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Now, Mr. Chairman, I came to the conclusion that that was the right sum by the investigation of the detailed statement, or summary statement, rather, of the Commission.

I find that the indebtedness of the Commission on all scores, by this statement, up to December 1 to be $4,500,000. I find that the December proportion of the remaining appropriation asked for—in a manner estimated for—would amount to $2,358,333. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. PAGE] went over the figures for me and made an estimate, which he handed me yesterday, while I was too busy to do so myself.

By reference to page 40 of the RECORD, gentlemen will find $4,000,000 in one place and $500,000 in another, in the second column—this includes what is due the Panama Railroad Company—and will find the balance of the amount I propose by taking one-sixth of the amount estimated by the Canal Commission to be necessary for the seven months following as the December proportion thereof.

Mr. Chairman, I shall not further discuss the amendment except to say that while I would not for anything have the work upon the Isthmus stopped one day—none of us desire that it shall be stopped one day—I am of the opinion, which seems to be prevalent on both sides of this Chamber, that legislation of this unusual and extraordinary character ought not to be a precedent for future legislation and ought to be limited to what is absolutely necessary to meet an unavoidable emergency. I think the figures cover the unavoidable emergency and give a margin of nearly $800,000 in addition.

Mr. TAWNEY. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Yes.

Mr. TAWNEY. Your proposed amendment contemplates a proportionate amount of the entire amount which is recommended? One-sixth, you say, for the future expenses and $4,000,000 for the indebtedness up to December 1. One-sixth would not carry it beyond January.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Through the payment on the 1st of January until January 15.

Mr. TAWNEY. Does the gentleman understand that under item No. 2, on page 40, right-hand column, $3,300,000 is for equipment purchased or contracted for delivery not later than June 30, 1906? So that if the Department has legally obligated the Government, the Government will be compelled to make that payment without reference to the future appropriation. Now, can you segregate one of the months from the liabilities on the part of the Government from others? Have we sufficient information to enable us to determine just what portion of the liability must be met in January for equipment now purchased or contracted for? What part will have to be met in December? It seems to me that it is impractical to segregate the amounts severally, for the reason that this is a liability already incurred.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentlemen is not asking me a question.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Mississippi has expired.

Mr. MANN. I ask that the time of the gentleman from Mississippi be extended for five minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. WILLIAMS. In response to the question of the gentleman from Minnesota, not in response to his argument, the item of $2,740,000—i. e., item 2 in the statement—represents equipment "purchased or contracted for delivery not later than June 30, 1906." I take it, as an ordinary business man, and a very ordinary one I am frank to confess, that the supplies will not be delivered much prior to the time, if any prior to the time, fixed in the contract. That item, therefore, will not call for any payment in its major part, perhaps not in any of its parts, before June 30.

Mr. TAWNEY. The gentleman must certainly admit that if the goods are contracted for the liability will have to be met by the 30th of June.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Of course. Payment will not, however, have to be made before that nor until delivery. It would be a very foolish thing on the part of the Government to make a contract for goods to be delivered at a certain time and pay for them before delivered.

Mr. TAWNEY. It shows that that much is contracted for and that must be met in accordance with the terms of the purchase, so that it makes very little difference whether we appropriate the money now or after delivery. If we postpone the appropriation we will not be able to appropriate less than is necessary and called for now.

Mr. WILLIAMS. We may get a less or we may have to get a larger one; I do not know. But the end I am seeking to reach is this: That a committee of this House shall sit upon that precise question, shall investigate it, shall scrutinize the expenditures, shall scrutinize the estimates, shall scrutinize the contracts; and therefore I want an emergency bill like this to make no appropriation for anything but an actual emergency—any matter which we will have plenty of time to do after having had it investigated and voted on by a committee.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Yes.

Mr. MANN. I understood the gentleman to say that he arrived at the amount named in his amendment by taking the items in the second column on page 40, item 1, $4,000,000; item 5, the amount due the Panama Railroad Company, $500,000, and then taking the balance of the $16,500,000 and dividing it by 6. Let me call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the estimates cover seven months and not six, to begin with, so that on the gentleman's own theory, to cover the month of December only, he should take one-seventh, but that if he runs, as he proposes to do, until the middle of January, it would take more than one-sixth. This estimate is for seven months. The gentleman's proposition would clearly only carry it until the 1st of January.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Carry it through the payments on the 1st of January.

Mr. MANN. Oh, I beg the gentleman's pardon. His estimate of one-sixth would only run to the 1st of January.

Mr. WILLIAMS. One-seventh.

Mr. MANN. One-seventh.

Mr. WILLIAMS. One-seventh has not been taken. One-sixth was taken to allow the very margin of which the gentleman speaks.

Mr. MANN. There is very little difference between the fractions—between one-seventh and one-sixth. It would only run until the 31st of December. Large payments are made on the 1st of January. At least the pay rolls are made out on the 1st of January, and the payments are made then. The gentleman would not cover those items that are necessary even for pay rolls on the 1st of January, much less the pay rolls due the middle of January or the 1st of February.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Now, Mr. Chairman, in explanation of what the gentleman has stated, this amount, $6,858,000, includes the entire amount in item 1, which is $4,000,000. It includes the entire amount in item 5. It does not include a proportionate share of that amount, but includes the entire item.

Mr. MANN. I understood that.

Mr. WILLIAMS. That makes $4,500,000. Then all the other items on that page added together—items 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, and 8—are summed up, and one-sixth of them taken instead of one-seventh. Now, this will not only cover all that can be paid for the month of December—it is for the month of December that the payments on January 1 are made—but it takes a fractional part larger than necessary, not one-seventh, but one-sixth. There can be no doubt, in my mind, that the amount—$6,858,333—more than covers the emergency necessities of payment between this time and the 15th of January, because the Commission pay, as I understand it, at the beginning and middle of each month.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. MANN. I ask unanimous consent that the time of the gentleman from Mississippi be extended five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Unanimous consent is asked that the time of the gentleman from Mississippi be extended five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. MANN. I wanted to call the gentleman's attention to the other item which the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] called attention to. My information, which I am very frank to say is somewhat indefinite, is that both because they want the material at once and because it is necessary to get material as rapidly as they can—that is, the railroad material—in order to transport it (as we have to take it in our ships), the Commission are urging the delivery of material just as rapidly as possible—the big locomotive engines, the cars, and so forth. I am frank to say that in my judgment it would be a mistake to appropriate simply one-sixth of that amount. I do not believe it would be sufficient even to carry the Government through without distress until the middle of January.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Now, Mr. Chairman, in response to that I have to say that if there is any mistake it is in including even one-sixth of that amount. Here in the House we take a sort of judicial cognizance of the ordinary methods of business. I will read item 2 to the House:

2. Equipment purchased or contracted for delivery not later than June 30, 1906	$3,350,000
1,100 steel flat cars	1,071,100
120 locomotives	1,367,000
43 steam shovels	493,600
18 unloading machines (plows, etc.)	151,794
3 water tanks and towers	36,050
3 earth spreaders	23,382
2 dipper dredges	205,000
Miscellaneous	2,074
Total	3,350,000

Now, let us take cognizance of the ordinary course of business. It is very improbable that a dollar of that will be delivered before June 30, for the very simple reason that the contract allows them to wait until June 30. They will make no money by delivering prior to June 30. The chances are that instead of one-sixth of it being delivered before June 30, one-sixth of it will not be delivered until after June 30, for that matter.

That is my experience in connection with these contracts for future deliveries. Nothing will be necessary to be paid until the goods have been delivered upon the Isthmus of Panama. So, if I have made any mistake at all, it was in taking one-sixth of the item—a mistake in taking any part at all.

Mr. WANGER. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Certainly.

Mr. WANGER. In the articles mentioned I understand the opinion of the Commission to be that these articles should be furnished at the earliest practicable date.

Mr. WILLIAMS. But they have contracted for them all to be delivered "not later than June 30."

Mr. WANGER. The most of them are in the process of manufacture.

Mr. WILLIAMS. And will remain in the process of manufacture until June 30.

Mr. WANGER. I submit that the process of manufacture will be expedited by the certainty that the contracts are going to be carried out.

Mr. WILLIAMS. If the gentleman will bring to me any contract——

Mr. WANGER. Any implied veto on the part of the Government of the conditions of the contract will make contractors less anxious to finish the construction than what they would be if they had a certainty that the contracts would be carried out.

Mr. WILLIAMS. There is no "implied veto" about this. If the gentleman will show me any reason to hope that these people will deliver these things any sooner without being paid a dollar more money—slighting or delaying other and concurrent contracts with no addition, and at a loss of other business—then I would include a greater proportion of this amount. The gentleman knows as a business man that business men are not going to hurry up unnecessarily in delivering their goods unless they have something to make by it. The Commission has already made the contract with them under which they can deliver the goods as late as June 30 and get every dollar fixed in the contract.

Mr. WANGER. My impression is that there has been a great deal of publicity about the purpose of the condition of securing these articles. Has my friend heard any criticism of the Commission or the Government in making these contracts?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I am not here to criticise the Government or the Commission; that is not at all relevant or necessary to the consideration of the purpose of this amendment. I do not criticise an Executive Department of this Government by refusing to make an appropriation at its request when I do not believe the appropriation ought to be made at a particular time. I have said that I am willing to meet an emergency with an emergency appropriation; no more. The gentleman might as well say that I would be criticising the War Department if it should come in here to-day and want $50,000,000 appropriated and suggest that $500,000 of it was immediately necessary, because unless something was done at once a great public work would go to pieces, and I should take the position that we appropriate the $500,000 and let the balance of the fifty millions wait the ordinary course of legislative procedure.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend the amendment by changing the sum named to $10,000,000.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, this is the fourth day of the session of the Fifty-ninth Congress. Within a short period of time the Speaker of the House will appoint the regular committees. When these regular committees are appointed, measures like the one under discussion will be referred to these committees. However, we are confronted in the early days of this session, which is a long one, and which may last until June or July, with an emergency bill calling for $16,500,000 of the people's money to be appropriated at this time. The estimates that are presented to this House, in my judgment as a Member of this House, do not warrant us at this time in favoring an appropriation of $16,500,000. We should, as Members, do everything in our power to advance speedily the construction of the isthmian canal. It is in view of this that I have offered the amendment appropriating $10,000,000. I have taken some little pains to ascertain as best I could how much there ought to be paid out now as an emergency proposition. The best information

I can obtain, without giving the source of it, is in the neighborhood of $8,000,000. That will more than cover the amount that we should appropriate to-day as an emergency proposition. To ask this House at this time, in the early days of the session, to appropriate $16,500,000, that will carry us until the 1st of July, 1906, is asking too much of this House that opens and closes the doors of the Treasury upon the question of appropriating money.

Mr. Chairman, I have offered this amendment to the amendment with a view of trying to harmonize this question, because legislation is a compromise at best; it is the average judgment of 386 men sitting here, each one clothed with responsibility to his district; and I am frank to say that I would not like to go before my constituents in the coming election, as I hope I may, and say that without any knowledge whatever I voted to appropriate $16,500,000 on the fourth day of the session when it met in its regular long session. In addition to that, I wish to say that I am not in favor of issuing bonds at this time. From the first days of the party to which I belong, whose majorities have now grown so that the members of that party in the House have been compelled to come over to this side of the Chamber in order that they may obtain seats, it has never issued a bond, except in the case of the Spanish war. Let me read to the House the condition of the Treasury of the United States on the 6th day of December, 1905:

Available cash on hand	$136,596,542.29
In the banks to our credit	55,638,210.70

On yesterday we received $1,119,856.06 more than we paid out. For this month thus far we have received in excess of expenditures nearly $3,000,000. Is there an urgent necessity for the issuance of bonds? We have $55,000,000 of the people's money in the banks to-day. Now, let us resolve ourselves back to individuals. Fifty-five thousand dollars is in the bank to our credit individually. Suppose I want to enter into a project which will cost me an outlay of $16,000. What would you think of me if I had that $55,000 to my credit and did not draw my check on my own money in the bank, but instead went and borrowed the money either of that bank or of some other bank, engaging to pay interest on the $16,000, when I had $55,000 in the bank to my credit for which I am not receiving a dollar's interest? Yet that is the condition we are in to-day.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate fully the feeling in the House that an emergency appropriation of this kind ought to carry only an appropriation sufficient to cover the actual emergency. It is undoubtedly true that we can make an appropriation of less than the amount carried by the bill and still conserve the interests of the canal work, provided we make a subsequent appropriation in an urgent deficiency bill. It is, in my judgment, equally true that the amount proposed in the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] is not sufficient. He proposes to carry a sufficient fund to meet the bills which are now due, and, in addition, one-sixth of the balance. That would not carry an amount which would last beyond the 1st day of January, even if it should last that long; and for us to say that we will leave the Commission without any money at all after the 1st day of January is to say that we bring discredit upon the Government and paralyze the efforts of the Commission.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. MANN. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Illinois whether certain of these articles for which estimates have been made and which are said to have been contracted for, such as 43 steam shovels, $493,000, would be required in case the work should be done by contract?

Mr. MANN. They would undoubtedly be required however the work may be done.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Do I understand the gentleman to say that so large an investment in steam shovels will be required if the work of excavation—the whole work—is let by contract?

Mr. MANN. I understand it to be the judgment of the Commission and of the engineers that whether the work shall finally be finished by the Government, or whether it shall be done by letting it out on contract, all of these supplies, including these excavators, under a form of contract which would be made, will not only be necessary but must be used, and that the Government can in no case suffer loss by obtaining them now.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Is it not true that their only certainty of using those shovels is based on the expectation that some contract would be made with the contractors who undertake the work, while those contractors might prefer another variety of steam shovels or another method of doing the work?

Mr. MANN. Oh, that is possible.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Is it not only possible, but probable?

Mr. MANN. It is true that if these articles are purchased, if contracts are let, the Government will require that in those contracts some provision shall be made with reference to their use.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Let me ask the gentleman a somewhat broader question. Is it not true that a considerable measure of these supplies have been purchased or contracted for upon the theory that the work will be done directly by the Government?

Mr. MANN. My understanding is, and I say to the gentleman, that the Commission and the engineers have not finally determined how the work shall be done. I say, frankly, as far as my own judgment is concerned, that it is impossible to divide the work of excavation of the Culebra Cut between different contractors, and that it must be done either by the Government directly or by turning it over to one contractor, and I feel confident that that never will be done.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. But the work is severable in a measure, is it not?

Mr. MANN. Practically not severable at all in this Culebra cut.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Then the gentleman is proceeding on the thought, is he not, that the work will be done directly by the Government, although that question has not yet been decided?

Mr. MANN. Well, I understand the Commission not to have decided the question and not to have engaged in any purchases which will be affected by the decision of the question. My own judgment, I said to the gentleman, is worth nothing. I am not an engineer and not an expert; it is a pure matter of guess.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I ask that I may have five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that his time be extended for five minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield?

Mr. MANN. I yield for a question.

Mr. MADDEN. Does the gentleman think it necessary to appropriate the entire $16,500,000, or would he believe that a smaller sum sufficient to carry the Commission along for two or three months, until some committee of this House could consider the needs of the Commission in a proper way, would be all that should be appropriated at this time?

Mr. MANN. I have no doubt whatever that the Commission can get along without serious detriment to the work with less than $16,500,000, but in my judgment, which is purely a personal judgment, the Commission will in the end get better work and quicker results if they know that they have this entire sum at their disposal at this time, because most of this money is for the purchase of implements and machinery to carry on the work. We have contracts entered into providing for the delivery of these implements, not contracts, as stated by the gentleman from Mississippi, which require that these articles shall be furnished on the 1st day of July at all. The time covers the contracts on up to July 1, but many of the contracts expire entirely before July 1, and most of them require the furnishing of many of these supplies at monthly intervals. For instance, in the item of 120 locomotives, the heavy locomotive engines such as we use now in modern railroad work; these locomotives if delivered all on the 1st day of July would swamp our transportation department. We provide for the delivery of these locomotives at intervals, and we are urging the manufacturers of them that they (and they have to be specially manufactured, I may say) hurry the work along. You understand that in the railroad work there we meet this difficulty. All of our railroads in this country are either what are called "narrow-gauge" railroads or "standard-gauge" railroads. The Panama Railroad is neither. A car which can be run on our roads here can not be run on the Panama road, and the locomotive engine which can be used here can not be used there, as the gauge there is different.

Mr. MADDEN. Will the gentleman yield for a further question?

Mr. MANN. I yield to my colleague gladly.

Mr. MADDEN. Does the gentleman think the emergency is so great as to require a blind vote on the part of this House for an appropriation of the amount sought by the Isthmian Commission, or does he believe that an amount equal to the requirements for the next three months would be wiser, and that then this House, through its proper committee, would have ample opportunity to study into the needs of the Commission and to make such appropriations and recommendations as in its judgment it would be justified in making?

Mr. MANN. My colleague, who may become a member of the committee which will have charge of any deficiencies or any other estimates which may come from this Commission, asks me what I really think. I really think that this matter is receiving more consideration by the House now than it ever will receive in the future either from the Committee on Appropriations or the House. I have seen so many appropriations come in from that distinguished committee and so easily passed through the House which nobody knew much about that I feel confident we are giving as much attention to it now as it ordinarily would receive.

Mr. COCKRAN. May I interrupt the gentleman to ask a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield?

Mr. MANN. I yield.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, merely to illustrate the fullness of that explanation and information the House possesses, I would ask the distinguished gentleman from Illinois if he can tell us anything further about the identity of that press agent who is drawing $10,000 a year, according to the statement of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. MANN. If the distinguished gentleman from New York, who often graces the floor of the House when he addresses it, had remained upon the floor yesterday he would have heard me state then that there was no such person and no such office.

Mr. COCKRAN. I was on the floor continuously the whole day, sir, and my recollection does not cover that statement.

Mr. MANN. Then the gentleman, unfortunately, at that time was absent.

Mr. COCKRAN. Do I understand the gentleman to state now that there is no such person, no such agent, no such expenditure, as mentioned by the gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD]?

Mr. MANN. I state now that there is no such person, no such agent, and no such expenditure——

Mr. COCKRAN. I desire to express my acknowledgment to the gentleman.

Mr. MANN (continuing). As a salary of $10,000 for a press agent, or any other salary for a press agent. I stated that very fully to the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD] yesterday.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I am perfectly willing to leave to the House, on the explanation which has been made, the amount which they shall wish to appropriate. And I hope the House will not accept the amount offered by the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the time of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] be extended——

Mr. PAYNE. I understand that the debate on this amendment is exhausted. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes of time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] asks for five minutes of time. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, it is unfortunate that this matter comes in at this time. There is an urgent necessity for action upon it. No committee of the House has had an opportunity to examine it, because of the urgency that arises. If we do not appropriate sufficient money at this time it will hamper the Commission and delay them at the very outset in the construction of this canal. The Commission has reported to the House the total deficiency for this fiscal year ending on the 30th of June next. They have reported it in such a manner that we can not easily segregate the amounts sufficient to run the work until some committee of the House may examine into the items that are presented here. The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] moved to cut it down, on the theory that $4,000,000 is all that is necessary now, except another sum of $500,000 which he thinks necessary now, and a sixth of the amount from now up to the 30th of June next. Obviously, this amendment is not sufficient to cover the amount necessary. There must be a stoppage in the work before this matter can be considered and a deficiency appropriation bill be brought in. That would take it beyond the 1st of January. Of course, the House will adjourn over the holidays. Then after that the committees must meet and have time to examine these items before they bring in a deficiency appropriation bill. I think we can figure enough out of this statement to show that the amount suggested by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] is grossly inadequate to supply the Commission without hampering them until the 1st of January next. He admits item No. 1, on page 40 of the RECORD, an amount of $4,000,000. The next is item 2, an amount of $3,350,000, for cars, locomotives, steam shovels, unloading machines, water tanks and powers, earth spreaders, dipper dredges, and a miscellaneous item of $2,074, making a total of $3,350,000; and he says that the contract calls for delivery not later than June 30, 1906. It has been stated here upon the floor that the contract is for the earliest possible delivery, and that all must be delivered before June 30, 1906.

Of course, Mr. Chairman, if this is a hurry order, if these articles are to be produced by the manufacturers at the earliest possible date, they will be delayed if we delay the appropriation. If we say, by passing a sufficient appropriation now, that the money is there in the Treasury, to be paid when these articles are delivered, then, of course, the manufacturers will hurry in order to get their pay; but if they can not get their pay until the 30th of June next, they are going to take other work, cash orders, and delay these. I have seen it stated somewhere, and I think it was in a speech of the Secretary of War made in a western city, that the object of the Commission was to assemble all of these articles——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for an extension of five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] asks for an extension of five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PAYNE. As I have said, I have seen it stated that the object of the Commission was to assemble all of these articles at the earliest practicable moment, in order that they may let their contracts and go on with the work. My understanding is, as stated by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN], that they propose either to lend out these tools to the contractors, receiving a consideration from them, or else, if they build the canal, to use them for themselves, their judgment being that such a large number of these articles can not be hastily assembled by any contractor or produced by the manufacturer, and that they are taking time by the forelock by purchasing them in advance.

Now, there are two other items of $500,000 upon this schedule, as Members will see, that look as though they ought to be appropriated for at once and the money paid before the 1st day of January. Then we ought to provide enough money to continue this work until February, and give the committee having the matter in charge an opportunity to examine the members of the Commission, or some one able to speak with authority, and bring the matter before the House in a businesslike way, so that we can all understand just what we are doing. I think we ought to appropriate ample money, sufficient for the purpose of taking it into February. Evidently the amount asked for in the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi will not do this. Evidently the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois, $10,000,000, will cover these items, and I think the House ought to vote it into the bill and adopt it as a part of the bill; and then this other six millions and a half, and even more money if the Commissioners can show that they need it, can be put in the regular deficiency bill and acted upon in this House in a deliberate way, so that we can know what we are doing.

Mr. Chairman, to hamper this Commission now by the inadequate appropriation covered by the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi would give a black eye to this Commission and to this canal in its very outset; and I do not believe a Member of this House wishes to do that. Then let us give them an ample sum; let us adopt the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois and put it on the bill. All these things are audited——

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. PAYNE. If I can have a minute to answer it, I will be glad to do so.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York declines to yield.

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. I will ask that you may have a minute so that you may answer a question.

Mr. PAYNE. When I get through I will try to answer you. You are consuming my time, and I have almost forgotten where "I was at." I will vote for the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York declines to yield.

Mr. PAYNE. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. How do you arrive at the sum of $10,000,000? Is it by way of a compromise?

Mr. PAYNE. Oh, no; here is $10,000,000 of indebtedness nearly due.

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. Why not make it $11,000,000?

Mr. PAYNE. Let me answer your question. Do not get so excited over this. The Commission say that they have liabilities of $4,000,000 due by the 1st of December; then there is another payment of $3,750,000 for supplies to be delivered before the 30th of June next. The Commission want these goods as early as they can get them. As I said, the Secretary of War, in a recent speech, said the Commission were urging the delivery of these tools at once, and of course a portion of them will be manufactured in the gentleman's State, and by this provision the manufacturers can get their money upon delivery of their goods. Then there are two other items of half a million dollars. These must be cared for, and this one-sixth of the balance can be left for salaries and other expenditures for the purpose of carrying on this work up to the 1st of February, when it can be examined and be brought into the House for full consideration.

Now, gentlemen, all these accounts are audited, not alone by the auditors on the part of the Commission, but also by the Auditor of the War Department, so that every dollar of this expenditure will ultimately come under the Auditor of the War Department and get the same auditing as all the other items of expenditures of that Department, running up to a hundred millions of dollars. This will give an ample amount with which to carry on the work until the matter can be considered by regular committee and put on the deficiency appropriation. We know that this committee will do its duty, as they have done heretofore, and will call the officers in charge of this work before them, and give every dollar that is needed. If we were to give this $16,500,000, they do not need to spend it simply because we give it. I would not vote to adopt the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi, for that would simply stop the work of the Commission, hamper it, and give the whole project a black eye. I shall vote for the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I would like to have five minutes, not to make a speech, but to ask some questions.

The CHAIRMAN. Debate on this amendment is exhausted.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. How did the gentleman from New York get ten minutes then?

The CHAIRMAN. By unanimous consent.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I ask unanimous consent to have ten minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri asks unanimous consent to address the committee for ten minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I would like to ask the gentleman from Iowa three or four questions. I see in his statement in the RECORD there is provision for purchasing agents at Washington, New York, New Orleans, and Tacoma, and that nearly all the supplies are purchased in Washington or New York. Is that true or not?

Mr. HEPBURN. I am sorry to say that I can not inform the gentleman on that subject.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I will ask you another question. How many ships has the Government in this trade down there to take this material to Panama?

Mr. HEPBURN. Five, I believe.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Nine, isn't it?

Mr. HEPBURN. Five.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. And every one of them plies between New York and Panama?

Mr. HEPBURN. Between New York and Colon.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Why do not some of them ply between Colon and New Orleans?

Mr. HEPBURN. I can not answer that.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Who is there that can answer that?

Mr. PAYNE. I would like to ask the gentleman from Missouri whether he knows of any manufacturer of locomotives, cars, steam shovels, and things of that kind in the vicinity of New Orleans?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I will tell you what I know. I know there are a good many things about this business that I do not know, and which nobody else seems to know.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I will suggest to the gentleman from New York that they manufacture locomotives in my district, within 300 miles of New Orleans. [Applause.]

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. It is not simply New Orleans, it is every State drained by the Mississippi River and its tributaries, including a large part of Pennsylvania; beginning with Minnesota and Wisconsin all the way down the banks of the Mississippi, including the greatest iron-producing place on the face of the earth, represented by the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD]. I undertake to say that you can ship coal and steam engines and everything that is used in the construction of this canal more cheaply from Pittsburg by an all-water route to Colon than you can ship it across the continent to New York and then ship it by water to Colon.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman permit me?

Mr. WANGER. I should like to ask the gentleman a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen will address the Chair. To whom does the gentleman from Missouri yield?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I yield first to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WANGER].

Mr. WANGER. The statement was made to me that the United Fruit Company, which runs a line of steamers between New Orleans and Colon, would not give as advantageous a rate as the estimated expense in shipping by the Panama Railroad Steamship Company from New York, and that in purchasing supplies it was always endeavored to be ascertained in what manner supplies could be delivered at the lowest cost.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Now, let me ask you a question.

Mr. WANGER. Certainly.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. The United States Government has ships of its own carrying this stuff down there?

Mr. WANGER. Yes, sir.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. What is the reason it can not take material from New Orleans, ton for ton, a good deal more cheaply than it can take it from New York, not counting the railroad expense of getting it to New York?

Mr. WANGER. If there was a commerce for the regular employment of the steamers, it might be able to do that. I am not acquainted with the terms of delivery at the respective points.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I had just as lief catechise you as the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN]. All the material that goes down there for the use of this Panama Canal is not machinery, is it?

Mr. WANGER. No.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Now, coal, and the stuff to feed that army of 25,000 people, and the cement that goes into the construction, and the whole business—what is the reason that it can not be shipped down the Mississippi River to New Orleans and from there to Colon more cheaply than you can ship it across the continent to New York and then reship it from New York?

Mr. WANGER. For the reason, so far as I know, that no shipping concern has offered to transport and deliver the material as economically by that route as it is being done by the ships of the Government from New York.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I want five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri asks unanimous consent that his time be extended five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. What I am trying to get at is, Why do not some of these Government ships that were bought for the purpose of shipping this stuff down there ply between New Orleans and Colon, instead of plying all of them between New York and Colon?

Mr. WANGER. Because it has not yet been discovered that they can ply as economically.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Don't you know that they can?

Mr. WANGER. I do not.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. You had better study up the subject of navigation, then.

Mr. WANGER. I understand that the port of New Orleans was closed for a considerable period during the present year.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. You are not the man I am after. I will ask the gentleman from Chicago [Mr. MANN].

Mr. MANN. The gentleman knows that my sympathies are with him, as far as New Orleans is concerned.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. That is exactly what I thought. I want to find out the reason why the Mississippi Valley does not have as fair a deal in this business as the eastern part of the United States. Now, right on the banks of the Mississippi River, just below Hannibal, in my district, there is a cement plant that makes 3,000 barrels of cement a day and it is doubling its capacity so that it can make 6,000, and every foot of the way to Colon, except about 400 yards, that material can be carried by water, and a vast economy effected for the Government.

Mr. WANGER. Will my friend permit one more suggestion? As I understand, the original programme of the Secretary of War was to have the Government abandon all connection with transportation in the delivery of persons and property and rely entirely upon private facilities; but the conditions which confronted him were such that he was practically compelled to abandon that project.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Let me ask the gentleman, Who controls this shipping business? Does the gentleman know?

Mr. MANN. What shipping business?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. These five ships we own for the purpose of shipping this stuff down there.

Mr. MANN. Five ships are controlled by the Panama Railroad Company, the directors of which are the Isthmian Canal Commission.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Does not that belong to the United States?

Mr. MANN. Certainly; the stock of the Panama Railroad Company belongs to the United States.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Now, I want to ask the gentleman from Illinois a leading question. How can the Representatives from Missouri, Illinois, Minnesota, and the other States in the Mississippi Valley stand here and indorse a performance that cuts our people out and gives all this business to this New York gang? [Laughter.]

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will permit an answer to the first question, briefly, the Panama Railroad Company has maintained a steamship line between Colon and New York for many years. There is no other regular steamship line plying between those ports. There is a regular steamship line plying between New Orleans and Colon—the United Fruit Company Steamship Line, which has more steamers than the Panama Railroad Company—so that we have a line of steamships for transportation between New Orleans and Colon. Now, we simply followed up the past of the Panama Railroad Company in connection with the steamship line between New York and Colon. I may say to the gentleman that there has been under consideration a proposition not only to maintain a line between Colon and New York, but also to establish a line between Colon and New Orleans, owned by the Government, and also a line between Panama and San Francisco, owned by the Government. That has not yet been done.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. One more question. Who is going to feed the army of 25,000 people? Is that going to be done by the Government, or is it going to be done by private contract?

Mr. MANN. The Isthmian Canal Commission at one time entered into a contract, in my judgment ill advisedly, at least somebody concluded it was done ill-advisedly, and it was canceled. At present, as I understand, the Isthmian Canal Commission is endeavoring to get and furnish to the Isthmus a sufficient quantity of healthful food.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. One other question. I understood the gentleman from Illinois, in response to a question of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. BURTON], to say——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Missouri has expired.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I do not like to ask it, but I want five minutes more to ask questions. I do not want to make a speech on the subject.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri asks unanimous consent that his time be extended five minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, I understood the gentleman from Illinois, in answer to a question by the gentleman from Ohio, to say that he did not know whether they were going to undertake to build a canal by the Government or to let it out to contractors.

Mr. MANN. I understand that to be the case.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. If that is true, what is the good of spending this vast amount of money for machinery that the contractors, if they take this by contract, may not want to use at all?

Mr. MANN. Because whether the work is done by contract or by the Government all this machinery will be absolutely necessary. If it should be let by contract—the excavation of the Culebra cut—the interest of the Government will be conserved by taking all this machinery mentioned in the contract.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Can the gentleman tell me how long the Panama Railroad is?

Mr. MANN. About 47 miles long.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. And what is the gauge?

Mr. MANN. The standard gauge is 4 feet and 8 inches. The gauge of the Panama Railroad is 5 feet.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Now, inasmuch as you can not use an engine constructed for that track anywhere else on the face of the earth than on that 40 miles of railroad, why not, instead of making a special contract for special engines and special cars, go to work some day and change the gauge of that railroad to the standard gauge? They can do it in one day.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman is mistaken about the time required. In the first place, while the railroad is only 47 miles long the track laid there in connection with the canal and the road is several hundred miles, including that for the canal excavation.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, the gauge of railways in the United States hundreds of miles long has been changed in a single day. It has been done repeatedly.

Mr. MANN. Well, I will say to the gentleman that it is costing us a very large amount of money now——

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Would it not be more economical to change it in that way than to make these special engines and cars and have to wait for them?

Mr. MANN. I say to the gentleman that changing the gauge would involve the abandonment of all the railroad equipment down there. The old engineer, and I presume the present engineer, in calling for bids for the new equipment proposed, and I presume that is the case, to have it so provided that new cars might be adjusted upon a change of the gauge and still be used after the gauge should be made the standard gauge. Of course, down there, there being no connecting line, it makes no difference whatever whether the gauge is one thing or the other. The only difference it makes is as to the purchase of supplies, and the only question involved is whether the supplies purchased would cost as much less as the value of the present plant, which would be thrown away in making the change.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I am not in control of the time. The time belongs to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CLARK].

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Will the gentleman from Missouri yield?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. The time for debate on this matter has expired.

Mr. WANGER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may address the committee for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to address the committee for five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. WANGER. Yes.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I would like to ascertain what has become, or if any use has been made, of the 250 locomotives that we saw there a year ago.

Mr. WANGER. Some of them are in use, but the use of a very large percentage of the old locomotives has not been found economical. There is trouble with derailments and with inability to haul sufficient loads with these locomotives, making it more expensive in the end than to get new and large modern engines.

Mr. Chairman, if there is any feeling of censure—and I do not recall that any has been expressed—or any feeling of criticism entertained toward members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the last Congress for not being more thoroughly in touch with all of the details in connection with the work of the Isthmian Canal Commission, I would call the attention of the House to the fact that on March 2 last a resolution of that committee authorizing such of its members as had been reelected to sit during the recess was presented to this House and its passage refused. In fact, I think it was regarded more as a joke by the Members of the House than anything else. The distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin is recorded as making this comment about it:

Mr. BABCOCK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to include the whole House in this junket.

Now, I take it that it was very unjust in my friend to make that remark, and I trust that the zeal now manifested by this House to have a thorough study of expenditures by this Commission in this great work will continue, and that there will never be a period of months from March 4 to the next first Monday of December when there is not a committee to keep in touch with the conduct of the work, and especially with the manner and methods and details of expenditures. I suggest, in connection with the estimate of the amount necessary to enable the Commission to go on with its work, that there are many other things besides the machinery and materials contracted for which are absolutely essential to the credit of the Commission, to the credit of our Government upon the Isthmus, and to the encouragement of the faithful men who are laboring there. Why, in these estimates of expenditures necessary after the first of this month are included all of the medicines and all the minor supplies which are so essential to the efficiency of the working forces of engineers and the other employees of the Commission; and besides that are the great items of expenditures necessary to be made by the Panama Railroad Company. For, as I understand the matter, the new locomotives and other materials detailed in the estimate submitted here as item 2 there is nothing included for the reequipment of the railroad for railroad purposes. The engines, cars, and other machinery are for the use of the Canal Commission in its particular work, as distinguished from the work of transporting merchandise across the Isthmus.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. WANGER. I want to ask one more favor from the House, and that is unanimous consent to print in the RECORD the speech of the Secretary of War made recently in St. Louis, in which there is probably the most comprehensive review of work done upon the Isthmus and of the conditions that surround the Commission that has been made. No doubt every Member received a copy in his mail yesterday or to-day, but that does not go to the country as it ought to go.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent that the speech of the Secretary of War relating to the isthmian canal be printed in the RECORD. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. The time for debate upon the amendment is exhausted.

The speech referred to is as follows:

Speech of William H. Taft, Secretary of War, at the St. Louis Commercial Club, St. Louis, Mo., Saturday evening, November 18, 1905.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMERCIAL CLUB OF ST. LOUIS: It is a great pleasure to meet you again. My association with your club was begun at the time of the visit of the Cincinnati Commercial Club to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and was renewed at the time of the visit of this club to the silver wedding of the Cincinnati Club. On that occasion I remember having the honor of being adopted into your membership for the sole purpose of adding avoirdupois to a photograph.

Your president, Mr. Nagel, has suggested as a subject for my remarks to-night the Panama Canal, and I shall follow his advice. You can read much of the canal written by far more competent observers and critics, for I am neither an engineer nor a constructor of works. There is a phase of the subject, however, with which it has been my lot to have something to do. The canal is to be built by the Government of the United States. It must be built according to law. I shall attempt to review the history of the canal construction from the standpoint of an officer of the Government charged by the President with the duty of general supervision over those appointed to do the work and the methods pursued by them.

It is sufficient to begin my history with the discussion in our Congress as to the preferred route for a canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Other things being equal, of course the best route is the shortest, and that is neither Nicaragua nor Panama. The shortest route, not more than 30 miles, is across the Isthmus of Darien, by way of the San Blas River, 30 miles from tide water to tide water. The difficulty with this route is that it requires the tunneling of a mountain 1,500 feet high in such a way as to permit the passage of modern steamships. The length of the tunnel is more than 5 miles and at least 150 feet in height above the water. Modern engineering has as yet accomplished no feat equal to the arching of such a tunnel, and the best evidence seems to show that the interior of the mountain is not granite or some hard rock that would hold itself in place after tunneling, but is probably a shaly or volcanic substance requiring the roof of the tunnel to be supported. The Nicaragua route, which had and still has sincere and strenuous advocates, is much longer, being about 137 miles in length, and involves the extensive dredging and use of a lake some 110 feet above sea level.

The Panama route was but 46 miles in length from shore line to shore line, had been partly constructed, and was paralleled by an existing railroad, an agency indespensable to constructing any canal. The routes were all thoroughly discused by the Walker Commission, and it finally recommended the Panama route. Congress by a majority vote deliberately reached the same conclusion, and confirmed it in the so-called Spooner Act passed early in 1902, by directing the President, if practicable, to buy the rights of the New French Panama Canal Company in the Panama Canal, as well as the right of way from the then sovereign of the canal territory, the United States of Colombia, and to build the canal with the proceeds of bonds authorized for the purpose. In the alternative, however, if the President found it impracticable to make satisfactory arrangement with either the canal company or Colombia, he was empowered to buy the necessary land and right of way and construct a canal by the Nicaragua route. The Panama Canal begins near Colon, on the north side of the Isthmus of Panama, at a small suburb called "Cristobal," and runs in a southeasterly direction to its other terminus, which is called "La Boca," the Spanish word for "mouth," a suburb of the city of Panama. The odd sensation is given the traveler when he rides on the railroad from Colon to Panama of going south and east instead of west, and when he rises the next day in Panama he will find that, because Panama is on a point of land jutting out into the ocean, the sun both rises and sets in the Pacific. In its projected course the canal is made to follow generally the valleys of the Mindi and the Chagres rivers on the north or Atlantic side and of the Rio Grande on the south or Pacific slope. It crosses the height of land at the famous cut in Culebra Hill between the two oceans, about 32 miles from the Atlantic and 14 miles from the Pacific. Culebra, the lowest hill on the divide, was about 340 feet above the sea. The French made a cut in the hill to a point 140 feet above sea level, leaving for excavation, should there be a sea-level canal, a ditch yet to be dug 10 miles long of 180 feet depth to the bed of the canal and 150 feet wide at the bottom, with sloping sides.

The decision of Congress in favor of this route for a canal was undoubtedly a wise one. Few engineers who have visited the canal have doubted the possibility of its construction, either as a lock or as a sea-level canal, and the Walker Commission, when it found that the Panama Canal could be bought, in changing its views, if it did change them, from a recommendation of the Nicaragua Canal to that of the Panama Canal, instead of subjecting that body to criticism entitled it to the gratitude of the nation. The theory advanced by opponents of the Panama route, and by opponents of any canal, that the route of the canal has not been finally decided upon, is utterly unfounded. Congress voted in favor of it, the President has made the selection in accordance with the power conferred by the act, and under its terms he would be entirely justified in constructing the canal at Panama without again consulting Congress, except for the purpose of obtaining the annual appropriations out of the funds to be realized from the sale of the bonds already authorized by legislative act.

While the Spooner Act gave a preference to the Panama Canal, it did not specifically direct what kind of canal should be constructed. It merely made it the duty of the President to proceed to build a canal, provided for the issue of $135,000,000 of bonds, and the expenditure, in addition thereto, of $40,000,000 for the French company's concession and property, $10,000,000 for the right of way, and $10,000,000 for the preliminary work in the construction. But the surrounding circumstances in the formulation of this legislation must be taken into consideration. The Walker Commission had reported in favor of the construction of the canal as a lock canal, with a sea-level section as far as Bohio, about 16 miles from Colon, where there was to be a flight of two locks 90 feet in height; thence on a 90-foot level from Bohio through the Culebra cut to Pedro Miguel on the Pacific side, a distance of 22 miles, to a flight of locks 60 feet in height; thence to Miraflores, some 2 miles, where still another lock was to be erected 5 miles from the Pacific, and thence from Miraflores to La Boca, the mouth of the canal. This additional lock was thought indispensable, because at Panama the tide rises and falls 20 feet, while at Colon the tide rises and falls but 2 feet.

The Walker Commission reported that the lock canal which it favored could be constructed for $145,000,000, and so Congress fixed in the Spooner Act that amount as its financial provision for building the canal. The power to build the canal by the President, however ample in its language, is so affected by the practical limitation of the bonds and money provided that should he deem it proper to construct a sea-level canal it would be wise in him to refer the matter to Congress and secure further express power in the premises. Under the Spooner Act the President bought the Panama Canal from the New French Panama Canal Company for $40,000,000. That which he bought consisted of a canal at sea level, constructed 16 miles from Panama to Bohio on the Atlantic side and 5 miles at the same level from La Boca to Miraflores on the Pacific side. These two stretches were dug in accordance with the specifications for the old canal, and have been filled with water for twenty years. They have been filled at places with silt and other material, so that they will need redredging. Furthermore, as they were only 28 feet deep as originally planned, and so not furnishing draft enough for the largest modern steamships, their depth must be increased to 35 or 40 feet. I ought to say in passing that, contrary to the expectations of the engineers, the prism of the canal at sea level in these two stretches, completely dug twenty years ago both on the Atlantic and Pacific sides, has been remarkably well preserved. The banks are as firm and have the same slope as given originally, and the amount of silt and other deposit from the Chagres and other rivers flowing into and through it has proven to be comparatively small. In addition to the sea-level part of the French canal, excavations for the higher lock level of the canal were made to a greater or less extent clear across the Isthmus. I have already described the most extensive of them, which is at Culebra.

In addition to the land and the ditch, the transfer from the canal company included an immense amount of material and equipment dumped on the ground along the line of the canal—engines, cars, dredges, steam launches, tools, and machines of all characters and sizes for excavation. Then there were also extensive machine shops at two places and many storehouses containing a great variety of stock. The French also erected upward of 2,175 houses of all sorts, the most numerous being tenements for laborers.

It is very doubtful how much of the machinery, material, and equipment can be used. Mr. Wallace, the former engineer, was of the opinion that he could use most of the locomotives and a great many of the flat cars, and spent a considerable sum and much time last year in repairing the best of them. I believe that the consensus of opinion in the Commission now is that while the locomotives which he repaired may be used the flat cars are so small that it will be greater economy to buy new ones. In addition to the canal prism the canal company owned docks and a harbor at Cristobal and a harbor at La Boca, on the Pacific side. With the purchase of the property of the French Panama Canal Company there was included all but 1,112 shares of the 7,000 shares constituting the Panama Railroad Company's capital stock, and the remainder of these, 1,112 in number, have since been purchased for $155,020. This gives the Government exclusive ownership and control of the Panama Railroad, an instrumentality indispensable in building the canal.

The Spooner Act was passed in the spring of 1902. The President was not able to make an effective purchase from the Panama Canal Company until May 4, 1904. I shall not stop to rehearse what is entirely familiar to you, the failure of negotiations with Colombia, the change of sovereignty over the Isthmus to the new Republic of Panama, and the recognition of that Republic by this Government, and the treaty by which we acquired the right to build the canal and assumed governmental control over a canal zone of 10 miles. These proceedings consumed a full period of two years.

In April, 1904, and after confirmation of the treaty, and in anticipation of the transfer by the French Company of the canal property, the President appointed the Commission of seven provided for in the act as his agency for building the canal, and made Admiral Walker its chairman. A majority of the Commission, as required by the act, consisted of engineers or army and naval officers who had had experience as such. The President is charged by law with the construction of the canal. Of course it was not expected that he would personally build the canal. The act empowered him to do it through the Commission and other agents selected by him. The President became convinced, as anyone must be who is familiar with the calls upon his time, that in order to maintain a close touch and to secure detailed knowledge of exactly what was being done in the expenditure of this immense amount of money to build the canal he should direct a member of his Cabinet to act for him in the supervision of this work. Accordingly he selected the Secretary of War as the head of the great department of construction of the Government, who might call to his aid at any time army engineers of large experience and of the highest character to assist him. Of course this work was to be merely supervisory. It was not expected that the Secretary of War would meddle or interfere with the sound discretion and generally free hand which must be vested in those specially appointed to build the canal if successful results are to be accomplished by them, but it was expected that the Secretary of War should have a general knowledge of the work, should be consulted on matters of general policy, and, when particular matters were called to his attention seeming to need further investigation, should make it and report the matter to the President. He is, of course, with his less extensive duties, much better prepared to look into the policy and details of the construction than is the President, and can relieve the President of much burdensome work.

The Commission effected a local organization in Washington in June, 1904, and, after inquiry covering several months, selected Mr. John F. Wallace as its chief engineer resident on the Isthmus. Mr. Wallace had been the chief engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad, was an engineer of high character and standing and of long experience. Mr. Wallace accepted the position and reached Panama in June, 1904, and began the work of organization. Maj. Gen. George W. Davis, United States Army, a member of the Commission, also went to the Isthmus to assume the duties of governor of the Canal Zone. Reference has already been made to the fact that in the treaty of concession the Republic of Panama had granted governmental control to the United States over a zone from Colon to Panama 10 miles wide, 5 miles on each side of the canal.

This zone did not include the towns of Colon and Panama, but did include their suburban villages of Cristobal and La Boca, which are the immediate mouths or ends of the canal. The treaty also gave to the United States police control in Panama and Colon to suppress insurrection and to enforce needed health regulations. The importance of this concession I shall point out later on. General Davis served as governor of the Zone until May, 1905, when, his health failing, he was relieved and called home to become the chairman of the board of consulting engineers. During Governor Davis's incumbency the government of the Zone was organized on a satisfactory basis, and the necessary laws to make it a going government were passed by the Commission.

An ill-advised Executive order putting the Dingley tariff law in force in the Zone against all the world, including Panama, caused much ill feeling among the Panamans for a little while, but by its repeal and other concessions the good will of the Republic was quickly restored. Governor Davis secured from the Panama Government a geographical delimitation of the Zone boundaries, especially as between Cristobal and Colon at one end and Panama and Ancon, including La Boca, at the other. This was a matter of much delicacy, because it was left so indeterminate in the treaty itself as to create bitter discussion; but the arrangement as made proved to be just and fair. Governor Davis, as governor of the Zone, was put in direct charge of the sanitation department, which had as its head Colonel Gorgas, and work has been constantly going on under that sanitation expert down to date.

The Commission, with Admiral Walker at its head, organized an office in Washington, and visited the Isthmus several times during the year. Before Mr. Wallace's appointment the Commission had employed surveyors and engineers and had sent them in parties to the Isthmus to make borings, surveys, and secure the data necessary to fix the exact type of the canal. When Mr. Wallace took charge he did much work in trying to find out what the French company had left on the Isthmus worth using, in repairing locomotives and flat cars found there, and in laying sufficient side tracks from Culebra cut to make excavation and dump the material in a proper place. This was only experimental, and was for the purpose of finding the real cost of excavation per cubic yard. He also began the work of constructing houses for workmen. He designed and carried on the work of furnishing a water supply to the city of Panama, and he did considerable work on a sewer system.

He did some work on docks at Cristobal and La Boca, and he laid some heavy rails on the railroad. He complained much of the slowness with which his requisitions for material, supplies, and equipment were furnished him. Complaints were continually coming to this country from employees and workmen representing that no sufficient houses were provided for them and no food either supplied them or to be purchased at reasonable prices. The yellow fever, in spite of the efforts of the sanitation bureau, began to show in the increasing number of its cases greater danger to the Americans employed by the Commission. Salaries were said to be much too low because of the high cost of any kind of living and the risk to health and life. All these elements working together created something like a panic on the Isthmus among the employees of the Commission.

They witnessed the arrival of the first supplies and equipment in such great quantity as to produce congestion and confusion, and, like an army without confidence in its leaders, they felt that choas was at hand. I do not seek to place the blame for this on any one person, but rather on the method or system. I think there was error in not making more preparation for employees. It thus became apparent during the six months succeeding the appointment of the first Commission that the body of seven men as organized was not an effective force for doing the work required in the construction of the canal. The members of the Commission themselves agreed that as constituted and organized good results could not be expected from it. The President had submitted to Congress during the winter of 1904–5 a recommendation for amendment to the law by which he should be given a freer hand in the number of agents to be selected by him for the work which the act of Congress made it mandatory upon him to perform. He informed Congress that the method of construction by a commission of seven was clumsy and ineffective. The House of Representatives gave the requested power to the President in a bill which it sent to the Senate.

There the bill met determined opposition, and in the short session it was entirely possible for its enemies to defeat it. Thereupon the President felt that radical action was necessary. On April 1, 1905, he asked the resignation of the then existing Commission, and appointed a new Commission under certain regulations as to their procedure, by which he hoped to secure in practice greater centralization of power in the hands of a chairman and an executive committee less than the whole Commission, with its acts subject to confirmation by the Commission. Much care was taken in selecting a man for chairman. As the great constructive enterprises of this country have been chiefly railroads, and as the problem of chief difficulty in building the canal is one of transportation, the President looked to the railroad circles for a man capable of pushing this great enterprise to a conclusion. He selected as chairman Mr. T. P. Shonts, who had had large experience in railroad matters, and who had shown by his energy and high character that he was well fitted to take upon his shoulders this most responsible task. As another member, capable of acting on the executive committee of the Commission, he appointed Mr. Wallace, the chief engineer, and as a third member he selected Charles E. Magoon, for many years the law officer of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and a man who, in the task of making new governments for our new possessions, had been Secretary Root's chief law adviser, and a pioneer in devising ways and means for the purpose. To Shonts, Wallace, and Magoon, as members of the Commission, were added four distinguished engineers, General Hains, U. S. Army engineer, who had devoted a great deal of time on a former commission to the investigation and report as to the construction of the canal; Colonel Ernst, also of the army engineers, who had been on a previous canal commission; Admiral Endicott, the leading civil engineer of the United States Navy and Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks; and Mr. Benjamin Harrod, a member of the former Commission and a member of the Mississippi River Commission. Under the regulations prescribed by the President the Commission organized and appointed an executive committee, consisting of Shonts, Wallace, and Magoon, and adopted regulations dividing the executive work between Mr. Shonts, who, as chairman, took charge of the Washington office, the making of contracts, and the purchase of material, and general executive control of the whole business of the Commission; Mr. Wallace, who was chief engineer, and had now become a member of the Commission and executive committeeman, who took immediate charge of the engineering and construction work upon the Isthmus; and Governor Magoon, who succeeded General Davis as governor of the Zone, and who assumed control of the whole sanitation of the Isthmus, with Colonel Gorgas as the immediate chief sanitary officer. This arrangement was put in force at once, and Governor Magoon and Mr. Wallace went to the Isthmus, while Mr. Shonts remained to reorganize the office of the Commission in Washington. As already said, one of the difficulties encountered by Mr. Wallace upon the Isthmus had been the delays attendant upon his requisitions for all sorts of supplies which it was the proper office of the home organization to furnish him. They showed the necessity for a reorganization of the Washington office.

Mr. Shonts drafted into service to assist him in the reorganization of this office Colonel Edwards, the Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, whose experience in organizing his most efficient Bureau was regarded as of especial value at this time. David W. Ross, a gentleman of wide and varied experience as purchasing agent for great railway systems, was employed at a salary of $10,000 a year, and E. S. Benson, a gentleman having similar railroad experience as an auditor of many different railway systems, was employed at the same salary as auditor. It was not thought wise to economize in the matter of salaries to be paid in the selection of men upon whose skill, honesty, and experience so much of the success of the canal work depends. Mr. Shonts himself received $30,000 a year, Mr. Wallace $25,000, and Governor Magoon $17,500. Subsequently Governor Magoon was appointed minister to Panama, and thus united in one person the executive of the Zone and the diplomatic representative of the United States to Panama.

This was in accord with the wish of the authorities of the Republic, and has been a source of very great comfort to those who have had to deal with the Republic, because it removes doubt as to whether the matter in hand is to be taken up and considered by the canal authorities or by the diplomatic representative of the United States with the Republic of Panama. Of course Governor Magoon can not draw two salaries, so that he draws no salary as minister. The other Commissioners, who were not expected to take active executive functions, but only advisory and supervisory, are paid $7,500 a year. By this arrangement the new Commission is not more of a charge to the canal funds in the matter of salaries than the Walker Commission, but by distribution of duties greater efficiency has been obtained.

I come now to the separation of Mr. Wallace from the service as chief engineer and commissioner. Mr. Wallace is a gentleman for whose engineering skill and whose high character as a man I had always much respect, and, except in one regard, my opinion has not changed. Mr. Wallace was certainly dissatisfied, as all of us were, with the workings of the first Commission, and had reason to be. He complained seriously of the delays incident to his work, due to the cumbersome machinery and the slowness with which decisions and action could be had by the old Commission. When the reorganization was determined upon Mr. Wallace was consulted by cablegram and advised of the new plan. This he fully and gratefully approved. He was directed to come to Washington for the purpose of fixing details. He did come and expressed himself as highly pleased with the result, and went back to the Isthmus full of the most superlative expressions that everything that he had hoped for in the reorganization was accomplished. He was not only chief engineer, but he was a member of the Commission and a member of the executive committee of the Commission in active charge of the construction and engineering work on the Isthmus, with Mr. Shonts, a railroad man and a classmate of his, to back him as chief executive.

He had not, however, been back in Panama more than six days when I received a cablegram advising me that he must come to New York to discuss questions relating to his continuance as chief engineer of the project. I was greatly taken aback, for I heard indirectly from reliable sources that he had received an offer of a much higher salary and that he was determined to accept the offer and give up this job. Mr. Wallace came north, and at an appointed interview stated to me that he had received an offer of $65,000 and had accepted it; that he was anxious to assist me and the members of the Commission, as far as possible, with his advice, and would be glad to continue as a member of the Commission, but that he could not and would not go back to the Isthmus at all. I gave Mr. Wallace a full opportunity to state all the reasons that actuated him in withdrawing, but this is the only one he mentioned. I told Mr. Wallace that his appointment had been solely as chief engineer resident on the Isthmus, that on account of the critical condition of affairs existing on the Isthmus his presence there was of the highest importance, and that for him to cut off his relation to the Commission for a mere money offer and to decline without further notice to stay on the Isthmus and conduct the affairs of the Commission there showed him to be so subject to pecuniary motives that I did not think his continuing his relation with the Commission would be of any service to us. Mr. Wallace feels that I have done him great injustice. He says that money was not the only consideration which led him to sever his relations; that there was too much red tape in the Government's methods of business, and that the health of his family and other controlling reasons led him to his conclusion, but that at our interview he was so embarrassed by my evident feeling on the subject that he did not do himself justice in stating fully the cause of his withdrawal. He says that he was not under any contract obligation to stay, and that he might sever his relation at any time. If Mr. Wallace was influenced either by considerations of the health of his family or by a feeling that governmental methods were so in conflict with successful business methods that he felt that the job was too difficult for him, or by any other good cause, and the charge that mere pecuniary motives influenced him did him injustice, I deeply regret it; but I submit that my inference was justified by his failure to mention any reason for his action except a higher salary. Mr. Wallace's course in declining without any notice to return to the Isthmus as chief engineer of the canal for any time, however short, was most embarrassing to the Government, for while he had organized on paper only some six or eight divisions of work upon the Isthmus, at the head of each of which there was to be an engineer of great experience, to be paid from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, he had, in fact, selected for these positions but one man. At the time Mr. Wallace laid down his office, conditions on the Isthmus were most chaotic, and it seemed to the President and to me that proper loyalty to the enterprise required that Mr. Wallace should remain on the Isthmus for a reasonable period, say at least six months, in which to enable us to fill his place and to complete the mere skeleton organization which he was leaving and which would necessarily fall apart on his withdrawal. He gave us no option as to whether he would return to the Isthmus or not. That, he said, was settled.

The publication of the interview with Mr. Wallace was made after consultation with the President, and was made not for the purpose of punishing Mr. Wallace, but because the public were entitled to know the facts and because it was hoped it would discourage others engaged in responsible positions in the construction of the canal from withdrawing at critical stages of the work without sufficient notice. This is all there is of the Wallace incident, except that I have been very glad to assure the advisory board, or the board of consulting engineers, that I believed Mr. Wallace to be an able, experienced engineer and an honest man who had large opportunities for acquiring information which would be valuable to them. I advised them to call him. Mr. Wallace has fully and freely responded to the call and has answered all questions, and has declined any compensation whatever.

By great good luck, after Mr. Wallace's separation from the service, we found that we had then in the employ of the Government a man whose peculiar fitness to do the executive work of chief engineer on the Isthmus was fully shown, as investigation was made into his experience and reputation and his achievements as a constructing engineer. I refer to Mr. John F. Stevens. We had employed him in the Insular Bureau to go to the Philippines and supervise the construction of 1,000 miles of railway, the bids for the building of which were to be opened on the 15th of December next.

With a good deal of hesitation, Mr. Stevens, who was on the eve of his trip to the Philippines, accepted the new position proffered him, and went to the Isthmus in July of this year. The executive committee of the Commission now consisted only of Mr. Shonts and Governor Magoon, and the chief executive work in Washington and elsewhere falls upon Mr. Shonts as chairman, who is in general control, especially of the work of construction on the Isthmus, through Mr. Stevens. Governor Magoon still has charge of sanitation and of the government of the Zone. The whole Commission meets regularly every quarter and acts upon that which has been done by its agents.

I come now to discuss the actual progress which has been made. By the 1st of December we shall have spent $60,000,000 in the course of acquiring a transisthmian canal. The two questions which the American people have a right to ask are, first, Have we proceeded without unnecessary delay? Second, Have we received our money's worth?

First, the Spooner Act was passed in the spring of 1902. The delay incident to Colombia's conduct certainly could not be avoided. No one can deny that we closed as quickly as we could reasonably with Panama in December, 1903, and that there was no unnecessary deliberation in closing out the transfer of the French Panama Canal Company's property to the United States in May, 1904. The Walker Commission was appointed before the transfer. It lost no time in selecting a chief engineer. Mr. Wallace took hold in June, 1904. Considering all the obstacles, I think great progress has been made since then. That which was done in a year under Mr. Wallace and the old Commission seems less than what has been done under Mr. Shonts and Mr. Stevens and the new Commission in three months, but, in the nature of things, in the early days of a great organization like the human machinery for building this canal, progress toward smooth coordination and satisfactory results is slow. Many thoughtless persons cry out "Why does not the dirt begin to fly? The way to build the canal is to dig." Such remarks only show the ignorance of the authors and their complete failure to understand the real character of what has to be done. The canal is to be built by manual labor and machinery. The number of laborers required will perhaps be 25,000.

Panama is a sparsely settled country, with few laborers available. The great majority of those employed must be imported. For every laborer brought in at least one person more will come who will be dependent on him. We must therefore count on an alien population of 50,000 to be distributed along the line of the canal for 47 miles. To get the best work out of the laborers, they and their families must be housed; they must have healthful food; they must have pure, good water to drink, and the filth and noisome drainage caused by such a collection of human beings must be taken care of so as not to promote disease. Finally, Panama has a history of awful losses of life among workmen engaged in the construction of the railroad and the canal from yellow fever and malaria, and these two diseases must be stamped out. All these things ought to be done before the "dirt begins to fly."

When Mr. Wallace left, the pay roll contained the names of 8,000 persons. Since Mr. Stevens has taken hold, in three months, this has been increased from 8,000 to 13,000. Under Mr. Wallace it was thought wise by the old Commission, and by Mr. Wallace himself, to make experiments in the cost of excavating earth in the Culebra cut. He did this with some new excavating machinery, but principally with the old transportation machinery, and he reached some results, the value of which is in dispute. He feels confident that he has shown by his calculations that the cost per cubic yard of excavation in the Culebra cut may be reduced below half of that fixed by the Commission, and this is used as an argument in favor of changing the type of the canal from a lock canal to a sea-level canal. Upward of half a million dollars were spent by Mr. Wallace and the former Commission in these excavations. Mr. Shonts and Mr. Stevens have not deemed it wise to continue them because they think the conditions under which the experiments were carried on are not like those which will prevail in the actual excavation, for the reason that the disposition of the spoil must be made at a very much longer distance and with a very much greater expense. I do not stop to pass on this difference of judgment between engineers, except to say that the excavation has been made and has reduced the work to be done to that extent. The objection made to the excavation at this time was that it may have prevented the devotion of more time and energy to the preparation of houses and of food supplies for the laborers. I do not know whether this is true or not.

Recurring to the amount of preparatory work needed, it has already been noted that there were left standing along the canal some 2,175 structures erected by the French. With the rapid decay that follows neglect in the Tropics, most of these structures were in such tumble-down condition as to be uninhabitable. They had to be repaired, and they had to be repaired with material brought from the United States. The amount of timber actually ordered and needed for the repairing and construction of the houses is upward of 32,000,000 feet. The difficulty in promptly securing the shipping of this will suggest itself to those who know of the incidental delays in practical transportation, either from Oregon or the Atlantic coast to Panama. Until lately there has been much delay in persuading competent carpenters from the United States in sufficient numbers to come to the Isthmus.

The towns of Panama and Colon and the sixteen towns and villages lying between them along the line of the canal and the railroad all must be furnished with water. Panama as a settlement is one of the oldest towns in America, and yet for about three hundred years during the dry season there has been no means of furnishing water to the Panamans except from cisterns, puddles, and receptacles for water often covered with green scum and as productive of disease as is possible to imagine. The first thing that the first Commission did, and to them is the credit due, was to make arrangements for the construction of a water supply for Panama. Engineer Wallace and his assistants devised the plans, took a reservoir which had been partly constructed by the French some 11 miles from Panama, built the dam 20 feet higher and ran the water pipes to Panama, and then laid the mains into Panama, so that on the 4th of July, 1905, the water cocks in the city of Panama were opened, and the people were permitted to drink pure water. This reservoir furnishes water also to the towns between it and Panama on the Pacific side; but another reservoir for Culebra, another one for Empire, another one for Bas Obispo, and others for Colon are being constructed, together with water-pipe systems in all of them. Sewers are now being constructed in Panama, and about 50 per cent of them have been completed. In order to make Panama really healthful the Commission has decided it to be necessary to pave the streets, which for centuries have been dirty—muddy in rainy weather, dusty in dry weather, and full of disease in all weathers. The whole Isthmus strip from Panama to Colon when our Commission went there first was grown up with underbrush, with weeds, and with all that jungle that a tropical soil and weather unrestrained rejoice in. Now from point to point, as the population increases, as the work is elaborated, the jungle is being cut down, the hills are being shaved, and under the tremendous work of the sanitary department pools are being drained, swamps relieved of water, and in every way the stagnant water surfaces and the propagating ground for the deadly mosquito are being reduced. When one thinks of a strip 47 miles long and half a mile wide in the center of the Tropics, with marshy swamps and water accumulating everywhere, the task of reducing the stagnant water surface so as to prevent the generation of mosquitoes seems impossible; but it must be and can be done.

The mosquito is the worst enemy in the propagation of disease in the West Indies and American Tropics that man has. One variety in the Isthmus carries the germ of the deadly yellow fever, and another variety carries the germ of malaria, while a third infects its victims with the loathsome disease of elephantiasis. Petroleum prevents the generation of mosquitoes. A yellow-fever mosquito lives only about ninety days. The custom of the yellow-fever mosquito is not to depart far from the place of its birth. It is not ordinarily born in the open. Its fellow who carries the malaria germ is born in the stagnant pools that are found in the meadows and on the hills and in the valleys, but the yellow-fever mosquito is ordinarily to be found in the forgotten corners of the cellars and dark rooms of tropical houses, in neglected utensils, in cisterns, puddles of water within the back yards, or in the closets of the residents. While with petroleum and with drainage a large part of the surface which generates the malaria mosquito may be reduced, the yellow-fever mosquitoes must be attacked in houses by fumigation, either with sulphur or pyrethrum. At one time it was thought sufficient in the town of Panama when a victim of yellow fever was taken from a house to fumigate that house and the two houses next, because the habit of the mosquito indicated that it did not depart far from the place of its birth. It seems that the mosquito that acquires and communicates the yellow-fever virus is a female, and this only during her period of gestation. She dies at the end of ninety days, and it is not known that her descendants continue to carry the poison. These limitations are what prevent the spread of the disease.

When Judge Magoon arrived upon the Isthmus he found Doctor Gorgas battling manfully against the yellow fever, but the cases seemed to be increasing. Judge Magoon conceived the idea that the fumigation which had been confined to two or three houses might well be extended to all the houses in Panama, and at considerable expense, and after procuring a large amount of material, every house in Panama was fumigated once every two weeks. To secure increased vigilance and popular assistance he employed all the respectable Panaman physicians of Panama as inspectors of the districts of that city, at annual salaries of $1,200 a year. He also offered $50 reward for the discovery of any case of yellow fever not reported. By methods of this kind the native apathy, usually so great an obstacle to successful sanitation in Spanish countries, was neutralized.

The plan of fumigation is as follows: Strips of paper are placed across the windows, which ordinarily have no glass or any netting in them, and then either by the fumes of the sulphur or pyrethrum every nook and cranny of the house is visited. These gases are fatal or paralyzing to the mosquito. After sufficient time has passed the house is opened, and then a corps of health employees are set to work cleaning the house and sweeping out the dead mosquitoes, which are found in great numbers upon the floors. The mosquitoes are burned to avoid further mischief. By these methods, for which Doctor Gorgas and Governor Magoon are both to be credited with great praise, yellow fever has been reduced to a point where during the last month only three cases were reported, not one of these among canal employees, and all originating many miles from the canal line. The efforts to subdue the fever instead of being relaxed are being continued. Square miles of woven-wire netting with interstices so small as to prevent the entrance of mosquitoes are spread about the piazzas of the house of every American or foreigner who comes to live under the auspices of the Canal Commission in the Isthmus. The windows inside are also screened, and then mosquito bars on the beds are used as a third precaution.

Whenever a case of yellow fever is discovered, the patient is at once either removed to the hospital and put under a woven-wire screen or, if he prefers to remain at home, the woven-wire screen is put over him and an orderly placed in charge of him at his own residence. In this way he is prevented from furnishing a supply of the poison to the healthy mosquitoes who, in turn, by stinging, would bring it back to man. In other words, the plan is to kill all the mosquitoes, well or ill, keep them as much as possible from stinging man, and isolate every man with yellow fever, not from his fellows, but from mosquitoes. Of course there are in this district, especially in the old town of Panama and at some villages along the canal, old houses which must be burned completely to the ground because of the infection which it is impossible to destroy in them. The old buildings in Panama are persistent sources of the yellow-fever mosquito.

The Canal Commission has its offices in one of these great stucco structures, with thick walls, bad ventilation, and damp nooks and crannies. It has often been fumigated and cleansed in every way; but once in a while a new case of fever in one of the American employees is to be charged to the old building. I am glad to say that the general offices are soon to be moved to new buildings at Culebra and Emperador on the line of the canal. Little by little, and facing discouragement after discouragement, the 2,000 employees of the sanitary department are winning in this fight against disease, upon which the whole success of the canal work depends. As Mr. Stevens said to me, when I crossed the Isthmus with him this month, "I take off my hat to the work which the sanitation department has done in this Canal Zone." In the month of August, out of a force of 13,000 men, the percentage of illness was less than 25 per thousand. In June the cases of yellow fever were 61 and 19 deaths, in July there were 36 cases and 13 deaths, in September there were 9 cases, and in October but 3. The percentage of deaths among all is about 33, and among Americans about 20.

The work of furnishing water, of installing sewers, and of building houses is not now in the sanitation department, but is under the engineering and construction department; but as soon as the work is completed it will be turned over to the sanitation department for maintenance. Good food is now furnished by a commissary at reasonable rates. The carrying of refrigerated fruits and foods and meats on refrigerator cars from Colon across the Isthmus has just been begun. There is an ice plant at La Boca, another one at Colon, and others along the way are to be constructed, so that ice—that most healthful form of liquid in the Tropics—will be at hand for all.

A hotel has been erected at Corozal, where the American employees of the Commission may live and run in to their business in Panama in a few minutes by railway. A hotel of 128 rooms is being constructed at Ancon, which is the Pacific terminus of the terminating township of the governmental isthmian strip. The French had an excellent hospital at Ancon. They had also rather a large hospital at Colon. It was necessary, however, in view of the decay and lack of repair in which these hospitals were found, to refit them entirely. And now we have a hospital at Ancon, one at Panama, a convalescent hospital at Taboga, an island some 10 miles off the coast in Panama Bay, where very healthful water, healthful bathing, and fine fruits can be had, so that in all the hospital accommodation has been increased from about 350 to upward of 1,000 beds.

American trained nurses may be had at any point on the Isthmus, and any employee or laborer and any member of his family will be taken care of at these hospitals. In addition to this, and to protect itself, the Commission has taken over the general hospital of Panama and has accepted $80,000 Mexican, a fund which had been voted by Panama for its improvement, and is now completely rebuilding it. It has also taken care of the insane and lepers of Panama, charging a certain rate per day. It exercises by right of law and by agreement complete quarantine jurisdiction over Panama, Colon, and the isthmian canal strip, and this quarantine is a division of the sanitation bureau under Governor Magoon and Colonel Gorgas.

Not only has it been found possible to accomplish much by the draining of swamps by surface drainage, or turning of stagnant pools into running water, the cutting of gutters, and the flushing from reservoirs, but the attention of the chief engineer has also been directed to filling up, with the spoil from excavation made in construction, swamps and lowlands which now generate disease. The evidences of successful war against malaria are not so easy to produce as those of the defeat of yellow fever. One reason is that malaria is so much harder to combat than is yellow fever.

To begin with, yellow fever finds its victims only among those who are not residents of the tropical coast towns, so at least the statistics seem to show. Europeans and Americans from the Temperate Zone, and Colombians coming from the hills and mountains, and other workmen from the interior, especially the highlands, are all subjects of yellow fever, but generally the blacks from Jamaica and Trinidad, from the islands of the Caribbean Sea, and the Panamans themselves are immune. The field for attack by yellow fever, therefore, is very much limited. Not so, however, with malaria. An examination for experimental purposes, and repeated at various times under the direction of Colonel Gorgas, shows that at least 70 per cent of people picked up at random in the Isthmus have the malarial microbe. I am glad to say that since our occupation the malaria has not generally taken on the malignant form of the days of the railroad and French canal construction, but is rather mild.

The great difficulty in preventing the transmission of malaria is that with 60 or 70 per cent of the persons infected with malaria it is impossible to prevent malaria mosquitos from happening upon the source of malaria supply in the blood of 60 per cent of the inhabitants of the Isthmus. The cases of yellow fever, on the other hand, are comparatively so few that isolating them is a real measure of protection to all. Nevertheless, by the reduction in the total number of mosquitos, which, though an enormous task, is still capable of accomplishment, the spread of malaria may be largely checked. This is a work of constant attention and which will last long after the construction of the canal, and will be constantly the task of all those responsible for the government of the strip. Of course, the less malaria, even of the mild character, the greater the efficiency of the laborer.

In recounting what is being done I will refer next to the work of engineering and construction. Preliminary to the work of construction proper much of the time of the engineer and his assistants has been taken up in doing that work of construction necessary for the sanitation of the Isthmus, to wit, the houses, sewering of water, the food supply, the hospitals and places of recreation, all necessary to keep a sound mind in a sound body of each workman, whether superintendent, clerk, or common laborer.

In regard to the pure work of construction. As already said, the New French Panama Canal Company had bought the Panama Railroad for its use in the construction of the canal. When the property of the French Canal Company was transferred, the railroad was, from the standpoint of modern railroads, most inadequately equipped. It had a single track from Colon to Panama, with some sidings, very insufficient yards at the termini, and a large number of thin, light rails, quite insufficient for the heavy traffic which was carried over it. The laying of the track with heavier rails had been projected by the company before the transfer, but only a few miles had been laid. The Commission, acquiring control of the railroad company, directed the purchase of rails so as to lay completely the whole line with the heavier rails, and now all but 9 miles of the road is so equipped. The roadbed is as fine as any roadbed in the United States, ballasted in gravel and rock, and seems to be completely free from any possibility of washouts, but with this exception every other feature of the road as to structure and equipment is subject to criticism, and must be changed before it can be an adequate instrument in the hands of the Commission for the purposes for which it was bought. The gauge of the railroad is 5 feet, while the standard gauge in the United States and elsewhere is 4 feet 8½ inches, a fact which reduces much the amount of equipment which could be bought ready-made and greatly increases the cost and time of buying that which is necessary. The telegraph system and the telephone system along the road are now being completely reconstructed. The yards and wharves at each end of the road for the purpose of receiving freight from steamers were utterly inadequate, and are now being very much enlarged at La Boca and at Cristobal, and must be repaired at Colon.

I should say that Cristobal is the Colon end of the canal, a made harbor, reached by the railroad and entirely protected from the north winds which, when they blow with violence, require all steamers at Colon wharves to go to sea. It is quite evident, and the Commission has so decided, that in order to transport the commercial freight which the railroad is under charter obligation to carry, and at the same time to transport to the spoil banks the excavated rock and dirt, it will be necessary to double track the road nearly all the way from Colon to Panama. The exceptions are through narrow cuts or at the top of the grade over which the spoil from the excavation will not need to be carried. The recent work of construction under Wallace and Stevens has been the work of putting this road into proper condition, of making preparation to double track, and of laying at various and suitable intervals long tracks leading from the Culebra cut at various elevations to the points of the Panama Railroad to which the spoil may be hauled downhill from the point of excavation and thence carried to Miraflores on one side or to Colon on the other, to be dumped into swamps or else to be dumped into barges and carried out to sea and there disposed of. The amount of this track laying will reach 250 or 300 miles when completed, and it is one of the chief consumers of labor in the construction department at present. The work of excavation is comparatively easy, for with compressed-air drills and blasting and the 29 modern steam shovels which are now on the ground, and the 60 more which are ordered, digging might go on rapidly. With a sea-level canal at least 270,000,000 cubic yards of material will have to be blasted, dug out, and carried from a few feet to 15 miles.

The great problem, however, is the problem of transporting that which is dug to the point where it is to be finally deposited with such speed and such return of the vehicles of transportation as to enable the shovels to be in constant use. It is a problem of transportation really and not of excavation. These figures suggest the amount of preparation in the way of increasing the capacity of the railroad, of track laying, and of other mechanical devices for disposing of the spoil which must be made before the "dirt begins to fly."

In addition to this work, machine shops of the French have to be repaired and in some cases rebuilt. Wharves are being put up now in order to furnish additional berths for steamers at Cristobal on the one side and at La Boca on the other. There are to-day engaged on the railroad proper about 4,000 employees; that is, there are 2,500 paid for six days' labor, but they are not perhaps the same 2,500. In addition to this there are 13,000 laborers on the pay roll of the Commission, and that means about 10,000 effective laborers per day. As the work of construction of houses goes on, as the capacity for housing and feeding and properly attending to laborers proceeds, we may look for an increase in the pay roll.

One of the great burdens of the present situation is the procurement of transportation and proper disposition of the immense amount of supplies and material and equipment which have to be ordered and pressed forward to the Isthmus. The Commission bought two large freight steamers costing $1,300,000, or $650,000 apiece. And even with these and three others owned by the Panama Railroad which came into the possession of the Commission, there is still such an immense amount of freight that there is much difficulty in getting the orders and the requisitions of the chief engineer supplied. The following is a list of the principal items of material purchased and delivered, or now under order, and will serve to give an idea of the vastness of the undertaking and why congestion in sea transportation and on the railroad, with all the commercial traffic besides, may be pardonable: Sixty-one steam shovels, 1,300 flat cars, 12 rapid unloaders, 22 unloading plows, 13 earth spreaders, 324 dump cars, 12 hoisting engines, 120 locomotives, 5,000 tons of steel rails, 125,000 cross-ties, 12,000 pieces of piling, 14 air-compressing machines, 3 cranes, 152 rock drills, 30,000,000 feet lumber (approximately), 2 dipper dredges, 646,000 pounds blasting powder, 617,500 pounds dynamite, 7,000,000 paving brick, 3,500,000 building brick, 500,000 square feet roofing tile, 36,000 barrels cement (approximately), 3 steel water tanks and towers, 12 standpipes, 2 ocean steamships.

The Panama Railroad on its own account has also purchased during the last six months 500 box cars (40-ton), 12 caboose cars, 10 refrigerator cars, 6 passenger coaches, 24 locomotives, 2 wrecking cranes, 1 locomotive crane, 1 pile driver, 3 track scales (100-ton), 1 modern coal-hoisting plant, 1 cantilever crane for coal-hoisting plant.

It should be borne in mind that all of the large equipment like locomotives, cars, steam shovels, dirt spreaders, and cranes have to be knocked down and boxed in order to have them carried by vessel to the Isthmus and there unboxed and reassembled before available for use. Still, as Mr. Stevens himself told me, everything grows better from month to month. The exasperations and frictions of early organization are passing away as matters move with more smoothness. A quarantine of Panama on the one side and of Colon on the other much delayed the delivery of material, and brought seventeen ships into La Boca at one time for unloading. These discouragements, so characteristic of the Tropics and of great works in the Tropics, at first seem insurmountable, but to an engineer having the patience needed for any enterprise in the Tropics they can be overcome, provided he applies himself to his task with constantly renewed effort. Another great work by the engineer department is the taking of borings and the finding of data upon which to proceed in the detailed construction of the canal. Parties of engineers go out and stay for months measuring capacity of natural basins, the flow of water in the tributaries of the Chagres and other rivers, and thus procure the facts upon which the chief engineer and the Commission must proceed in developing the detailed plans for the ultimate building of the canal.

I have drawn out this paper to such an unpardonable length as not to permit a proper discussion of the question of labor. Nearly all the labor upon the Isthmus is now negro labor from the West India Islands. It is very poor. The question remains to be decided whether we shall attempt to secure Chinese or Japanese labor. It has been held by the Attorney-General that the Federal eight-hour law applies to those employed by the Canal Commission. I was at first disposed to think its effect would be good, because we could have three shifts every twenty-four hours. I am assured, however, by Mr. Stevens and Governor Magoon that its enforcement only interferes with good work.

Petitions are being filed by all foreigners and Americans asking that its operation in the Zone be amended. There is practically no limit to the negro labor we can obtain from the West Indian and Caribbean islands, but its efficiency is so low that we may have to call in Asiatics. Another year will show more facts upon which a labor policy may be based. The fact that no white labor can be found to stand work in the tropical sun ought to remove the question from the forum of ordinary trade-union labor discussion and lead to a solution free from considerations which might properly have great weight in a more temperate climate and in conditions less resembling a national emergency.

I visited the Isthmus a year ago and again this year. I am able to see a marked difference, even in outward appearances, and to say with much emphasis and certainty that real work has been done and is being done. The effect of better housing for the employees, the influence of the successful efforts of the sanitation department to stamp out yellow fever, the confidence of the American subordinate engineers, foremen, clerks, rodmen, and others that there is a competent and skillful head to the enterprise in Mr. Shonts, knowing what is being done in each department, and coordinating all departments, tends to give an atmosphere of conscious progress, individual interest, and patriotic pride in the great task of a great nation. The Panamans feel the change and are accordingly happy and contented with things as they are.

And now I shall speak of something which will not take me long, but it is a most important matter at this juncture. Fifty millions of dollars were taken out of the Treasury of the United States, $40,000,000 for the French Panama Canal Company and $10,000,000 for the Republic of Panama, to give us the canal as it is and the right of way and the Panama Railroad. Ten millions were voted to begin the preliminary work on the canal. That $10,000,000 is about exhausted. It has been expended as follows:

General expenses:
General administration expenses at Washington and other points in the United States, including salaries and expenses of Commissioners, special commissioners, advisory board, and office of administration	$511,000
Department of administration expenses, Isthmus	67,000
Department of government and sanitation	143,000
Department of construction and engineering	348,000
Expended for hospitals, sanitation, construction of waterworks and sewers, police, and prisons	1,383,000
Purchase of Panama Railroad stock	155,000
Permanent plant	3,946,000
Purchase of supplies consumable in their use, including cost of inspection, handling, and transportation	1,870,000
Canal construction	1,360,000
Total	9,783,000

The pay roll at present amounts to something like $600,000 a month, and there is not enough money on hand after the payment of the bills to meet the December pay roll. There are bills unpaid for material and supplies which should be paid at once. The delay is quite oppressive and unjust to the creditors of the Government. It will be necessary, therefore, for Congress to make an emergency appropriation to carry on the work without calamitous interruption. Nothing could be more disastrous to have the pay rolls go unpaid for even a few weeks. This was the trouble with the New French Panama Canal Company, and with the old French Panama Canal Company. Certainly there is nothing in the credit of the United States justifying suspension of payments. I know there is a disposition in some quarters, and possibly among some Members of Congress, to reinvestigate everything connected with the canal. But while this desire to know all about the canal and its construction is most commendable, it will hardly be allowed to delay the current appropriations for the daily work by 13,000 laborers that is now being so successfully carried on. It may be asked why have the conditions been allowed to arise under which an emergency appropriation must be asked. The answer is that those responsible deemed it their chief duty to push the work, to buy needed plant and material as rapidly as possible, and to increase the pay roll as far as provision could be made for the housing and comfort of the additional laborers and employees. It was supposed that an extra session of Congress would be called in October, when ample time would have been given for deliberation in making all the necessary appropriation.

Now it will be necessary to make partial appropriations to pay current bills and meet the necessary pay rolls until the type of the new canal has been fixed and definite estimates for each fiscal year's work can be submitted to Congress, as in the case of all other general appropriations of Congress. Assuming that the type of canal is properly fixed, the faster the work is done the better everyone will like it. It is important only that the money shall not be wasted by haste and that the country shall receive the worth of its money. Subject to this limitation, the greater the amount we can spend in a year in building the canal, therefore, the better.

And now about the type of the canal. I do not propose to discuss that. It is being considered by a board consisting of many of the best engineers of this country—Mr. Alfred Noble, the engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Mr. William Barclay Parsons, the engineer of the underground system in New York; Mr. Isham Randolph, of the Chicago Drainage Canal; Mr. William H. Burr, professor of engineering in Columbia College; Mr. F. P. Stearns, the hydraulic engineer, of Boston; Gen. H. L. Abbot, one of the greatest of Army engineers, who has made a study of the canal for years; Mr. Joseph Ripley, chief civil engineer of the "Soo" Canal; Mr. Henry W. Hunter, of the Manchester Ship Canal, appointed by the English Government at the request of the President; Mr. Adolph Guerard, one of the leading civil engineers in the employ of and appointed by the French Government; Mr. Eugen Tincauzer, chief engineer of the Kiel Canal, appointed by the German Government; Mr. E. Quellennec, the consulting engineer of the Suez Canal, and Mr. G. W. Welcker, appointed by the Netherlands Government. The board is presided over by Maj. Gen. George W. Davis, of the United States Army, a gentleman of long experience in engineering and works of construction. The great question before the board is, Shall the canal be a sea-level or a lock canal? If it is to be a lock canal, as recommended by the Walker Commission, I think the President may build the canal safely on the money appropriated without consulting Congress further as to the type. If it is to be a sea-level canal, the question, it seems to me, for reasons already stated, should be left to Congress.

There are various plans. Mr. Bunau-Varilla produces a plan by which he would construct a lock canal, the highest lock at 170 feet, and then would make provision for the ultimate reduction of this canal to a sea-level canal. Another—Mr. Bates—presents a plan for making, by dams, two great lakes at the termini of the canal and with a comparatively low lock canal between. I shall not stop to discuss these various plans, because I am neither competent nor have I time to do so. It will be sufficient to discuss them when the advisory board shall have returned its judgment, when the Commission shall have reported, and when the matter is before the President for decision.

One of the great obstacles to success in building the canal is the opposition of powerful persons and interests to its construction. Some of this opposition comes from those who are sincerely convinced that the Panama route is not a practicable route, and that there are other and easier routes to be preferred. It is not to be expected that owners and managers of great transcontinental lines should become enthusiastic over an enterprise which, if carried to completion, must certainly affect the rates of freight between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Even now there is some question as to whether low rates and equality of service to all on the Panama Railroad may not reduce transcontinental rates. Orders have been issued directing equality of service and rates to all and also a reduction of rates. But so congested is the railroad by transportation of material for the Canal Commission, and so interrupted is the traffic by quarantine and other causes, that it is impossible now to say what will be the effect of this policy under the conditions which we hope to make normal when all the commercial traffic and all the canal transportation can be promptly and easily cared for. But recurring to the obstacle found in the opposition of powerful interests to the building of the canal, it takes different forms. It is found in the misrepresentations of conditions on the Isthmus, in unfounded reports concerning friction between those having authority in the canal work, in intimations of irregularities and frauds and favoritism in contracts without any evidence whatever to justify suspicion, and generally in the constant suggestion of a presumption that the expenditure of millions in building the canal must involve what is called "graft." Doubtless Congressional investigations will be held from time to time.

Doubtless they ought to be held to assure the public; but if they are to be permitted to delay the work on the canal and to paralyze the energy of those upon whom the burden of pushing the work must fall, then they will be productive of evil and will become exactly what many private interests would be glad to have them become—the grave of all the high hopes for a trans-isthmian canal. The American people will not permit such a catastrophe.

As I have already said, I have just returned from a trip to the Isthmus. I was there a year ago, and so long as the work remains under my supervision I shall deem it my duty to visit the Isthmus once a year. I shall do this not only to keep informed of the work in actual progress, but because I believe it stimulates the subordinates in an enterprise like this to have it felt that their work is under the immediate observation of the supervisory power, and that what they are doing is a matter of interest and observation for everybody from the President down.

I recall that while at the meeting of the Cincinnati Commercial Club last year proposal was made that a steamer be chartered to visit Panama this winter, and I agreed to be one of the party, or at least to time my annual visit so that I should be on the Isthmus when you were. My impression is that it would be wiser to postpone your visit until about this time next year, when I understand you have perhaps a twenty years' anniversary. I do this because at that time there will be a hotel constructed at Ancon, on the Panama side, sufficiently large to take in all the members of the club likely to make the visit—a hotel fresh and new and clean, free from any contagion, where you can be comfortable and feel safe at the same time. I sincerely hope that the proposition to visit Panama will not be given up.

Those who go will feel richly rewarded for the definite information that the eye will give them of the task which this Government has undertaken and which, under the inspiration of energy breathed into the enterprise by the words and action of President Roosevelt, it will certainly perform. I thank you for your kind attention.

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for three minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent for three minutes' time. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I confess the struggle within me between my ignorance and a desire to do what is right. When I asked the gentleman from New York, who is our leader by right of appointment, how he would, by compromise, arrive at the sum of $10,000,000, a sum for us, as followers, to vote for, he virtually told me to sit down and be quiet. Thus you see the value of instruction. This is the most unusual and extraordinary demand that has been made on Congress within ten years, and my experience as a wrestler with estimates made by the Department moves me to have some apprehension that what we are asked to do may not be done well or wisely. I have in my mind a time one year ago when the estimates made by the Navy Department for the different bureaus amounted, according to public report, to $160,000,000. The Secretary of the Navy was requested to argue with the bureau chiefs and see if they might not make a reduction of estimates. He succeeded in reducing them about $44,000,000, I am told. The Committee on Naval Affairs grasped the subject and succeeded in a further reduction of $16,000,000 more. We always felt that our work had been well done. Surely the Navy has lived and prospered. I do not intend to embarrass this Commission. I see no reason why we should vote for $10,000,000. I believe the gentlemen who have these subjects in charge understand them much better than we do. Although I have listened for four hours as intently as possible, I do not feel myself well informed. I will vote for the proposed amount of $16,500,000 because it is the estimate made by the Commission, and it is the one I believe to be indorsed by the chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, in whom I have great confidence, unless he is satisfied a smaller sum will be adequate for the purposes enumerated.

The CHAIRMAN. Debate on this amendment is exhausted.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa asks unanimous consent for five minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the sum proposed as an amendment by the gentleman from Mississippi is entirely inadequate. I do not know how he arrives at that particular sum. It is true that it is not essential that this entire sum should be appropriated at this time. A portion of the expenditure will not be made until in the month of June, so that whatever deficiencies there might be from time to time by emergency appropriation bills could be provided for. It is simply a question for the House to determine whether they will do this work by making this appropriation. I say to you gentlemen every dollar of this sum, in my belief, will be appropriated for expenditures during the present fiscal year. It is a question for each man to determine for himself whether it is better to do it at once or by piecemeal. I can see how gentlemen here upon the floor of the House may feel a desire for more of information. I do not believe that the great majority of the gentlemen will, under any circumstances that may result from delay, be more familiar with the subject at the end of many months than they are to-day. The truth is that the estimates will be made; they will go before the committee; the committee will investigate them; but there is no item, there is no expenditure, there is no sum estimated for in this estimate that, in my judgment, will be changed. The members of that particular committee will have more of information, but the great majority of this House will simply content themselves with the belief that their committee has investigated the matter and that their report is accurate; that will be the result. Now, in this particular instance we have the estimate of the Secretary of the Treasury, we have the estimate of the auditor of the Commission, we have also the statement of the Secretary of War, and we have the statement of the president of the Commission. Those gentlemen have all concurred in saying that this sum is essential for expenditures during this fiscal year.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Iowa yield?

Mr. HEPBURN. Yes; I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Iowa if he thinks it is proper to make an appropriation for six months' further work on the basis of a lock canal when in less than two months we may decide to have a sea-level canal, and thereby render to a large extent useless the work that is being done now?

Mr. HEPBURN. I certainly do, for this reason, that all work that is now being done will be essential whether a sea-level canal shall be adopted or one with locks. All this is essential to either canal.

Mr. SHEPPARD. I understand that every dollar that is expended on the basis of a lock canal will render more difficult and more costly a sea-level canal.

Mr. HEPBURN. I think the gentleman is misinformed.

Mr. SHEPPARD. I think not.

Mr. HEPBURN. The work that is being done is in the way of excavation in the Culebra cut. That great range of mountains must be penetrated, no matter what form of canal is adopted. Sums are being expended in sanitation. That sanitation will be essential without reference to the character of the canal. Expenditures are now being made for the housing of the laborers; that will be essential no matter what form of canal is adopted. And so it is with all of the expenditures that are being made now. They are common to either form of canal that in the future may be adopted. Now, I think, Mr. Chairman, if it is not the temper of the House to make this appropriation as it is, that there will be at least an appropriation made that will meet the expenditures necessary, say, up to the 1st day of next March. It is not probable that our committees will be appointed and will get to work until some time in January. And remember that these appropriations—the estimates that are made for March—must be in the hands of the Commission by the last day of February, because the pay rolls will then have to be met.

Now, Mr. Chairman, there are liabilities already incurred, and sums due that amount to $5,000,000 to-day. I have no doubt that the monthly expenditures, the ordinary expenditures that must be incident to each current month, will be more than a million of dollars a month. There are equipments purchased, or contracted for delivery not later than June 30, 1906, but being currently delivered, amounting to $3,350,000—estimated miscellaneous material purchased in the United States from December 1, 1905, to January 30, 1906, that in all human probability will be delivered from month to month, a full proportion each month, that ought to be provided for by the 1st day of next March.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] asks unanimous consent that his time be extended for five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. HEPBURN. Now, the sums, as I figure them, that will be essentially necessary—this estimate is for the 1st day of April; I have been talking about March, however—up to the 1st day of April the expenditures that will be then due or will have matured, as I figure it, are $11,725,000, only assuming that the one-half portion of the two items—three and a fraction million and two and a fraction million dollars, that I refer to—should mature proportionately each month.

Now, that sum, at least something more than $10,000,000, will be absolutely needed by the 1st day of March next, and the gentleman's motion, I would think, would call for all that is absolutely necessary if he enlarged it a million dollars more, so as to cover all possible contingencies.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to substitute "eleven" for "ten" in the amendment to the amendment.

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Debate on this amendment is exhausted.

Mr. BONYNGE. I move as a substitute for the amendment that has been offered and for the pending motions that eleven millions be inserted in the bill in place of the $16,500,000.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

[Cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is upon perfecting the original amendment. The amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] is that $6,858,333 be substituted for $16,500,000 appropriated in the bill. The amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PRINCE] is that ten millions be substituted in the place of that. The question is first on the amendment to the amendment, namely, that $10,000,000 be substituted for the sum named in the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken on the adoption of the amendment to the amendment, and the Chairman stated that he was in doubt.

The committee divided.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is no longer in doubt; the amendment is carried. The question now recurs on the adoption of the substitute to the amendment, substituting $11,000,000 for $10,000,000.

The question was taken.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is in doubt.

The committee divided; and there were—ayes 113, noes 114.

Mr. HEPBURN. Tellers, Mr. Chairman.

Tellers were ordered.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois, Mr. PRINCE, and the gentleman from Colorado, Mr. BONYNGE, will take their places as tellers.

The committee again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 136, noes 121.

So the substitute was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment as amended.

The question was taken; and the amendment as amended was agreed to.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert in line 11, page 2, after the word "made," the following: "and all expenditures heretofore made for the construction of said canal."

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, the effect of this amendment will be to reimburse the Treasury from the proceeds of the sale of these bonds, not only for whatever appropriation may be carried by this bill, but such appropriations and expenditures as have already been made for the actual construction of the canal.

The act of June 28, 1902, authorized the sale of $130,000,000 of bonds, the proceeds of which can be used as the basis of appropriation for expenditures in the construction of the canal. That same act appropriated $40,000,000 for the original purchase of the rights and property of the Panama Company. In my judgment, Mr. Chairman, it was eminently proper that the $40,000,000 should be paid from the cash in the Treasury, and that that portion should not be reimbursed from the sale of bonds. That $40,000,000 was the basis, the anchorage of this great project. But, Mr. Chairman, whatever reason there may be for reimbursing the Treasury from the sale of bonds for the appropriations carried by this bill now under consideration, is an equally potent reason for the reimbursement of the Treasury of the amount actually expended for the purpose of the construction of the canal, which the gentleman from Iowa informed the committee yesterday was approximately $10,000,000. I think the time has passed when any doubt exists in any mind relative to the wisdom of this enterprise; but, Mr. Chairman, the burden of expenditure upon the Treasury should not fall so heavily upon the initiatory movement of the project, but should be so extended over a period of time that those in the future, who will reap far greater benefit from this great enterprise than we, will pay their part of this great expenditure. Now, the bonds authorized by the act of 1902 are to be sold and the proceeds used to reimburse the Treasury to the extent of the appropriation carried by this bill. This amendment only seeks to reimburse the Treasury further to the extent of that which has already been expended in actual construction. When this is done the beginning of the project, the anchorage of this great national enterprise, will have been paid for out of the cash in the Treasury to the extent of $50,000,000, then the actual expenditures for the actual construction of the canal will be made from the proceeds of the bonds, which will be paid as they mature, and fall equally upon those of the present day and also of the future to the extent of the limit of the bonds.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Would your amendment include the $10,000,000 paid to Panama?

Mr. MANN. Would your amendment cover the entire $60,000,000 already expended?

Mr. OVERSTREET. I think not, but I will say frankly to the gentleman from Illinois that if there is any construction to that effect I shall accept any proper amendment which would limit the reimbursement to the $10,000,000 of expenditures of actual construction with the appropriations carried in this bill.

Mr. MANN. Does not the gentleman think he ought to prepare the amendment limiting it in that way?

Mr. OVERSTREET. Whenever I am convinced that the language I propose is susceptible of that construction I might propose such an amendment, but I do not see it that way now.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman's amendment reads identically so as to cover all appropriations heretofore made.

Mr. OVERSTREET. For the actual construction of the canal.

Mr. MANN. Oh, no, but for the entire amount of money expended for that purpose.

Mr. OVERSTREET. I differ from you.

Mr. MANN. On any other basis the money already expended can not be expended.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Does the gentleman mean to say that the $40,000,000 paid to the Panama Canal Company was for the construction of the canal?

Mr. MANN. Why certainly.

Mr. OVERSTREET. That is where we differ.

Mr. MANN. It is just as much a part of the construction as the building of a hospital.

Mr. OVERSTREET. I do not agree with the gentleman. Will the gentleman agree with me that the actual expenditure of this sum, approximately $10,000,000, which we as amateurs over here understand means for actual construction, ought to be returned to the Treasury from the sale of these bonds?

Mr. MANN. Well, I will agree that it ought not to be done out of the sale of $130,000,000 of bonds authorized, because that was to be a sum in addition to the $10,000,000 which was appropriated and which has been expended.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. OVERSTREET. I ask unanimous consent for one minute further.

Mr. MANN. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman be allowed to proceed.

The CHAIRMAN. Unanimous consent is asked that the gentleman may proceed for one minute. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, it is not my understanding that the $10,000,000 which the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] informed us yesterday had been expended for actual construction was expended prior to the act of June 28, 1902. I asked him on yesterday what was the amount of expenditure for actual construction of the canal, and he said about $10,000,000; but that was not all expended prior to the authority for the issue of the $130,000,000 of bonds.

Mr. MANN. No; not any of it was expended prior to that. The act which authorized $130,000,000 bonds made an appropriation of $10,000,000, and obligated Congress thereafter to appropriate $135,000,000, $130,000,000 of which was expected to be paid out of the bonds and $15,000,000 total in the end out of the Treasury on an estimated expense of canal construction of $145,000,000.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, just a word. The purpose of this amendment is to reimburse the Treasury from the proceeds of the sale of these bonds, for the appropriation carried by the bill now under consideration, and such amount as has been heretofore expended for actual construction, not taking into account either the $40,000,000 paid the French company or the $10,000,000 paid to Colombia.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Indiana has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, this is a very important proposition and the House ought to understand what it means. It means that we are not only to borrow the $11,000,000 appropriated by this bill, when we have $55,000,000 of the people's money lying in the national banks on deposit, according to the last report of the Treasurer, which I hold in my hand, but that we are to add to that, by the construction which the gentleman from Indiana places upon the amendment, $10,000,000, and by the construction of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] $50,000,000, already paid out of the Treasury, so that that may come back into the Treasury and then be deposited in the national banks, virtually lent to them without the payment of a dollar of interest.

It is worse than that, Mr. Chairman, because when we, instead of taking our own money out of our own deposits, borrow money unnecessarily, we accompany it with the issuance of a bond, whereby the very man who loans the money for which our bond is issued may deposit in the Treasury the bonds which are the evidence of the loan and get their full face value back in good national-bank money, and then lend that money out to the people at whatever per cent he can get.

It is time that there was a halt called upon the partnership between the national-bank depositories and the Republican party. [Applause on the Democratic side.] No sensible business man in God's world, when he had money in his pocket, or in bank subject to his draft, would go into the market to borrow money. No honest man, acting as trustee for any person or corporation, would go into the market and borrow money for that person or corporation to pay necessary expenses that must be paid in the execution of the trust when an unengaged fund was lying idle somewhere in the hands of some friend, who was lending it out at interest and paying no interest himself to the beneficiary.

Take this step, if you dare! The Democracy challenges you to take it. There is a drop of water somewhere that will overflow the cup of public endurance and public patience. [Applause on the Democratic side.] This may possibly be that drop of water. It will be bad enough if you get the $11,000,000 appropriation in this bill by borrowing money rather than taking it out of your depositories.

What excuse are you going to give to the American people? Some of you answer me that before this debate closes. What excuse are you going to make to account, on a "square-deal" ground, for the fact that instead of using their money without cost to them, except of the principal—and the cost of that fully justified by the public necessity—you have borrowed money and paid to a certain favored class of bankers 2 per cent for that which you already had and needed not to borrow? Two per cent for what? That which you did not need to borrow. Two per cent for what purpose? Merely to favor your depositories.

The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] is right in this far, that there is not a reason in the world that will make it proper, wise, just, or honest to borrow the $11,000,000 appropriated by the bill instead of paying it out of our own money that will not also make it just and wise and honest to issue bonds for the $10,000,000 already expended, get the money into the Treasury, and deposit it also in the national depositories to feed speculation in margins and industrials. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

[Here the hammer fell.]

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana. The House and Congress deliberately said they could pay this sum all out of the surplus in the Treasury. It has been paid. There is no reason why we should reverse that rule now, why we should amend that legislation and go back and issue bonds to put it back into the Treasury. The deficit in the Treasury up to the 30th of June last, for two years, amounted to $64,000,000; that is, the deficit arising from the expenditures exceeding the receipts amounted to about $64,000,000. That is $4,000,000 more than the money we have paid upon this canal purchase up to this time. That, perhaps, would not have been so large but for the concessions in regard to revenue which we have made to our own insular possessions and to Cuba.

But we are running very close now in receipts and expenditures. Up to to-day I believe the deficit on that account is about $10,000,000. I do not care about the precise figures, but that is about the deficit up to to-day.

The gentleman from Illinois read a statement showing that the receipts for one day were three or four million dollars. That may be true. Sometimes they are less than a million dollars. But this deficit has arisen since the 30th day of June last. It looks now, if this abundant prosperity throughout the whole country continues until the 30th of June next, that we would be able to meet the ordinary expenses without much, if any, deficit at the end of the fiscal year. I think we will do that. I think we will accomplish that result. But because we may do that there is no reason, on the other hand, why we should follow the lead of the gentleman from Mississippi and now begin to work down the surplus in the Treasury, which we may need some time in the not very distant future. No man knows how long this wonderful prosperity of the country will run.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I thought it was to run forever.

Mr. PAYNE. We have had it since 1898, and there are no clouds in the horizon now; there is no Democratic peril even in the horizon to-day. [Laughter.] If that prosperity continues, we shall have abundant revenue to pay the expenses of the Government. But no man or set of men is wise enough to work out any revenue measure that will come out even every 30th day of June in running a big government like this. It never has been done and it never will be done. The nearest we ever approached to it was the period while the McKinley bill was in operation, and the period since 1898, when we had another Republican measure which has produced adequate money to pay our ordinary expenses.

We had a large surplus in the Treasury. It is not so large to-day by $74,000,000. What shall we do with that surplus? It is necessary to keep a surplus. We can not depend upon running into a deficiency that will make a draft upon the Treasury such as we had under the last Democratic Administration, which forced them to go into the markets of the country and buy gold with bonds, at a discount of $12,000,000 on their bonds. That is not the Republican idea. That is not our idea of the way in which the Treasury of the United States should be run. We want sufficient money to run it, and we want to provide against a rainy day.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the time of the gentleman from New York may be extended for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent that the time of the gentleman from New York be extended five minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. PAYNE. It is necessary to have this surplus. The gentleman from Mississippi dares us to maintain it. Good heavens! Have we not been maintaining that surplus while we have been in power? Have not we boldly proclaimed that we propose to have sufficient money for the necessities of the Government, even if they were extraordinary, by reason of hard times overtaking us? This is no new thing. You have been barking at that hole God knows how long. [Laughter.] The American people have not listened to you a great deal upon that particular question. The minds of the people and their memories go back to the time of your Administration, when God knows we were not troubled with any surplus in the Treasury. [Laughter on the Republican side.]

Now, having this money, what shall we do with it? Shall we lock it up in the vaults of the Treasury so it can not go into trade and perform the functions of money?

That has not been the policy of the Government for the last twenty-five years, whether the Administration was Republican or Democratic. They have sought to put that money where it can go into circulation and help to perform the business of the country, and it is right that they should do so. I am not going into the figures to show whether national banks make money out of this operation or not. They do not make much. It is a pretty small margin. The money is apt to be called for at any time. We have called for about $50,000,000 of it in the last two years. It went into the Treasury then and was paid out for Government expenses, and so went back into circulation, and there was no trouble about it then. But we have got to the point now where it is necessary to preserve our surplus in the Treasury of the United States. So the Congress thought when we passed this original bill and provided for the issue of bonds that another generation might pay for this canal, which possibly this generation may not see completed and running and bringing such benefits to the country as it will bring in the future. There is no necessity for it; there is no reason for it. We will not take a back step because you threaten that you are going to do something. Why, you dare us so that we almost tremble at the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS], about taking this step, although we know it is right and proper to do so. We are not going to put ourselves in such a condition when the Presidential campaign comes around in 1908, because the Republican party is and is going to be interested in the campaign of 1908, that you will be crying from every platform that there is a deficit in the revenues or a deficiency in the Treasury of the United States. The people want money enough to carry on the expenses of the Government, and we propose they should have it. They want a sufficient surplus to provide for the running expenses of the Government, and we propose that they shall have it. They are willing to pay in the future for this great work, and we propose to give them the opportunity. Therefore I trust that this amendment of my friend from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET], which I think ought not to be in the bill, will be voted down, and that we shall start from the point that we provided for in the original act; and I trust, on the other hand, that the amendment of the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS], when he shall offer it, to strike out this provision, will be voted down with equal unanimity, and that we will go on and complete this work under the programme which we have already inaugurated.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I would like to ask the gentleman from New York to give the House the amount of available cash in the Treasury now over and above the gold reserve.

Mr. PAYNE. Well, I think there is about $131,000,000. I do not remember the precise figures.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman is very nearly right. The amount is $136,000,000.

Mr. PAYNE. Well, one hundred and thirty-six millions, and in that connection I want to state to the gentleman from Mississippi that the people who were responsible for running the Treasury of the United States show very good reasons for their argument and their opinion that there should be at least $75,000,000 for the ordinary current running expenses of the Government.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the time of the gentleman may be extended for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent that the time of the gentleman from New York may be extended for five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman this question: If there be one hundred and thirty-six millions of cash available in the Treasury, over and above the gold reserve, and if even the Treasury officials calculate that seventy-five millions is a sufficient margin, then upon what ground can the gentleman resist the motion to take out of the remaining $61,000,000, over and above all margin and gold reserve, this $11,000,000?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, that is a fair question from the gentleman's standpoint, and I shall try to answer it. The Government revenue is limited. It is not only limited, but it is uncertain. I do not know, Mr. Chairman—none of us knows—but what an all-wise Providence may sometime in the future frighten the country with a threatened return of the Democratic party to power.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Oh, if the gentleman from New York please, let us talk business a little while.

Mr. PAYNE. I am talking business now. I am talking history. The country may again be threatened with the Democratic party coming into power, and if that threat goes so far as that the people believe it, it will act as it has always acted—to palsy business enterprise, to destroy prosperity, to destroy credit and cut down the revenues of the Government, because unless the people are prosperous and buy and business is done in this country the revenues will not come into the Treasury of the United States.

It is just such conditions and contingencies that we are bound, Mr. Chairman, to have in our mind when we are considering these things. I will admit the possibility may be remote. Good heavens! I have wondered in the past how it could come about when it has that people should get frightened over these things, but they do. They sometimes have reason to, and I do not know when it will——

Mr. WILLIAMS. Will the gentleman from New York yield?

Mr. PAYNE. And now that the revenues run so closely to our expenditures I, for one, do not believe it is policy to cut down the surplus any further below the present amount.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Mississippi?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Mississippi understands the gentleman from New York then, and I would ask him whether he understands him correctly or not, the answer of the gentleman from New York to his former question is that there ought to be kept in the Treasury $61,000,000 more than the Treasury officials advise for fear that the Democratic party may come into power. Is that it?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, now, I spoke of that as one thing, as one cloud that might come up in the future. The Democratic party is not the only cloud upon the prosperity of the country.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Why, I thought it was the only cloud.

Mr. PAYNE. One of them.

Mr. WILLIAMS. It is the only one you have thus far mentioned. Now, will the gentleman from New York mention some other clouds that necessitate the carrying of this sixty-one millions, fifty-five of it as a loan to banks without interest?

Mr. PAYNE. I have heard the gentleman from Mississippi argue, and I will put the argument to himself, that these periods of depression come in cycles. I think it was three years ago he was talking, when he warned the Republican party that that cycle might happen about 1904, just before the Presidential election, and it would not do for us to predicate prosperity upon the tariff laws——

Mr. WILLIAMS. I am talking now of a business proposition, not of cycles.

Mr. PAYNE. Upon the tariff laws which the Republican party had inaugurated. Now, it may be one of the gentleman's cycles may come upon the people of the United States and produce a period of depression, and we had better be prepared for it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Then, I understand the gentleman's answer to be this, that the $61,000,000, $55,000,000 of it lying on deposit in the banks and not paying interest, ought to be kept over and above the margin suggested by the Treasury officials, over and above the gold reserve, in order to prevent a reoccurrence of Democratic rules or Mr. WILLIAMS'S cycles? Is that your answer? [Laughter on the Democratic side.] Now, I would like to have some sound business reason why this country should keep that $61,000,000, $55,000,000 of it in the banks, instead of spending $11,000,000, which they already have in this enterprise, and go out and borrow money at 2 per cent, the people lending it getting bonds, reissuing the same amount and lending it over to the people.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

Mr. PAYNE. I am very sorry, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I want to have the amendment read, and then I desire to speak in opposition to it for a few moments.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, the Clerk will report the amendment for the information of the committee. [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The amendment was again reported.

The CHAIRMAN. The time for debate upon this amendment is exhausted.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent for five minutes. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I desire to call the attention of the House for a few moments to the amount of the bonded indebtedness of the country and when that bonded indebtedness can be paid. The consols of 1930, amounting in round numbers to $538,000,000, can not be paid prior to April 1, 1930, unless we buy them by paying a premium in advance. The loan of 1907, amounting to a hundred and seventeen million dollars, can not be paid until after July 1, 1907. The loan of 1908, amounting to the neighborhood of $64,000,000, can not be paid until August 1, 1908.

The next loan, of $118,000,000, is not due until after February 1, 1925. In other words, we have a bonded indebtedness of about $900,000,000 which can not be paid without buying at a premium, until the first of them fall due July 1, 1907, and some that fall due later, August 1, 1908. Now, what condition are we in?

Mr. PAYNE. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. PRINCE. Certainly.

Mr. PAYNE. Will the gentleman state to the committee the rate of interest on 1907 bonds and also the rate on the 1908 bonds?

Mr. PRINCE. I will. The 1908 bonds are at 3 per cent; the 1907 bonds are at 4 per cent.

Mr. PAYNE. I want to ask my friend whether it would not be better, if we are going to pay this money on big work of this kind, to pay this money next July, or in 1907 pay this money on a 4 per cent bond and retire it when we can retire it without a premium?

Mr. PRINCE. I agree with the gentleman in that respect, and the purpose of my stating these figures is this, to call the attention of the House to the fact that we owe money that we can not pay, and to call the attention of the House to the further fact that we have one hundred and thirty-six millions now on hand and available for use, sixty-five millions of which are in the Treasury and fifty-five millions of which, properly, are in the national-bank depositories. It had better be there than locked up in the vaults of the Treasury, unused by the people. This matter deserves more careful consideration by this House than to take it up as an amendment to an emergency bill, and I fully concur with the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] that we have gone as far to-day in this House under the Committee of the Whole as we ought to go.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PRINCE] has expired.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for one or two minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PRINCE] asks unanimous consent for the extension of his time for two minutes more. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PRINCE. The amendment as suggested by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] may be a proper amendment later on for a committee to consider, when they bring in an appropriation for this Panama Canal. At this time, and under the present circumstances, in my judgment, it is unwise to go any further than we have gone, namely, to make an emergency appropriation of this $11,000,000.

I do not agree with my friend here upon the left, the leader of the minority [Mr. WILLIAMS], as to his views. I think there is a middle course that we can better take in order to preserve the dignity of the House, and to maintain the responsibility of committees, and that is to stop right where we are now and let this question, if it is a proper question, be left to the proper committee and let them report to this House later on. The purpose is here to add twenty-one to seventy-six million dollars more of a bonded indebtedness. That is the effect of it. And I want to say to my colleagues on this side, it has been my pride in speaking to the people to say to them that in a time of peace, barring the time of the Spanish war, we have had money enough to meet the expenses, money enough to pay for the canal, money enough to buy the strip, money enough to meet the emergency, and take it out of the available cash of the Treasury, and not put a bonded indebtedness upon the people who have trusted us with the affairs of Government since 1898.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PRINCE] is exhausted.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] asks unanimous consent for five minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Chairman, I am not disturbed by the frenzy into which the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] worked himself upon the question of deposits of national money in national banks, because that subject does not relate to this amendment. When that subject is properly before the House his criticisms may properly be answered to his own satisfaction, but this proposition does not deal with that topic at all. It is a plain proposition offered by me, with the simple view of emphasizing my position, at least relative to the expenditures for the Panama Canal in its actual construction. I believe, Mr. Chairman, that the people will approve the proposition that the actual outlay of money for the construction of that enterprise should be paid, not from the available cash, but distributed over a series of years, as evidenced by the bonds which were offered for issue. I call attention, Mr. Chairman, to the fact that if the bonds, which aggregate $130,000,000, authorized under the act of June 28, 1902, have been sold there is a large proportion of this $10,000,00 which I propose to be reimbursed would not have been paid out of the money in the Treasury. I propose to treat that expenditure in the same way that Congress now proposes to treat the appropriation carried in this bill. I am obliged to my friend from New York for his argument in support of this amendment, notwithstanding his declaration that he will vote against it. Every syllable of his argument in support of the protection of the surplus is an argument in favor of this amendment. I believe, Mr. Chairman, that if we propose to be consistent in our attitude toward this great enterprise we will put upon the same plane this appropriation which you are now about to make of $11,000,000 the $10,000,000 that has already been expended in the actual construction of this canal. That is the sole proposition. I do not intend to raise any nightmare of Democratic administration to disturb the placid nature of my friend from New York nor arouse the gentleman from Mississippi upon his favorite topic of deposit of Government funds in national banks, but call the attention of this House to what I at least believe to be the sentiment of the country—that the people of the future shall aid in the payment of the actual expenses of this construction, and that it shall not all come from the cash in the Treasury. The $50,000,000 already taken from the Treasury is ample evidence of the good faith of the people of this day. That has been paid and should not be reimbursed, but the actual outlay for the actual construction already made should be put upon the plane of the $11,000,000 which you propose here to appropriate. Simply that and nothing more. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. Debate upon the amendment is exhausted, and the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I wish to offer the amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out the proviso beginning in the tenth line of page 2, with the word "Provided," and continuing to the end of line 14, page 2.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, this amendment strikes out the proviso, which makes it mandatory upon the Secretary of the Treasury to reimburse to the Treasury of the United States the $11,000,000 appropriated by the bill out of the money to be procured by floating bonds. I have nothing further to say upon the subject now except to reiterate that it is bad finance for an individual or for a country to borrow money at interest when the individual or the country has money lying idle which he or it could use.

But one word further; the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] has attempted to frighten that side of the Chamber and the country by the fear there may not be sufficient surplus left in the Treasury to carry on the Government properly. He does not know what is going to threaten the surplus. He undertakes in no business way to tell us. Our receipts, from the last report, are larger than the expenditures. A deficit may come and may not; but I submit that when it does come, if it shall come, that will be the time to borrow money, and not now. What would you think of a man who was fool enough to go out and borrow money to pay his private debts when he had thousands of dollars, perhaps millions of dollars in bank, upon the ground that the time might come when he might not have millions of dollars in the bank? [Applause.] It may be necessary at some day in the future to borrow money to defray the expenses of the Government. That "prosperity under the Dingley bill," that great shield under which prosperity has been brought not only to the United States of America but to our northern neighbor, Canada, our southern neighbor, Mexico, and generally all the world, even including Japan, may some day change its character or it even may be repealed, as the gentleman "opines" under an imaginary "cycle" system that he attributes to me.

I do not remember ever to have said anything in debate on the floor about "cycles," but when it does come—this "cycle"—that will be the time to protect the Treasury against me or the Democratic party, either one of us, as it may be. My friends, I assure you that I have no real bad intentions upon the Treasury, and no "cycle" that can be attributed to me as its author, manufacturer, or originator, will ever threaten the present surplus, except to spend it to get results of greater benefit than the possession of the money.

I do not think that the gentleman was called upon to infuse partisan politics into a discussion which ought to be a business discussion for business men, as far as this particular proposition is concerned.

The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. OVERSTREET] says that the question of deposits in national banks has nothing to do with his amendment, and therefore nothing to do with the provision in this bill. It has everything to do with it, because that is where our money that we can use if we would is now lying idle, and neither he nor anybody else can get away from that fact. He can not fool the people about it subsequently to this date. A great many of them know now, and all the balance shall know, that your object in doing this is to prevent the necessity of making your national bank depositories give up part of what they hold and use without interest, to their own profit. No honest man will deny that the effect of his amendment will be to add to the amount of deposits in the banks; and the effect of this provision in the bill would be to prevent a decrease of the amount of deposits in the banks, virtually on loan without interest. That will be the effect of the bill unless the proviso is stricken out by my amendment. You can not get away from it and you shall not. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, a settled policy was adopted with regard to the manner in which funds should be raised for expenditures in this work at the time that the act of June 28, 1902, was passed. That was an act that I think the gentleman from Mississippi voted for. I think he was heartily in favor of all parts of it. At least I heard no dissent from him with reference to it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. When was that?

Mr. HEPBURN. The act of June 28, 1902, in which we adopted a settled policy with reference to this canal. In that act I find—

That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to borrow, on the credit of the United States, from time to time, as the proceeds may be required to defray expenditures authorized by this act, such proceeds when received to be used only for the purpose of meeting such expenditures, the sum of $130,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and to prepare and issue therefor coupon or registered bonds of the United States in such form as he may prescribe.

At that time there was nearly if not quite as much money of the Government in the hands of the depositories as there is to-day.

Mr. PAYNE. More.

A MEMBER. Twice as much.

Mr. HEPBURN. I wonder why the gentleman at that time did not make this objection? Now he discovers that there is a surplus in the Treasury, and that calls for a Democratic challenge. Ah! I recognize the fact that the Democracy has always been opposed to a surplus in the Treasury. I find here, in a table just furnished us, a statement giving the population, the net revenues, and the net expenditures of the Government of the United States from 1837 down to the present time.

I find that during that period there were twenty-four years of Democratic rule, and that in those twenty-four years, during fifteen of them, the net revenues of the Government were less than the expenses; so that it seems that in 62 per cent of the years during which the Democratic party was in power it was never able to furnish, or at least did not furnish, means ample for the purposes of this Government.

It is a Democratic habit to have a deficit rather than to have a surplus.

Mr. WILLIAMS rose.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I do not desire to be interrupted now, as I have only five minutes.

I notice, Mr. Chairman, that during those years of Democratic deficit there was not prosperity in this country. Those were years of penury to the people. There was no claim then that the people of the United States everywhere were prosperous. When the nation in its aggregate was pauperized the people in their individual experiences were pauperized.

We prefer the other method—of having not only plenty in the homes, but enough in the Treasury.

Of course, there will be times when that surplus will be a little more or a little less, but under the wise provision of depositing that surplus in the depositories of the Government it is still open for all of the commercial uses for which money may be needed. It is not hoarded in the Treasury to bring distress to business. It is furnishing and performing and completing the office for which money is created, of carrying on the business interests of the country.

Whether or not it would be practicable to exact or to secure a rate of interest for that money, and at the same time have it at all times and under all emergencies within the control of the Government, is a question of monetary affairs with which I am not sufficiently conversant to say; but it is a policy that has long been adopted. It has worked well; it has resulted in no defalcation to the Treasury. The money is safe and when needed can be used, and the fact that it can be had at a moment's notice is a great factor in that prosperity that is universal throughout the whole country. [Applause.]

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. Mr. Chairman, I wish to say briefly to the House that it strikes me as a very appropriate time to offer some remarks with reference to the effect of partisan bitterness upon a purely business proposition. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] is a pure question of business administration, and certainly that party which boasts of having given the country a business administration ought to be willing in debate to consider a business proposition in a business way. This question can not be thrust aside; can not be answered to any reasonable man, no matter what his politics is, by historical pleas of past party condition. The condition confronts us now. It is not a theory that we have a surplus in the Treasury more than six times enough to cover the amount proposed by issuing bonds. Is there any business sense in that? Is there any impending trouble from the Democratic party, from cycles, Providence, or any other source, that requires a surplus as large as now exists to meet the present or the probable impending business needs of the Government? Why, then, should the people have these bonds issued and have the interest to pay? What good will it accomplish? What wise purpose can be subserved from a business point of view? What difference does it make on this question whether there was a surplus or not in 1860, in 1850, in 1840, or 1870? There is a surplus now, a big one, and the proposition is now to issue bonds in the face of a surplus. That is the question. It is not a question of cycles; it is not a question of Democratic impending trouble. As far as I am concerned, I am strongly inclined to the view that many a jest is spoken in earnest, and that the jest will prove true in the coming Congressional election this next year. [Laughter and applause on the Democratic side.] I believe that the people are tired of this control of the country and the House by a coterie and fixed arrangement about such matters as this. No man in this House believes any number of business men anywhere in this country would adopt such a method as this in the transaction of their great business interests. No; not for a moment. Grant that it may be wise to have a moderate and reasonable surplus to meet the needs of the Government; how much ought it to be? Is it necessary that it should be $136,000,000? Is it necessary to have this money scattered out over the banks of the country, to be used as a political pull, it may be, or as a system of political graft? What wise business purpose is involved in this? If you gentlemen vote for this, I predict that you will hear from it, and I know that you ought to hear from it. You will not be able to satisfy the honest minds among the plain people of this country that a thing is right because the Democratic party did so and so away back yonder before the war, perhaps, or because Cleveland or some one else did this. You are confronted with this proposition in a plain business way. No man was ever fairer in putting the question in reference to the proposition than the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] was to the gentleman from New York, and his answer in the RECORD will make him, distinguished and able and honest as I believe him to be, appear ridiculous before the country; and then the gentleman from Iowa thrusts into the debate the fact that we were authorized to issue the bonds. It is not a question of authority; it is a question of exercising the authority against the interests of the American people and sound, wise, economical business principles. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired. Without objection, the pro forma amendment may be withdrawn.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I renew the pro forma amendment. From this debate it appears that we have had a deficit in the Treasury during the past two fiscal years, and since the 1st of July of the present year we have had a deficit of about $10,000,000. Those facts are uncontroverted. What the future may be we can only guess. Whether that deficit will be large or small will depend upon the prosperity of the country during the remaining part of the fiscal year, or up to the 1st of July, 1906. We have the opportunity now of borrowing money at 2 per cent to pay for a great national work to last for the ages. A business man under those circumstances, knowing that he had a large amount of obligations coming due in January, 1907, bearing a much larger rate of interest, would not hesitate to borrow the money now and wait until the time was tided over, seeing whether that yearly deficit for two years was turned into a surplus of receipts over expenditures, and if so, then there is ample time when those bonds become due in 1907 to apply all the surplus that can be safely used in the retirement of bonds bearing interest at 4 per cent. These 4 percents amount to $117,000,000. So that, from a business standpoint, it is the right thing to do to carry out the policy inaugurated in 1902 and pay this money out of the proceeds of the bonds provided for in the act of 1902.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the pro forma amendment is withdrawn. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. WILLIAMS) there were—ayes 92, noes 136.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered.

The Chair appointed Mr. WILLIAMS and Mr. HEPBURN tellers.

The House again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 107, noes 152.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment to the pending section, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 11, page 2, strike out the word "shall" and insert in lieu thereof the words "may in the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury."

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, in explanation of the proposed amendment only one sentence will be necessary. This bill makes it mandatory upon the Secretary of the Treasury to issue the bonds. The old law, of which this is a supplement, left it discretionary. The language of the old law reads:

That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to borrow, on the credit of the United States, from time to time as the proceeds may be required, money to defray expenditures, etc.

This proviso says that all expenditures from the appropriation herein made shall be reimbursed and leaves no discretion in the Secretary of the Treasury at all. I merely propose to strike out the word "shall" and insert the words "may in the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury." I shall not argue the question any further, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. WILLIAMS) there were—ayes 89, noes 131.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding after the word "provided," in line 10, page 2, the words:

"That the Secretary of War is directed to use so much of this sum and subsequent appropriations as may be necessary to fortify the canal at each terminal end."

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Chairman, in the Fifty-seventh Congress, when the canal bill was before the House, I endeavored to have that amendment passed requiring the fortification of the canal, but by reason of the fact, as I believe, that the committee, without partisan division, had agreed to the bill as it stood and had agreed to pass no amendment under the conditions then existing, the amendment was defeated. I believed then and I believe now that this amendment is wise and of vast importance and that it ought to be adopted.

It goes without saying that it is entirely nonpartisan. It ought not to matter that it is offered by a Texan on this side. If it has merit and appeals to your judgment it ought to be adopted. Now, what would this amendment mean? It means simply this, that we give notice to the world that this canal is an American institution, secured by American diplomacy, to be constructed by American brains and labor, and paid for by American cash, and that we propose that it shall be so fortified that no power on earth can ply through it except by American will. It does not mean that we will discriminate against the commerce of any nation on earth. Oh, no. I am in favor, personally, of being fair, of giving, as an eminent orator who has been speaking in the country says, all the nations of earth as well as the American people "a square deal," but I am in favor of being prepared so that we can make any other nation give us a square deal whenever it becomes necessary in our interest. This canal will be a great institution when completed. No other nation has one dollar of interest in it and we ought to have it so fortified as that if war or trade relations or any motives of national interest properly considered suggest the propriety of forbidding or fixing terms by which it can be used by any given nation we will be in a position to propose the terms and to enforce them when proposed. It will be too late in the event of war to talk then about fortifying the canal, and the immense military utility of the canal if fortified will double the power of our Navy in the Pacific or in the Atlantic by access forward and backward as against the nations of the world who would have to round South America. It would be too late then to secure that advantage, nor could we protect it against the ravages of a foreign enemy, but if it should be fortified we would not only be able to ship our battle ships forward and backward and avoid things like the experience of the Oregon in the Spanish war, but we would be able to prevent a foreign nation from having equal facilities with us in that war. There is no doubt in my mind but what if this amendment could be passed on by the American people it would receive three times the majority that the President of your party received in the last election, and that was a good sized one at that. Now, what objection can the distinguished chairman of this committee have to this amendment? What objection can any gentleman on that side have to this amendment? Are you opposed to the fortifications of the canal? I serve notice on you now you will have to come over to it within five years after the completion of the canal. These international complications may be different from what they are now. Now we ride majestically on the seas, a nation at peace with the world, with a power never before possessed, not even threatened. Now we can go ahead and do this cheaply without trouble with Great Britain by reason of our treaty with her or any other power in the Orient or elsewhere. If we wait we will be, perhaps, in the condition of the man in Texas who had no roof above his house and when it rained he could not stop to put a cover on it, and when it did not rain of course he did not need it.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the position of the two sides of the House is quite well illustrated by that amendment. When we are endeavoring to obtain the money necessary to proceed with the work in hand the gentleman who offers the amendment votes against giving the money, and then having reduced the amount he wants to still further reduce it by using the money to fortify the canal. Let us build the canal at least before we fortify it. The gentleman opposes the money to build the canal and yet wants to use the money to fortify the canal. How foolish it seems——

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield to the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. MANN. Why, certainly.

Mr. BURGESS. I do not wish to be placed, knowingly or unknowingly, by the gentleman from Illinois in a false position. He certainly does not understand I am opposed to voting the money for building the canal.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman voted against $11,000,000 twice.

Mr. BURGESS. I did, but I was ready to vote for any necessary amount, and I am ready to vote now or hereafter at all times for whatever is shown to be actually necessary to construct this canal; but I am not to be put in any such false position by the gentleman from Illinois, who would rather do that than meet the argument——

Mr. MANN. That is the voice of Jacob, but the hand is the hand of Esau.

Mr. BURGESS. Will the gentleman permit one more question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. BURGESS. Are you opposed to the fortification of the canal, yes or no?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the law providing that the President shall construct the canal provides that he shall construct and defend the canal. I am in favor, first, of doing some work toward the construction of the canal. The gentleman, as is usual with his party, wants to do something first which can not be used, and he opposes a thing which can be used. They always favor the cart before the horse. [Laughter.] We put the horse first. [Applause on the Republican side.]

Mr. BURGESS. Just a moment. Does the gentleman contend that under the existing treaty with Great Britain, and the language of the canal act, the Secretary of War can fortify the terminals of the canal? I am not speaking of defense. Can the canal be fortified under existing law?

Mr. MANN. The act provides that the President shall make such provision for defense as may be necessary for the safety and protection of the canal and harbors.

Mr. BURGESS. If the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] will permit me, I will suggest that we do not play about a great question like this.

Mr. MANN. I hope the gentleman will stop. That is what he is doing.

Mr. BURGESS. The question is this: Does the gentleman contend that under the existing treaty with Great Britain and the language to which the gentleman has referred, and with which I assure him I am perfectly familiar, that the Secretary of War can construct a fortification at the terminals of this canal to prevent egress and ingress if the nation sees fit? That is the question.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, that will be a question when the canal is finished. I trust that the gentleman may then be voting in reference to appropriations of this kind, but I hope that if he is, it will be at the other end of the Capitol.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the adoption of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BURGESS].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 3. That a detailed statement of the expenditures from this and subsequent appropriations for the construction of the isthmian canal shall be made annually to Congress at the beginning of each regular session.

Mr. TAWNEY and Mr. FITZGERALD rose.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer a substitute for section 3, which has just been read.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] offers a substitute for section 3, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out all of section 3 and insert:

"SEC. 3. That a detailed, classified, and itemized statement of all expenditures for which a voucher shall be furnished and audited, in amounts of $100 and over, from this and subsequent appropriations for the construction of the isthmian canal, shall be made annually to Congress at the beginning of each regular session, together with an additional statement of all orders for machinery, cars, and other appliances used in connection with and in the construction of said canal given by the Isthmian Canal Commission, including therein the amounts and prices covered by such orders."

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment which I believe under the rules has precedence over the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY].

Mr. TAWNEY. I offered my amendment as a substitute to section 3; that is, striking out all of section 3 and insert.

Mr. FITZGERALD. The amendment which I offer is to perfect the provision of the bill as it stands at present, and under the rules of the House it is entitled to precedence over the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY]. I send the same to Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Line 18, page 2, strike out the period and insert a semicolon, and add the following: "and at the same time there shall be submitted to Congress a detailed, itemized, and classified estimate of all moneys required for the next ensuing fiscal year."

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] is recognized.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, I believe I am entitled to the floor on the amendment, inasmuch as it takes precedence of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. TAWNEY. The gentleman from Minnesota did not yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD], but will yield now if the gentleman from New York wishes to address the committee on his amendment. How much time does he desire?

Mr. FITZGERALD. I simply wish to discuss it for about five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD] asks unanimous consent for five minutes of time. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, this amendment to the bill is the amendment which the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] gave notice yesterday would be offered by me at this time.

The bill in its present shape provides that there shall be submitted to Congress a detailed statement of the expenditures made from this and from subsequent appropriations. This amendment requires that there shall be submitted at the same time a detailed statement of the money required for the ensuing fiscal year. This bill itself is the best argument in favor of the adoption of such an amendment. A request was made that Congress should appropriate $16,500,000 without any proper estimate having been submitted and without any Member of this House having any adequate information regarding the money required and the uses to which it was to be put.

Mr. TAWNEY. Will the gentleman from New York permit a question?

Mr. FITZGERALD. Yes, sir.

Mr. TAWNEY. You are aware that the expenditure of this money is under the jurisdiction and control of the War Department? Now, the general law provides that all Executive Departments of the Government must submit their estimates by October 1, and if not done by the 1st of October, then the Secretary of the Treasury is required to put in as much as he may estimate for them.

Mr. FITZGERALD. If the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] will permit me, I understand that under the language of the canal act the expenditures of this work come under the direct supervision of the President, and that the law regulating the submission of estimates by the Department has no application to the moneys required here at all.

Mr. TAWNEY. I understood from the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN]—I may have misunderstood him—in the debate yesterday that these expenditures were all under the jurisdiction of the War Department.

Mr. MANN. We conferred authority upon the President; the President by order transfers the supervision to the Secretary of War. That would not require the Commission to make estimates as the Department estimates, undoubtedly.

Mr. FITZGERALD. It seems to me, Mr. Chairman, to be imperative that somebody should submit estimates to this House before any appropriation be made for any purpose. In no other way can the House be informed of the purpose for which the money is required. This amendment was prepared in this form so as to have estimates submitted as nearly as possible in the form and manner now provided for the submission of estimates for the regular Departments. The only argument against requiring estimates was a suggestion made by the gentleman from Illinois yesterday, that it would be impossible to tell in advance how much money would be required for the Panama Railroad; yet in the very statement submitted to the House in connection with the pending bill there are estimates of the sums required even for the railroad. I trust that this or some other amendment of a similar character to it will be adopted by the Committee. [Cries of "Vote!"]

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I wish to offer a substitute for the amendments which are pending.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] has a substitute pending.

Mr. MANN. I beg the Chair's pardon. I understood the gentleman from Minnesota to offer an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota offers a substitute for the section. The gentleman from New York offers an amendment perfecting the text of the paragraph.

Mr. MANN. Then I shall offer what I do as an amendment to the substitute.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, with the consent of the committee, and for the purpose of accommodating my friend from Illinois, I will withdraw my substitute in order that he may offer his first.

The CHAIRMAN. If there be no objection, the substitute will be withdrawn. The Chair hears no objection. The Clerk will report the substitute offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out all of section 3 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"SEC. 3. That the President shall annually, and at such other periods as may be provided, either by law or by his order, require full and complete reports to be made to him by the persons appointed or employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone, the construction of said Panama Canal, and the operation of said Panama Railroad, including an itemized account of all moneys received and expended, which said reports shall be by the President transmitted to Congress. And any of the persons appointed or employed by the President in connection with the said government or the said work of construction or operation shall give to Congress or to either House of Congress such information as may at any time be required either by act of Congress or by the order of either House of Congress in relation to their respective actings and doings and the receipt and expenditure of money. The President shall annually cause to be made, by the persons appointed and employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone and the construction of said canal, estimates of expenditures and appropriations, in detail as far as practicable, which estimates shall be submitted to Congress in the manner provided in section 5 of the act entitled 'An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and for other purposes.' And no money shall be expended for any of the purposes named in this act except in accordance with appropriations made by Congress, except that the moneys received, in the ordinary course of business, from the operation of the Panama Railroad and the property and rights appertaining thereto may be expended, so far as necessary, in defraying the expenses of such operation, including maintenance, without being covered into the Treasury of the United States, and such moneys are hereby appropriated for such purpose, and monthly reports of such receipts and expenditures shall be made to the President by the person or persons in charge."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is upon the amendment of the gentleman from New York.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

I should like to inquire of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN], of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY], or some Member who has charge of this matter, why it is—if it is a fact, and I understand it is a fact—that there has been no statement in detail of what has been done with the appropriations heretofore made. It seems now we are about to pass, as we should, an amendment requiring hereafter such statements; but why has not a detailed statement been made by the parties in charge, whether the Commission, if it was its duty, of the Secretary of War, if it was his duty. I should like to have some explanation on this point from the gentleman, and I feel that he can give it.

Mr. MANN. Although the law does not require a report in detail, I had printed in the RECORD yesterday a fairly well detailed report of the official year last past, and I understand that there will be submitted to Congress a complete detailed report of the expenditures of the last fiscal year.

In the last Congress we passed a bill in the House in reference to the Panama Canal construction work and the government of the Canal Zone, and endeavored to perfect a section in reference to the making not only of detailed but itemized statements of expenditures; not only annually, but as often as might be required by the President or by either House of Congress.

We also required in that section detailed estimates of future expenditures, and provided in addition that there should be estimates of expenditures made even for the Panama Railroad, but that the money which came in from current receipts of the road could be used in the operation of the road, requiring, however, monthly statements of those receipts and expenditures.

That section of the bill failed with the rest of the bill, because of the disagreement of the House and the Senate in reference to the abolition of the Canal Commission.

It is that section of the former bill, perfected by the committee which had charge of it, and adopted by the House, which I have offered; and so far as I know, no one has suggested an amendment in any way which will add to it.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman go just a step further now and answer my question completely as to why that statement has not been already prepared and submitted? Why did they not anticipate the notable occasion of the assembling of this Congress and its immediately taking up this important matter? Understand, I am not reflecting on the Secretary of War. I think he is as clean a man as we have, in or out of public life. I know him personally and officially, and esteem him almost in the extreme. He is a great, clean man; he won't do or permit, knowingly, a wrong; but I want to know why even that kind of an official, if it was his duty, or your great, clean, able Commission, as I take it to be—I know none of the members of it—why have they not anticipated this great occasion and this important request of Congress and filed an itemized statement?

Mr. MANN. I apprehend that it is more a lack of experience on the part of the gentlemen in charge of the Commission than anything else. In an examination of the law they did not find that they were required to submit a detailed statement at all. They thereupon proposed to submit a detailed statement for the past fiscal year, as ought to be done in the ordinary course of business, and probably if this work were under the control of the officials of a Department having experience in such matters we should have had more information; but the auditor of the Commission is now engaged, I may say to the gentleman, in making a detailed statement of the expenditures down to the 1st of October, which will be furnished to the House in the course of a few days.

[Here the hammer fell.]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Chairman, the amendment offered by way of substitute by the gentleman from Illinois is, as I understand it, a provision of a bill upon which the members of his committee in the last House were in accord and which passed this House. It has been prepared with great care and goes into details which are considered of much importance, and I hope that that provision will be incorporated into the bill instead of the present section as amended.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from New York [Mr. FITZGERALD].

The amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now is upon the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN].

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. SHEPPARD. To submit an amendment at this point.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 2 by adding to said section the following:

"Provided, That no further appropriations shall be made until it shall have been authoritatively determined whether the canal is to be a lock or a sea-level canal."

Mr. HEPBURN. I raise the point of order that that section has been passed.

The CHAIRMAN. This being an amendment to section 2, it is out of order.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman, I ask leave to submit it as an amendment to the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent to return to section 2 of the bill.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to return to section 2.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, let the proposed amendment be again read. I understand it provides that no appropriation shall be made by the House until certain things are done.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will again report the amendment.

The amendment was again read.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I shall have to refuse to enter into any unanimous consent until the substitute I have offered is disposed of. This has nothing to do with that.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is made; and the question is on the substitute offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN].

The question was taken; and the substitute was agreed to.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Now, Mr. Chairman, I renew my request.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill with amendments to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent that the committee recur to section 2 of the bill for the purpose of offering an amendment.

Mr. HEPBURN. I object.

The motion of Mr. HEPBURN was then agreed to.

Accordingly, the committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. VREELAND, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill H. R. 480, supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriations for Isthmian Canal construction, and for other purposes, and had directed him to report the same back with amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to, and that the bill as amended do pass.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the previous question on the bill and amendments to its final passage.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the vote will be taken in gross.

The amendments were considered in gross and agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. HEPBURN, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

ORDINANCES OF PORTO RICO.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

The Senate and House of Representatives:

Referring to section 32 of the act approved April 12, 1900, entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes," I transmit herewith eleven ordinances enacted by the executive council of Porto Rico, which ordinances have been approved by the President of the United States.

Attention is invited to the accompanying report of the Secretary of State.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 7, 1905.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

By unanimous consent, Mr. LIVINGSTON was given leave to withdraw from the files of the House, without leaving copies, papers in the case of Maggie D. Russ, Fifty-eighth Congress, no adverse report having been made thereon.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that when the House adjourn it be to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 3 o'clock and 35 minutes p. m.) the House, under its previous order, adjourned until Monday, December 11, 1905, at 12 o'clock meridian.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Supervising Architect of the Treasury submitting an estimate of appropriation for construction of a wharf, runway, etc., at quarantine station at Honolulu, Hawaii—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, recommending an appropriation for the post-office and court-house at Kansas City, Mo.—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for clerks and expenses for the office of the surveyor-general in Nevada—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Director of the Mint submitting an estimate of appropriation for examination of mints, etc.—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the chief of division of Revenue-Cutter Service submitting an estimate of appropriation for repairs and improvements of certain vessels—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Postmaster-General submitting changes in estimate of appropriation—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of the Navy submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for steam machinery—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Director of the Mint submitting an estimate of appropriation for freight on coin and bullion—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, recommending a deficiency appropriation for vaults, safes, locks, etc., for public buildings—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the superintendent of the Library building and grounds, resubmitting a report as to plans, etc., for a power-house for heating, etc., of public buildings in the vicinity of the Mall and White House—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Librarian of Congress, submitting his annual report—to the Committee on the Library, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Kent Narrows, Maryland—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Everett Harbor, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Clayton Harbor, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Essex River, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of San Rafael Creek, California—to the Committeee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of effect of wave action at harbors at Ludington, Mich., and Manitowoc, Two Rivers, Racine, Kenosha, and Sheboygan, Wis.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Bay Ridge channel, New York Harbor—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Wappinger Creek, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting the fifteenth annual report of the Board of Ordnance and Fortification—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Morristown Harbor, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Ocmulgee River, Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, abstracts of proposals for materials and labor in connection with work under his department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting the report of the annual inspection of the several branches of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers—to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Comptroller of the Currency, transmitting the report of the Currency Bureau for the year ended October 31, 1905—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a statement of all type and experimental manufacture of guns and other articles manufactured by the Government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the president of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, presenting the annual report of the Board for the year ended June 30, 1905—to the Committees on Appropriations and Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office relating to survey of public lands within land grants—to the Committee on the Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, with a letter from the Director of the Geological Survey, a report of the examination and surveys for construction works for reclamation of arid lands—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, with a favorable recommendation, a draft of a bill for final disposition of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a favorable recommendation, a draft of a bill increasing the efficiency of the Ordnance Department of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a draft of a bill to increase the efficiency of the Medical Department of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. VREELAND: A bill (H. R. 5276) relating to appointments to the Naval Academy, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. LITTLEFIELD: A bill (H. R. 5277) to amend an act providing when plaintiff may sue a poor person, and when counsel shall be assigned by the court, as passed July 20, 1892—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5278) authorizing the purchase of a site for a building for the accommodation of the Supreme Court of the United States—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5279) to authorize the judges of the circuit and district courts of the United States to appoint stenographic reporters, fix the duties and compensation thereof, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5280) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building thereon at Auburn, in the State of Maine—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5281) to remove discriminations against American sailing vessels in the coasting trade—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5282) for the erection of a monument to the memory of Maj. Gen. Henry Knox at Thomaston, Me.—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5283) concerning licensed officers of sail vessels—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5284) to amend section 4136, Revised Statutes of the United States—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5285) for the protection of the President of the United States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DRAPER: A bill (H. R. 5286) to provide for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. RHINOCK: A bill (H. R. 5287) creating a railway hospital service within the United States—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BATES: A bill (H. R. 5288) to provide for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. McGUIRE: A bill (H. R. 5289) to provide for the selection of grand and petit jurors for the district courts in the Territory of Oklahoma—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 5290) providing for the allotment and distribution of Indian tribal funds—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5291) to amend the law relating to the salmon fisheries of Alaska—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. TIRRELL: A bill (H. R. 5292) to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquors in buildings and upon premises owned or controlled by the United States Government—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

By Mr. KALANIANAOLE: A bill (H. R. 5293) to provide for the building of a new light-house and range lights at Honolulu Harbor, Territory of Hawaii—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5294) for the establishment of a light-house at Makapuu Point, on the island of Oahu, Territory of Hawaii—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5295) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 5296) authorizing the extension of the post-office and United States court building at Columbus, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 5297) providing for the granting of service pensions in addition to pensions heretofore granted, or to be hereafter granted, to soldiers and sailors of the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 5298) to amend section 64 of the bankruptcy act—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 5299) for the erection of a public building at Hamilton, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: A bill (H. R. 5300) to repeal section 4136 of the Revised Statutes, relating to the admission to registry of repaired foreign wrecks—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 5301) setting aside a portion of the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the Philippine Islands for school purposes—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

By Mr. GAINES of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 5302) to further provide for the redemption of mutilated United States paper currency and to maintain the cleanliness of the circulation—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. GREGG: A bill (H. R. 5303) to provide for the erection of a public building at Palestine, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 5304) to retire enlisted men, either in the Army or Marine Corps, after twenty-five years' service—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 5305) to give each soldier of the civil war a land warrant—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5306) to provide for the payment of medical expenses of sick officers and enlisted men of the Army while absent from duty with leave or on furlough—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5307) providing for the holding of Federal court at York, Nebr.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5308) for the erection of a public building at York, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 5309) to revive the right of action under the captured and abandoned property acts, and for other purposes—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 5310) for the organization and maintenance of an expedition for the investigation of all phenomena connected with the sea, for the advancement of physical science—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 5311) to regulate the issuance of writs from the district and circuit courts of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 5312) to establish a fish-hatching and fish station in the State of Alabama—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. SMITH of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 5313) to reduce letter postage to 1 cent per ounce—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: A bill (H. R. 5314) authorizing an increase of pensions for total deafness—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 5315) imposing a tax on certain transactions in grain, provisions, cotton, stocks, bonds, and other securities, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STANLEY: A bill (H. R. 5316) for the erection of a public building at Owensboro, Ky., and for other purposes—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5317) to admit free of duty certain articles manufactured in the United States of America—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRANGER: A bill (H. R. 5318) to amend the act approved March 15, 1878, entitled "An act for the relief of William A. Hammond, late Surgeon-General of the Army"—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GARNER: A bill (H. R. 5319) to provide for the erection of a public building at Delrio, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5320) to provide for the erection of a public building at Eagle Pass, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. OTJEN: A bill (H. R. 5321) to amend an act approved July 1, 1902, known as "Joint resolution construing the act approved June 27, 1890," and so forth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MUDD: A bill (H. R. 5322) for the widening of the Bladensburg road, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5323) for the opening of R street NE. to Twenty-eighth street and of Twenty-eighth street NE. from R street to M street—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BLACKBURN: A bill (H. R. 5324) to provide for the erection of a public building at Mountairy, N. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5325) to provide for a public building at Salisbury, N. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: A bill (H. R. 5326) making appropriations for the improvement of the Missouri River from its mouth to Sioux City, Iowa—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5327) construing the provisions of sections 2304 to 2309 of the Revised Statutes of the United States in certain cases—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 5328) making appropriation for the removal of the quarantine station at San Diego, Cal., and to acquire a new site, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5329) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at San Diego, Cal.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HARDWICK: A bill (H. R. 5330) to prohibit and punish the purchase and sale of indorsement or support for office by certain persons—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5331) to provide for the erection of a public building in the town of Sparta, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5332) to provide for the erection of a public building in the town of Thomson, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5333) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Sandersville, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS: A bill (H. R. 5334) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish the Department of Commerce and Labor," approved February 14, 1903—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. MEYER: A bill (H. R. 5335) providing for rank and pay for certain retired officers of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: A bill (H. R. 5336) to refund the cotton tax to the States wherein collected—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5337) appropriating $50,000 to enlarge the public building at Jackson, Miss., so as to meet the necessities of the public business—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5338) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States," approved July 24, 1897—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5339) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Yazoo City, in the State of Mississippi—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. WALDO: A bill (H. R. 5340) authorizing the purchase or acquirement of land adjoining the Fort Hamilton Reservation, New York City—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DIXON of Montana: A bill (H. R. 5341) for the survey and allotment of lands now embraced within the limits of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation, in the State of Montana, and the sale and disposal of all surplus lands after allotment—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. PERKINS: A bill (H. R. 5342) to authorize the purchase of a building for the United States legation to France—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5343) to authorize the purchase of a building for the United States legation to Great Britain—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. DAVIDSON: A bill (H. R. 5344) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Stevens Point, in the State of Wisconsin—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5345) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Manitowoc, in the State of Wisconsin—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5346) to establish a fish hatchery and fish station in the State of Wisconsin—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5347) to prevent the desecration of the American flag—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 5348) to empower the Secretary of War to authorize the construction or extension of wharves, piers, or other structures on lands underlying the harbor areas and streams in or surrounding Porto Rico and the islands adjacent thereto; and to extend to the island of Porto Rico the provisions of the acts of Congress relating to agricultural experiment stations, approved, respectively, July 2, 1862, and August 30, 1890, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

By Mr. CURRIER: A bill (H. R. 5349) to amend the laws of the United States relating to the registration of trade-marks—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 5350) to amend the laws regulating appeals and writs of error from the circuit court of appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 5351) to provide for the adjustment of certain sales of lands in the late reservation of the confederated Otoe and Missouria tribes of Indians in the States of Kansas and Nebraska—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BURNETT: A bill (H. R. 5352) to provide a site and erect a public building at Gadsden, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 5353) providing for the purchase of a site and the construction of a Government building in the town of Moscow, Idaho—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5354) providing for the purchase of a site and the construction of a Government building at the town of Pocatello, Idaho—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5355) providing for the purchase of a site and the construction of a Government building at the town of Lewiston, Idaho—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 5356) for the erection of a public building at Winchester, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5357) for the erection of a public building at Mount Sterling, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LITTLE: A bill (H. R. 5358) to define who are and who are not fellow-servants of railroad and mining corporations, and defining the defense of said corporations on account thereof—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. McCALL: A bill (H. R. 5359) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to fix the compensation of inspectors of customs—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 5360) to protect the rights of women citizens of the United States to register and vote for Members of the House of Representatives—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5361) extending the provisions of the act allowing leaves of absence to homestead settlers—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5362) to provide for town sites in connection with projects under the reclamation act, and for the construction of municipal improvements, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

By Mr. RANDELL of Texas: A bill (H. R. 5363) to provide for the erection of a public building in the city of Greenville, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5364) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon for a post-office in Denison, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. DOVENER: A bill (H. R. 5365) for the establishment of a national park and forest reserve in the Appalachian Mountains, and to provide for the conservation of the water that flows down the Potomac watershed, and to provide laws for its sanitary policing, and so forth; to include all parts of the States of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia that contribute to form the complete watershed of the Potomac River from its head to and including the District of Columbia; and for the primary purposes of providing a sufficient and pure water supply for the District of Columbia; to prevent overflows and denudation of soil; for the establishment of reservoirs, canals, lakes, ponds, and ditches, and for all other useful purposes to which water can be put when provided in abundance—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5366) to pension bridge builders and railroad repairers who were in actual service of the United States during the late war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEARRE: A bill (H. R. 5367) to increase the limit of cost of public building at Hagerstown, Md.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SIBLEY: A bill (H. R. 5368) to provide for the erection of a public building at Sharon, Mercer County, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SMALL: A bill (H. R. 5369) providing for the erection of a public building at Washington, N. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LITTLEFIELD: A bill (H. R. 5370) to amend section 39 of the act entitled "An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States"—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 5371) to establish a subtreasury at Savannah, Ga.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 5372) to confer jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to hear and determine the claims of churches, lodges, and so forth—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LITTLEFIELD: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 39) for the erection of a monument to the memory of Dorothea Lynde Dix—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. HARDWICK: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 40) declaring the policy of the Government of the United States in reference to the Philippine Islands—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

Also, a joint resolution (H. J. Res. 41) proposing an amendment to the Constitution by providing that all of section 2 of the fourteenth amendment, except its first sentence, shall be repealed—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

Also, a joint resolution (H. J. Res. 42) proposing to amend the Constitution by repealing the fifteenth amendment—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. CURTIS: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 43) authorizing the Secretary of War to furnish condemned cannon for a life-size statue of General Henry Leavenworth, at Leavenworth, Kans.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PAYNE: A resolution (H. Res. 42) referring to the several House committees certain parts of the annual message of the President of the United States—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A resolution (H. Res. 43) providing for the printing of 1,000 copies of House Document No. 775, Fifty-eighth Congress—the Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A resolution (H. Res. 44) to pay Thomas W. Conway, brother of James R. Conway, deceased, late employee of the House folding room, a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: A resolution (H. Res. 45) to define the meaning of the word "days" when leave to print is given—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. FRENCH: Memorial of the legislature of the State of Idaho, concerning adulteration of articles, and urging speedy legislation to prohibit the same—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the State of Idaho, asking Congress to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. DOVENER: A bill (H. R. 5373) granting an increase of pension to John L. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5374) granting an increase of pension to Albert Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5375) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Detamore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5376) granting an increase of pension to Jacob E. Israel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5377) for the relief of Siegfried Fritz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5378) granting an increase of pension to John W. Hendrickson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5379) granting an increase of pension to James Fulkineer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5380) granting a pension to Lydia Ann Daugherty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5381) granting an increase of pension to J. E. Merrifield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5382) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Shepherd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5383) for the relief of John W. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5384) granting an increase of pension to John M. Coffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5385) granting an increase of pension to Alexander McConneha—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5386) granting back-pension pay to Robert Nicholls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5387) granting a pension to Mary J. Fortney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5388) for the relief of Silas Garrison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5389) for the relief of J. H. Willis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5390) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Clarksburg, W. Va.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5391) for the relief of Oakley Randall—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5392) to refer claim of Anne Croghan and Ellen G. McCauley to the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5393) for the relief of Charles L. Barnes—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5394) for the relief of E. H. Hoult—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5395) for the relief of the heirs of Lucinda Muse Thomas—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5396) for the relief of James C. Means—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5397) for the relief of Thornton F. Cartwright—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DRISCOLL: A bill (H. R. 5398) to increase the pension to Sarah E. Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5399) to place on the pension roll the name of John H. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5400) granting an increase of pension to Orson N. Earl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5401) granting an increase of pension to Harvey Linsley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5402) granting a pension to Carrie L. Poole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5403) granting an increase of pension to John Lines—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5404) for the relief of John Kurtz—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5405) for the relief of Albert Edward Adam Engle—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5406) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William H. Moore, alias William Moorey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5407) to remove the charge of desertion against Sanford M. Murray—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5408) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Frank Van Valkenberg, alias Charles Duane—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5409) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of James Nicholas—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5410) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of John Carroll—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5411) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of James S. Fausey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5412) for the relief of Adelaide E. Grant and Alice Adelaide Grant—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: A bill (H. R. 5413) granting a pension to Oscar L. Thrash—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5414) granting a pension to Charles W. Atkinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5415) granting a pension to Travis Glasscoe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5416) granting a pension to William Henry McMurtry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5417) granting an increase of pension to John J. Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5418) granting a pension to Mary E. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5419) granting a pension to Ida V. Rhoad—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5420) granting an increase of pension to Charles Alfred De Arnaud—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5421) for the relief of Benjamin Williams—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5422) granting a pension to William Barrett—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5423) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Overby Williams—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5424) granting an increase of pension to John J. Martin—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5425) granting an increase of pension to Nellie B. Newton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5426) for the relief of Martha J. England—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5427) to amend the records of the War Department—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5428) for the relief of Ahijah Macy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5429) to restore Charles H. Campbell to the Army and transfer him to the retired list—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5430) to amend the records of the War Department—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5431) to amend records of the War Department—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5432) for the relief of George W. Symmes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5433) for extra compensation to Capt. John Stewart—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MEYER: A bill (H. R. 5434) granting an increase of pension to Hugh Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5435) for the relief of the Third Presbyterian Church, of New Orleans, La.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5436) for the relief of the board of commissioners of Judah Touro Almshouse, Orleans Parish, La.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5437) for the relief of the heirs of Myra Clark Gaines, deceased—to the Committee on Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5438) for the relief of the State National Bank of New Orleans, formerly Louisiana State Bank—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5439) for the relief of owners of rents in Louisiana—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5440) for the relief of the estates of Francis A. Gonzales and Antonio Gonzales—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5441) for the relief of Mrs. Susan A. Nicholas—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5442) for the relief of Fredrick Fuhr—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5443) for the relief of A. Cusimano & Co.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5444) for the relief of the legal representatives of B. M. Horrell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5445) for the relief of Hugh W. Brown—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5446) for the relief of John W. Tobin's heirs—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5447) for the relief of the Union National Bank, of New Orleans, as the successor of the Union Bank of Louisiana—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5448) for the relief of John Rhodes and wife—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5449) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to refund certain moneys collected by the United States—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5450) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to refund certain moneys collected by the United States—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5451) to authorize Charles E. Fenner, executor of George E. Payne, deceased, to prosecute his claim before the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STANLEY: A bill (H. R. 5452) granting an honorable discharge to Nathaniel Cobb—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SNAPP: A bill (H. R. 5453) for the relief of Jacob A. Henry—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STANLEY: A bill (H. R. 5454) for the relief of H. Grant Artis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5455) for the relief of George W. Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5456) for the relief of Walter Langley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5457) for the relief of Frank W. Clark—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5458) for the relief of A. T. Hayden—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5459) for the relief of Thomas Drake—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5460) for the relief of Nancy Gates—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5461) for the relief of the estate of William Kelley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5462) for the relief of F. L. Hall—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5463) granting a pension to Sarah A. Harl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5464) granting a pension to Solomon Powell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5465) granting a pension to Caroline Carter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5466) granting a pension to William Varner Dykes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5467) granting a pension to Ann J. Long—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5468) granting a pension to Francis C. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5469) granting a pension to Susan V. Childress—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5470) granting an increase of pension to Lucy A. Dennis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5471) granting an increase of pension to John W. Balee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5472) granting an increase of pension to Wesley S. Witty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5473) granting an increase of pension to Curtis A. Brashear—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5474) granting an increase of pension to Edmon H. Short—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5475) granting a pension to Isaac J. Tucker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT: A bill (H. R. 5476) for the relief of S. C. Stewart, administrator of the estate of Dr. J. M. Curry, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5477) granting a pension to Edward Ousley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 5478) granting a pension to Elizabeth Mullins—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5479) granting a pension to Mary Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5480) granting a pension to Julia A. Patton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5481) granting a pension to Mary A. M. Pettyjohn—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5482) granting a pension to Dorcas Elliott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5483) granting a pension to Eliza J. Woody—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5484) granting a pension to Elizabeth Gibbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5485) granting a pension to Horace D. Mann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5486) granting a pension to Maggie Carroll—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5487) granting a pension to Arelia C. Pool—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5488) granting an increase of pension to Margaret E. Foster—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5489) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Baird—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5490) granting an increase of pension to Jobery Mullinax—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5491) to pension the widows of Mexican soldiers—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5492) to pension the widows of Mexican soldiers—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5493) granting accrued pension to Arelia C. Pool—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5494) to pay accrued pension to Maggie Carroll—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5495) for the relief of Mary A. Elliott—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5496) for the relief of Hiram A. Darnell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5497) for the relief of Cora A. Booth—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5498) for the relief of George W. Burrell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5499) for the relief of Jasper N. Martin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5500) granting a pension to Hiram A. Darnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5501) for the relief of William T. Edwards—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5502) for the relief of Thomas J. Benton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5503) for the relief of Andrew J. Sanders—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5504) for the relief of Jesse Elliott—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5505) for the relief of Abram Patton—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5506) for the relief of Milton Holt—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5507) for the relief of John D. Lowry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5508) for the relief of Samuel Garner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5509) for the relief of Russell Savage—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5510) for the relief of James B. Fowler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BIRDSALL: A bill (H. R. 5511) granting an increase of pension to Christopher Bohn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5512) granting an increase of pension to John Allman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5513) granting an increase of pension to Charles Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5514) granting an increase of pension to Anna A. Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5515) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Bloxham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5516) granting an increase of pension to Levi B. Knapp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5517) granting an increase of pension to George W. Pierce—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5518) granting an increase of pension to Alvin Eck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5519) to correct the military record of Walter Brown—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5520) to correct the muster roll of Company G, Sixteenth Iowa Infantry Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5521) granting an honorable discharge to Smith N. Vosseller—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5522) to correct the muster of Alvin F. Clark—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5523) granting an increase of pension to Bunnel Hickham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 5524) granting a pension to Florance Whitaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5525) granting a pension to William E. Watson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5526) granting a pension to certain officers and men of the Fourth Regiment of Arkansas Mounted Infantry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5527) granting a pension to John G. McClain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5528) granting a pension to James M. Herndon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5529) for the relief of the heirs of Mrs. D. J. Booth, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5530) for the relief of heirs of Manning Harris—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5531) for the relief of Shadrack H. Wren—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5532) for the relief of heirs of A. J. Howard and J. H. Spivey—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5533) for the relief of the heirs of Benjamin F. Ball—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5534) for the relief of certain occupants and owners of land in Monroe County, Ark.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5535) for the relief of William A. Haley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5536) for the relief of A. J. L. Stevens—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5537) for the relief of James C. Blair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5538) for the relief of the estate of William McCreight, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CAPRON: A bill (H. R. 5539) for the relief of the State of Rhode Island—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 5540) granting an increase of pension to Marie J. Spicely—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5541) granting a pension to John T. Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5542) granting a pension to William A. Cowen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5543) granting a pension to Felix Hendrickson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 5544) granting an increase of pension to Wendle Poor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5545) granting an increase of pension to Marshal M. Angleton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5546) granting an increase of pension to James Eastwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5547) granting an increase of pension to James Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5548) granting an increase of pension to John Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5549) granting an increase of pension to S. E. Lookingbill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5550) granting a pension to Nerva J. Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5551) granting a pension to Amos E. Albritton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5552) granting a pension to R. J. Jamison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COUSINS: A bill (H. R. 5553) granting an increase of pension to Oliver L. Kendall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CRUMPACKER: A bill (H. R. 5554) granting an increase of pension to James T. Saunderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5555) granting an increase of pension to Andrew P. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CURRIER: A bill (H. R. 5556) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel M. Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5557) granting an increase of pension to William Williamson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5558) granting an increase of pension to Nelson Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5559) granting an increase of pension to George A. Currier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 5560) granting an increase of pension to Henry Chubb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5561) granting an increase of pension to Samuel M. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5562) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5563) granting an increase of pension to Amos B. Ferguson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5564) granting an increase of pension to Albert G. Cluck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5565) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus W. Cook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5566) granting an increase of pension to William G. Brooks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5567) granting an increase of pension to Sanford Weaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5568) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. P. Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5569) granting an increase of pension to Samuel N. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5570) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Hull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5571) granting an increase of pension to William Cary—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5572) granting a pension to June Plankington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5573) granting a pension to Ashley R. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5574) granting a pension to Betty Elmore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5575) granting a pension to Jane Cowan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5576) granting a pension to Luke Morrissey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5577) granting a pension to Mrs. John S. Branner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5578) granting a pension to Sina Underwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5579) for the relief of Christ Schrey—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5580) granting a pension to Perry Abbett—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5581) to remove the limitation in the payment of arrears of pensions—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5582) for the relief of Capt. M. R. W. Grebe—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5583) for the relief of Miss Lou Jahn—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5584) for the relief of John Brewer—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5585) for the relief of Eric E. Walgren—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5586) for the relief of James Farrell—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5587) for the relief of J. Ware Butterfield—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DE ARMOND (by request): A bill (H. R. 5588) granting a pension to Caroline Hultz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DIXON of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 5589) granting a pension to Rachel A. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5590) granting a pension to Elizabeth Clay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5591) granting an increase of pension to Mahlon M. Lucky—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5592) granting an increase of pension to Newton W. Vawter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5593) granting an increase of pension to Hensley H. Kirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5594) granting an increase of pension to George R. Brumblay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5595) granting an increase of pension to Elisha Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5596) granting an increase of pension to Anna Nodler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5597) granting an increase of pension to Oscar Williamson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5598) granting a medal to Mortimer S. Longwood—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DOVENER: A bill (H. R. 5599) for the relief of the estate of James H. Hardesty, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5600) for the relief of John Nay—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5601) for the relief of Thornton A. Merrifield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5602) granting a pension to Anna Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5603) granting a pension to Abner G. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5604) granting a pension to John Sutton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5605) granting an increase of pension to James S. Pelley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5606) granting an increase of pension to Frances P. McMurtrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5607) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. Biggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5608) granting an increase of pension to John E. Fries—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5609) granting an increase of pension to Albert Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5610) granting an increase of pension to Mary Petermann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5611) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Levi Burdine—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5612) referring to the Court of Claims the claim of the legal heirs of John Harper, deceased, to certain lands in the State of Virginia—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5613) authorizing additional compensation to the assistant commissioners to the industrial exhibition at Melbourne, Australia—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. DRAPER: A bill (H. R. 5614) granting an increase of pension to Henry Coue—to the Comminttee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: A bill (H. R. 5615) granting an increase of pension to John Coleman, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5616) granting an increase of pension to Edgar Schroeders—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5617) granting a pension to Ellen Nelson—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FLACK: A bill (H. R. 5618) granting a pension to Eunice Putman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 5619) granting an increase of pension to George W. Smith, alias Waldron De Clarenze—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5620) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Niefenegger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 5621) for the relief of George T. Pettengill, lieutenant, United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5622) for the relief of M. D. Wright and Robert Neill—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5623) for the relief of E. De Atley & Co.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5624) granting a pension to Susan E. Potter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5625) granting an increase of pension to Hannah C. Reese—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5626) granting a pension to James W. Ralls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5627) granting an increase of pension to John C. L. Hargis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5628) granting a pension to Harrison S. Crites—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5629) granting a pension to William D. Pemberton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5630) granting an increase of pension to Edward L. Burke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5631) granting an increase of pension to Leonard F. Simmons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5632) granting an increase of pension to James C. Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5633) granting an increase of pension to Edward G. Burnet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5634) granting an increase of pension to John Redding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5635) granting a pension to Samuel J. Langdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5636) granting a pension to Julius S. Cuendet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5637) granting a pension to Russell A. McKinley—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5638) granting an increase of pension to Alpheus Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5639) granting an increase of pension to Thomas C. Craig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5640) granting an increase of pension to Abraham Mathews—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5641) granting an increase of pension to James D. Austin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5642) granting an increase of pension to John W. Bancroft—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 5643) granting an increase of pension to Wells Briggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5644) granting an increase of pension to George J. Wilcox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARNER: A bill (H. R. 5645) granting an increase of pension to Ambrose Burton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5646) for the relief of Alexander Moore—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A bill (H. R. 5647) granting an increase of pension to Peter Wetterich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5648) granting an increase of pension to William Hand—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5649) granting a pension to Martha Kates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5650) granting a pension to Charles W. Noyes, alias Charles Williams—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5651) for the relief of William H. Beall—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. GOULDEN: A bill (H. R. 5652) for the relief of the personal representatives of John McCabe and Patrick McCabe, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GRAFF: A bill (H. R. 5653) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Wells—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5654) granting a pension to Moses Eggleston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5655) granting an increase of pension to Leonard F. Sommers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRANGER: A bill (H. R. 5656) granting an increase of pension to Darius H. Randall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GREGG: A bill (H. R. 5657) granting a pension to Emmet W. Crozier—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: A bill (H. R. 5658) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Nichols—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5659) for the relief of Van Goolsberry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5660) for the relief of John Q. Armitage—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5661) granting a pension to U. L. Daniels—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5662) granting an honorable discharge to Alva A. Miller—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 5663) for the relief of the heirs of Benjamin Prater—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HAMILTON: A bill (H. R. 5664) granting an increase of pension to Julia Weeks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HARDWICK: A bill (H. R. 5665) for the relief of W. O. Donovan and the heirs of Lizzie M. Donovan, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5666) for the relief of L. L. Arrington and L. S. Arrington—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5667) for the relief of Warren B. Hutchinson—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HAY: A bill (H. R. 5668) for the relief of C. A. Sprinkel—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5669) for the relief of the estate of Branon Thatcher, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5670) for the relief of the estate of Thomas Clevenger, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5671) for the relief of the estate of Robert Barr, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5672) for the relief of the estates of James and Eliza M. Lewis, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5673) for the relief of William Mason—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5674) for the relief of Wesley Rankins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5675) for the relief of James W. Nickens—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5676) for the relief of the trustees of Grace Episcopal Church, Berryville, Va.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 5677) for the relief of estate of James G. Batterson, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5678) for the relief of the estate of Harriet A. Enders—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5679) for the relief of estate of Lucy J. Ford—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HEPBURN: A bill (H. R. 5680) granting an increase of pension to Robert Gray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5681) for the relief of John Lewis Young—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HIGGINS: A bill (H. R. 5682) for the relief of the estate of William H. Mason, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5683) for the relief of the estate of Daniel B. Hempsted, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5684) for the relief of the estate of Moses Pierce, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5685) authorizing the President to appoint Lieut. Commander Frederick Augustus Miller, retired, United States Navy, a commander on the retired list—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 5686) granting an increase of pension to Adelle Tobey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5687) to correct the military record of Thomas Whittaker—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5688) to correct the military record of W. H. Phillips—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5689) to correct the military record of James Pace—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5690) granting an increase of pension to John F. Early—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5691) amending the records of the War Department in the case of John D. McGeehan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 5692) granting an increase of pension to H. G. Gardner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5693) to correct the record of William Lindon, and granting him a pension—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5694) granting an increase of pension to Abraham J. M. Flinchum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5695) granting an increase of pension to William Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5696) granting an increase of pension to Peter Riffe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5697) granting an increase of pension to John J. McCoy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5698) for the benefit of Elizabeth Bevins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5699) for the relief of Green Clay Gardner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5700) extending provisions of act of June 27, 1890, to Kentucky State Militia and Provisional Kentucky Militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5701) for the relief of the estate of Thomas O. Marrs—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5702) for the relief of the estates of J. M. Fidler and T. O. Marrs—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5703) for the relief of B. L. Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5704) granting a pension to John Hayslette—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5705) granting a pension to Benjamin F. Horn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 5706) for the relief of William C. Buttler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5707) granting an increase of pension to John P. Veach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5708) granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Fallon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5709) granting an increase of pension to Mary Patterson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL: A bill (H. R. 5710) granting an increase of pension to David Sharp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUMPHREY of Washington: A bill (H. R. 5711) granting a pension to Richard H. Kelley—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HUNT: A bill (H. R. 5712) granting an increase of pension to Caroline Dehlendorf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5713) granting an increase of pension to Michiel Ryan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5714) granting a pension to James Murray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5715) granting a pension to Moses Tinsley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5716) granting a pension to Jacob Goetz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GREGG: A bill (H. R. 5717) for the relief of the heirs of C. K. Bowen, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. JONES of Virginia: A bill (H. R. 5718) for the relief of Ezer W. Edwards—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 5719) for the relief of Piper, Aden, Goodall Company, of San Francisco, Cal.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5720) to correct the military record of John Hauser, whose true name is Herman Hauser—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KETCHAM: A bill (H. R. 5721) for the relief of the estate of William E. Ward, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5722) for the relief of the estate of Cornelius H. Evans, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WILLIAM W. KITCHIN: A bill (H. R. 5723) for the relief of William C. Staples—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5724) granting an increase of pension to William O. Gillespie—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5725) granting an increase of pension to John G. Davis—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5726) granting an increase of pension to Cate E. Cobb—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5727) granting an increase of pension to William T. Harris—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. KLINE: A bill (H. R. 5728) granting an increase of pension to William Harvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5729) granting an increase of pension to Norman H. Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5730) granting an increase of pension to Tilghman Scholl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5731) granting an increase of pension to Tilghman J. Lester—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5732) granting an increase of pension to Elias C. Kitchin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNOWLAND: A bill (H. R. 5733) to correct the military record of Charles M. Mayberry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LAMB: A bill (H. R. 5734) for the relief of Algernon L. Wilkinson, Kate E. Wilkinson, and Laura M. Powell, sole heirs of Laura E. Wilkinson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 5735) granting a pension to Eliza A. Camp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 5736) for the relief of the Importing and Exporting Company of the State of Georgia—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5737) for the relief of the estate of Anton Borchert—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5738) for the relief of the estate of John W. Anderson, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5739) for the relief of Alexander J. Thompson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5740) for the relief of the estate of Francis H. McLeod, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5741) for the relief of Mrs. S. A. Penniman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5742) granting an increase of pension to Caroline M. Bird—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5743) for the relief of the heirs of James W. Bellah, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5744) for the relief of the estate of Mary A. Bell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5745) for the relief of Jacob Cohen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5746) for the relief of the heirs of Richard B. Sconyers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5747) for the relief of the estate of Sarah S. Maner—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5748) for the relief of Virgil H. Burns—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5749) for the relief of the heirs at law of William C. Dickson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5750) for the relief of the heirs at law of Mary A. and John Cameron, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5751) for the relief of the heirs of Caroline E. Long—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5752) for the relief of the heirs at law of Charles Evans, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5753) granting an increase of pension to Sally H. Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5754) granting a pension to James H. Smith—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5755) granting a pension to Thomas Burney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDSAY: A bill (H. R. 5756) granting an increase of pension to Gabriel Muneret—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTAUER: A bill (H. R. 5757) for the relief of the estate of John McNab, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5758) granting an increase of pension to Rufus D. Hastings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5759) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTLE: A bill (H. R. 5760) for the relief of Eliza J. Haines, widow of Capt. R. L. Haines, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LITTLEFIELD: A bill (H. R. 5761) for the relief of Albert J. Stearns—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5762) for the relief of Albert J. Stearns—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5763) for the relief of Elizabeth R. Gordon—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5764) for the relief of the legal representatives of Alvin M. Ryerson—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5765) for the relief of John H. Rollins—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5766) for the relief of James H. De Coster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5767) granting a pension to James L. Dyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5768) granting a pension to Rosetta J. Gould—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5769) granting a pension to Lois L. Nutt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5770) granting a pension to Martin E. Simms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5771) granting a pension to Hannah Small Wiggin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5772) granting a pension to Jerome T. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5773) granting a pension to Mary J. Wheaton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5774) granting a pension to Cornelia M. Mitchell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5775) granting a pension to Joshua Daggett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5776) granting a pension to Priscilla A. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5777) granting a pension to Catherine M. Savory—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5778) granting a pension to Charity Durgin—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5779) granting a pension to Hannah W. Green—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5780) granting an increase of pension to John Gurney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5781) granting an increase of pension to John A. Greenlaw—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5782) granting an increase of pension to A. B. Washburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5783) granting an increase of pension to Edwin D. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5784) granting an increase of pension to Thomas P. Rich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5785) granting an increase of pension to George H. Gould—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5786) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Speed—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5787) granting an increase of pension to Amos McAllister—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5788) granting an increase of pension to Mercy Jennie Powers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5789) granting an increase of pension to David A. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5790) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5791) granting an increase of pension to Henry M. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5792) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Bonney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5793) granting an increase of pension to Oliver J. Conant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5794) granting an increase of pension to Samuel H. Legrow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5795) granting an increase of pension to John Atherton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5796) granting an increase of pension to W. H. H. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5797) granting an increase of pension to George F. Knowlton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5798) granting an increase of pension to Nellie P. Coyle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5799) granting an increase of pension to Almena S. Willoughby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5800) granting an increase of pension to Joseph G. Maddocks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5801) granting an increase of pension to Algernon E. Castner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5802) granting an increase of pension to Elvira P. Gill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5803) granting an increase of pension to Edwin L. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5804) granting an increase of pension to Joseph A. Noyes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5805) granting an increase of pension to H. M. Blackwell, alias Levi W. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5806) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Harding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5807) granting an increase of pension to T. A. Hodgdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5808) granting an increase of pension to Napoleon D. O. Lord—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5809) granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Leach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5810) granting an increase of pension to Jacob F. French—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5811) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Robert D. Salsbury, alias Charles Willard—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5812) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Peter O. Wellington—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5813) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Joseph Wiley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5814) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Charles F. Allen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5815) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Augustin H. Finn—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5816) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Jacob Worrin Morgan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5817) to correct the military record of Rufus W. Herrick—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5818) to correct the military record of David Hurlburt—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5819) to correct the naval record of William Perkins—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5820) to remove the charge of desertion from the naval record of Frank C. Whitney—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: A bill (H. R. 5821) for the relief of N. C. Fears, administrator of the estate of W. S. Fears, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5822) granting a pension to Minor L. Braden—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 5823) for the relief of Henry Millingar and Charlotte Wilson, only heirs at law of James Millingar, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 5824) granting an increase of pension to Richard P. Nichauls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5825) granting an increase of pension to Julia A. Lake—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 5826) for the relief of the estate of Edward R. Phillips, deceased—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5827) for the relief of the legal representatives of Robert I. Walton, jr., and Etta Walton, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5828) for the relief of the owners of the American schooner Wilson and Hunting and cargo—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MILLER: A bill (H. R. 5829) granting an increase of pension to George Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MINOR: A bill (H. R. 5830) granting an increase of pension to Sylvenus Hardy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5831) granting an increase of pension to Julius Zuehlke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5832) granting a pension to Mary M. Connell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 5833) granting an increase of pension to Francis Heasty, alias Francis Heastings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5834) granting an increase of pension to Ethan Allen Willey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5835) for the relief of Abraham Slover—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5836) for the relief of the estate of W. G. Hoge, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5837) for the relief of Rachael C. Stiefvater, of Chattanooga, Tenn., to reimburse for the use and destruction of property by United States Army in 1864—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5838) for the relief of the widow of the late Capt. Daniel C. Trewhitt—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5839) to correct the military record of and grant a pension to Gideon M. Burriss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOUSER: A bill (H. R. 5840) granting a pension to Catherine Spier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5841) granting a pension to Malinda M. Hopkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5842) to correct the military record of Charles F. Deisch—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 5843) granting a pension to Elizabeth Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5844) granting a pension to Maggie F. Kennedy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5845) granting a pension to Robert T. Knox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5846) granting an increase of pension to John M. Chandler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5847) granting an increase of pension to Joseph S. P. Barker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5848) granting an increase of pension to Erastus Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5849) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Baird—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5850) granting an increase of pension to Lucas Hager—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5851) granting an increase of pension to Cornelius O'Shea—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5852) granting an increase of pension to George Kauffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5853) granting an increase of pension to Quincy Corwin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 5854) granting an increase of pension to Jonas Gurnee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5855) granting an increase of pension to Francis L. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5856) granting an increase of pension to Martin Offinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PRINCE: A bill (H. R. 5857) for the relief of Louisa McCall, executrix, and so forth, of Canton, Ill.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. RHINOCK: A bill (H. R. 5858) for the relief of John J. Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5859) granting an increase of pension to Henry Shonert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 5860) granting an increase of pension to John W. Riggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5861) granting an increase of pension to William P. Shelton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5862) granting an increase of pension to John G. McAllister—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5863) for the relief of Sallie C. Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5864) for the relief of the Bolivar Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5865) for the relief of the trustees of Harmony Methodist Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5866) for the relief of Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of Larkinsville, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5867) for the relief of the Masonic lodge of Tuscumbia, Colbert County, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5868) for the relief of the trustees of Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church South—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5869) for the relief of the trustees of the Missionary Baptist Church, at Gravelly Springs, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5870) for the relief of Decatur Lodge, No. 52, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Decatur, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5871) for the relief of Dan Walden—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5872) for the relief of the commissioners' court of Limestone County, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5873) for the relief of the trustees of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of New Garden Camp Ground—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5874) for the relief of the heirs of Rebecca Haley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5875) for the relief of the heirs of George Orville Ragland, deceased, late of Madison County, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5876) for the relief of Mattie P. Barnard, Katharine Caldwell, and Harry M. Rhett, heirs of Harriett M. Barnard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5877) for the relief of the trustees of Decatur (Ala.) Methodist Church South—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5878) for the relief of trustees of Presbyterian Church of Decatur, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5879) for the relief of the heirs of John H. Belew, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5880) for the relief of the heirs of George W. Foster—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5881) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Bellefonte, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5882) for the relief of the trustees of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, at Bellefonte, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5883) for the relief of the estate of Marius B. Cawthon, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5884) for the relief of Joseph Lightfoot—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5885) for the relief of William B. Olive—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5886) for the relief of John C. Thomas—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5887) for the relief of W. C. Tipton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5888) for the relief of Mrs. W. E. Trousdale—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5889) for the relief of Margret L. Watkins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5890) for the relief of Nancy M. Weaver—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5891) for the relief of John Jones—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5892) for the relief of the estate of John Wesson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5893) for the relief of William M. Underwood—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5894) for the relief of A. H. Laugham—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5895) for the relief of the estate of Peter H. Gold, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5896) for the relief of the estate of Mrs. Annie E. Montrose, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5897) for the relief of the estate of Benjamin B. Coffee, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5898) for the relief of Phillip D. Wright—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5899) for the relief of Griffin Callahan—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5900) for the relief of B. G. Chandler—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5901) for the relief of M. G. Jetton, J. P. Jetton, D. M. Jetton, B. H. Jetton, and M. G. Williams, heirs at law of Mitchell Jetton, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5902) for the relief of James A. Allen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5903) for the relief of Ira G. Wood—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5904) for the relief of William C. Bragg—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5905) for the relief of Jackson Stone—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5906) for the relief of J. W. Smart—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5907) for the relief of the estate of Jesse Vann, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: A bill (H. R. 5908) granting an increase of pension to William Hogg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5909) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bynon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5910) granting an increase of pension to Catharine R. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5911) granting a pension to Edward D. Lockwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5912) granting a pension to James Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5913) granting a pension to Helen Goll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5914) for the relief of Samuel P. Dresser—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SHARTEL: A bill (H. R. 5915) granting an increase of pension to Charles R. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5916) granting an increase of pension to Henry E. Routzong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5917) granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Bollinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5918) granting an increase of pension to James F. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5919) granting an increase of pension to Soloman B. F. Fugate—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5920) granting an increase of pension to Samuel S. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5921) granting an increase of pension to Soloman Fry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5922) for the relief of Paschal Henshaw—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5923) for the relief of M. J. Conley, heir of Harmon Conley, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5924) to remove the charge of desertion from Samuel J. Lair—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 5925) granting an increase of pension to D. L. Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 5926) granting a pension to Sarah Pitman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SIMS: A bill (H. R. 5927) for the relief of the board of trustees of West Tennessee College, Jackson, Tenn.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SMALL: A bill (H. R. 5928) for the relief of T. H. B. Myers, surviving partner of John Myers & Son—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5929) for the relief of the estate of W. F. Sanderson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5930) for the relief of John L. Brown and the estates of A. T. Redditt and William G. Judkins—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 5931) granting an increase pension to Robert L. Narrow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5932) granting an increase of pension to Andrew B. Webster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5933) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. W. C. Pittinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5934) granting an increase of pension to John Ehde—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5935) granting a pension to James A. Roark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Maryland: A bill (H. R. 5936) granting an increase of pension to Caroline Neilson—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SNAPP: A bill (H. R. 5937) granting an increase of pension to John Fellows—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5938) granting an increase of pension to Edward J. McClaskey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5939) granting an increase of pension to James Brody—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SOUTHALL: A bill (H. R. 5940) for the relief of G. W. Browder—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5941) for the relief of the estate of John B. Ege, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5942) for the relief of the estate of Richard M. Harrison, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5943) for the relief of W. H. Harrison—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5944) for the relief of the estate of John J. Mitchell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5945) for the relief of the heirs of William Walton, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5946) for the relief of Sallie R. Walton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5947) for the relief of the estate of Richard Wiseman, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5948) for the relief of the estate of David B. Tennant, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5949) for the relief of R. A. Young—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5950) for the relief of Pickrell & Brooks—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5951) for the relief of Lettie Myers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5952) for the relief of J. A. Shackleton—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 5953) granting an increase of pension to Albert J. Sprinkle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5954) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to issue duplicate gold certificate, in lieu of one lost, to Lincoln National Bank, of Lincoln, Ill.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 5955) granting an increase of pension to Jennie L. Overton—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. TAWNEY: A bill (H. R. 5956) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Wagoner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 5957) granting a pension to Henry J. Steck—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WANGER: A bill (H. R. 5958) granting an increase of pension to Allen L. Garwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 5959) for the relief of the estate of Annie E. Gardiner, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5960) for the relief of the estate of the First National Bank, of Newton, Mass.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WOODYARD: A bill (H. R. 5961) granting a pension to Rosa Lee Powell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5962) granting an increase of pension to George W. Bachus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5963) granting an increase of pension to Andrew H. Boon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Memorial of the Postal Progress League of California, praying for legislation for the establishment of a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. ACHESON: Petition of George Whiting and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Reading Circle, No. 89, of Newcastle, Pa., for preservation of Niagara Falls—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of A. M. Reed, pastor of United Presbyterian Church of Conway, Pa., for law to suppress polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BATES: Paper to accompany bill to provide for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of A. J. Caufman—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. BINGHAM: Petition of the Philadelphia Board of Trade, Philadelphia Commercial Exchange, Philadelphia Drug Exchange, Grocers and Importers' Exchange, Trades League, Philadelphia Bourse, Vessel Owners and Captains' Association, Board of Port Wardens, Manufacturers' Club, Board of Harbor Commissioners, Lumbermen's Exchange, and Mast Builders' Exchange, for legislation, under authority of the Secretary of War, to survey the Delaware River for purpose of determining feasibility and cost of securing a channel of adequate width and 30 feet deep at mean low water from Philadelphia to the sea—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: Petition of Vesuvius Council, No. 116, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Twenty-third Lake Mohonk Conference of Friends of the Indians, for adequate laws for amelioration of condition of the Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of Flint, Erving & Stoner, of Pittsburg, for two classes of mail matter only—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Flint, Erving & Stoner, of Pittsburg, Pa., favoring railway control by Interstate Commerce Commission—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: Petition of citizens of Maine, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of citizens of Maine, favoring law for a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of citizens of Maine, against any change in Grout law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of William T. Sherman Council, No. 55, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. CHANEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Felix Hendrickson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of Vesuvius Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. DRAPER: Petition of the State assembly of California, favoring establishment of a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FLACK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Eunice Putnam—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George J. Wilcox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GOEBEL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Lewis Kates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the board of directors of the Business Men's Club of Cincinnati, Ohio, against repeal of the bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the board of directors of the Business Men's Club of Cincinnati, Ohio, favoring Interstate Commerce Commission control of railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Peter Witterich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAFF: Petition for relief of Cooper Walker—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Paper to accompany bill for relief of H. J. Fulmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Twenty-third Lake Mohawk Conference of Friends of the Indian, for adequate laws governing the Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of Allegheny River Boatman's Association, favoring appropriation for improvement of Allegheny River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. HAY: Petition of the heir of Harriet Haines, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of the heirs of John R. Almond, asking reference of war claims to the Court of Claims under the Bowman Act—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of the trustees of Grace Episcopal Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Adelle Tobey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of P. D. and P. of A., No. 547, of Freeport, Ill., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Local Union No. 547, ratifying petition to Congress by the Connecticut Valley Conference, at Springfield, Mass., November 12, 1905, for law to make unnecessary the use of wood alcohol—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Petition of residents of Montclair, N. J., for removal of tariff duty on works of art—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CLINE: Petitions of Charles A. Gerasch Council, No. 1004; Phil H. Sheridan Council, No. 287; Cedar Council, No. 416, and Fogelsville Council, No. 403, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, No. 592, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. LACEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of M. D. Burket—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEE: Resolutions adopted by a mass meeting of the people of Rome, Ga., condemning the persecution of the Jews by Russia—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. LITTAUER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Rufus D. Hastings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Benjamin F. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: Petitions of Eureka (Ga.) Council, No. 7, and Griffin (Ga.) Council, No. 4, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: Petition of Henry Mullingar and Charlotte Wilson to have their claim referred to the Court of Claims for a finding under the act of Congress of March 3, 1883—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MAYNARD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Mary A. Barrod—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Gideon M. Burris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Francis Heasty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Paper to accompany bill for relief of August Westfield, Joseph B. Nichols, Herbert C. Miller, Asa Tout, Amanda C. Welch, Samuel P. Caree, and Charles W. Knight—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PAYNE: Petition of Harry White and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. RHINOCK: Petition of Daniel Boone Division, No. 489, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, favoring control of railway rates by Interstate Commerce Commission and for legislation that will increase effectiveness of existing laws governing rebates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. RYAN: Petition of Postal Progress League, of California, for parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. SAMUEL: Petition of Valley Grange, No. 52, Patrons of Husbandry, favoring amendment to the oleomargarine law by striking out the word "knowingly"—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. SIBLEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Lestina M. Gifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of 100 citizens of Oil City, Pa., for law to prevent nullification of State liquor laws and no-license ordinances by "original packages" and other interstate-commerce tricks—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

By Mr. SNAPP: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John Fellows—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James Brady—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMALL: Petition of the heirs of Sarah Laboyteau, of Pasquotank County, N. C., asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STERLING: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James F. Hare—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Vatchel Carman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Robert B. Beardsley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas A. Banks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William F. Worley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John C. Keach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James Eddy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William T. Gibbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Charles Martine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John H. Sprouse—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Charles H. Charles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of David B. Wacaset—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel Shropshire—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of A. R. Matheny—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Isaac Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Jeremiah E. Waldon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAWNEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Joseph H. Wagoner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WANGER: Petitions of citizens of Rockhill, Bucks County, Pa.; Camp No. 669, of Keelersville, Bucks County, Pa., and Lewis J. Hunorld and 21 others, of Hatfield, Montgomery County, Pa., asking further restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. WEBB: Petitions of Newton Council, No. 24, of Newton, N. C., and Eseola Council, No. 86, of Saginaw, N. C., Junior Order United American Mechanics, and the Central Labor Union of Charlotte, N. C., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. WOODYARD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of E. R. Philips—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

SENATE.

MONDAY, December 11, 1905.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

JAMES H. BERRY, a Senator from the State of Arkansas, and EDWARD W. CARMACK, a Senator from the State of Tennessee, appeared in their seats to-day.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday last was read and approved.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relative to the vessel ship Chace, Thomas Johnston, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relative to the vessel schooner Farmer, Nathan S. Thompson, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relative to the vessel schooner Thetis, Russell Kilbourn, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of the Trustees of the Christ Reformed Congregation, of Middletown, Md., v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Rosa M. Bowden, Zenobia Porter, Mary E. Bowden, and Martha Bowden Gustin, heirs of Lemuel J. Bowden, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of William H. Bucklin v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of William Lunenburger, administrator of Uriah Lunenburger, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FEES OF CLERKS OF COURTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, submitting certain proposed changes in the existing law relative to the appropriation for fees of clerks, United States courts; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

EXPENSES OF TRIAL OF INDIANS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, transmitting a draft of a bill to repeal section 11 of the Indian appropriation act of June 30, 1890, relative to the expenses incident to the trial of Indians committing certain offenses within the Territories or within a State; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

FEES OF COMMISSIONERS OF COURTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, submitting certain proposed changes in the existing law relative to the appropriation for fees of commissioners, United States courts; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

PAY OF BAILIFF OF COURTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, submitting certain proposed changes in the existing law relative to the appropriation for pay of bailiffs, etc., United States courts; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, transmitting a draft of a bill to make sections 6, 8, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 18 of the act of May 28, 1896, being the legislative, etc., appropriation bill, applicable to the office of the United States district attorney for the southern district of New York and his assistants, except as otherwise provided for in the act; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

PROPOSED CHANGE OF INAUGURATION DAY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from Henry B. F. Macfarland, chairman of the national committee on the proposed change of inauguration day, transmitting a list of the governors of the States and citizens of the District of Columbia who have accepted service upon the committee, and calling attention to the necessity for the proposed change of inauguration day; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture for the fiscal year 1905; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

PURCHASE OF ARMY SUPPLIES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Assistant Secretary of War recommending certain legislation providing that the purchase of supplies and the procurement of services for all branches of the Army service be made hereafter in open market in the manner common among business men when the aggregate of the amount required does not exceed $500, etc.; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

EXPENDITURES OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter from the Assistant Secretary of War relative to certain expenditures and appropriations of the War Department; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

EFFICIENCY OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting a draft of a bill to increase the efficiency of the Medical Department of the United States Army; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

EFFICIENCY OF THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting a draft of a bill to increase the efficiency of the Ordnance Department; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, inclosing the draft of a bill to provide for final disposition of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes, and recommending early and favorable action by Congress; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Select Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians, and ordered to be printed.

KINGSTON HARBOR (MASSACHUSETTS) SURVEY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. On the last legislative day there was laid before the Senate a letter addressed to the Vice-President from the Secretary of War, transmitting a letter of the Chief of Engineers, with a report relative to a preliminary examination of Kingston Harbor, Massachusetts, which should have been directed to the Speaker of the House of Representatives. It was misdirected by an inadvertence of the War Department. Without objection, the communication will be withdrawn and returned to the War Department.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 480) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriations for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the Board of Supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation granting to that city and county reservoir sites on the Tuolumne River; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented petitions of the Ohio Shippers' Association, of Columbus; of the Grain Dealers' National Association of Toledo, in the State of Ohio, and of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation enlarging the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Barbers' Union Business Association of Savannah, Ga., praying for the enactment of legislation establishing an examination board of barbers in each city in the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

He also presented a petition of the American Medical Association, praying for the enactment of legislation enlarging the powers of the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service; which was referred to the Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine.

He also presented a petition of the American Medical Association, praying for the enactment of legislation regulating the practice of medicine in the Territory of Alaska; which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. LODGE presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts, relative to the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and Canada; which were read, and referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

Resolutions relative to the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and Canada.

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts favors such action by the Congress of the United States as will cause the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada and between the United States and Newfoundland as soon as it is possible to secure such relations without injury to American agriculture, American labor, or American industries, and without sacrificing the American policy of protection to American industries, under which not only the manufacturing, but also the agricultural and mercantile interests of the Commonwealth have largely prospered. The test of protective legislation, however, should not be "Is a duty demanded?" but "Is a duty needed?"

The general court approves the action recently taken unanimously by the members of the delegation from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States, favoring the readjustment of the tariff at the earliest possible time, and it relies with confidence upon them to do all that may properly be done to protect and advance all the interests of Massachusetts when the work of readjustment shall be undertaken by the National Congress.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this Commonwealth.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 17, 1905.

Adopted. Sent up for concurrence.

JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

SENATE, March 22, 1905.

Adopted in concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest:

JAMES W. KIMBALL,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Mr. LODGE presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts, favoring the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution regulating the hours of labor; which were read, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor, as follows:

Resolutions relative to an amendment of the National Constitution enabling Congress to enact laws regulating the hours of labor.

Resolved, That in the opinion of the general court of Massachusetts it is desirable that the Constitution of the United States should be so amended as to place it clearly within the power of Congress to enact laws regulating the hours of labor in the several States according to some uniform system; and the Senators and Representatives of this Commonwealth in Congress are hereby requested to use their influence to secure the adoption of a resolution proposing such an amendment to the Constitution.

Resolved, That properly attested copies of these resolutions be sent to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this Commonwealth.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 15, 1905.

Adopted. Sent up for concurrence.

JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

SENATE, March 15, 1905.

Adopted in concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest:

JAMES W. KIMBALL,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Mr. LODGE presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts, relative to the removal of the duty on hides; which were read, and referred to the Committee on Finance, as follows:

Resolutions relative to the removal of the duty on hides.

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts favors such action by the Congress of the United States as will cause the removal of the duty upon hides.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress from this Commonwealth.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 16, 1905.

Adopted. Sent up for concurrence.

JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

SENATE, March 21, 1905.

Adopted in concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest:

JAMES W. KIMBALL,
Clerk House of Representatives.

Mr. LODGE presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts, relative to the transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department; which were read, and referred to the Committee on Commerce, as follows:

Resolutions relative to the transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department.

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts favors the transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department and requests the Senators and Representatives from Massachusetts in the Congress of the United States to favor legislation for accomplishing this purpose.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each Member of Congress from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

SENATE, March 14, 1905.

Adopted. Sent down for concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 17, 1905.

Adopted in concurrence.

JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest:

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk of the Senate.

Mr. LODGE presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts, relative to rates of transportation on railroads; which were read, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, as follows:

Resolutions relative to rates of transportation on railroads.

Whereas experience has shown that the differential railroad rates charged by the trunk lines on freight from interior points in the United States to the Atlantic seaboard, which were originally intended to equalize through rates by competing railroad and steamship lines from western points to foreign ports, now permit of the establishment and maintenance of lower through rates by way of the ports of Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Newport News than by the port of Boston, thus diverting from Boston a large amount of export freight, which, under equal conditions as regards railroad rates, would otherwise come over New England lines, and causing thereby serious injury to the commerce of this Commonwealth: Therefore,

Resolved, That the general court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts favors the abrogation of those differential railroad freight rates which discriminate against our principal port as a point of export, and cordially approves the action taken before the Interstate Commerce Commission and elsewhere by citizens of this Commonwealth to secure an equitable adjustment of railroad rates, to the end that Boston may be able to secure its fair share of export traffic.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the Senators and Representatives from this Commonwealth in the Congress of the United States.

SENATE, March 14, 1905.

Adopted. Sent down for concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 21, 1905.

Adopted in concurrence.

JAMES W. KIMBALL, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk of the Senate.

Mr. FRYE presented a memorial of Aroostook Lodge, No. 393, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Aroostook, Me., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented the petition of Harriet B. Coolidge and 3 other citizens of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the destruction of the old frigate Constitution; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. SMOOT presented a petition of the legislature of Utah, praying for the passage of the so-called "good-roads bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

To the honorable Senate and the House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

Whereas Hon. W. P. BROWNLOW, Congressman from Tennessee, has introduced into Congress a resolution providing for an appropriation by the Federal Government of $24,000,000 to be distributed among the States of the Union according to their population for Federal cooperation in road building, on condition that the States, counties, and towns raise an equal proportion to that which they receive from the Federal Government; and

Whereas should said bill become a law, the State of Utah will receive its proportionate benefit from the Federal Government; and

Whereas the several counties of this State are desiring State aid and are asking for State appropriation to assist them in the improvement and construction of their roads; and

Whereas there is great need for improving the highways of this State: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the governor, senate, and house of representatives of the State of Utah, believing in the principle of national, State, county, and town cooperation in the construction of main highways, not only for the benefit of the agriculturists, but for the benefit of the consumers of agricultural products; and also believing in the great proposition that the expenditure of public moneys for the purpose of improving and increasing the internal facilities, wealth, and commerce of the nation is of equal importance to the spending of money on the rivers and harbors; we therefore heartily indorse the provisions of the Brownlow bill and desire its passage.

And further be it resolved, That we ask our Senators and Congressman to use all honorable efforts in passing this bill in order to secure to the State of Utah the benefits of national aid in road construction.

And be it further resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the honorable President of the Senate, the honorable Speaker of the House of Representatives, the honorable chairman of the Agricultural Committee, and to each of the honorable Senators and Congressman from this State.

THOMAS HULL, Speaker of the House.
S. H. LOVE, President of the Senate.
JOHN C. CUTLER, Governor.

Attest:
[SEAL.]

C. S. TINGEY,
Secretary of State.

STATE OF UTAH,
Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I, Charles S. Tingey, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and correct copy of house joint memorial No. 6, passed by the sixth legislature of the State of Utah, as appears on file in my office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah this 1st day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

Mr. PLATT presented a petition of Local Council No. 66, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Amagansett, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a memorial of Local Division No. 99, Brotherhood of Railroad Freight and Baggage Men, of Mechanicsville, N. Y., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation to diminish the power of railroads to make their own rates and control their earnings; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. WETMORE presented a petition of Winona Council, No. 1, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Woonsocket, R. I., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. NELSON presented a petition of sundry citizens of the State of Minnesota, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. HOPKINS presented a petition of the board of trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago, Ill., praying that an appropriation be made to make navigable the waterway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of Florsheim & Co., of Chicago, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation to place raw hides and sole leather on the free list; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DILLINGHAM presented a petition of Local Council No. 41, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Newport Center, Vt., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented memorials of St. Albans Division, No. 24, Order of Railway Conductors, of St. Albans; of Otter Creek Division, No. 347, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Rutland; of Local Division No. 25, Order of Railroad Telegraphers, of Woodsville, and of Bellows Falls Division, No. 106, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Bellows Falls, all in the State of Vermont, remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. GAMBLE presented a petition of the Dakota annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of South Dakota, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah, and praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit polygamy; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a memorial of the Dakota annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, remonstrating against the repeal of the present anticanteen law; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Local Union No. 684, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of Aberdeen, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented the petition of A. Sutherland, of Mound City, S. Dak., and the petition of W. W. De La, of Houghton, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of certain legislation recommended by the American Reciprocal Tariff League; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the petition of Horace Fishback, of Brookings, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation relative to rates on certain classes of mail matter; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. STONE presented a petition of Garnett Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Ewing, Mo., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a commission to revise the present tariff laws; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. FORAKER presented petitions of Randolph Grange, No. 119, of Atwater; Carriage Makers' Club of Cincinnati; South Side Business and Improvement Association, of Columbus; Manufacturers' Club of Cincinnati; Chamber of Commerce of Cleveland; Board of Trade of Portsmouth; Builders' Exchange of Youngstown; Board of Trade of Massillon; Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association of Toledo; Metal Trades Association of Cincinnati; Furniture Exchange of Cincinnati; Receivers and Shippers' Association of Dayton; Riverside Grange, No. 1552, of Zanesville; Retail Grocers' Association of Germantown; Northern Trumbull County Farmers' Institute, of Cortland; Huntsburg Grange, No. 1588, of Huntsburg; Valley Farmers' Club, of Marietta; Tuscarawas County Pomona Grange, of New Philadelphia; Stark County Pomona Grange, of Beach City; Greenspring Farmers' Institute, of Greenspring; National League Commission Merchants, of Cincinnati; United Commercial Travelers of America, of Cincinnati; Retail Merchants' Board of Trade of Steubenville; Champaign County Farmers' Institute, of Mechanicsburg; Ohio Shippers' Association, of Columbus, and sundry citizens of Hagerman, Montpelier, Nova, Lexington, Ostrander, Coshocton, West Lafayette, Avondale, Fredericktown, Mount Vernon, Coolville, Bartlett, North Washington, Kenton, Hicksville, Edgerton, Beidler, Tuscarawas, Canal Dover, Navarre, and Cincinnati, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of Union Council, No. 176, of Bokes Creek; Donnels Creek Council, No. 121, of North Hampton; Ohio Valley Council, No. 21, of Bellaire; Old Glory Council, No. 234, of Cincinnati; Lockland Council, No. 115, of Lockland; High Cliff Council, No. 183, of Antiquity; Butler Council, No. 93, of Hamilton; Cumminsville Council, No. 75, of Cincinnati; Shelby Council, No. 64, of Shelby; Hillsboro Council, No. 44, of Hillsboro; Norwood Council, No. 226, of Norwood; General Stark Council, No. 25, of Alliance; St. Paris Council, No. 224, of St. Paris; Ludlow Falls Council, No. 175, of Ludlow; Lost Creek Council, No. 52, of Conover; New Moorefield Council, No. 107, of New Moorefield; G. W. Hirst Council, No. 132, of New Weston; West Liberty Council, No. 138, of West Liberty; Advance Council, No. 71, of Centerville; William McKinley Council, No. 218, of Canton; Oken Council, No. 228, of Moscow; Portsmouth Council, No. 38, of Portsmouth; Rockwood Council, No. 105, of Rockwood; Youngstown Council, No. 51, of Youngstown; Bushnell Council, No. 163, of Springfield; Fidelity Council, No. 215, of Fidelity; Flag of Our Union Council, No. 160, of Ravenna; Yellowtown Council, No. 145, of Yellowtown; Montgomery Council, No. 62, of Montgomery; Future Great Council, No. 290, of Toledo; Bigelow Council, No. 342, of Richwood; Sandy Valley Council, No. 109, of Sandyville; Liberty Council, No. 70, of Osnaburg; Phœnix Council, No. 85, of Cincinnati; Seneca Council, No. 58, of Fostoria; Wilmington Council, No. 34, of Wilmington; Bright Star Council, No. 97, of Yellow Springs; Honor Council, No. 24, of Dayton; Favorite Council, No. 200, of Piqua; Syracuse Council, No. 233, of Syracuse; Troy Council, No. 191, of Troy; Anona Council, No. 165, of Hamersville; Tecumseh Council, No. 182, of Enon; United Council, No. 66, of Mutual; General Meade Council, No. 213, of Gettysburg; Crown Council, No. 35, of Dayton; Fremont City Council, No. 111, of Fremont City; Catawba Council, No. 167, of Catawba; Newtown Council, No. 230, of Newtown; Valley Council, No. 140, of McConnelsville; Martins Ferry Council, No. 39, of Martins Ferry; Byesville Council, No. 73, of Byesville; Xenia Council, No. 67, of Xenia; New Era Council, No. 229, of Cincinnati; Crescent Council, No. 219, of Cincinnati; Pride of the Northwest Council, No. 32, of Findlay; Attica Council, No. 317, of Attica; American Union Council, No. 104, of Russell; John A. Logan Council, No. 119, of Nelsonville; Chester Council, No. 127, of Westchester; Painesville Council, No. 216, of Painesville; Star City Council, No. 277, of Miamisburg; K. of P. Climax Council, No. 337, of Franklin; General William H. Lawton Council, No. 147, of Greenville; Macksburg Council, No. 247, of Macksburg; West Salem Council, No. 168, of West Salem; Harvey Rice Council, No. 211, of Cleveland; Warwick Council, No. 117, of Tuscarawas; Riverdale Council, No. 30, of Dayton; Falls Council, No. 221, of East Monroe; Storms Creek Council, No. 108, of Terre Haute; Southern Ohio Council, No. 299, of Cincinnati; Beacon Lights Council, No. 57, of Cincinnati; Magnetic Council, No. 231, of Bellbrook; Piqua Council, No. 80, of Piqua; Western Star Council, No. 340, of Sidney; Queen City Council, No. 130, of Cincinnati; Colerain Council, No. 26, of Groesbeck; Samuel J. Randall Council, No. 96, of Youngstown; Tri-County Council, No. 47, of Loveland; Paul Revere Council, No. 101, of Canal Dover; Chambersburg Council, No. 142, of Bladen; Kyger Council, No. 154, of Kyger; Barnesville Council, No. 190, of Barnesville; Pride of the East Council, No. 8, of East Liverpool; Glass Council, No. 59, of Glass; Amity Council, No. 87, of South Lebanon; Woodward Council, No. 49, of Cincinnati; Pleasant Ridge Council, No. 212, of Pleasant Ridge; Wayne Township Council, No. 227, of Good Hope; Young America Council, No. 136, of Tiffin; Miami Council, No. 7, of Dayton; Losantville Council, No. 141, of Cincinnati; Guiding Star Council, No. 133, of St. Bernard; Harmony Council, No. 50, of Cincinnati; Southern Star Council, No. 174, of Mount Carmel; Plain View Council, No. 330, of Dayton; Alpha Council, No. 326, of Middletown; Addison Council, No. 207, of Christiansburg; Nathan Hale Council, No. 172, of North Lawrence; Buckeye Council, No. 23, of Senecaville; Daniel Webster Council, No. 161, of Barberton; Summit Council, No. 222, of Lewisville; Vienna Royal Council, No. 15, of Vienna Cross Roads; Columbia Council, No. 54, of Doanville; Price Hill Council, No. 210, of Cincinnati; Springfield Council, No. 240, of Springfield; Bethel Council, No. 187, of Donnelsville; Andover Council, No. 208, of Andover; Gallipolis Council, No. 269, of Gallipolis; Washington Council, No. 12, of Canton; Rawson Council, No. 46, of Rawson; John Adams Council, No. 158, of Manchester; Imperial Council, No. 88, of South Solon; Benton Ridge Council, No. 321, of Benton Ridge; St. Clair Council, No. 6, of Eaton; Cedarville Council, No. 37, of Cedarville; New Straitsville Council, No. 223, of New Straitsville; Capital City Council, No. 196, of Columbus; Juniata Council, No. 279, of Tuppers Plains; Muskingum Council, No. 40, of Marietta; Good Will Council, No. 178, of Gnadenhutten; Steubenville Council, No. 144, of Steubenville; James A. Garfield Council, No. 118, of Canton; Independence Council, No. 124, of Dayton; West Manchester Council, No. 128, of West Manchester; O. W. Holmes Council, No. 41, of Canton; Ensign Bagley Council, No. 123, of Massillon; Williamsburg Council, No. 114, of Williamsburg; Cleves Council, No. 27, of Cleves; Custer Council, No. 29, of Columbus; Charleston Council, No. 135, of South Charleston; Mayflower Council, No. 81, of Jeffersonville; Lawrence Council, No. 193, of Ironton; Rising Star Council, No. 131, of Pitchin; Sedalia Council, No. 192, of Sedalia; Nevada Council, No. 95, of Nevada; Leo Council, No. 3, of Swiftsville; Arcanum Council, No. 149, of Arcanum; Woodstock Council, No. 201, of Woodstock; Walnut Hills Council, No. 125, of Cincinnati; General Marion Council, No. 162, of Marlboro; Bethlehem Council, No. 79, of Cincinnati; Madison Council, No. 17, of Madisonville; Fairmount Council, No. 155, of Cincinnati; Red, White, and Blue Council, No. 177, of Palestine; Starry Flag Council, No. 151, of Verona; McClellan Council, No. 126, of New London; Lime City Council, No. 206, of Marion; Friendship Council, No. 186, of Cincinnati; Lebanon Council, No. 19, of Lebanon; Walter Copsey Council, No. 89, of Spring Valley; Star Spangled Banner Council, No. 170, of New Richmond; Leesville Council, No. 319, of Leesville Cross Roads; Hiawatha Council, No. 102, of Bethel; Sunshine Council, No. 344, of Osborn; Mad River Council, No. 56, of Urbana; Valley Council, No. 140, of McConnelsville; Excelsior Council, No. 83, of Home City; Copus Council, No. 60, of Ashland; Star Council, No. 106, of Galion; J. W. Whitman Council, No. 122, of Hollansburg; Eagle Council, No. 4, of Shawnee; Tri-County Council, No. 47, of Loveland; Magnetic Council, No. 231, of Bellbrook; Tippecanoe Council, No. 313, of Inland; Gallipolis Council, No. 269, of Gallipolis; St. Clair Council, No. 6, of Eaton; Cumminsville Council, No. 75, of Cincinnati; Bethel Council, No. 187, of Donnelsville; Reliable Council, No. 181, of Mogadore; G. W. Hirst Council, No. 132, of New Weston; Crown Council, No. 35, of Dayton; Pleasant Hill Council, No. 86, of Pleasant Hill; Anona Council, No. 165, of Hamersville; Bushnell Council, No. 163, of Springfield; Harmony Council, No. 50, of Cincinnati; Washington Council, No. 12, of Canton; Montgomery Council, No. 62, of Montgomery; Norwalk Council, No. 189, of Norwalk; Miami Council, No. 7, of Dayton; Cozaddale Council, No. 78, of Cozaddale; Macksburg Council, No. 277, of Macksburg; Brighton Council, No. 324, of Cincinnati; Star Spangled Banner Council, No. 170, of New Richmond; Rushsylvania Council, No. 236, of Rushsylvania; Muskingum Council, No. 40, of Marietta; Stars and Stripes Council, No. 159, of Phillipsburg; Rockwood Council, No. 105, of Rockwood; Arcanum Council, No. 149, of Arcanum; Beacon Light Council, No. 57, of Cincinnati; James A. Garfield Council, No. 118, of Canton, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and Kilndrawers' Local Union No. 17, National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, of East Liverpool; Camp Washington Council, No. 34; Hampton Council, No. 77; Lone Star Council, No. 197, and Fulton Council, No. 328, of Cincinnati; Progress Council, No. 202, of Cleveland; Scipio Council, No. 332, of Republic; Seneca Chief Council, No. 292, of Melmore; Jamestown Council, No. 31, of Jamestown; Purity Council, No. 98, of Mansfield; De Graff Council, No. 139, of De Graff; Hannibal Council, No. 28, of Hannibal; Curtis Council, No. 45, of Little Hocking; Hand in Hand Council, No. 36, of Clarington; Miami Valley Council, No. 103, of Waynesville; Enterprise Council, No. 331, of Bridgeport; Cheshire Council, No. 164, of Cheshire; Toronto Council, No. 10, of Toronto; Kennonsburg Council, No. 72, of Kennonsburg; General Putnam Council, No. 20, of Dennison; Empire Council, No. 68, of Fletcher; Mad River Council, No. 56, of Urbana; Commodore Perry Council, No. 209, of Akron; Stars and Stripes Council, No. 159, of Phillipsburg; Highland Council, No. 204, of New Petersburg; Excelsior Council, No. 83, of Home City; Grand Council, No. 335, of Bellefontaine; Laurie Council, No. 185, of Ruby; Brookville Council, No. 325, of Brookville; Philo Council, No. 112, of Philo; Montrose Council, No. 156, of Dalton; Patrick Henry Council, No. 84, of Canton; Freedom Council, No. 63, of Mansfield; Helping Hand Council, No. 61, of Springfield; Middlebranch Council, No. 262, of Middlebranch; Lewisburg Council, No. 22, of Lewisburg; Blanchester Council, No. 134, of Blanchester; Champion Council, No. 2, of Springfield; Paintersville Council, No. 94, of Paintersville; General McPherson Council, No. 110, of Canal Fulton; Girard Council, No. 150, of Girard; Newport Council, No. 255, of Newport; Reliable Council, No. 181, of Mogadore; Lakeside Council, No. 120, of Perry; Lincoln Council, No. 16, of Massillon; Norwalk Council, No. 189, of Norwalk; Copus Council, No. 60, of Ashland; Addyston Council, No. 91, of Addyston; Look Out Council, No. 48, of East Greenville; Old Clermont Council, No. 137, of Batavia; Golden Rod Council, No. 149, of Tippecanoe City; Tippecanoe Council, No. 313, of Inland; Thomas Jefferson Council, No. 100, of North Industry, and James G. Blaine Council, No. 33, of Springfield, Junior Order United American Mechanics, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the rigid enforcement of immigration regulations and the enactment of such additional laws as will afford protection against the depressing industrial effect of the unrestricted admission of foreigners to the United States; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented petitions of Lorain Division, No. 296, of Lorain; Galion Division, No. 16, of Galion; Put in Bay Division, No. 208, of Springfield; William Bramley Division, No. 522, of Chicago Junction; Devereux Division, No. 167, of Cleveland; Cleveland Division, No. 31, of Cleveland; Forest City Division, No. 318, of Cleveland; Gem City Division, No. 358, of Dayton; Wellsville Division, No. 170, of Wellsville; Watson Division, No. 360, of Massillon, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Lake Shore Lodge, No. 183, of Collinwood; Lodge No. 9, of Columbus; Western Reserve Lodge, No. 243, of Ashtabula; Safety Lodge, No. 142, of Toledo, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Bellevue Division, No. 134, of Bellevue; Point Pleasant Division, No. 233, of Middleport; Cleveland Division, No. 14, of Cleveland; Toledo Division, No. 26, of Toledo; Licking Division, No. 166, of Newark, Order of Railway Conductors; Cincinnatus Lodge, No. 148, of Cincinnati; Maple City Lodge, No. 470, of Painesville; Kanawha Star Lodge, No. 398, of Middleport; James Harvey Lodge, No. 21, of Youngstown; Lucas Lodge, No. 613, of Toledo; Franklin Lodge, No. 628, of Columbus; Columbus Lodge, No. 175, of Columbus; Dennison Lodge, No. 421, of Dennison; J. M. Ferris Lodge, No. 132, of Cleveland; W. A. Rang Lodge, No. 425, of Chicago Junction; Buckeye Lodge, No. 35, of Galion; and Lake Front Lodge, No. 260, of Cleveland, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of Delta Subdivision, No. 480, of Cincinnati; Conneaut Subdivision, No. 273, of Conneaut; Devereux Subdivision, No. 167, of Cleveland; William Bramley Subdivision, No. 522, of Chicago Junction; Newark Subdivision, No. 36, of Newark; Van Wert Subdivision, No. 384, of Van Wert; Cleveland Subdivision, No. 31, of Cleveland; Galion Subdivision, No. 16, of Galion; Centennial Subdivision, No. 457, of Air Line Junction; Scioto Valley Subdivision, No. 72, of Columbus; Crestline Subdivision, No. 306, of Crestline; Chillicothe Subdivision, No. 65, of Chillicothe; Ethel Barker Subdivision, No. 651, of Columbus; and Put in Bay Subdivision, No. 208, of Springfield, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, all in the State of Ohio, praying for the enactment of legislation prohibiting the employment of locomotive engineers who have not had an experience of one year as such or of three years as locomotive fireman; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of New Philadelphia, Hillsboro, Salineville, Fremont, Conneaut, Eagleville, Norwalk, Georgetown, Mechanicsburg, Bethesda, Barnesville, and Gallipolis, all in the State of Ohio, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. LONG presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 556) granting an increase of pension to William H. Egolf; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 555) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Hill; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 558) granting an increase of pension to Abijah Chamberlain; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 557) granting an increase of pension to Mariot Losure; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 563) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Martin; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 564) granting an increase of pension to Wilson Hyatt; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 565) granting an increase of pension to Lumbard D. Aldrich; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 566) granting an increase of pension to George Wiley; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a memorial of Local Division No. 80, Brotherhood of Railroad Freight and Baggage Men, of Nashua, N. H., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church of Upton, Pa., praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. CLARK of Montana presented a petition of the Business Men's Association of Hamilton, Mont., praying for the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. KNOX presented petitions of Sherwood Council, No. 160, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Stroh Council, No. 731, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Weissport; Paul Revere Council, No. 441, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pricedale; Annville Council, No. 954, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Annville; Spring Garden Council, No. 18, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Philadelphia; Wicomisco Council, No. 57, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Lykens; Star of American Council, No. 305, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Rices Landing; Colonial Council, No. 605, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of York; Steelton Council, No. 162, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Steelton; Chas. A. Gerasch Council, No. 1004, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Kutztown; John R. Marlin Council, No. 20, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Philadelphia; Cedar Council, No. 416, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Wescosville; General Cameron Council, No. 851, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Mount Joy; Vanderbelt Council, No. 104, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Vanderbelt; Dale Council, No. 642, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Johnstown; Major Jenning Council, No. 367, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Shenandoah; Bainbridge Council, No. 128, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Star of the West Council, No. 465, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Allegheny; Victory Council, No. 443, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Marion; Morning Star Council, No. 29, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Fayette City; Banner Council, No. 310, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Cokeville; Andrew G. Curtin Council, No. 67, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of McKees Rocks; Cherry Council, No. 243, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Cherryville; Friendship Council, No. 201, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Washington; Smoky City Council, No. 119, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Rock Council, No. 54, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Glen Rock; Milroy Council, No. 635, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Milroy; Moss Rose Council, No. 292, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Seven Valleys; Henry Seybert Council, No. 520, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Abington; Hilldale Council, No. 235, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Allegheny; Meridian Sun Council, No. 542, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Tidal; Paintersville Council, No. 211, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of New Stanton; Patriotic Council, No. 822, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Scranton; Welcome Council, No. 134, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Springtown Council, No. 929, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Springtown; Hoboken Council, No. 384, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Hoboken; Phil H. Sheridan Council, No. 287, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Allentown; Wm. J. Byars Council, No. 282, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Wilkesbarre; Rescue Council, No. 15, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Philadelphia; Vesuvius Council, No. 116, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Sharpsburg; Decatur Council, No. 613, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Tarentum; Susquehanna Council, No. 89, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Wrightsville; Akron Council, No. 906, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Akron; McKeesport Council, No. 109, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of McKeesport; John Grey Council, No. 249, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Wanamie Council, No. 549, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Wanamie; General McClellan Council, No. 150, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Verona; Lancaster Council, No. 912, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Lancaster; Iron City Council, No. 171, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Pride of Mountain City Council, No. 472, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Altoona; Col. T. D. Lewis Council, No. 1015, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Scranton; Penns Park Council, No. 973, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Penns Park; Coal Valley Council, No. 98, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Coal Valley; Orient Council, No. 72, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Johnstown; Crystal Council, No. 300, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Jeanette; Bolivar Council, No. 570, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Bolivar; Pipersville Council, No. 620, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pipersville; Youghlougheny Council, No. 255, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Suterville; Justice Council, No. 307, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Glen Lyon; Watsontown Council, No. 514, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Watsontown; Carpenters' Union No. 406, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Bethlehem; Local Union No. 321, Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Connellsville; Blue Mountain Lodge, No. 694, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Marysville; Central Trades and Labor Council, of Dubois; Local No. 206, Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Newcastle; Lodge No. 153, Order of Railway Conductors, of Mauchchunk; York Typographical Union, of York; Pottsville Division, Order of Railway Conductors, of Pottsville; all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. NIXON presented a memorial of the legislature of Nevada, remonstrating against the enactment of legislation admitting Arizona and New Mexico into the Union as one State; which was referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Memorial relative to the protest by the Territory of Arizona and her people against the measure pending in Congress seeking to make one State of the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico.

Whereas the house of representatives of the twenty-third legislative assembly of the Territory of Arizona, the council concurring, has by resolution appealed to the sense of justness and fairness of this honorable legislature, urging of us that our Senators and Representative in Congress be requested to give a just and careful consideration to the protests and objections advanced by the citizens of Arizona against the passage of the measure now pending before the Senate of the United States designed and seeking to make one State of the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico; and

Whereas the sympathy of this honorable body is with the Territory of Arizona, and it is its wish that the said Territory may be granted independent statehood: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the senate of the State of Nevada (the assembly concurring), That our Senators and Representative in Congress be notified that this is our desire.

And resolved, That the governor be, and he hereby is, requested to transmit an engrossed copy of this resolution to each of them and also to his excellency the governor of the Territory of Arizona.

LEM ALLEN,
President of the Senate.
C. H. MCINTOSH,
Secretary of the Senate.
SAMUEL PLATT,
Speaker of the Assembly.
H. E. FREUDENTHAL,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Approved March 4, 1905.

JOHN SPARKS, Governor.

STATE OF NEVADA,
Department of State, ss:

I, W. G. Douglass, the duly elected, qualified, and acting secretary of state of the State of Nevada, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true, full, and correct copy of the original senate joint concurrent resolution No. 11, now on file and of record in this office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of State, at my office, in Carson City, Nev., this 17th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.]

W. G. DOUGLASS, Secretary of State.
By J. W. LEGATE, Deputy.

Mr. NIXON presented a petition of the legislature of Nevada, praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the unrestricted admission of Japanese into the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Assembly joint memorial and resolution to Congress relative to the unrestricted admission of Japanese into the United States.

Your memoralist, the legislature of the State of Nevada, in session assembled, most respectfully, and with grave concern, represents to the Congress of the United States the manifest evil of the unrestricted admission of Japanese into this country; that from their habits, customs, and traditions as a race of people the truth is apparent they can not assimilate with the white race; that from their cunning, industry, and commercial enterprise their greater foothold upon American soil renders their presence more alarming and threatening to the foundation of institutions founded and brought to a high state of perfection by the white people; that as laborers in competition with the white race their mode of life, congregating in large numbers in rude hovels and subsisting on cheap foods largely imported from their mother country, they enter our fields of labor at wages forcing the American toiler into idleness and poverty, which in turn not infrequently results in riots and bloodshed; that from our geographical position the Pacific coast States are first to receive this invasion, first to suffer from their presence, and naturally first to ask the parent Government for relief against the admission of these undesirable people, whose customs and superstitions are deadening to every principle of American citizenship: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That our United States Senators be instructed and our Congressman requested to use all honorable means in Congress and before the proper Departments of the General Government to prevent the unrestricted admission of Japanese into the United States.

Resolved further, That the governor be requested to transmit a certified copy of this joint memorial and resolution to the President of the United States, to each of our United States Senators, and to our Member of Congress.

LEM ALLEN,
President of the Senate.
C. H. MCINTOSH,
Secretary of the Senate.
SAMUEL PLATT,
Speaker of the Assembly.
H. E. FREUDENTHAL,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Approved March 17, 1905.

JOHN SPARKS, Governor.

STATE OF NEVADA,
Department of State, ss:

I, W. G. Douglass, the duly elected, qualified, and acting secretary of state of the State of Nevada, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true, full and correct copy of the original assembly joint memorial and resolution to Congress relative to the unrestricted admission of Japanese into the United States, now on file and of record in this office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of State, at my office, in Carson City, Nev., this 25th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] W. G. DOUGLASS, Secretary of State.
By J. W. LEGATE, Deputy.

Mr. NIXON presented a petition of the legislature of Nevada, praying for the enactment of legislation to encourage rifle practice and marksmanship; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Senate joint resolution and memorial to Congress relative to encouraging rifle practice and excellence in marksmanship among citizens of the United States.

Whereas the Congress of the United States has under consideration bills appropriating $1,000,000 annually, as proposed by the national board for the promotion of rifle practice, such proposed appropriation being intended for use in encouraging rifle practice and excellence in marksmanship among the citizens of the United States, so as to render them quickly available as efficient soldiers in time of war; and

Whereas our permanent military establishment must, in the nature of circumstances, be small, and in the event of war with one or more of the first-class powers of the world we must depend almost entirely upon our citizen volunteers to provide our fighting force; and

Whereas the European powers, being fully aware that a nation of riflemen is invincible, are making strenuous and continued effort to encourage rifle practice and promote good marksmanship with the weapons of war among their people, every inducement being offered to the boys and youth to practice, while the United States, admittedly the most progressive of the large nations of the earth, has done nothing in this direction, although a far greater proportion of its soldiery than that of any other country must be drawn from civil life in case of war; and

Whereas the action of the Congress of the United States in proposing national appropriations annually for the promotion of rifle practice and excellence in marksmanship may be properly considered as the most important and far-reaching measure in the interests of the national defense and national training proposed in the history of this country: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the senate of the State of Nevada (the assembly concurring), That the Representatives in Congress from the State of Nevada be, and they hereby are, requested to use their most active and earnest efforts to secure the enactment of proposed legislation looking toward national appropriations for the purpose of encouraging rifle practice and excellence in marksmanship.

And be it further resolved, That his excellency the governor be, and he is hereby, requested to forward an engrossed copy of this resolution to each of our Senators and to our Representative in Congress.

LEM ALLEN,
President of the Senate.
C. H. MCINTOSH,
Secretary of the Senate.
SAMUEL PLATT,
Speaker of the Assembly.
H. E. FREUDENTHAL,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Approved March 7, 1905.

JOHN SPARKS, Governor.

STATE OF NEVADA,
Department of State, ss:

I, W. G. Douglass, the duly elected, qualified, and acting secretary of state of the State of Nevada, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true, full, and correct copy of the original senate joint resolution and memorial No. 10, now on file and of record in this office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of state, at my office, in Carson City, Nev., this 9th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] W. G. DOUGLASS, Secretary of State.
By J. W. LEGATE, Deputy.

Mr. NIXON presented a petition of the legislature of Nevada, praying for the enactment of legislation restricting persons who have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States from enjoying the same rights as citizens of the United States with respect to the land and mining laws; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Senate joint and concurrent resolution relative to the naturalization of citizens.

Whereas under the land and mining laws of the United States it is provided that all persons who have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States of America shall have the same rights as those who are already citizens; and

Whereas a large number of persons declare their intention to become citizens of the United States of America, under the laws provided therefor, for the purpose of enjoying the benefits of the land, mining, and other laws, yet never become citizens, and while enjoying the benefits of citizenship are required to bear none of the burdens thereof: Therefore, be it

Resolved by the senate of the State of Nevada (the assembly concurring), That we are heartily in favor of such legislation as will require persons declaring their intention of becoming citizens under the laws of the United States of America to become such within a reasonable period after they are eligible or forfeit all benefits or privileges acquired under our laws.

And resolved, That a copy of this resolution shall be sent to each of our Senators and to our Representative in Congress.

LEM ALLEN,
President of the Senate.
C. H. MCINTOSH,
Secretary of the Senate.
SAMUEL PLATT,
Speaker of the Assembly.
H. E. FREUDENTHAL,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Approved March 16, 1905.

JOHN SPARKS, Governor.

STATE OF NEVADA,
Department of State, ss:

I, W. G. Douglass, the duly elected, qualified, and acting secretary of state of the State of Nevada, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true, full, and correct copy of the original senate joint and concurrent resolution relative to the naturalization of citizens, now on file and of record in this office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of state, at my office, in Carson City, Nev., this 25th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] W. G. DOUGLASS, Secretary of State.
By J. W. LEGATE, Deputy.

Mr. KEAN presented a petition of the Woman's Club of Orange, N. J., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

He also presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Elizabeth, N. J., praying for the enactment of legislation to create a corps of commercial agents to promote and extend the American trade abroad; which was referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

Mr. BRANDEGEE presented a petition of Pequot Council, No. 24, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Berlin, Conn., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a memorial of Preston City Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Norwich, Conn., remonstrating against the repeal of the present oleomargarine law; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. TELLER presented a petition of the Teachers' Club of Denver, Colo., praying for the enactment of legislation to set aside and protect the Colorado cliff dwellings in that State as a national park; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of the Colorado Cattle and Horse Growers' Association, praying for the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend realroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Colorado Cattle and Horse Growers' Association, praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of cattle on railroad cars; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Real Estate Exchange of Denver, Colo., praying that an appropriation be made for the purchase of a site and the erection thereon of a post-office building in that city; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also presented a petition of the Woman's Club of Grand Junction, Colo., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit polygamy; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Weston, Colo., praying for the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of southern Colorado, praying for the enactment of legislation to construct reservoirs for irrigation purposes in the Rio Grande Valley in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation of Arid Lands.

He also presented a petition of Local Union No. 107, American Federation of Labor, of Colorado Springs, Col., and a petition of Local Council No. 12, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Duquesne, Colo., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. BURKETT presented sundry affidavits to accompany the bill (S. 885) granting an increase of pension to John Timmerman; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEYBURN presented a petition of the Woman's Club of Boise, Idaho, praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

CARE OF INSANE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Mr. GALLINGER. At the third session of the Fifty-eighth Congress a resolution was adopted by the Senate instructing the Committee on the District of Columbia "to make careful investigation during the recess of Congress as to the environment and condition of the soldiers and sailors now inmates of the Government Hospital for the Insane, with a view to the adoption of a plan to segregate them from the other inmates of that institution, report to be made to the Senate at the beginning of the next session."

The Committee on the District of Columbia have given this matter some consideration, having sent the resolution to the superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane for his opinion and report. That official has sent to the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia a communication covering the points of the resolution.

The Committee on the District of Columbia desire to be excused from the further consideration of the matter, and ask that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from New Hampshire? If not, the Committee on the District of Columbia is excused from the further consideration of the matter, and the subject is referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CARTER introduced a bill (S. 1159) granting a pension to Louis T. Frech; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 1160) to correct the military record of John McKinnon, alias John Mack; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1161) for the relief of the estates of Aaron Van Camp and Virginius P. Chapin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1162) granting an increase of pension to Nelson Cook; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1163) granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Cushing; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 1164) granting an increase of pension to Henry E. Bedell; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1165) granting an increase of pension to James Moss; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1166) to correct the military record of Peleg T. Griffith; which was read twice by its title, and, with an accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1167) for the relief of Addison C. Fletcher; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FRYE introduced a bill (S. 1168) to amend an act entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Revenue-Cutter Service," approved April 12, 1902; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1169) for the refund of certain tonnage duties; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1170) repealing an act entitled "An act to extend the time for presenting claims for additional bounties," and its amendments and extensions, so far as they limit the time for presenting claims for additional bounties granted to soldiers by the twelfth and thirteenth sections of the act of July 28, 1866; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1171) granting an increase of pension to Walter S. Sylvester;

A bill (S. 1172) granting an increase of pension to Asaph H. Witham (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1173) granting an increase of pension to James M. Fernald (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1174) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Morgan;

A bill (S. 1175) granting an increase of pension to John A. Wilcox (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1176) granting a pension to Sarah E. Presson Flagg.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 1177) to regulate the retirement of certain veterans of the civil war; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1178) providing for the resurvey of a township of land in Colorado; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. MARTIN introduced a bill (S. 1179) for the relief of Benjamin P. Loyall; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1180) conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to try, adjudicate, and determine certain claims for compensation for carrying the mails and pay for the discontinuance of postal service;

A bill (S. 1181) to provide for the payment of overtime claims of letter carriers excluded from judgment as barred by limitation;

A bill (S. 1182) for the relief of the estate of Mary N. Cox, deceased;

A bill (by request) (S. 1183) for the relief of J. A. Shackleton;

A bill (S. 1184) for the relief of the Potomac Steamboat Company;

A bill (S. 1185) for the relief of Letitia Tyler Semple;

A bill (S. 1186) for the relief of James Downs;

A bill (S. 1187) for the relief of the heirs at law of Capt. John Lewis;

A bill (S. 1188) for the relief of the Richmond Locomotive Works, successor of the Richmond Locomotive and Machine Works (with accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1189) for the relief of Bolivar Sheild;

A bill (S. 1190) for the relief of the trustees of Massaponax Baptist Church, Massaponax, Va.;

A bill (S. 1191) for the relief of R. H. Hayden and Emma Hayden, executrix of the estate of Logan F. Hayden, deceased;

A bill (S. 1192) for the relief of Grace Episcopal Church, Berryville, Va. (with accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1193) for the relief of William H. Howard and Oliver D. Lewis (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1194) for the relief of Joseph T. Chance and the heirs of John R. Burton, deceased;

A bill (S. 1195) for the relief of Thomas Johnson, or his legal representatives;

A bill (S. 1196) for the relief of the heirs of Lemmus J. Spence, deceased;

A bill (S. 1197) for the relief of William J. Lewis;

A bill (S. 1198) for the relief of David R. Mister; and

A bill (S. 1199) for the relief of John Henry Edwards.

Mr. MARTIN introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1200) granting a pension to Esther G. Wharton; and

A bill (S. 1201) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Preston (with accompanying paper).

Mr. KNOX introduced a bill (S. 1202) granting a pension to Mary T. Brown; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1203) granting a pension to Albert B. Lawrence; which was reaed twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1204) to award a medal of honor to Maj. John O. Skinner, surgeon, United States Army, retired; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. McENERY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1205) for the relief of the heirs of Victor Faisans;

A bill (S. 1206) for the relief of T. Alonzo Walker and Augusta C. Todd; and

A bill (S. 1207) for the relief of the estate of Amy L. Mahoudeau, deceased.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 1208) to relieve Charles F. Held of the charge of dishonorable dismissal;

A bill (S. 1209) for the relief of B. J. D. Irwin;

A bill (S. 1210) to remove the charge of desertion against Joseph W. Johnson; and

A bill (S. 1211) to correct the military record of John Alspaugh.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1212) granting an increase of pension to John S. Wilcox;

A bill (S. 1213) granting an increase of pension to Llewellyn M. Hartley; and

A bill (S. 1214) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Oleson.

Mr. PLATT introduced a bill (S. 1215) to correct the military record of William Fleming; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1216) to reimburse John Waller, late postmaster at Monticello, N. Y., for money expended in carrying the mails; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FOSTER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1217) for the relief of the estate of Henry Ware, deceased;

A bill (S. 1218) for the relief of Louise Powers McKee, administratrix;

A bill (S. 1219) for the relief of the board of commissioners of Judah Touro Almshouse, of New Orleans;

A bill (S. 1220) for the relief of the estate of Frederick Arbour, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1221) for the relief of J. de L. Lafitte.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1222) granting an increase of pension to Ezekiel Vincent;

A bill (S. 1223) granting a pension to Mary E. Bronaugh; and

A bill (S. 1224) granting an increase of pension to William A. Bowles (with accompanying papers).

Mr. McCREARY introduced a bill (S. 1225) for the relief of William K. Denny; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1226) to provide for free trade between the Philippine Islands and the United States of America; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

Mr. BURROWS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1227) granting an increase of pension to Henry J. Patterson;

A bill (S. 1228) granting an increase of pension to Julia L. Plimpton (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1229) granting a pension to Amanda Howell (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1230) granting an increase of pension to Eugene Gaskill (with accompanying papers).

Mr. SUTHERLAND introduced a bill (S. 1231) to reimburse the Becker Brewing and Malting Company, of Ogden, Utah, for loss resulting from robbery of the United States mails; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FORAKER introduced a bill (S. 1232) to amend section 918 of the Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1233) to amend clause 4, subdivision A, of section 3 of the act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States, as amended February 5, 1903; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1234) to provide for the appropriate marking of the graves of the soldiers and sailors of the Confederate army and navy who died in northern prisons and were buried near the prisons where they died, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1235) for the relief of W. C. Harrell; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1236) to authorize payment to the Henry Philipps Seed and Implement Company for seed furnished to and accepted by the Department of Agriculture during the fiscal year 1902; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1237) granting a pension to Louisa Amen;

A bill (S. 1238) granting an increase of pension to John Christoff;

A bill (S. 1239) granting an increase of pension to Joseph G. McGarvey;

A bill (S. 1240) granting an increase of pension to Dana W. Hartshorn (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1241) granting an increase of pension to Alexander F. Dowell (with accompanying papers).

Mr. GALLINGER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia:

A bill (S. 1242) to regulate the employment of child labor in the District of Columbia;

A bill (S. 1243) providing for compulsory education in the District of Columbia (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1244) to amend section 605 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, relating to corporations (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (S. 1245) to amend sections 2, 10, and 12 of an act entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of a sealer and assistant sealer of weights and measures in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes," approved March 2, 1895.

Mr. SMOOT introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1246) granting an increase of pension to William F. Wilson (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1247) granting an increase of pension to John R. Conynghan;

A bill (S. 1248) granting a pension to Elizabeth B. Bean (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1249) granting an increase of pension to Thomas E. Keith;

A bill (S. 1250) granting an increase of pension to John W. Halley; and

A bill (S. 1251) granting an increase of pension to Peter Burns (with an accompanying paper).

Mr. SMOOT introduced a bill (S. 1252) to annex a portion of Arizona Territory to the State of Utah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. BURNHAM introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1253) granting an increase of pension to Peter King;

A bill (S. 1254) granting an increase of pension to Orlando H. Langley;

A bill (S. 1255) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Marshall;

A bill (S. 1256) granting an increase of pension to Lewis D. Moore;

A bill (S. 1257) granting an increase of pension to Patrick O'Day;

A bill (S. 1258) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Paige;

A bill (S. 1259) granting an increase of pension to Josephine Peabody;

A bill (S. 1260) granting an increase of pension to Frank Pugsley;

A bill (S. 1261) granting an increase of pension to Edwin P. Richardson;

A bill (S. 1262) granting an increase of pension to John Roby;

A bill (S. 1263) granting an increase of pension to George G. Sargent; and

A bill (S. 1264) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Shiney.

Mr. ANKENY introduced a bill (S. 1265) to erect a memorial tablet to Ensign John R. Monaghan, United States Navy; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1266) for the relief of John M. Hill; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1267) authorizing and directing the Secretary of War to construct a bridge across the Spokane River, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1268) granting an increase of pension to William Lownsberry;

A bill (S. 1269) granting an increase of pension to Charles Edwin Smith;

A bill (S. 1270) granting an increase of pension to John C. Barr; and

A bill (S. 1271) granting an increase of pension to Edward Irwin.

Mr. WETMORE introduced a bill (S. 1272) for the relief of the State of Rhode Island; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CLARK of Montana introduced a bill (S. 1273) granting an increase of pension to Eleanora A. Keeler; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SIMMONS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

A bill (S. 1274) authorizing a public building at Washington, N. C.;

A bill (S. 1275) authorizing a public building at Kinston, N. C.;

A bill (S. 1276) authorizing a public building at Henderson, N. C.; and

A bill (S. 1277) authorizing a public building at Fayetteville, N. C.

Mr. SIMMONS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1278) for the relief of William Richards;

A bill (S. 1279) for the relief of T. R. Davenport;

A bill (S. 1280) for the relief of Susan C. Schroeder, daughter and heir of Susan Allen, deceased;

A bill (S. 1281) for the relief of John G. Young;

A bill (S. 1282) for the relief of the Cape Fear and People's Steamboat Company;

A bill (S. 1283) for the relief of Thomas S. Lutterloh;

A bill (S. 1284) for the relief of the heirs of D. W. Morton;

A bill (S. 1285) for the relief of D. S. Barrus and others;

A bill (S. 1286) for the relief of William Foy and H. B. Lane, executors of Mrs. H. B. Lane, of North Carolina;

A bill (S. 1287) for the relief of W. B. Whitfield;

A bill (S. 1288) for the relief of John Burke Morris;

A bill (S. 1289) for the relief of the heirs and distributees of H. W. Hargrove; and

A bill (S. 1290) for the relief of the estate of William C. Lewis.

Mr. McLAURIN introduced a bill (S. 1291) for the relief of James W. Watson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1292) for the relief of the heirs of John Linton, deceased;

A bill (S. 1293) for the relief of the heirs of George W. Gardner, deceased;

A bill (S. 1294) for the relief of Emily Donnelly, widow of James M. Donnelly, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1295) for the relief of the heirs of Gladney, Gardner & Co.

Mr. MONEY introduced a bill (S. 1296) for the relief of the estate of James Makoy, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 1297) for the relief of D. J. Holmes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. SPOONER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1298) granting an increase of pension to Francis W. Usher;

A bill (S. 1299) granting an increase of pension to Ludwig Schultz (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1300) granting an increase of pension to Ceylon C. Lincoln (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1301) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Kohl (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1302) granting an increase of pension to William A. Murray (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1303) granting a pension to Harrison Brott (with accompanying papers).

Mr. OVERMAN introduced a bill (S. 1304) for the construction of a driveway and approaches to the national cemetery at Salisbury, N. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1305) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Salisbury, in the State of North Carolina; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1306) for the relief of the estate of D. L. Pritchard, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1307) for the relief of Frank A. White; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1308) granting an increase of pension to Emilie Wood Reich; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1309) granting a pension to Mary R. Ragsdale; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SCOTT introduced a bill (S. 1310) granting an increase of pension to C. S. M. Hooton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1311) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Barboursville, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1312) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Charleston, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1313) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Boothsville, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1314) for the relief of the trustees of Zion Protestant Episcopal Church, of Charles Town, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1315) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Bunker Hill, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1316) for the relief of the trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Springfield, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1317) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Petersburg, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1318) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Flatwoods, W. Va.;

A bill (S. 1319) for the relief of the estate of Samuel Ridenour, deceased;

A bill (S. 1320) for the relief of Jessie W. Graham, sole heir of Jesse Graham, deceased;

A bill (S. 1321) for the relief of the estate of James Watson, deceased;

A bill (S. 1322) for the relief of John Whittington;

A bill (S. 1323) for the relief of the heirs of Thomas G. Flagg, deceased;

A bill (S. 1324) for the relief of George W. Board;

A bill (S. 1325) for the relief of Harmon Snyder;

A bill (S. 1326) for the relief of the heirs of Charles A. Dinkle, heirs of John F. Dinkle, and J. Daniel Dinkle;

A bill (S. 1327) for the relief of Christine M. Core, Ella Core Tabler, and Jane F. Martin, sole heirs of Andrew S. Core, deceased;

A bill (S. 1328) for the relief of Thomas McCallister;

A bill (S. 1329) for the relief of the estate of Jacob Custer, deceased;

A bill (S. 1330) for the relief of Joseph Duncan;

A bill (S. 1331) for the relief of the estate of Henry Gannon, deceased;

A bill (S. 1332) for the relief of the estate of James H. Hardesty, deceased;

A bill (S. 1333) for the relief of the estate of Oliver Milburn, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1334) for the relief of the estate of Levi Moler, deceased.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 1335) to extend the benefits of the act of June 27, 1890, to the members of the company of Indian scouts under command of Brig. Gen. Alfred Sully in 1864 and 1865; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs:

A bill (S. 1336) providing for the allotment and distribution of the tribal funds of the Yankton tribe of Sioux Indians in the State of South Dakota; and

A bill (S. 1337) providing for the allotment and distribution of the tribal funds of the Sisseton and Wahpeton tribe of Sioux Indians in the State of South Dakota.

Mr. FRAZIER introduced a bill (S. 1338) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Claiborne; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1339) for the relief of the estate of Dr. Thomas J. Coward, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BURKETT introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1340) granting an increase of pension to John Leavitt;

A bill (S. 1341) granting an increase of pension to Fred Preisinger; and

A bill (S. 1342) granting an increase of pension to Morton M. Noah (with an accompanying paper).

Mr. BURKETT introduced a bill (S. 1343) for the relief of Well C. McCool; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1344) for the relief of John M. Burks; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. LODGE. I introduced a bill last week providing for the reorganization of the consular service of the United States. Owing to an error of the copyist, one of the sections of the bill was repeated, making two sections where there should have been only one—repeating the same section. Therefore I will reintroduce the bill corrected, that I may have a correct print. The old print should be withdrawn. I ask unanimous consent, also, that there may be 400 additional copies printed for the use of the State Department.

The bill (S. 1345) to provide for the reorganization of the consular service of the United States was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Massachusetts requests that 400 additional copies of the bill just introduced be printed for the use of the State Department. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. LODGE introduced a bill (S. 1346) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to fix the compensation of inspectors of customs; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1347) granting a pension to Martha W. Pollard;

A bill (S. 1348) granting an increase of pension to James W. Bliss, alias James Warren (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1349) granting an increase of pension to Daniel C. Earle (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1350) granting an increase of pension to Michael Cullen (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1351) granting an increase of pension to Dexter E. W. Stone (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1352) granting an increase of pension to Michael Scannell (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1353) granting a pension to Ellen Harriman (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1354) granting a pension to Lydia Jones (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1355) granting a pension to Michael J. Meehan;

A bill (S. 1356) granting a pension to Catherine M. Brown (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (S. 1357) granting an increase of pension to Orlando C. Pinkham (with accompanying papers).

Mr. NELSON introduced a bill (S. 1358) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the construction of additional lighthouse districts," approved July 26, 1886; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1359) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Boss; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. NELSON (for Mr. CLAPP) introduced a bill (S. 1360) for the relief of William Leech; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also (for Mr. CLAPP) introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1361) granting an increase of pension to Mary L. J. Kent; and

A bill (S. 1362) granting an increase of pension to William O'Brian.

Mr. KEAN introduced a bill (S. 1363) granting an increase of pension to Barzillas P. Irons; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MARTIN introduced a bill (S. 1364) for the relief of John T. Spence or his legal representatives; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HEYBURN introduced a bill (S. 1365) providing for the placing of an elevator in the public building at Boise, Idaho; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. STONE introduced a bill (S. 1366) for the relief of Abigail Stover; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (S. 1367) granting an increase of pension to Almon Foster;

A bill (S. 1368) granting an increase of pension to William H. Hicks; and

A bill (S. 1369) granting a pension to Abraham Smith.

Mr. PETTUS introduced a bill (S. 1370) for the relief of William H. Hugo, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. BACON introduced a bill (S. 1371) for the relief of the legal representatives of Samuel E. Bratton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 1372) for the relief of Edmonia Brooke Taliaferro; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1373) to provide for the construction of a memorial bridge across the Potomac River from Washington to the Arlington estate property; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. SMOOT introduced a bill (S. 1374) to establish a fish-cultural station in the State of Utah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Fisheries.

Mr. HEMENWAY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1375) granting an increase of pension to Reuben A. Miles;

A bill (S. 1376) granting a pension to Adam Werner; and

A bill (S. 1377) granting an increase of pension to John R. Brown.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 1379) for the relief of the heirs of the estate of Melissa Cathright, deceased, of Colbert County, Ala.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. KEAN introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 8) authorizing the President to reappoint Henry L. Harris, jr., as first lieutenant in the Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I introduce a bill which I ask to have read at length, as it is a very short one, in order that I may make an explanation.

The bill (S. 1378) to amend the act to regulate commerce was read the first time by its title, and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act to regulate commerce approved February 4, 1887, be, and the same is hereby, amended as follows: At the end of the first section add the following:

"Whenever the Interstate Commerce Commission, created by this act, shall, upon complaint and hearing, decide that any charge made for such service is unjust and unreasonable, it shall have the power, and it shall be its duty, to fix a maximum reasonable rate for such service, and to make an order specifying the time, which shall be within thirty days after the date of such order, when such rate shall take effect; and thereafter such rate shall be the only lawful rate which the carrier may collect until changed by further order of the Commission."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that he be permitted to explain the bill. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. HEYBURN. Will the Senator from South Carolina allow me to introduce a bill?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

[The bill introduced by Mr. HEYBURN appears under its appropriate heading.]

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

Mr. FORAKER. I wish simply to inquire what is the business before the Senate to which the Senator from South Carolina desires to address himself?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina introduced a bill and asked unanimous consent of the Senate, after it was read, that he might explain it. The Senate gave the consent and the Senator from South Carolina has the floor.

Mr. FORAKER. I have no objection to the Senator explaining the bill, of course, but I should be gratified if the bill could be read again. I should be glad to hear it.

Mr. TILLMAN. I should be glad to have it again read.

The Secretary again read the bill.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, the bill does not really need any explanation, for it is in the fewest possible words and in the plainest terms that I could study up to accomplish a result which seems to be much sought after by millions of people in this country and a great many of us.

There are perhaps a dozen bills of one kind and another relating to this subject pending in the two branches of Congress. We have three distinct propositions before the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate, and there are more than that, or twice as many as that, at the other end of the Capitol.

This subject was brought to the attention of the country last winter in a very clear and distinct way by the passage in the other House of the Esch-Townsend bill, which came over here and died. We have had hearings during the summer before the Interstate Commerce Committee relating to this subject, which will be submitted to the Senate in due time in printed form, some five or six volumes nearly as large as the Revised Statutes.

It seems to me that there is no need of so much time being given to the granting of relief to the people if it is really the purpose of Congress to do so. We were considering in committee the Interstate Commerce Commission bill, as it is called, a bill prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission and sent to us for consideration or examination. I do not know that it has been introduced as yet in this body, but still we have had it under advisement and it has been printed, and I will say that it embraces some forty or fifty or seventy-five pages—I do not know how many, but it is a great big pamphlet—but there are so many ideas embraced in it, all looking to and varying this one idea into such an avalanche of words, that I have thought it worth while, at the suggestion of some of my brethren on that committee of both parties, to try to get at the kernel of the proposition—the concrete proposition, the simple, straightforward, unadulterated idea that the commerce of the country is suffering from railway oppression or discrimination, and that there is now no adequate tribunal or method by which relief can be granted; and dreading the result of too many words, the effect which the courts would certainly bring about, if we should launch a bill like that coming from the Interstate Commerce Commission, in litigation for the next ten years; knowing that every single, solitary sentence, section, and word in the law to regulate commerce has been made the subject of judicial scrutiny, and has had its meaning, purpose, and scope passed upon and set down, I thought it advisable and wise and best, from my point of view, to go at the plain proposition whether or not it is the will of Congress to grant to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to regulate rates upon complaint, which the Supreme Court has declared it does not possess.

That is the whole subject, to my mind, that we ought to first consider. Of course there are other grievances and abuses in relation to transportation, railway rates, and all that kind of thing which I know need amendment and straightening out. We have several propositions looking to dealing with differentials, terminal charges, private railway cars, and all that, I know, and I will be ready to cooperate in reaching some legislation that will do away with those abuses. But the one idea that I want to press home and endeavor to get action upon is the simple proposition to grant to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix rates after it has discovered by its investigation that the existing rate is unfair, unjust, and contrary to law.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. GALLINGER. I want to ask the Senator if I correctly understand his proposition as embraced in the bill to mean that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall be given the power to fix rates and that there shall be no appeal to the courts permitted; that it shall be absolute.

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, no; the Supreme Court has declared—and the Senator is familiar with the decision—that under the Constitution Congress has no such power, and it is not worth while for us to say in a bill that we are going to give that power, because the court would pay no attention to it and would declare such a bill unconstitutional. That is one of the how-not-to-do-it ways that I want to keep away from.

Mr. GALLINGER. As I understand the bill to read, it is that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have the right to absolutely fix the rate, which shall be the recognized rate until the Commission itself sees fit to change it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Yes.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is the Senator's proposition?

Mr. TILLMAN. That is the Senator's proposition.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is going further than I think has heretofore been suggested from any quarter, is it not?

Mr. TILLMAN. If the Senator will pardon me, he is just merely playing with words.

Mr. GALLINGER. Not at all.

Mr. TILLMAN. Because I could have added those words, that the railway should have the right to go into the courts to seek redress; but you can not take away, if you should try to do so, a right guaranteed to them in the Constitution itself.

Mr. GALLINGER. Well, that answers my question, I will say to the Senator.

Mr. TILLMAN. This important matter, Mr. President, as I said, is pressing for solution or for settlement. I do not know, of course, what the temper of the Senate or of Congress is, and I can not tell what the Senate will do with it, but I feel very earnestly that something ought to be done, and done at once, knowing that if this bill is made the law the next week after it has become a law the machinery will begin to move to grant this redress. I would almost be willing, if it was not contrary to the rules—but the emergency is not so great as that—to ask for a suspension of the rules and let us take up the bill. Of course that would be, in the light of the rules, an absurdity, for my friend from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] promised me, without reading this, that any bill that was not any longer than I had said in committee mine would be, he would be almost ready to vote for without seeing it; and so I will anticipate that he will, of course, fall in behind this idea; but if I am mistaken, that is all right.

All I want to do is to emphasize my position, and, as I believe, the Democratic position, that the country wants redress of this grievance; it wants relief from the oppression which business is now suffering under; and, to my mind, this simple, concrete proposition, that the courts have practically already decided, will grant that relief. After a while, if there should be additional legislation that is needed, that will come along in due time, and I shall be ready to cooperate with anyone in seeking to get it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill, having been read twice by its title, will be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. FORAKER. If I may be allowed to do so, I should like to say a word or two in answer to what has just been said by the Senator from South Corolina [Mr. TILLMAN].

Mr. President, the bill that has just been introduced by the Senator from South Carolina, and to which he has briefly spoken, is, in my judgment, the best rate-making bill that has been introduced in Congress since this subject came up for consideration and since we have been studying the subject. It is the best, Mr. President, because manifestly it would do the least harm.

The Senator confines himself to an authorization of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make maximum rates in one particular kind of case, namely, where excessive or extortionate rates have been complained of and there has been a hearing. It does not propose to go beyond that. There is no provision in the bill for minimum rates; there is no provision in it about differentials; there is nothing in it that interferes with, or can interfere with, the continuous successful operation of the provisions of the Elkins law, under which rebates and discriminations are now prohibited and under which a remedy against them is provided.

Mr. President, in saying what I have, I minimize the necessity for any legislation of this character. The bill is aimed solely at excessive rates. We have been told by authority the Senator will not question—for the authority is no other than the President of the United States himself—that there is but little complaint of excessive or extortionate rates—at least but little that has come to his knowledge—so little that he does not apprehend that the conferring of the rate-making power upon the Interstate Commerce Commission or some other governmental tribunal would result in the lowering of rates to such an extent as that the wages of the railway employees would be put in any jeopardy whatever.

Mr. CARMACK. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Tennessee?

Mr. FORAKER. Yes.

Mr. CARMACK. The Senator from Ohio has used the words "excessive rates." I understand the language of the bill introduced by the Senator from South Carolina is "unjust and unreasonable rates."

Mr. TILLMAN. The bill speaks for itself, and will prove whether I occupy the attitude the Senator from Ohio seeks to attribute to me.

Mr. FORAKER. The language of the bill is, following the language employed in the act which the Senator is proposing to amend, "unjust and unreasonable rates," and the fixing of a maximum reasonable rate; in other words, by all construction, this would be regarded as being aimed at rates that are higher than they should be.

Mr. TILLMAN. Yes.

Mr. FORAKER. Now, you may call them "unreasonable," you may call them "excessive," or you may call them what you see fit to call them; we all understand exactly what is meant.

Mr. CARMACK. The point I was making, if the Senator will permit me, is that the bill does not mean that the rate itself must of necessity be absolutely extortionate, but if the rate is relatively higher than it ought to be, then it would be unreasonable.

Mr. FORAKER. I call attention to the fact that this bill would not deal with a rate that was only relatively higher. I will come to that in a moment, if it is necessary to protract this discussion.

I want now, only briefly, to justify myself in a statement I made a moment ago, that this is the best proposition that has yet been brought to the Congress, if the Government is to go into the rate-making business to any extent whatever, because it would be the least harmful.

Now, Mr. President, what is it that there is complaint about? The Senator from South Carolina spoke about this as a measure calculated to relieve the people from the oppression of which they are now complaining all over the country. Is there any complaint about excessive rates or rates that are in and of themselves unreasonable and unjust because too high? The uniform testimony is that there is nothing of that kind of any serious moment to complain of. There are undoubtedly some excessive rates, undoubtedly some rates which in and of themselves are higher than they should be; but the opinion of all who have testified before the Senate committee on that subject, and the opinion of all who have expressed themselves on that subject, including the most distinguished advocates of the proposition that the Government shall go into the rate-making business, is that rates are on the average in and of themselves just and reasonable and low enough; that there is no such complaint of rates that they are too high as to justify one in saying that the people are being oppressed in that way.

What is it that the people now complain of? They complain of rebates and of discriminations. So far as rebates are concerned, we legislated on that subject three years ago now almost—in February, 1903—when we passed the so-called Elkins law. In that measure we provided a remedy against rebates. Up to that time the giving of rebates was justly regarded as the worst abuse practiced by the railroads of this country upon the shippers of this country. I had the honor to be a member of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce then, as I have now. I had something to do with the putting of that act in the form in which it was finally passed and in which it became a law. We undertook then to deal with rebates and with discriminations. What is the result? According to the testimony of every man who has spoken on this subject before our committee—every man on both sides of this controversy, I think without exception, since that law was enacted and put into force—rebates have practically been discontinued; and, if not discontinued, all unite in saying that the statute thus put upon the statute books by the Congress of the United States is all the legislation that it is necessary to enact in order to provide a legislative remedy full, ample, and complete against that kind of abuse.

Mr. Bacon, who is chairman of the Shippers' Association, who came here as the head and front of this movement—a most estimable man, a worthy, truthful man, for whom I have the highest personal regard because of the good character and good temper he has displayed under all circumstances—testified before the committee—and it has been quoted over and over again in the discussions since he made the statement—that the Elkins law in the provision to which I have called attention makes ample provision against rebates. The testimony is that they have been practically discontinued since the enactment of that statute; and, if not, that the law is all that they have a right to expect of Congress in order that they may be discontinued by enforcing the law.

In that law, Mr. President, we have provided a remedy. The Senator from South Carolina recognizes that, and that is one of the good features of his bill. The Senator proceeds upon the idea that the law already upon the statute book—he evidently proceeds upon that idea—is ample, as he knows it to be, and as all know it to be who have investigated the subject, to prevent the practice of giving rebates. Hence he does not deal with that evil. The mere conferring of power upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to make rates manifestly does not afford any remedy against rebates, for rebates may be granted by the railroads as against rates made by the Commission as well as against rates made by themselves.

Neither is there any remedy that the Senator would adopt in the suggestion that was made in the President's message on this subject, that where one of a number of competing roads grants secret rebates and the Commission learns of it they shall have authority to break up the practice by fixing as the maximum rate the rebate rate—the lower rate. There is no remedy in that, because, Mr. President, I think upon consideration nobody would insist upon what would be so unreasonable in its operation as that would be.

In a case where between two given points there were three lines, we will say, in competition, and one cut the rates, then the Interstate Commerce Commission might solve it by fixing that as the maximum rate for that road in order to punish it. The trouble is that it would be fixing the rate that the other two competing roads would be compelled immediately to accept, thus penalizing the roads which had obeyed the law, or else they would have to lose their business to the other road, which would be a worse penalizing still.

So it is, Mr. President, I know enough of the Senator from South Carolina, I know enough of his powers of analysis, I know enough of his mental operations, to know he does not purpose, in giving the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix a maximum rate, to break up rebates in any such way as that; and yet it must be done in that way or some other such way if it is to to be dealt with by the mere conferring of the right or the granting of the power to make maximum rates upon the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Now, passing rebates and passing excessive rates, what is left? Discriminating charges.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, I have not yet had an opportunity to read all of the testimony taken before the committee, but before the Senator from Ohio passes from the question of reasonable or unreasonable rates, I should like to ask him if it was not reasonably established in those hearings, first, that the rates on lumber from the Southwest were unreasonable; second, that the rates on cattle from the South and Southwest to the Northwest, to feeding stations, were unreasonable; and if it was not established, in the third place, that in numberless cases of ordinary rates they were unfair and unreasonable in this, that they discriminated improperly and unfairly against localities?

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I was just coming to the last suggestion of the Senator. As to the other suggestions he makes, there is much testimony before the committee tending to support what the Senator contends for in that respect. I did not say that there were not unreasonable rates; what I did say was that undoubtedly there are some unreasonable rates. There may be unreasonable rates as to lumber. It may be that there are unreasonable rates in certain instances as to live stock, which the Senator has mentioned. It may be that in many other instances there are unreasonable rates in the sense that they are too high. It would be exceedingly strange if there were not, for these rates cover the whole country, every section of it and every kind of traffic; but what I said was this, that it has been conceded and admitted before the committee and everywhere else by all who have discussed this subject that on the average rates in and of themselves are not unreasonably high, and that, so far as the mere correction of unreasonable rates is concerned, there is no widespread oppression in the country of which the people are now making complaint. What the people have been making complaint about, and justly making complaint about, and what we should provide a remedy against, and what I stand here to help provide a remedy against, is, first, rebates; and, in the second place, the discrimination between localities and between individuals, of which the Senator speaks.

What I was calling attention to was that this measure of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN], if I understand it, confines itself to unreasonable and unjust rates. It does not undertake to deal with rebates, and I suppose the reason is because we have already dealt with them with that degree of satisfaction to which I have called attention. It does not undertake, as I understand it, to deal with discrimination between localities or between commodities or between individuals.

Mr. DANIEL. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Virginia?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. DANIEL. What would the Senator propose to do about the unreasonable things done as to localities, commodities, and individuals?

Mr. FORAKER. I am going to speak about that. I am just coming to it.

I do not understand the bill of the Senator from South Carolina to apply to rebates or to discriminations between localities, but to be confined in its operation to the correction of rates that are unreasonably high.

Mr. DANIEL. If the Senator will allow me, I apprehend from his remarks that he proposes to correct one evil and not do anything about the others.

Mr. FORAKER. I do not understand the Senator's inquiry.

Mr. DANIEL. I stated that I apprehended from the tone of the Senator's remarks, if not his expression, that his idea was to pass this proposition of the Senator from South Carolina, and leave the relative discriminations as to localities, commodities, and persons untouched.

Mr. FORAKER. Oh, no, Mr. President, the Senator from Virginia entirely misunderstands me. I started out by saying that this was the best rate-making bill that has been suggested. I adhere to that. It is the simplest, and will do the most good, if anything of that kind is to be put into our legislation, and do the least harm. Nothing else has been proposed that will do anything else except incalculable harm.

Now, I come to answer the Senator from Virginia. I am not going to vote for this bill; I do not want the Senator to get that impression; I am just throwing a few bouquets to the Senator from South Carolina; none, however, that he does not deserve, for his bill does have the merit of brevity and simplicity. It goes straight to the mark, as the Senator always goes straight to the mark; and it would accomplish just what he wants to accomplish, I imagine. But what I am calling attention to is that the bill does not undertake to deal with rebates, as I understand it, and does not undertake to deal with discriminations between localities or any other kind of discriminations. I should have said the reason he does not undertake to deal with rebates, in my opinion, is that he knows that the present law to remedy rebates is working successfully, efficiently, and satisfactorily.

Mr. TILLMAN. Will the Senator from Ohio allow me?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. I thought that that law was sufficient; and I still think so——

Mr. FORAKER. As against rebates.

Mr. TILLMAN. But since the suit begun by Messrs. Harmon and Judson, under the instructions of the Attorney-General, had such a miserable and pitiful fiasco, I am led to say that until the Executive stops protecting Cabinet officers from the operation of the law and whitewashing them, we will never have anything done under that law so long as we have the present man in the White House. It is not the fault of the law. The law is all right.

Mr. FORAKER. I am not to be diverted from the discussion of what is properly before the Senate by a reference on the part of the Senator from South Carolina to a particular transaction with respect to which he may think that the President or some other official fell short of doing full duty. If so—if anybody fell short of duty—it is not the fault of the law.

I was proceeding, as I said, upon the assumption that the reason the Senator from South Carolina does not undertake to deal with rebates is that he knows rebates are already successfully dealt with, so far as the law can deal with them. I am glad to have the Senator so state. So we will pass by the question of rebates. He is dealing simply with excessive rates. I do not mean to be put in the attitude of saying there are no excessive rates, but I do want, when I come to discuss that question, to show, in addition to what I have already said about it, that they are not the crying evil and that we can in a better way provide a complete remedy against excessive rates. I am going to discuss my own bill in a few days, and I think I can make every unbiased mind understand that in the courts, immediately upon the presentation of a complaint, there is a complete remedy against excessive rates in the mere exercise of judicial power and without resort to anything that is so radical and revolutionary in its character as to have the Government go into the rate-making business.

Now as to discriminations between localities, coming to what the Senator from Virginia called my attention to, they are the subject of much complaint, but this bill does not undertake to deal with them. Let us assume, Mr. President, that there is a complaint before the Commission—and I speak of this particularly in view of what the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. CARMACK] suggested—that there is a discrimination between roads centering at one particular point, coming from different points. Nobody complains, confining ourselves to that one complaint, that any rate is too high. The highest rate is conceded to be no more than is just and reasonable if it were standing by itself. But they say the relative adjustment is such that the differential amounts to a discrimination. One locality may be only half the distance removed that the other competing locality is, and yet the two may have substantially the same rate.

Will any man tell me how fixing a maximum rate will cure the differential in which is involved the injustice by merely fixing a maximum rate? You can not do it; and the Interstate Commerce Commission have recognized that fact in the bill which they framed and sent to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee for its consideration, and which is now pending before that committee. They recognized it by providing in that bill that the Commission shall not only have power to fix a maximum rate, but also shall have power to fix a minimum rate; power, if you please, Mr. President, not only to say that the rate from A to B shall be reduced, but, in order to break up the differential that is complained of, power to say that the rate from C to B shall not be reduced, but shall remain where it is or be raised to a point higher than it is.

The Senator from South Carolina has not undertaken to deal with that question. Until somebody undertakes to deal with it, there will be no remedy presented to this body or any other which will give to the people of this country in its operation as law any remedy for that complaint. Does anybody imagine for one minute that the people of this country would long tolerate the fixing by any body, any tribunal, any Government authority, of a minimum rate below which it would be unlawful for a railroad to reduce its rate if it saw fit?

I am pretty familiar with one kind of complaint involving this identical question. We have heard of it for years in Cincinnati. Years ago we had no direct communication with the South. We are situated on the Ohio River. We were anxious to have southern trade. Louisville had the advantage over us of having the Louisville and Nashville, which carried its products into the heart of the South. To overcome that disadvantage we did what no other municipality in this country has done. At an expense of $30,000,000 we built a road of our own, which we still own and control and operate through a lessee. Our purpose was to get into the South by a direct line, which would enable us to compete with Louisville. We were looking to the markets of Chattanooga and Atlanta and Meridian and beyond.

When our railroad was completed and was opened for business, and we commenced to ship into the South, what happened? We found not only Louisville in competition with us, but we found New York, 800 miles away, enjoying practically the same kind of a rate into Atlanta and almost as good a rate into Chattanooga as we enjoyed. With Cincinnati only 400 miles away and New York 800 miles away and the rates practically the same, there was an outcry that Cincinnati was being discriminated against; and everybody naturally thought she was, and it may be that she was. But there is a reason for all these things if you will only investigate and find out what it is, and we were not long investigating until we learned that there was another factor besides distance that played not only an important but a controlling part in fixing rates for these various roads. When we investigated we found out that although New York was 800 miles and we were only 400 miles from those points—I am speaking, of course, only in round figures—yet water transportation had such an influence in fixing rates that the railroads out of New York, having to compete with water transportation, were compelled to fix the low rate they did or else everything would go by water instead of rail. We have been fighting that proposition ever since.

Now, it is proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the bill they have sent to us and with which Senators are all familiar, that that differential shall be cured. I take that as an illustration simply. How? They say the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have power not only to fix a maximum rate, but also to fix a minimum rate, and the power to control differentials. What does that mean? It means they are not only to sit in judgment as to whether or not the rate from Cincinnati to Chattanooga or to Atlanta is too high relatively, and whether it shall be reduced, but also as to whether the rates from Boston and New York and Philadelphia and Baltimore, and all the other Atlantic seaboard cities are too low relatively, and therefore to fix a minimum below which those rates can not be reduced. So they provide in the bill; and what is the provision? Their provision relates only to rail and to part rail and part water. But, Mr. President, unless they apply it to all-water interstate transportation it will be ineffective to accomplish any good. It will be ineffective, because the very minute you fix the minimum by rail in connection with water the water route has only to reduce the rate and everythng goes by water instead of by rail. But shall we stop water competition by fixing a minimum rate?

Now, the Senator from South Carolina has wisely abstained, in the drawing of his bill, from undertaking to deal with any such proposition as that. He has wisely abstained, because it is an utter impossibility to deal successfully through any kind of a Government tribunal or agency of the nature of the Interstate Commerce Commission with a difficulty of that nature. The only way you can deal with it is by going into court with your complaint, and going there at once. A court of equity has complete power and you can not take it away, and you can not limit it, or circumscribe it, or deny it, no matter how much you may write it down in the bill. I agree with the Senator from South Carolina in that respect.

The courts of equity, without any legislation on the subject, have complete jurisdiction to entertain such a complaint from any individual citizen who may set up that he is a shipper and is interested. He can thus invoke the exercise of the power of a court of equity. Yet legislation is necessary in that regard, because no individual shipper should be required to embark in litigation with a railroad on the other side about a matter of such minor consequence as the difference may be in a particular rate that is charged. When the shipper goes into court to make a contest of that character against a road, he represents the whole community. He represents not only one community, but many communities. He represents all shippers situated as he is. It is a quasi public proceeding in its nature and in its effect, and we should, by statutory provision, make it so. That is what I have undertaken to do in the bill I have framed. We should provide that whenever there is a complaint of that kind filed with the Commission, it should be sent at once, if there be probable ground for it, to the court, which will sit in judgment, not to make a rate—the court has no power to make rates; that is a legislative function—but to determine whether or not an unjust differential is being enforced, and if so, to find what would be a just differential, and require, by its proper order, the parties interested to conform to it, which would mean that the railroads might fix their rates higher or lower, so far as that order was concerned, but they must fix them so as to make a correct relative adjustment. That is what we are aiming at. We in our part of the country are not complaining of rates in and of themselves. We are complaining of the relative adjustments that we think are wrong and injurious and disadvantageous to us and what we want is a remedy against that condition. We do not want a measure brought in here which I think I can show even to the satisfaction of the Senator from South Carolina is an unconstitutional measure. We do not want a measure brought in here which, whether it be unconstitutional or not, will involve us in all kinds of litigation as to its validity.

Mr. TILLMAN. Does the Senator say that this bill is unconstitutional?

Mr. FORAKER. No; but at another time I shall undertake to speak on that question.

Mr. TILLMAN. What does he mean to show is unconstitutional?

Mr. FORAKER. I mean to show that the Government has not any constitutional power to make rates in the way proposed through a commission. That Congress may make rates——

Mr. TILLMAN. Then the Supreme Court are in error, because they said that very thing.

Mr. FORAKER. The Supreme Court has not said any such thing as I have read and understood its decisions. Not only is there at the threshold a question as to the right of Congress to make a rate, but there is a question beyond it, of which I have not any doubt at all, and that is whether, this being a legislative power, we have a right to delegate it in the way proposed to a commission or anybody else.

It is one thing to say that the rates shall be so much per ton per mile on a certain kind of a road and under certain conditions, and authorize a commission to make a mathematical calculation and fix those rates in specific figures, and quite another thing to intrust to a commission the work of using legislative discretion in fixing specific rates. It is an entirely different thing for Congress to say rates shall be just and reasonable and then commit to somebody else the exercise of the legislative discretion with which Congress alone is invested. That is a wholly different thing.

The proposition that this is not a delegation of power when discretion is to be exercised is to my mind untenable; but at another time, as I have said, I shall take that up. I only rose to say a great many less words than I have spoken, in answer to the Senator from South Carolina, chief of which were intended to be in the nature of a congratulation to him upon having framed in so few words so simple a measure, if we are going into that business at all; it is simple and easily understood, and, assuming that it could be upheld in the courts, the least harmful of anything that has been suggested, because it confines itself, as I understand, to what really there is no serious complaint about. That is, it does not undertake to deal with rebates; it does not undertake to deal with discriminations; and it does not undertake to interfere with the statute now in force which has been found to be the most salutary legislation that has been placed on the statute books since the original interstate-commerce act was passed in 1887.

Mr. TILLMAN rose.

Mr. FORAKER. I yield to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. TILLMAN. I thought the Senator from Ohio was through.

Mr. CLAY. Will the Senator from Ohio allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. CLAY. Did I understand the Senator to say that Congress has the power to make rates and that Congress can not delegate that power to the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Mr. FORAKER. What I said was that a great many very excellent lawyers are of the opinion that Congress itself does not have the power to make specific rates. About that I will express no opinion. It may be they are in error. But what I said—and as to this I have no doubt whatever in my mind—was that Congress has no power to delegate to a commission, except in an administrative way, authority to make rates, because that is a delegation of legislative power pure and simple, and you can not find a rule in any of the books or in any of the decisions that will uphold it.

Mr. CLAY. I think I understand the Senator. The Senator, then, denies to Congress the power so to amend the interstate-commerce law as to permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to hear complaints as to whether or not rates are unjust and unreasonable, and if they find they are, to reduce them. The Senator contends that Congress can not delegate to the Interstate Commerce Commission that power?

Mr. FORAKER. Yes. I contend that the delegation of legislative power—I am not undertaking to specify it, but as a general proposition—is prohibited.

Mr. CLAY. I also understand the Senator to say that at present the subject of rebates has been dealt with, and I agree with him——

Mr. FORAKER. Yes.

Mr. CLAY. And so with discriminations. The long and short haul clause of the interstate-commerce act is practically a nullity now under the decisions of our courts, and I understand the Senator to contend that Congress can not go any further than we have gone so far as concerns giving the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to prescribe and fix rates.

Mr. FORAKER. I do. I am opposed to giving the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix rates as a matter of policy. I am opposed to it as a matter of power, except in a purely administrative way. I am opposed——

Mr. CLAY. I will say that I do not agree with the Senator from Ohio in the position he has taken.

Mr. FORAKER. I am opposed to it because of the want of power when coupled with legislative discretion, and because, in my opinion, it is bad policy.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. BAILEY. I must have misunderstood the Senator from Ohio, but if I understood him correctly he asserts that when Congress confers upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix a reasonable rate in substitution for an unreasonable one it delegates to the Interstate Commerce Commission the legislative power of Congress, and therefore it is not competent under the Constitution for Congress to pass that kind of a law. Did I understand the Senator to say that?

Mr. FORAKER. That is my opinion if the power be conferred in a legislative way without any qualification whatever, and I see it as plain as a pikestaff.

Mr. BAILEY. Then let me inquire: The Senator from Ohio does not believe that the same reasoning would apply to the commissions created in the several States, which have themselves been authorized not to substitute reasonable for unreasonable rates, but to initiate and fix the rates in the first instance?

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, that is a different question, dependent upon the particular legislation and the power that is lodged in the legislative department of the particular State government; and when the case is presented we will measure it. What I am referring to is the fact that we are authorized by the Constitution to regulate commerce among the States and with foreign nations, and there are a great many very good lawyers who think that even Congress has no right to fix the price at which transportation shall be furnished any more than it has a right to fix the sum which engineers and conductors and other employees of a railroad shall be paid for their services. A great many good lawyers so contend. I say upon that question I express no opinion, but I have been very greatly impressed with some of the arguments which have been made in behalf of that proposition. I have always supposed that under the power to regulate commerce we ourselves have the right to fix rates, but I have always been of opinion, and never so clearly as since I have investigated the subject, as I have been trying to do during the past summer, that the Congress has no constitutional power to delegate to a commission the legislative authority to make specific rates.

Mr. BAILEY. Will the Senator from Ohio pardon me for another interruption?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. BAILEY. The Senator from Ohio is well aware, of course, that in the Mississippi commission case—I believe the style of the case is Stone against Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as I recall it—that very question was distinctly raised. The counsel for the railroad company assailed the constitutionality of the Mississippi law upon the ground that it was a delegation of legislative authority, and the Supreme Court of the United States held that it was not a delegation of legislative authority.

Mr. FORAKER. Under the constitution of Mississippi.

Mr. BAILEY. The court did not predicate its decision upon any peculiar language of the constitution of Mississippi. It seems to me the cases are on all fours. If it was not a delegation of legislative authority for the legislature of Mississippi to empower a railroad commission to fix rates within that State—and, of course, it could only fix them within that State—then it can not be safely asserted to be a delegation of legislative authority for Congress to authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to perform precisely the same office with respect to interstate and foreign commerce.

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Virginia?

Mr. FORAKER. At the proper time. I can not yield at present. I have only a few minutes. I have already taken more time than I intended. I will examine the case suggested by the Senator from Texas, and give to the Senator the grounds upon which I differentiate that case from the one I have mentioned.

Mr. BAILEY. I wish to say that I have great respect for any opinion the Senator from Ohio may express upon a question of law after he has investigated it, and he will permit me to say that we will rejoice at the opportunity for that discussion.

Mr. FORAKER. I am glad to make the Senator from Texas happy. We will all be happy many times, Mr. President, before we get through with this discussion.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. CULBERSON. On the point the Senator from Ohio was discussing, with reference to the delegation by Congress of the legislative power to fix rates, I understand him to say that Congress can not confer on the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix rates because of lack of authority to delegate legislative power. Am I correct in that?

Mr. FORAKER. I claim that as a general proposition Congress can not delegate legislative power. The question is whether this is legislative power.

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask the Senator what difference is there in principle between the delegation by Congress of legislative power to a commission to fix rates, and the delegation by Congress of that legislative power to railroad companies to fix rates?

Mr. FORAKER. There is not any delegation of the power to railroad companies. The railroad companies are public utilities, quasi-public corporations, engaged in the transportation of freight and passengers as common carriers, and we have a right to regulate their business. But nevertheless they remain privately owned, although they are doing a public service, and whatever is privately owned the private owners have a right to fix the price of if they are going to part with it to somebody else.

Mr. CULBERSON. The Senator is certainly mistaken. Only one word or so, and I shall not interrupt the Senator further.

By implication at least, Congress has delegated this legislative power to corporations, and in a number of cases it has done so expressly, as, for instance, in the case of the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company, which is a corporation created by Congress and engaged in interstate commerce. Congress clothed that company with the power to fix just and reasonable rates, and in the exercise of that legislative power that corporation does fix reasonable and just rates for interstate commerce. That is the same power that the bill of the Senator from South Carolina proposes to delegate to the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is no difference in principle, Mr. President, I submit to the distinguished Senator from Ohio, between the cases.

Mr. KNOX. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania?

Mr. FORAKER. I will yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania with great pleasure after I shall have answered the Senator from Texas.

If Congress had not said of the subsidized roads, to one of which the Senator has referred, as they did, in making the grant to them and under the circumstances, that they should fix only reasonable and just rates, they would have had the power to fix them anyway. It was in the nature of a limitation and not a conferring of power, and such a legislative declaration was but declaratory of the rule at common law. If there had been not one syllable in any statute on the subject, any shipper could have gone into a court of competent jurisdiction and enjoined the road from charging more than a just and reasonable rate, because that is all under the law it is entitled to charge. So there was no conferring of legislative power.

Mr. KNOX. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Ohio yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania?

Mr. FORAKER. Certainly.

Mr. KNOX. May I make an inquiry of the Senator from Ohio? I recognize that he has stated the correct rule—that the legislative power of Congress can not be delegated. But is it not the true rule that while you can not delegate the entire legislative power, Congress may prescribe a rule and leave the application of the rule in specific cases to an administrative body, so if the act of Congress provided that rates should be fair and just and reasonably remunerative, or used any other definition that it might see fit to impose, it could delegate to the Commission the power to apply that rule to specific cases as they arise; and has not that been specifically decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in Field v. Clark in construing the tariff act of 1890?

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I am glad the Senator has asked that question. It enables me in the most pointed way to show the distinction between what may be conferred and what can not be conferred. In the case of Field against Clark the President was authorized, when a certain state of facts came to his knowledge, to make proclamation. From and after the issuing of such proclamation Congress said the tariff duty should be thus and so. Now, the Supreme Court held what? That that was not a delegation of legislative authority; that nothing was conferred upon the President of the United States except only an administrative duty to ascertain a state of facts, to issue a proclamation, and then the will of Congress went into operation.

That illustrates exactly what I undertook to say a minute ago. The Congress may say with respect to railroad rates, you shall charge so much a mile on coal, and so much a mile on wheat, and so much a mile on corn, and so much a mile on live stock. Then it can appoint a commission and confer upon it power to name the specific rates. The commission can take a yardstick, measure it off, and determine what the rate shall be by a mathematical calculation. Congress may provide that any road having an income of a named amount over and above all operating expenses shall be allowed to charge so much and no more, and a commission may be authorized to ascertain, as an administrative function, what the rate shall be, applying the conditions that Congress first named.

But when the Congress says reasonable rates shall be charged, that is a law without any declaration of a commission, and although it is important as a statutory provision in another aspect, as I shall point out when I come to discuss this question, it leaves what? A legislative discretion. In the case of Clark against Field there was no legislative discretion conferred on the President. In the illustrations I have given no legislative discretion is allowed, only a positive duty is affirmatively imposed, and it is the duty of the commission to ascertain and write down the figures that show the result of their computation.

Mr. CARMACK. Mr. President——

Mr. FORAKER. I will yield in just a moment.

But whenever the Congress says we will appoint a commission to ascertain what is just and reasonable, how much shall be charged for carrying cotton from Memphis to the cotton mills of Georgia and South Carolina and North Carolina, and how much shall be charged to carry cotton from Memphis to the North, to Cincinnati, and to New England, and how much shall be charged, taking into consideration everything—the land competition and the water competition also. for the river that runs to the South is in direct competition with the railroads that run to the North—I say there is a discretion that is legislative in its character, as to the fixing of what the rate is, and whenever you undertake to confer upon a subordinate tribunal a legislative discretion you go beyond the limit that Congress is authorized by any decision anywhere, of the Supreme Court or any other, to go in conferring such power. No gentleman can produce any decision that warrants the conferring of any such power. I think I can bring one after another here that draws the distinction just as I have drawn it, and which gives us a guaranty in advance that if we so legislate here as to destroy the law we now have on the statute books and undertake to put such a provision as a number of these that have been suggested on the statute books instead, we will be simply in a situation where we shall have no law at all on the subject.

Now, I believe that is all I care to say at this time.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I only want in a word to apologize to the Senate for having precipitated prematurely, it would appear, a debate on the legality and constitutionality of this kind of a law.

Mr. SPOONER. It was not with malice aforethought?

Mr. TILLMAN. Well, it was not with any malice aforethought, but I love to set you lawyers by the ears, and then watch you pull one another's wool. [Laughter.]

I can not understand the purpose and object of the Senator from Ohio in going into the merits of this proposed legislation and undertaking to interpret the meaning of the little, simple amendment to the act to regulate commerce which I have introduced. I was not surprised, of course, to have him finally wind up, after complimenting me so highly, by the statement that he would not vote for it. I knew he would not vote for it. I had not the remotest idea that he had any purpose of that sort.

But I want to say to him that when we come to deal with the question of a remedy for discriminations and preferentials and all that kind of thing I am sure I shall meet him halfway, and go as far as he dare go toward granting that relief.

I am after one simple, single proposition, as I have said already, and that is to grant to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to give relief when they have found that there is injustice and unreasonableness in a rate already in force; that is all. As I said, to do one thing at a time is in law, I believe, nearly as good a maxim as in business and many other things. If a man spreads himself out all over creation, he gets knocked into holes somewhere, and that is especially the case with a proposed law. I have found that to be true by experience.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, it was not my purpose to prolong this debate——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair calls the attention of the Senator to the fact that the discussion is proceeding by unanimous consent.

Mr. CULBERSON. I wish to ask one question of the Senator from South Carolina.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Texas will proceed.

Mr. CULBERSON. Of course I do it in a friendly spirit to this measure.

The last paragraph of the bill provides that thereafter such rate shall be the only lawful rate which the carrier may collect until changed by further order of the Commission. What I wish to ask the Senator in the spirit of trying to perfect his measure is whether he proposes thereafter for all time to take from the railroad companies authority to change that particular rate?

Mr. TILLMAN. I propose in this measure to give the power to grant relief. I am not in the slightest degree uneasy that the railroad companies will ever come and ask to be permitted to lower it, but the shippers may in time come to see that a rate fixed by the Railroad Commission this year may year after next or five years hence be too high for the then condition; and, of course, if the shipper came and said to the Commission that a certain rate was unreasonable and unjust and could prove it, the Commission would grant the relief from its own order that it had made in the first instance.

Mr. CULBERSON. I was expressing no opinion myself on the provision of the bill, but was making an inquiry of the Senator, whether with reference to a particular rate which the Interstate Commerce Commission may put into effect at any time, say, between New York and Cincinnati or between New York and Chicago, it is the intent of this bill and is it his purpose now that the rate fixed by the Commission shall be permanent to the extent that the railroad companies themselves would have no authority to change it?

Mr. TILLMAN. Undoubtedly; because, as I said, I have no idea that a railroad company will ever undertake to reduce the rate fixed by the Commission of its own motion.

Mr. CULBERSON. They are not allowed, under the bill?

Mr. TILLMAN. As it would be the maximum rate they might reduce it, but I do not want them to do it. I am only after getting relief for the people—the producers and shippers—not the railroads. They will always take care of themselves, here and everywhere else, and if they found it desirable to reduce a rate fixed by the Commission, and could show good reasons for it, I would think it a very easy thing to have the Commission make a new order in the case as no shipper could possibly object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill introduced by the Senator from South Carolina will be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

AMENDMENTS TO INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. GAMBLE submitted an amendment authorizing the issuance of a patent in fee to Mrs. Mary S. Rouse, a member of the Yankton band of Sioux Indians, for lands heretofore allotted to her in the State of South Dakota, intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

He also submitted an amendment authorizing the issuance of a patent in fee to Mrs. Artie Barber, a member of the Yankton band of Sioux Indians, for lands heretofore allotted to her in the State of South Dakota, intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

AMENDMENTS TO STATEHOOD BILL.

Mr. FORAKER submitted two amendments intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 1158) to enable the people of Oklahoma and of the Indian Territory to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; and to enable the people of New Mexico and of Arizona to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; which were referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE.

Mr. FRYE submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Commerce be, and the same is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary, to report such hearings as may be had on bills or other matters pending before said committee, and to have the same printed for the use of the committee, and that such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

CHARLES E. HOOKS.

Mr. ALLISON (for Mr. PROCTOR) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be, and he hereby is, authorized and directed to place upon the rolls of the Senate as a messenger the name of Charles E. Hooks, at the rate of $1,440 per annum, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate until otherwise provided by law.

PANAMA CANAL APPROPRIATION.

The bill (H. R. 480) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes, was read the first time by its title.

Mr. ALLISON. I move the reference of the bill to the Committee on Appropriations, which is the usual course.

Mr. KITTREDGE. I ask that the bill be read for the information of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read the bill.

The bill was read the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the bonds authorized by section 8 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, shall be subject to the provisions of section 13 of the act entitled "An act to define and fix the standard of value, to maintain the parity of all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, to refund the pubic debt, and for other purposes," approved March 14, 1900, the same as though said bonds were issued under the provisions of said act of March 14, 1900.

SEC. 2. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $11,000,000 to continue the construction of the isthmian canal, to be expended under the direction of the President in accordance with the said act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, approved June 28, 1902, and for each and every purpose connected with the same, the said sum to continue available until expended: Provided, That all expenditures from the appropriation herein made shall be reimbursed to the Treasury of the United States out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds authorized in section 8 of the said act approved June 28, 1902.

SEC. 3. That the President shall annually, and at such other periods as may be provided, either by law or by his order, require full and complete reports to be made to him by the persons appointed or employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone, the construction of said Panama Canal, and the operation of said Panama Railroad, including an itemized account of all moneys received and expended, which said reports shall be by the President transmitted to Congress. And any of the persons appointed or employed by the President in connection with the said government or the said work of construction or operation shall give to Congress or to either House of Congress such information as may at any time be required either by act of Congress or by the order of either House of Congress in relation to their respective actings and doings and the receipt and expenditure of money. The President shall annually cause to be made, by the persons appointed and employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone and the construction of said canal, estimates of expenditures and appropriations, in detail as far as practicable, which estimates shall be submitted to Congress in the manner provided in section 5 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and for other purposes." And no money shall be expended for any of the purposes named in this act except in accordance with appropriations made by Congress, except that the moneys received in the ordinary course of business from the operation of the Panama Railroad and the property and rights appertaining thereto may be expended, so far as necessary, in defraying the expenses of such operation, including maintenance, without being covered into the Treasury of the United States, and such moneys are hereby appropriated for such purpose, and monthly reports of such receipts and expenditures shall be made to the President by the person or persons in charge.

Mr. HOPKINS. I did not understand as to whether the suggestion of the Senator from Iowa was simply a request or whether it was a motion.

Mr. ALLISON. I made a motion. I move that the bill be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Iowa moves that the bill be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HOPKINS. I should like to hear from the Senator the reasons he has for taking the bill from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, the committee to which we think it legitimately belongs.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, as I understand the measure it is an ordinary deficiency appropriation and one of an emergent character. All such appropriations, under the custom of the Senate and under its rules, have always been referred to the Committee on Appropriations. I know of no exception where such a bill appropriating money has been referred to another committee.

Of course, I do not expect in the slightest degree to interfere with the jurisdiction of any other committee of the Senate, and especially not to interfere with the Committee on Interoceanic Canals. I take it there can be no question that this is a pure and simple appropriation in the nature of a deficiency, and, therefore, the bill should go to the Committee on Appropriations.

The matters that are mentioned in the first section and in the fourth section are mere incidents. If the first section was legislation—important legislation—it would naturally go to the Committee on Finance, but I take it that no one supposes the first section is anything more than a regulation as respects the appropriation itself. The last section is simply a provision for estimates, etc., in the future.

Therefore it seems to me that naturally and properly the bill should go to the Committee on Appropriations, where all appropriations go of public money in pursuance of law that are not specially provided for under our rules. There are certain committees which have jurisdiction, by the rules of the Senate, over specific appropriations, as the army appropriation, the navy appropriation, etc., but all other appropriations go naturally to the Committee on Appropriations, according to the custom of the Senate.

If there is legislation on this bill which is important and which is likely to give rise to controversy between the two Houses, then it is the duty of whatever committee has the bill to strip it of that legislation. Here is an emergency, so stated by the President, and by the Secretary of the Treasury, who makes and submits an estimate of a deficiency, which deficiency estimate was referred to the Committee on Appropriations in the House, as all deficiency estimates are referred there, and as all deficiency estimates are referred here.

So, Mr. President, I can see no reason whatever why the Committee on Interoceanic Canals should take charge of an appropriation that does not come within the province of the authority of that committee. I think it would be hardly worth while in the case of this appropriation to depart from the uniform rule and custom of the Senate. It is so emergent that I have no doubt the appropriation will be made in some form. There may be conditions which it will be necessary to apply to the appropriation itself, but certainly the bill should not contain any legislation.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. President, it is with great diffidence personally—and I am sure I speak the sentiments of the members of the Interoceanic Canal Committee as well—that I differ from the Senator from Iowa upon the proper committee to which this bill should go. We do not agree with the statement that all appropriation bills excepting those specifically enumerated in the rules of the Senate should go to the Committee on Appropriations. Senators will observe by an examination of the rules of the Senate that while the committees are named in the rules they do not define the jurisdiction of any of the committees, and it is left for the Senate, except in the case of certain specified appropriation bills, to determine which committee shall take jurisdiction of a certain subject-matter which comes before it.

Originally in the Senate as well as in the House all appropriation bills would go to the Committee on Appropriations. A few years ago in both branches of Congress this question was taken up, and a large number of appropriation bills were taken from the Committee on Appropriations that that committee had jurisdiction of and given to other committees, like the Committee on Military Affairs, to which was given the power to appropriate regarding all matters touching that arm of the service, and the Committee on Agriculture, to which was given the authority to make appropriations relating to all questions which came before that committee. The same is true of the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads and several other committees.

Now, the Senator from Iowa says that all other appropriations should go to the Committee on Appropriations. That, as I understand it, is not the reading of the rule. Rule XVI, which I infer from his remarks he invoked in his favor, says:

All general appropriation bills shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations, except the following bills.

Which are the specific bills I have in part enumerated.

The Chair will note that the Committee on Appropriations have jurisdiction of only general appropriation bills. What are the general appropriation bills? They are the legislative, executive, and judicial bill; the sundry civil bill, and other bills where the law has specifically provided for appropriations. Everybody understands when we speak of the legislative, executive, and judicial bill that certain specific appropriations are to be made for that branch of the Government, and when we speak of the sundry civil bill we understand that certain specific appropriations are to be made under that bill.

If this Rule XVI is to be properly interpreted, in my judgment deficiency bills do not go to the Committee on Appropriations. They may have gone there as a matter of course without any objection being made, but a deficiency bill is not a general appropriation bill, because if the appropriations were properly made on all appropriation bills there would be no deficiency. It is a bill that is prepared to meet certain deficiencies where the expenditures have exceeded the amount appropriated. A deficiency bill may cover items in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill, in the sundry civil appropriation bill, and in the military appropriation bill, the post-office appropriation bill, and the agricultural appropriation bill.

Mr. ALLISON. May I interrupt the Senator for a moment?

Mr. HOPKINS. Certainly.

Mr. ALLISON. The question the Senator from Illinois now raises was raised in the Senate some years ago, and by a very large majority the Senate decided that under the rules a general deficiency bill was included.

Mr. WARREN. All deficiency bills.

Mr. ALLISON. The question was as to the general deficiency bill, and it was decided that the general deficiency bill was within the sixteenth rule.

I will say to the Senator, however, that I am not relying wholly upon the sixteenth rule. I am relying upon the uniform and universal custom of the Senate and upon other laws and rules that govern appropriations. The Secretary of the Treasury is required every year to submit estimates of appropriations. What for? In pursuance of laws passed before that time. Whenever there is a law requiring the expenditure of money, there is an appropriation required, and under that situation these matters have always been referred, and the estimates have been referred, to the Committee on Appropriations. It has been the uniform custom.

Mr. MORGAN. Were any estimates submitted for this bill?

Mr. ALLISON. The estimates were submitted, but they have not yet reached the Senate. The estimates have been sent by the Secretary of the Treasury to the House of Representatives, and those estimates were referred to the Committee on Appropriations in the House. But because of the absolute emergency for this appropriation, there being no committees, a Member of the House rose in his place and asked unanimous consent for the consideration of this bill. It was not referred to any committee of the House for the reason that there were no committees there. But here we have committees to which these bills are ordinarily referred in full play and ready to consider all questions, whatever they are.

Mr. HOPKINS. I am entirely familiar with the custom the Senator has called the attention of the Senate to, that the Secretary of the Treasury makes his estimate for certain appropriations. That is covered by the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill. That is one of the general appropriation bills referred to in Rule XVI. The other reports that come to us from the various Cabinet officers are covered by the general appropriation bills I have referred to. They are not covered by the deficiency bill.

I was saying when interrupted by the Senator that the deficiency bill does not come within the language or the spirit of Rule XVI. If there has been a decision of the Senate at some previous time, in the investigations I have given to the subject I have been unable to find it, but of course I take in its full measure the statement of the Senator upon that subject.

But now, Mr. President, granting that to be true, I contend that this is not a deficiency bill. It is an emergency bill, but it is not a deficiency bill. The Senator smiles at that statement, but it is absolutely true and correct.

Mr. SPOONER. It is an emergency bill because it is a deficiency bill, is it not?

Mr. HOPKINS. Not at all. It is an emergency bill because the conditions at Panama at present and the condition of the Commission require an emergency expenditure of money; that is all. It is a deficiency to what bill? To any bill that came from the Committee on Appropriations?

Mr. HALE. It is an emergency bill because of the deficiency which arises, as all deficiencies do, from a lack of appropriation. That is what a deficiency is. It is that a previous Congress has not appropriated money enough out of the Treasury. When the time comes around and the money is not ample for the work, there is a deficiency. There has never been but one rule, and that is that all deficiencies upon every subject shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations. I have charge of the naval appropriation bill in the Naval Affairs Committee. The Senator here has charge of the army appropriation bill in the Committee on Military Affairs. But when there is a deficiency because we had not appropriated money enough in the last year it goes to the Committee on Appropriations. We shall never have any jurisdiction or any general proper control of deficiencies unless one committee deals with them.

Two years ago the Naval Committee reported nearly $100,000,000 on the naval appropriation bill. When the year expired, the Secretary of the Navy said it was not money enough, that the Department wanted $16,000,000 more. As in this case, the money appropriated was not sufficient. I never raised the question that that bill ought to go to the Naval Committee. The fault was that the Naval Committee proposition of appropriation did not give money enough. It was a general question of deficiency, a lack of appropriation, and went to the Committee on Appropriations without dissent by anyone.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. President, the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE] simply reiterates the statement of the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON], that where these regularly established bills have been passed and a deficiency arises, such bills go to the Committee on Appropriations. But that is not the condition here. There has never been made any appropriation, aside from the appropriation in the general law that was passed which created the authority to purchase the interest of the French Company and to establish a commission to commence the construction of this canal. That authority came, not from the Committee on Appropriations, not from the Naval Committee, but from the Interoceanic Canals Committee, a committee that we contend should take jurisdiction of this matter. Why not, Mr. President? Why should the Committee on Appropriations take charge of this bill? They are not authorized under the rules of this body to investigate the subject-matter of the construction of that canal; they are not supposed, as is the committee to which we belong is supposed, to make thorough investigation so as to intelligently on the moment pass upon this question. The subject as to whether the $16,500,000 asked for should be granted is as foreign to the Committee on Appropriations as it is to the Committee on Finance, and there is no more reason why this bill should go to the Committee on Appropriations than there is why it should go to the Committee on Finance.

This bill is composed of two sections. The first section is one that relates to the taxing of bonds. If we were to follow out literally the points which have been raised by the Senator from Iowa, this bill would have to be separated, and one portion of it go to the Committee on Finance and the other to the Committee on Appropriations. But under the practice that has thus far prevailed in this body the Interoceanic Canals Committee has jurisdiction of both subjects and can deal with section 1 as well as it can with section 2. If this committee is to have any power or authority on these matters, it should certainly not only have the power that is granted in section 1, but it should have the power that is granted in section 2.

Mr. President, this is a new question before this body, and it is entirely within the jurisdiction of the Senate to determine whether the Committee on Interoceanic Canals shall have the authority to control the appropriations which relate to the construction of the canal or whether that authority shall be taken from it and given to the Committee on Appropriations. It is, as I have said, a new—and it is an open—question and one that can be determined here, that will settle the future status of both of those committees.

We contend, Mr. President, that this authority should be given to the Interoceanic Canals Committee. Why? Because the Committee on Appropriations is already overworked; for the same reason that a few years ago the members of the Senate here insisted that the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads should have authority to make appropriations for the postal service; for the same reason that the Senate a few years ago insisted that the Military Committee, which investigates everything relating to that branch of the Government, should have the authority to make appropriations for it; for the same reason that the Committee on Agriculture have now the authority to make appropriations in relation to agriculture.

In contending for this, Mr. President, we are not taking anything from the Committee on Appropriations that should be granted to it. Everybody knows that the distinguished Senator who is chairman of that committee is one of the most overworked men of this body; every Senator appreciates that every member of that committee has now more work than he should do. The members of the Interoceanic Canals Committee are ready and willing to take charge of this subject, as they believe under the rules of the Senate they should. Why deprive them of it? If the Committee on Appropriations are to take this power from the Interoceanic Canals Committee, they had better take all of the work of that committee, for there will then be but little left.

I appeal, Mr. President, to the members of this body to protect the Interoceanic Canals Committee, and give them the same power relating to every subject that is within the jurisdiction of that committee that a few years ago the Senate gave to the Military Committee and to the other committees which I have named.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois wholly misapprehends the point I have made respecting this appropriation. I simply appeal for the ordinary, customary, and usual methods of the Senate, which have prevailed here at least since I have been a member of this body.

The Senator also misunderstands, as I believe, the province of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals. I understand him to say now that he wants it settled here whether or not the Committee on Appropriations shall examine the question of the appropriation of money in the first instance for the construction of this canal for all future years. The Senator claims that right now, as a jurisdictional question, for the Committee on Interoceanic Canals. Why, Mr. President, the only reason that this comes here as a separate bill without consideration by the Committee on Appropriations in the House of Representatives is that the House had no Committee on Appropriations, and this was such an emergent deficiency that they passed the bill without reference to a committee by unanimous consent in the body itself.

Mr. HOPKINS. Will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. HOPKINS. I desire to call the Senator's attention to the fact that both the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in the Fifty-eighth Congress and a member of the Appropriations Committee of the other House in the Fifty-eighth Congress raised the question when the distinguished member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the House brought in the bill. That bill was presented in the House and controlled by the Member from Iowa, Mr. HEPBURN, who is the chairman of that committee, corresponding to the Interoceanic Committee in the Senate. He opened the debate, closed it, and absolutely controlled the conduct of the bill in the House.

Mr. ALLISON. Undoubtedly, Mr. President, we must be all familiar with that fact.

Mr. HOPKINS. Yes, Mr. President, but the point the Senator from Iowa was making was that because there was no Committee on Appropriations in the other House that committee did not take the bill. This other committee had not been given to the House by the Speaker at that time, but it was recognized that the old chairman had the authority to bring in the bill and to conduct its passage through the House.

Mr. ALLISON. Why, Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois seems to again misapprehend what I have said. The bill was submitted by a Member of the House, not a member of any committee, for the reason that there were no committees. I have before me the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury transmitting this deficiency estimate to the House of Representatives, and it will be seen from this printed document that the Speaker of the House referred this estimate to the Committee on Appropriations. If that committee had been appointed, it would have had jurisdiction of this estimate sent by the Secretary of the Treasury.

But, Mr. President, I am not going to stick in the bark about this business. I want to call attention to another matter as respects the question of jurisdiction. Here was a legislative act passed three years ago—in 1902. It did come from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, as it was legislation providing for the construction of the isthmian canal, and most important legislation with reference to that construction, covering routes and various other things. By reason of that legislation it became necessary to provide a certain sum of money to do certain things in order to make that legislation effective. So $40,000,000 was appropriated for the purchase of the rights of the French company in that canal, and an indefinite sum was appropriated for the purpose of acquiring from the United States of Colombia a strip necessary to construct the canal. Then there was appropriated $10,000,000 for the purpose of beginning the construction of the canal. In the mean time, after that act was enacted, the Canal Zone passed from the control of the United States of Colombia, and the indefinite sum which had been appropriated to pay for that Canal Zone was transferred to the State of Panama. Thereupon an appropriation was made of $10,000,000 to carry out the treaty with Panama.

Mr. KITTREDGE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from South Dakota?

Mr. ALLISON. With pleasure.

Mr. KITTREDGE. From what committee did that report and that provision come?

Mr. ALLISON. What provision?

Mr. KITTREDGE. The one the Senator has just mentioned.

Mr. ALLISON. I do not know.

Mr. KITTREDGE. It came from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, the committee to which we desire that this bill shall be referred.

Mr. ALLISON. I only know that it appears in a deficiency bill.

Mr. KITTREDGE. It came in a bill that was approved by the President on the 28th day of April, 1904.

Mr. ALLISON. Very well.

Mr. KITTREDGE. And that came from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals after a conference.

Mr. ALLISON. I may be mistaken. I thought it was embodied in a deficiency bill.

Mr. KITTREDGE. The Senator is entirely mistaken. It came from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, and was in a bill reported by that committee.

Mr. ALLISON. I understand that. I only mentioned that, Mr. President, as an incident. That is not the real point of this question. There was a provision that this canal should, if the Panama route should be selected, cost the amount appropriated under the provisions of the law of 1902, and $130,000,000 in addition. But no appropriation was made for that $130,000,000. An appropriation was made, however, for $10,000,000 to begin the work.

Mr. President, this is an appropriation that must be made from time to time in pursuance of that statute, as every other appropriation recommended by the Committee on Appropriations is made in pursuance of a statute.

The Senator from Illinois talks about the Military Committee having control of all appropriations regarding military affairs. Why, Mr. President, every year we appropriate large sums in the sundry civil bill for military purposes. We appropriate for public buildings, although there are statutes requiring such public buildings to be erected; but unless there is an appropriation accompanying such a statute, which sometimes happens, the Committee on Appropriations has jurisdiction of that subject; and so, as was well stated by the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE], if there are deficiencies in the appropriations for the transportation of the Army, or the pay of the Army, or in any matter relating to the Army, such bills do not go to the Military Committee, but they go to the Committee on Appropriations, which considers all deficiencies.

Mr. BACON. Will the Senator from Iowa permit me to ask him a question?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. BACON. I desire to ask the Senator whether it is his contention that all appropriations relative to the interoceanic canal shall go to the Committee on Appropriations, or if he limits that contention to the case of a deficiency? I am asking for information, and not for the purpose of argument.

Mr. ALLISON. I will answer the Senator with pleasure. Under existing law and the custom of this body, as well as of the other legislative body, all future appropriations for the canal will be embodied in the sundry civil appropriation bill, which comes to us from the House of Representatives. If there is need for a further deficiency appropriation for the current fiscal year in connection with the construction of the Panama Canal, in accordance with the rules of the House such deficiency appropriation will be brought in here in a general deficiency bill. Therefore I answer the Senator that, unless the Senate believes the rules which have prevailed here shall be discarded and changed, all appropriations relating to the Panama Canal must in the future be referred to the Committee on Appropriations. I am perfectly frank about that.

Mr. BACON. The Senator will readily understand the pertinency of the inquiry. If the general subject of appropriations for the interoceanic canal is one properly within the jurisdiction of the Appropriations Committee, I confess I can see no reason why a deficiency appropriation for the canal should be made an exception.

Mr. ALLISON. I understand that to be true.

Mr. BACON. I can very readily understand why the contention might be well based that all appropriations relative to the canal should be referred to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals; but if the general rule is one which gives to the Appropriations Committee jurisdiction of these appropriations, I can see no special reason why there should be an exception made in the case of a deficiency appropriation.

Mr. ALLISON. Undoubtedly, Mr. President, these appropriations in the future will go to the Committee on Appropriations unless the Senate by a vote shall decide that they ought not to go there. They will appear here on bills that must be referred to the Committee on Appropriations in the future, whether deficiency bills or regular bills, because that committee has jurisdiction of the appropriations under the general administration of the Government, with the exception laid down in Rule XVI, not only according to that rule, but according to the custom theretofore prevailing.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. It has occurred to me, Mr. President, from the haste with which this bill has come to us from the House, without being referred to a committee or examined into, but having been the subject of a sharp debate and having been cut down there, that it ought to be very closely scrutinized by some committee and some light thrown on it.

Of course, I am only a new member of the Appropriations Committee, and have had very little to do with the work of that committee except to hear the reports of subcommittees that have had various appropriation bills under consideration—and they have usually been railroaded through without much explanation or discussion—but we are entering on an entirely new thing. When it is taken into consideration that the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry has jurisdiction of a bill which annually carries four or five million dollars, and other committees of a similar character have jurisdiction of bills carrying moderate appropriations, and not only have jurisdiction in regard to money spending but everything else, it seems to me that we have got no use for the Committee on Interoceanic Canals unless we give them jurisdiction of canal appropriation bills. We are not going to legislate any more about the canal. We have already settled the question of site and done everything, in fact, in a legislative way, and it is now only a question of spending money economically and judiciously.

I confess that I have very serious doubts whether, with the burdens that are already on the Appropriations Committee—not on me, but on the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] and the other old and experienced members of that committee who have been pretty long in harness, and many of whom have onerous duties on other important committees in addition to those connected with the Appropriations Committee; for example, the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE], who is chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, and so on—I do not see how the Appropriations Committee—I being a very small part and parcel of it—can give that examination into this particular canal subject that it deserves and ought to receive, in order that proper explanations may be made; whereas if the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, which has nothing else to do especially, is allowed to examine the matter and report and explain to us when the bills appropriating money for the canal come in, I think such a method of procedure would be preferable as a matter of economy.

I know the Senator from Iowa is an economist, and that he has never squandered any money or favored any appropriation, so far as I know, while I have been a member and watched him in the Appropriations Committee, that I did not think was perfectly legitimate, and all that kind of thing; still I conceive, if the matter is left with the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, we shall have the canal built more economically, and we shall prevent some of the abuses which have already crept in.

I looked at the catalogue of salaries of the canal employees the other day, which excited such a wrathy debate in the House, and it occurred to me that if we are going to appropriate money out of hand here in this double-quick fashion, without thorough scrutiny by some committee somewhere, the Panama Canal will cost us $300,000,000 instead of $150,000,000 or $170,000,000, or some such sum.

I should like to know from the Senator what is the use of the Interoceanic Canal Committee if we are not going to let it take in hand, or at least recommend to the Senate or to the Appropriations Committee, bills providing money for the construction of the canal?

It used to be, and I believe it still is, necessary to have an amendment intended to be proposed to a general appropriation bill approved by the committee which has jurisdiction over that particular subject before it can go on an appropriation bill, whether it be the deficiency bill or the sundry civil appropriation bill, or any of the general appropriation bills. If we are to follow the general policy of the Committee on Appropriations taking jurisdiction of all the canal appropriations, and the Committee on Interoceanic Canals is to have no jurisdiction over such matters, I foresee that there will be—well, I dread a scandal; I dread stealing, to speak in honest Anglo-Saxon. I am tired of this miserable humbug of graft. In honest Anglo-Saxon it is stealing to pay these enormous salaries to these people. The auditor for the Canal Commission gets $10,000 a year, as I understand, while his superior in the Treasury Department, who has to superintend and pass upon his work, gets four or five thousand dollars.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator from South Carolina, in asking me quite a lengthy question as to the duties of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, has answered it himself. That committee is a most important committee and certainly will have most important duties to perform.

In regard to the matter last mentioned by the Senator, this bill authorizes the President of the United States to fix the salaries of canal employees. They ought to be fixed by law.

Mr. TILLMAN. That is right.

Mr. ALLISON. The Appropriations Committee does not fix the salaries of the employees of the Canal Commission.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope the Senator will see that his suggestion is carried out. If he uses his influence, I am sure that these salaries will not only be fixed by law but that we shall have a voucher covering every expenditure of money.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator now interrupts me to say that he hopes I will see to it. The Committee on Appropriations, by the rules of the Senate, are not allowed to originate legislation. Other great committees of this body recommend bills to be made into laws, and the Appropriations Committee recommends the appropriation of the money authorized to be expended by those laws. So it is the duty of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals to overhaul this whole question and recommend legislation upon it with reference to every detail. If excessive salaries are being paid, let those salaries be fixed and reduced under this law. As it now stands, the President of the United States is authorized to fix the salaries of the canal employees. Their salaries can not be reduced, therefore, without a change of existing law, and the Committee on Appropriations, especially in this emergency bill, would not undertake to change the statute as respects the great amount of such salaries; but the matter ought to be taken up by a committee having charge of the subject, and it ought to be dealt with in detail.

We pay every clerk in every Department of the Government a certain amount of money—$1,200 or $1,000 or $900, and so on, as the classification may be; we vote ourselves a specific salary; and yet we must appropriate the money annually. It is the business of the Committee on Appropriations to recommend such appropriations, but it is not its business to fix the salaries of the Supreme Court judges or the salaries of the various public functionaries who execute the laws. It is the business of the committees that have charge of these subjects to deal with the question of salaries, and it is not the business of the Committee on Appropriations to do so. Therefore I think the Committee on Interoceanic Canals will be a very important one, not only as respects the laws which shall govern the administration of this great work, but as respects the Canal Zone itself, which is now part of our country, so far at least as the construction and maintenance of the canal is concerned. We will be guided, and should be guided, by the light which they give to us and the laws which they propose from time to time respecting this subject.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. I was just going to remark that of course I do not expect the Senator to bring in an amendment to this particular measure in regard to salaries. When I spoke of the immense influence which the Senator knows he wields, I had reference to the suggestion or advice which he could give and put those instrumentalities in motion on the other side of the Chamber, which is responsible for legislation, and see that such a law was enacted. That is all I had reference to.

But now while I am speaking I want to ask the Senator, if it is a wise and proper thing—and it has been so considered—to allow the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to have jurisdiction of proposed legislation relating to the Agricultural Department and also to pass upon the agricultural appropriation bill, why would it not be a wise thing, when it can not be doubted that the appropriations for the interoceanic canal will be something in the neighborhood of ten or fifteen million dollars a year, to let the Committee on Interoceanic Canals have jurisdiction and control of that expenditure and to let it be responsible to the Senate, so as to be able to explain to the Senate what that money is being spent for and to guarantee to us, so far as the committee can do so, that it is being economically and honestly spent?

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, if the Senator from South Carolina and the Senate believe that the Appropriations Committee will not deal with this question as intelligently, as prudently, and as safely as another committee of the body, then they can take the business of appropriations away from that committee. We are just as much entitled to the consideration of this appropriation bill as we are to the consideration of other appropriation bills of like character. If these appropriations are to be segregated and divided up piecemeal, let them be divided, and eliminate from consideration the Senate Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. McCUMBER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from North Dakota?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. McCUMBER. I wish to ask the Senator a question before he takes his seat. The Senator admits that his committee will not take into consideration the subject of these excessive salaries that are being paid to these men. Now, this is an appropriation for the purpose of paying the expenses of proceeding with the work in reference to the Panama Canal. I do not know what per cent, but possibly 40 or 50 or 60 per cent, of the entire sum is paid out in excessive salaries, though I do not necessarily mean the particular ones that are mentioned here. Why not, then, let the committee which is to deal with the bill appropriating the sum of ten or eleven million dollars deal at the same time with the question of how it shall be applied—whether it shall be continued in the payment of those salaries or whether it shall be paid out in salaries that will be reasonable, so that every dollar that is expended under the bill, which is to be passed as an exigency, will meet the exigency as well of excessive salaries as the running of the canal? It seems to me, Mr. President, that the Senator's own explanation that his committee will not take cognizance of that feature of the case properly relegates the whole subject to a committee that will take cognizance of it.

Mr. ALLISON. I will answer the Senator's question by asking him another. Does he think the Committee on Appropriations, having in charge the legislative bill or the sundry civil bill, could reduce the compensation of the Supreme Court judges from $12,500 to $9,000? The Senator wholly misunderstood me when he says I admit certain things. I stated a fact, which is that the law now provides a method for fixing the salaries. It is a law which came from the Canal Committee or some similar committee, and the Committee on Appropriations, under the rules of the Senate, have no right to change existing law. Therefore I stated in answer to the Senator from South Carolina——

Mr. HEMENWAY. Will the Senator from Iowa permit a question at this point?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. HEMENWAY. The duty of what committee is it to legislate upon this question?

Mr. ALLISON. It is the duty of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, and no other committee can do it under the rules of the Senate.

Mr. HEMENWAY. Under the rules of both the House and the Senate, whose duty is it to appropriate?

Mr. ALLISON. The Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HEMENWAY. Then the Committee on Interoceanic Canals could meet to-morrow, if they desired, this appropriation bill having gone to the Committee on Appropriations, where it belongs and recommend such legislation as they saw fit fixing the salaries?

Mr. ALLISON. Undoubtedly, and submit their recommendation to the Committee on Appropriations or to the Senate. But I merely suggested the question of legislation in order to draw the distinction which prevails in this body and always has prevailed here since the Committee on Appropriations was established, namely, that the Committee on Appropriations is not a legislative committee. It does not legislate except in reference to specific and particular appropriations, and it only legislates as respects existing laws regarding appropriations. Therefore there is ample scope and opportunity for the distinguished gentlemen—and I highly respect them all—who belong to the committee, or will belong to it in the ordinary course of business of the Senate, to perfect the laws respecting the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone.

Mr. McCUMBER. Mr. President, I take the position I do because I agree so absolutely and so thoroughly with what the Senator from Iowa has stated, that the Committee on Appropriations is a committee not dealing with general legislation in fixing salaries, but which reports appropriations to pay the expenses of general legislation passed upon the advice of other committees. It seems to me that this particular measure, carrying with it not only matters that pertain to a subject which would naturally go before the Committee on Finance, but also an appropriation, and also dealing with a subject-matter which the Senator says his committee could not and properly would not deal with—that is, the question as to how the money shall be expended—ought to go to a committee which would say how it should be expended and which has the authority to determine and report to the Senate how it should be expended.

Mr. President, in reference to the other suggestion made by the Senator from Iowa, that that committee would not deal in any way with general legislation, it seems to me that he himself makes the proposition that we are to have simply a report upon the matter of the expenditure of this money, without any information whatever as to what it is to be exepnded for or whether it should be expended for that particular purpose; a report without going into the details as to the necessity of the legislation, or the workings of the Panama Canal Commission, because that is general legislation. That is just the information we want at the present time.

Mr. ALLISON. It is the special business of the Committee on Appropriations to examine into every application for an appropriation—its necessity and propriety, and whether there is a law authorizing it. It is not its duty to recommend a change of existing law. That is the argument I made. I have no doubt the Canal Committee will examine the question with care, if it is referred to them, and I am sure the Committee on Appropriations will do so, and I will try, if I can, to invoke the attention and labor of my friend the Senator from South Carolina on that committee, to aid in accomplishing the purpose we have.

Mr. HOPKINS. Before the Senator from Iowa takes his seat will he allow me a question?

Mr. ALLISON. I will.

Mr. HOPKINS. Take the example raised by the Senator from South Carolina, that a subordinate in the Commission is receiving a salary of $10,000 and reports to his superior, who receives a salary of four or five thousand. Now, as I understand the argument of the Senator from Iowa, if this bill should go to the Committee on Appropriations that committee has no power to correct that evil, if it be an evil, but if it goes to the Interoceanic Canals Committee that committee can determine, in reporting the appropriation whether or not that salary shall be $10,000 or shall be reduced, by accompanying the appropriation with proper legislation determining how the sixteen million, or whatever amount may be appropriated, shall be expended by the Commission. It seems to me that the very argument made by the Senator from Iowa is an argument against the bill going to the Committee on Appropriations and is a potent reason why the Senate should send it to a committee that can lop off any of these extravagant salaries and can determine in what manner the money shall be expended by the Commission.

Mr. ALLISON. If the Senator will allow me for a moment, the Committee on Interoceanic Canals have no more jurisdiction of that subject on an appropriation bill than we have. It is that the Canal Committee wants to introduce important legislation on an appropriation bill, and use the emergency of the appropriation as a means to force the passage by Congress of such legislation without consideration? It is the very element and essence of the rule that there shall not go upon an appropriation bill legislation changing existing law. So the rule——

Mr. HOPKINS. Will the Senator allow me right here?

Mr. ALLISON. Yes.

Mr. HOPKINS. The Senator has forgotten the point I made a few moments ago, and that is that this is not entirely an appriation bill. It is somewhat the same kind of a bill as that which was originally passed to authorize the Government to purchase the canal strip and commence the construction of the canal. That bill contained legislation as well as an appropriation.

Now, this bill provides in the first section for certain bonds and for the taxation of those bonds, and that is a reason why I contend that the bill itself should go to the committee which has power and authority to legislate upon section 1 as well as section 2. According to the statement of the Senator from Iowa, nothing can be done by his committee with section 1, as they can only take charge or jurisdiction of section 2. If this bill goes to the Interoceanic Canals Committee, the whole subject can be considered, and, as I have said, Mr. President, while the committee is considering the whole subject it can look into the evils which have been suggested by the Senator from South Carolina, and if it finds that there is reason for it, it can by appropriate legislation correct any of those errors.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, the Senator from Illinois now suggests that the Committee on Appropriations have not jurisdiction over section 1. It has come to us from the House, and of course we must consider it. But that is leather and prunella. Section 1 could be passed in a moment as separate legislation coming from the Committee on Finance, where it belongs. It is a mere change of a provision, which can be made at any moment or almost any moment by the two Houses.

Mr. McCUMBER. Will the Senator from Iowa allow me right on this very subject?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. McCUMBER. This measure has already passed the House. It is now before the Senate for consideration.

Mr. ALLISON. It is.

Mr. McCUMBER. In all probability it will be reached and disposed of in a very short time. There hardly seems to me ground for the assumption——

Mr. ALLISON. These salaries have already been earned, under the orders and directions of the President. This is a deficiency bill. I will say to the Senator that there is ample time to deal with these salaries within the next two months, when another deficiency bill must come before the Senate for its consideration, and when the appropriations for the next year must come before the Senate for its consideration.

Mr. MORGAN. Can the Senator from Iowa point out or state to the Senate in what the deficiencies consist?

Mr. ALLISON. Can I?

Mr. MORGAN. Yes. Can you state to the Senate in what the deficiencies consist?

Mr. ALLISON. I can, of course, at the proper time and in a general way. But they are deficiencies.

Mr. MORGAN. At the proper time is when we are considering the question, it seems to me.

Mr. ALLISON. But we are not considering it now. We are merely considering the question of reference.

Mr. MORGAN. I want to say to the Senator from Iowa that I can not regard any deficiency as existing unless the estimates show it.

Mr. ALLISON. We have estimates. There are estimates.

Mr. MORGAN. Where are they? Let the estimates be read.

Mr. ALLISON (exhibiting). There is an estimate sent by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the House had more detailed estimate in its debate, and the Secretary of War promises to give and is ready to give the full details and the particulars of the deficiencies.

Mr. MORGAN. I object to a decision of this question until the papers get before the Senate. We ought to know what we are acting upon.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] a few minutes ago remarked that when this matter came before his committee he would try to do certain things, with the aid and assistance of the Senator from South Carolina, and he would specifically call the attention of the Senator from South Carolina to those things. If I did not know how eminently and thoroughly kind-hearted and genial the Senator from Iowa is, I would have taken that as a sarcastic allusion to my insignificance as a member of the Appropriations Committee, because no one feels his unimportance there more than I do.

Mr. ALLISON. I ought to have said, in connection with the Senator from South Carolina, that he has had very little knowledge of what was being done in the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not allowed to be there until the report comes from the subcommittee, and then it is railroaded through.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator happens to be on some important subcommittee, and if he has not been there it is his own fault. I am glad to say that I regard him as one of the most valuable and industrious members of the Committee on Appropriations, and I regret exceedingly that for the last year or two he has not been able to be present with us in our long and continuous deliberations in that committee.

The railroading business of course occasionally occurs when we are hurried for time, but there is ample time always to consider the great appropriation bills which are referred to that committee, and we always have had the benefit since the time——

Mr. TILLMAN. After such a bouquet thrown at me by such a distinguished member of the Senate I suspect that I ought to subside, but I want to make myself more clearly understood.

I do not charge that the Appropriations Committee since I have had the honor to be a member of it has ever railroaded any measure. I used the wrong phrase. Of course while there have been an apparent hurry and a rush there that did not give some Senators who were not on the subcommittee an opportunity to get the fullest possible light, still I have had so much reliance upon the knowledge and integrity of purpose of its distinguished chairman that in a great many instances I have swallowed everything and anything that came along without even a question.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator knows very well that at the short session important appropriation measures come to us within two or three days of adjournment, and it is necessary that they should be considered, apparently in haste, although, as a matter of fact, they are carefully considered.

Mr. TILLMAN. I understand all that, and if I have said anything that in any wise would create the impression that the Committee on Appropriations does not perform its duty in the most laborious and conscientious manner I want to disavow any such hint or assertion.

But the Senator has remarked to-day in this debate that it is the policy, and the settled policy, of the Senate never to put general legislation on appropriation bills, when he knows, when I know, when every member of this body knows, that it is so common an occurrence that it is simply pitiable to see how our rules are stretched and even trampled under foot whenever a majority see fit to do so.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Illinois?

Mr. TILLMAN. Certainly. But I would say before the Senator begins that he ought to take cognizance of the fact that as an humble and subordinate member of the Committee on Appropriations I am getting in very bad odor with the high and mighty leaders in that committee for having the effrontery to express a personal opinion on this matter. But I honestly think and believe that this thing needs legislation right now, and that these salaries should be stopped; there should be an end to these exorbitant steals that are going on, even if the President of the United States has lent the prestige of his great name and his wisdom and judgment to their being proper compensation.

Mr. HOPKINS. It is my knowledge of the honesty and frankness of the Senator from South Carolina which prompts the question. I understood him to say that already the work of the Committee on Appropriations on the bills of which it now has jurisdiction is of such a character that members who are not on particular subcommittees know but little about the items in the various appropriation bills considered by such subcommittees, which bills he characterized as being railroaded through the general committee when they are reported to the full committee, and if a member of the Appropriations Committee is not on the subcommittee having under consideration the particular bill, he knows but little of what is contained in the bill. Is that correct?

Mr. TILLMAN. That is correct to this extent. The subcommittees usually have on them men of long experience and thorough familiarity with the Government and the law, who are always ready, if not always able, to give a satisfactory answer. Some of us sometimes differ with them as to whether a certain appropriation is sufficiently economical or something like that, but then we defer to their superior judgment and knowledge. That is about the statement of the fact.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I do not desire to extend this discussion. We have been told this is an emergency bill, and that we ought to put it through as rapidly as possible. Everybody knows that this bill is going to pass. I think everybody here believes it will pass practically as it came from the House. As has been said, whatever may be the complaint about salaries, they have been earned, and they are due, or will be due in a few days.

Mr. TILLMAN. They have been promised, not earned, I would suggest.

Mr. TELLER. They have been earned. We authorized the President of the United States to select these officers and fix their compensation. He has fixed it. We might repeal the law; perhaps we ought to; but certainly we will not be indecent enough here to deny that the gentlemen who went into office under those appointments are entitled to their money. We are bound to pay it.

Mr. McCUMBER. Will the Senator permit me to ask a question right at this point?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. McCUMBER. Will not the salaries continue right along at the same rate?

Mr. TELLER. They will.

Mr. McCUMBER. And will they not be earned in the future at the same rate until some other measure is passed?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. McCUMBER. Should we not act immediately upon it through some committee authorized to act on the subject?

Mr. TELLER. The committee on this subject can to-morrow morning, if they choose, present a bill. They do not have to take this bill as the basis of their action. Any member of the committee can introduce a bill here. The committee can do it as a committee. Individual members of the committee can do it as individuals. They are not tied up or hampered.

Now, I do not know whether all of these salaries are to be complained of. Some of them, I think, might be properly criticised. Some of them I do not think probably could be criticised. That is the province of the Canal Committee, if it sees fit to take it up.

But it is not an appropriation committee. It has never had the authority of this body to present an appropriation bill. I will venture to say, Mr. President, that no committee of the Senate has ever in its history attempted to take an appropriation bill until there had been a rule of the Senate, carefully considered and deliberately passed, authorizing it to take charge of the bill. The Committee on Interoceanic Canals are assuming here that they have superior ability to handle this question, and they are insisting—at least that seems to be the theory of the Senator who catechised me a moment since—that they must have an appropriation bill on which to put this legislation.

Mr. President, there is a rule of the Senate which prohibits them, even if they were an appropriation committee, as it prohibits the established general Appropriation Committee, from introducing on an appropriation bill general legislation. I agree with the Senator from South Carolina that again and again we have abused that rule, not because the committee brought such amendments here, but because the Senate time and again in the last twenty-five years have said, when an appropriation bill was before the Senate, "This is an appropriate and proper time to put on legislation." Therefore the Senate and not the committee have put upon the bills such legislation.

I do not mean to say—it is not a question presented—that if the proposition were made here to give to the Canal Committee jurisdiction of every question touching this subject I would not vote for it, but I know and they know that they now have jurisdiction of the question whether the salaries are proper. They now have jurisdiction of all questions of any importance connected with this subject, except it may be merely the one of appropriating money. I can see an argument in favor of allowing the committee to take charge of the question of future appropriations. I can see that they ought, of all committees, to determine the question, if we attempt to determine it at all, what shall be the character of the canal—whether it shall be a canal with a lock 90 feet high, or whether it shall be a canal with a lock of 60 feet or 30 feet, or whether it shall be a sea-level canal.

Mr. President, those are the questions to which the committee should address themselves. It will add nothing to their glory, nothing to their strength, nothing to their reputation to pass on the pending bill. These other questions are immediate questions that the American people want the committee to settle, and not whether we shall pay a dept which has been incurred legally and properly. Whether it has in every instance been judiciously incurred with respect to the amount of the salaries, is a matter left to the discretion of the President. I am not prepared to say that he has abused his discretion, and if he did abuse it, it does not make any difference; Congress has to pay it, and Congress ought to pay it like men. The Canal Committee would not dare to come in here and say they had reduced salaries on an appropriation bill, and if they did, whatever I might think about it, I would vote that that was a question, owing to the fact that we authorized the President to fix the salaries, which we ought to take up and settle with care and not with haste.

This bill, by every rule of the Senate, by every tradition, should go to the Committee on Appropriations, and unless the Senate is prepared to record here now its lack of faith in the intelligence and integrity of that committee it will not vote to send the bill to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals. Let the chairman of that committee come here to-morrow and put in an amendment of the rules, if he wants control and the committee wants control of these appropriations, and the Senate will deal with it and determine whether there is just and proper ground to say that the Committee on Interoceanic Canals can handle that question better than the established Committee on Appropriations, and the proceeding will be dignified and in accordance with the usual practice of the Senate.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I think the policy of the Senate in regard to appropriations has been long and well settled. All appropriation measures go to the Committee on Appropriations, and the only cases in which appropriation bills have been taken from that committee have been, as the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] has said, by a special rule removing an entire bill, covering an entire subject; and it has been done without reference to any specific case. This is a proposal not to take an appropriation bill away from the Committee on Appropriations and give it to another committee, but to take a certain appropriation relating to a specific subject and hand it over to another committee. We have pending no appropriation bill for the completion and maintenance of the Panama Canal. It is an incidental expense so far. If the Senate wants to make the canal the subject of a separate bill and to make a rule covering it, as they have covered the post-office and post-roads, the military, and the naval bills, that is the proper way to deal with it.

But I submit suddenly to take a deficiency bill, as this is, from the committee where it has always been and give it to a committee whose functions have thus far been purely legislative is violative of all our practice, and I think a dangerous proceeding. I have the honor to be chairman of the Committee on the Philippines, a committee constituted to deal with a new and distinct subject. That committee has reported many measures, some of them involving a great deal of expense. I have tried to the best of my ability to defend and maintain the prerogatives of that committee, but it never occurred to me that we had any right to take charge of appropriations connected with the Philippine Islands. There have been naval appropriations connected exclusively with those islands; there have been military appropriations connected exclusively with the Philippine Islands; but it never occurred to me that those ought to go to my committee. We have left appropriations to certain defined committees, committees which would bring in a bill solely for the purpose of appropriation.

Nothing is better settled, Mr. President, to take another example in the practice of the Senate, than the control of the Committee on Foreign Relations over treaties. We have reported more than once to the Senate and had ratified treaties carrying the necessity of a large appropriation. In order to carry out the treaty it was necessary to make a large appropriation, as in the case of the treaty with Spain. But I do not think it has ever occurred to anyone that because the Committee on Foreign Relations was responsible for the action which necessitated the appropriation the appropriation in any sense came within their jurisdiction.

If we are to turn the canal appropriations over to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals it ought to be done, as all other changes of appropriations have been made, by a separate rule giving them control of it, not as an isolated appropriation, but as a bill devoted to that specific subject.

It has been said that we violate constantly the rule against putting legislation on appropriation bills. I think we do, and very unwisely, but that does not affect the merit of the rule or the good service that it does in a great many ways.

I believe it is always unfortunate to mix legislation and appropriations, if it can possibly be avoided. If these salaries are to be cut down and fixed by law, then the committee having control of legislation ought to do it, and it ought not to be done on an appropriation bill. We have all of us, I think, at times attempted to get changes of salaries or advances through an appropriation bill, but that is one direction in which legislation has always been refused.

Mr. President, I have no possible interest in this question, except the general one of the good business of the Senate, for I am a member of neither committee. It seems to me that to take this bill, which is to all intents and purposes a deficiency bill, and remove it from the committee to which all deficiency bills are given and put it into the hands of another committee, which is a legislative committee charged with most important legislative duties, and begin by mixing it up with legislation from that committee and using it as a foundation for legislation in regard to salaries, would be most prejudicial to the conduct of the business of the Senate.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, the question of reference, which is the only one now before the Senate, it seems to me to be controlled by the question as to what is the present rule. If it be true, and I am inclined to think it is, that under the rule this subject-matter belongs to the Appropriation Committee, I can see no reason why this particular deficiency bill should go to any other committee.

Now, as to the general merits of the question, I am not prepared to say but that the subject of appropriations for the canal should belong to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, and when that question comes before the Senate in a proposition to change the present rule of the Senate, it is possible I may give my vote in favor of the jurisdiction over such appropriations being thereafter exercised by that committee.

There is, however, in this connection one matter which I think will have to be practically dealt with, and the solution of which strikes me as one of some difficulty. There can be no question of the fact that Congress ought to exercise its discretion, and I should say its duty, in seeing that salaries and all expenditures for the canal are kept within proper bounds; and yet I am at a loss to see how, except in the making of appropriations, Congress can control the expenditures relating to the salaries of officers and the wages of employees and other expenditures of like character.

It will be found to be an extremely difficult if not an impossible thing to prescribe salaries for the vast army of officers and of employees that will be necessary in the construction of the canal. There are but five officers specified in the canal act whose salaries, as the law now exists, could be prescribed by law. Of course, before salaries can be prescribed, the officers must be identified and specified by law, and the only officers who are identified and specified by the existing law are the five Commissioners.

This is a matter, Mr. President, not entirely for the first time now considered by me, because it so happens that I am the author of the section of the law which relates to the creation of the Canal Commission, and the question as to the regulation of the salaries, or prescribing the salaries, was considered by me to some extent at the time I undertook to frame that provision of the existing law.

Mr. MORGAN. You did not put anything of that sort in your amendment, did you?

Mr. BACON. If the Senator will pardon me a moment, I will endeavor to state exactly what the case is. The law directing the construction of the canal, as everyone knows, originated in the bill which was framed and introduced by the senior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER]. As thus introduced by him it did not contain a provision for the creation of a commission. The provision in the present law requiring the appointment of a commission was added to the bill by an amendment drawn and offered by myself. In endeavoring to frame this provision of the law creating the canal commission, I was confronted by the impossibility of prescribing salaries of officials unless you could prescribe who the officers should be. This was impracticable, because no one, however familiar he might be with such a vast work, could anticipate and provide for all the details of the work and prescribe the number and character of the officers it would require. For that reason it was necessary to make a provision for the fixing of salaries of officers and wages of employees as it is done in the existing law, to wit, by the Commission, with the approval of the President. The existing law gives to the President of the United States the power to fix the salaries of the Commissioners, and then, providing for the appointment of other officers and men, it gives to the Commission the fixing of their salaries, with the approval of the President.

And, sir, the same difficulty that presented itself to me when I was endeavoring to frame the amendment requiring the appointment of a Commission confronts us now.

In what way, Mr. President, will it be possible for either of these committees to recommend legislation with reference to the salaries which are to be enjoyed by these officers and employees unless we shall first say who the officers and employees shall be? The only way, it occurs to me, that it is possible to correct any extravagance in salaries is in limiting the appropriations made for their payment. It has been suggested by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] that where the service has already been rendered of course the salaries must be paid. Conceding that to be true, a large part of this appropriation is not for salaries which have already been earned, but for salaries which are hereafter to be earned by the same officers between now and the expiration of the present fiscal year.

Mr. TELLER. I should like to suggest to the Senator that while that statement is probably accurate as the bill came before the House, the very purpose of the House in striking off the $5,000,000 and something was to make it apply only to the salaries and expenditures already incurred. The difficulty was that they could not tell from the report exactly what was the amount, and so they guessed somewhat at it.

Mr. LODGE. May I ask the Senator from Georgia a question?

Mr. BACON. Certainly.

Mr. LODGE. In all the many salaries that this Government pays are there any that are fixed on appropriation bills?

Mr. BACON. No, there are not, so far as I know, except it is practically done in certain cases. I think I am correct in saying that even where the law fixes a salary at one figure the Appropriation Committee sometimes appropriates a less amount for the payment of the salary of the officer. I think I am correct, and if I am incorrect the Senator from Iowa will correct me in the statement that this has sometimes occurred.

Mr. TELLER. Oh, yes.

Mr. BACON. I think that is the case. I think it will be found to be so.

Mr. TELLER. I should like to suggest, if the Senator will allow me, that the Committee on Appropriations sometimes makes a less appropriation than the amount at which the law fixes the salary.

Mr. BACON. That is exactly what I meant and endeavored to say.

Mr. TELLER. They do not change the statute; they leave it there.

Mr. BACON. The Senator misunderstood me if he so understood me to say. I meant to say exactly what the Senator from Colorado now says, that there have been in many instances an appropriation for the payment of an officer less than the amount fixed by the law as his salary.

Mr. LODGE. Are there any cases where the office is created in an appropriation bill—I mean practically are there any cases?

Mr. BACON. I do not know of any, and there is nothing which I am saying or endeavoring to say——

Mr. LODGE. That is just what I was going to ask the Senator.

Mr. BACON. There is nothing which I said intended to suggest that there should be any such legislation on an appropriation bill.

Mr. LODGE. In this case, in order to reach those offices where some persons think the salary is too large, would it not be necessary first to create them by law? Because they now exist under a general law according to the President's direction.

Mr. BACON. That is the very difficulty to which I was endeavoring to call the attention of the Senate, the difficulty of legislating with reference to a salary unless there is an office fixed by law. The only officers whose positions are fixed by law in this particular case are the five Commissioners. Of course it is perfectly within the competency of Congress to say that the five Commissioners shall receive only a certain amount, but how we can make any general law which will apply to anyone who is not himself an officer recognized by the law I do not understand.

This is the only way I can see that the difficulty can be met. When we come to appropriate and a particular instance is called to the attention of Congress or of the Senate, this body dealing particularly with the matter, that a particular officer, such a one for instance as has been instanced, who is receiving $10,000 when possibly $5,000 might be considered as a proper salary, it would be competent in the bill appropriating the money to say that that particular person, occupying such a position and discharging such and such duties, should thereafter receive only such an amount, and make an appropriation in accordance with the same.

I see that I have the approval of the distinguished and honored chairman of the Committee on Appropriations [Mr. ALLISON], and it encourages me to repeat what I said in the beginning, that I do not see how any committee, either the Interoceanic Canals Committee or the general Appropriations Committee, can deal with the subject of salaries by general legislation. If evil there be, it can only be met and coped with by some such method as that which I have suggested, by limiting in the appropriation bill the amount which is to be received by a person discharging certain duties, and in the absence of that there is no other way to do it that I see, except for Congress to undertake the Herculean and impossible task of saying what shall be this vast army of officers and employees and by fixing the salary of each.

For that reason it seems to me, Mr. President, that we are met by quite a difficulty when we come to carry out the suggestion which has been made here by more than one Senator on each side of this question—that one committee should deal with legislation and the other committee deal with appropriations. It seems to me, as a first impression, that the committee which is to scrutinize all these expenditures and to determine whether those relating to salaries, as well as other expenditures, are upon a proper scale should also have charge of the appropriation bill for the work of the canal, because I can see no way in which the remedy can be applied except in limiting the appropriations in each case where a reduction is required. This scrutiny will be a vast work of innumerable detail, and will involve a labor requiring the entire attention of any committee.

I think it true, of course, that there are many subjects matter of detail connected with this work which can be dealt with by legislation; but I am speaking of the matter of salaries and wages and like expenditures. I may be wrong, but it is worthy of suggestion to Senators who can give thought to it that it is impossible by general legislation to fix the matter of these salaries certainly, unless we are prepared first to define who shall be the officers and then say what their salaries shall be. While the present inclination of my mind is in favor of giving the entire subject of canal appropriations to the Canal Committee, in my judgment the present rule of the Senate requires that this bill shall go to the Appropriations Committee.

Mr. DANIEL. To my mind, Mr. President, this proposition is a plain one. This is an appropriation bill to discharge an obligation already incurred by the Government of the United States. We have made debts. We are obliged to pay them. No one has any notion of repudiating them after the fact of incurring the obligation, and in natural and in due course this bill should, of course, be referred to the Committee on Appropriations, the committee designated and formed by the Senate for the purpose of discharging the function which we are invited to perform by the very tenor of the bill.

It has been suggested that a legislative committee formed for wholly distinct and divergent purposes should be the recipient of this reference. That would seem to be a strange suggestion, one out of the due and orderly course of our daily administration.

It has been said that would be convenient to the views entertained by some gentlemen that these salaries are too extravagant. That thought suggests itself in another direction, but not to the reference of this bill. It may be that at the proper time the question will be debatable upon this floor as to whether or not it were wise to repose the power, ordinarily pertaining to the legislative body, to designate the salaries and to apportion the salaries of administrative offices. But that has been done. We are dealing with facts accomplished and not with facts proposed.

It has been suggested that one committee will find it convenient to propose legislation to accompany this bill. No one committee of this body has an iota of privilege in that respect that does not pertain to every other committee. The committee to whom it is suggested to refer the bill has no range of purview one inch beyond what belongs to the Appropriations Committee.

As I read the rule, Mr. President, let me suggest that this is not a general appropriation bill. It is a special appropriation bill. It is not a general deficiency bill, but a special deficiency bill as to revenue about certain things. Anyone on the floor of the Senate has a right to offer an amendment to the bill. Any committee to which it may be referred, whether you call it the Appropriations Committee or the Interoceanic Canals Committee, no matter what its name, may amend the bill, and any Senator here, who has spoken in a contrariwise direction to these thoughts, has the right here to offer his amendment and have it duly considered; at least that is the case as I read the rule.

I can not see, Mr. President, that any consideration whatever has been suggested which should induce the Senate to depart from its ordinary, from its natural, and from its customary method of action.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. President, if I were to consult my personal wishes about this matter I would try to escape from the labor and the responsibility of considering this very important bill in the committee of which I have the honor to be a member. I would devolve that duty entirely upon the great committee which has been so long established in the Senate and which has so long engineered the financial operations of the United States. But I see that the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] is giving some attention to what I am saying, and I wish to call his attention to the fact that the part of the appropriation bill we are considering is the first section, which I will read for his information, if he has not heard it read. The first section of this bill, relating to the financing of the canal and containing no appropriation, should go to the Senator's Committee on Finance, where I think the bankers are eagerly hoping and expecting that it will receive his paternal care.

I will read the first section:

That the bonds authorized by section 8 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, shall be subject to the provisions of section 13 of the act entitled "An act to define and fix the standard of value, to maintain the parity of all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, to refund the public debt, and for other purposes," approved March 14, 1900, the same as though said bonds were issued under the provisions of said act of March 14, 1900.

Section 2 then starts out bravely with the proposition—

That there is hereby appropriated—

Not any money to carry into effect section 1. Everybody knows that no money is required to carry into effect section 1. None is provided in this bill. When I saw that, from the other side of the Chamber, there was considerable anxiety, and, perhaps, some feeling about the destiny of this bill as to its consideration in committee, I was wondering to myself what could be the cause of this trouble; and when I heard the big guns from that side of the Chamber turn loose upon it in such a strenuous way I concluded that there was a great deal more here than the question of appropriation.

Now, the peculiar feature of this bill is in the first section. That is a legislative feature. It is intended to make these bonds available for banking. That is all of it. How much appropriation is there in that? Why can not the committee which has charge of the canal take into consideration the provision of the fund that may be necessary hereafter, without further appropriation, if you please, from Congress, in order to go on with the work of completing the canal? Giving to the President of the United States, as the law now is, or as it is conceded to be on all sides of the Chamber, the right to expend this money in any way and to any amount and upon anybody that he chooses, without any question being asked, even by the Congress of the United States. All that vast amount, $130,000,000, to be raised on these bonds is to be, under the provisions of this act, thrown into the hands of the President. When he gets that I suppose he will feel at liberty to turn his heels or his back upon Congress and say, "I do not need any more appropriation from you; I have got $130,000,000 here, which I can sell bonds to raise. I have enough for present needs. When more is wanted, I will inform Congress."

The bankers of the United States are far more interested in the passage of this bill as an emergency bill than are the people of the United States or the Congress of the United States. They want to handle these bonds. They want us by this legislation to place these bonds on the footing of bonds that can be made the basis of banking in the United States. That is the great question in this bill. Senators know that they have as much power and right to vote upon this salary question on a bill reported from the Committee on Interoceanic Canals as upon a bill reported by the old and substantial Committee on Appropriations of this body. So it makes no difference where the bill comes from. We will still be allowed to offer amendments, unless under some rule of the Senate they are out of order—and I do not think they are—for the purpose of limiting the salaries upon this bill, or for the purpose of ascertaining how much money shall be paid to each of these individuals as salaries in proportion to the work he has done, in proportion to the rules and requirements of justice and equity.

So far from its being an appropriation bill, it is a bill strictly legislative in its character. Its most important formidable feature is in the first section, which everybody will admit contains no hint of an appropriation. Then, as to an appropriation for a deficiency, it is alleged on all sides here that that deficiency has occurred. I am not satisfied that any deficiency has occurred. I understand a deficiency to mean an insufficiency of money to carry on the operations of the Government not hitherto supplied by Congress, which in consequence of certain embarrassments or certain exigencies the authorities have promised to pay in excess of the amount appropriated.

No appropriation has ever been made by the Congress of the United States for any salary whatever to any officer of the canal. Those appropriations have been left to the discretion of the President by the application of a bulk sum, to be distributed by him as he sees proper. It is impossible for me to conceive of a deficiency existing under the laws of the United States, in such conditions, unless somebody has outreached his authority in creating obligations upon the United States. If such a thing as that has occurred, it ought to be stopped right now. We have got a canal to build which is going to cost at the very least $300,000,000, and when we have expended $300,000,000 we shall not have a canal. At the same time we must go on and expend it; and I am going to vote with you to spend every dollar you want. But how is it to be when we approach the end of the job? Suppose, in the meantime, under the conditions that now exist, when everything is left to the discretion of the President as to expenditure, when we approach the distant day when this canal shall be completed, we find that the $300,000,000 appropriated by Congress has been expended and another $100,000,000 contracted for by the President of the United States remains as a deficiency. We are now laying the predicate for such a situation in this bill. We ought to begin to define deficiency in respect of this matter; as to who has the power to create it, and by what means he will create the deficiency. Before we pass upon this very important question the Senate ought at least to have an estimate of the actual deficiency—not the round sum, but an estimate of the particulars in which the deficiency exists or has occurred. We find at this early day that such restrictions are necessary for the safety of the Treasury.

From debates in the House of Representatives upon this subject I would suppose—I know nothing about it personally—that this deficiency consists largely in the payment of extraordinary salaries, which have exhausted the funds hitherto appropriated for canal construction; also in the purchase of material that perhaps will not be used for five or ten years to come; and for various other matters which have been contracted for by persons—not salaried officers, not officers appointed under law, not officers whose tenure is limited or whose authority is prescribed by law, but officers appointed by the President, whose salaries are fixed by the President, and paid by the President, and so forth.

What right have these men, in this nebulous and unorganized state, when there is not a Senator on this floor who knows the names of the officers that are known—what right have these men to contract debts against the United States to the amount of $18,000,000, and what right have we to call it a deficit when it is only a gross violation of statute laws?

The question whether or not there is a deficit is one to be inquired into. I think, Mr. President, that the Committee on Interoceanic Canals is quite as capable of ascertaining whether there is any deficit as is the Committee on Appropriations, for the Committee on Appropriations can only ascertain what is the deficit, if there is any, by reference to some statute law. The Committee on Interoceanic Canals may find a way to ascertain that the deficit exists that we are obliged to shoulder rather than inflict reproach upon the Administration; they may find a way to do it; but before they find their way to do that they have to state some reason, some principle, upon which this deficit has been lawfully contracted. So it is not a deficit.

What about the emergency? Is there any emergency about paying these debts? What are they? To whom are they due? Under what contract? Are they due to foreigners who have sold goods to the Panama Canal Company or foreigners who have sold goods to the Isthmian Canal Commission in England or Germany or France and have sent them over here for the purpose of avoiding our tariff duties upon them? Are they debts to those people, or are they due to American citizens, who are under the disability of having a large duty imposed on everything that they import from abroad and therefore are manufacturing goods at an enormous profit under the cover and shelter of that protection? I want to know; I have a right to know; and the Committee on Interoceanic Canals is quite as able to ascertain that—not speaking of myself, of course—as is the Committee on Appropriations. Look at the majority of that committee, Mr. President—the Republican majority of that committee. There is not an abler body of men in this Senate than is on the Republican majority of that committee. They may not be as venerable as some, but they are as able as the venerables have ever been or are now. Why should we withdraw this bill from them in order to get a higher range of Republican ability to pass upon Republican measures? I can not quite understand the logic of that situation, nor do I believe that that is the motive.

I think the whole business is to jam through this bank feature in the first section of this bill. I have not expressed any opinion about what my vote will be in committee or anywhere else upon that bank feature, but it is a subject for discussion, for very grave consideration here, whether the banks of the United States—how many thousand are there, six, or seven, or eight thousand national banks?—shall meet in their congresses and come to the conclusion that the Government of the United States shall not raise any money on its bonds to build a canal unless it will give them the privilege of banking upon those bonds. We may think that privilege is too large now; we may prefer to increase the rate of interest from 2 to 3 per cent rather than give the banks the opportunity of throttling the Government and saying, "You shall not build the canal until you pay us a part of these profits." There are questions and questions and questions involved in the first section of this bill that are as far from the question of appropriation as is the sun from the earth. All this is a makeshift and a make-pretense when we call this an appropriation bill or when we call it a deficiency bill or when we call it an emergency bill.

What is the urgency? Are you going to hold up the canal until you get the money? You have done that already, you are holding it up now, and not working upon it, and your chief of engineers has so stated it in printed papers, in the magazines. Mr. Shonts has stated that he has stopped work now, not because you have not got the money or the credit, but because you have not settled the plan of canal after working upon it for fully three years. You have been considering legislation upon the Spooner law and the discussion which followed that upon the treaty and other matters. For three years you have been trying to come to some conclusion about what the plan of the canal should be, and we are as far from it to-day as we were three years ago. Now, the plan of that canal is the real emergency. Until that plan is before Congress and has been acted upon, there can be no wise legislation in respect to the canal.

Already, Mr. President, the history of the Panama Canal is fully as bad as the first three years of the history of the old De Lesseps Panama Canal—not perhaps so deeply stained with fraud and graft, as it is called, but as to reckless expenditure, as to the wasteful use of the money of the people, as to the carelessness as to what the results are going to be, as to insufficiency and incompleteness of knowledge of what we are doing, and what we can do, we are as far in the woods to-day as the De Lesseps canal was three years after it was projected; and we have gone on with this job for three dreadful years. That is the emergency. It is to keep up appearances and our national eclat and reputation for doing things that emergency appropriations are demanded to supply unlawful deficiencies.

But in view of the fact that there is no plan for the canal, in view of the fact that Doctor Gorgas has been running his hygienic measures with great success, it appears, but at the loss of five or six months of working time on the canal; in view of that enormous and terrible handicap resting upon the whole business, when our agents have driven away those who have not deserted and gone home, and have discharged others and sent them away and have suspended work, waiting for more patent excavators and the like of that, and have created $18,000,000 of debt, which there is not a dollar appropriated to pay, there arises this emergency deficit that can only be accounted for by failure to do things—a deficiency created by men who had no authority, or even color of law, under which to create it, and you come here and call it not only a deficiency, but an emergency deficiency! The emergency, Mr. President, is in the situation I have just been describing. There is no true emergency here.

When the Committee on Appropriations reports this bill to the Senate—if the bill shall be referred to that committee—I think I might afford a little effort at prophecy by saying they will probably bring back the first section without amendment. I think I might do that. They might probably retort upon me, "Why, your Interoceanic Canal Committee will do the same thing." They might go still further, and say I would vote for it if I could not make it any better. They might do that; but when that bill comes into the Senate, when somebody gets up and proposes an amendment to it, they will say that is new legislation on an appropriation bill; and out it goes. We do not want gentlemen to be hampered and confined in any such strait as that. We do not want to have the rules of the Senate to lock our tongues and our mouths and prohibit us from asking for a vote upon a motion to amend the first section. Then it will be a regular appropriation bill, an emergency appropriation bill, to meet a deficit. Of all bills in the world which will not bear outside legislation, general legislation outside of its particular phraseology, this is that bill. The minority, whoever they may be, or the majority who think we are paying too much tribute to the banks and had better raise the percentage of interest from 2 to 3 per cent rather than to accommodate the banks in their demand upon us, will be silenced by the rule of the Senate. This is an appropriation bill, it will be said, and being such, and coming from the Committee on Appropriations, it is not liable to amendment by any proposition that has any feature or symptom of general legislation in it, and there we are.

Mr. President, when this bill goes to that Appropriations Committee, it being the first effort at appropriation in respect of the canal in any detail by Congress, the precedent will be established, and the honorable gentlemen who have charge of that committee, the majority of it—the minority is, of course, beyond all expression weak—these gentlemen will find themselves bereft of all power to control this canal, for the real control of the canal will be in the regulation of the appropriations.

This is not a general bill of appropriations; it is not a bill to provide for deficiencies created to carry on the Government. It is a special appropriation bill, and therefore it is not really and properly subject to the rules which are invoked here to-day, that all appropriation bills shall go to the Committee on Appropriations. Now, when these gentlemen get hold of this bill, old and venerable and distinguished and able, as they are, they will sit down, Mr. President, and they will commence manufacturing a lot of offices and distributing the money among them in a purely legislative way. They are obliged to do it—to manufacture the offices, first, by legislation, and distribute the money and come back here and ask us to accept it. They have been pluming themselves on the fact, and I have been greatly comforted so long as I have been in the Senate by the fact, that the Appropriations Committee could not legislate; for, if they had the power to appropriate the money and could legislate also, Mr. President, it would be like uniting the sword and purse in the hands of the President of the United States—a dangerous thing to do, even with that magnificent body of gentlemen who have so long, so ably, and so faithfully served this country and never yet have made a slip of it. But there is a younger generation coming along here, and we do not know exactly what they are going to do. There may be some ambitious men among them, who would like to take the same liberties with the Treasury of the United States that the President takes, and they would say, "Send your bills here, if there is any color of money in them at all; send your bills to us, and we will legislate upon the bills first, and next make the appropriations." If there is anything more important than the exercise of that function that the Committee on Appropriations in the Senate of the United States exercises in such a conservative way of being the distributors, according to their judgment, of as much money as we are able to pay under laws that exist, it is that they are without the right or the privilege of making any enactment of law. That is the proposition that stands best and truest, and will stand longest in favor of the rectitude of the legislation of the Government of the United States.

I regret very much to see the anxiety of these gentlemen in reaching out for legislative powers when they have proclaimed for so many years here, and so righteously, that Congress ought not to put anything in their reach that looked like legislation or put upon their bills anything that looked like legislation. Let them act according to their professions and renounce every opportunity that comes to them to unite the legislative and the appropriations function. Instead of that, we find them to-day in anxious pursuit of this new scheme, where the legislative power and the appropriation power are united in respect to all the future transactions of this great and lamentable concern that we call the Panama Canal. I expected to see the aged gentlemen, Senators on that Appropriations Committee, rise and say, "We renounce the temptation you place before us to control this big canal business." But I am afraid that when they were considering the first section and saw the banking operation of it and the bond operation of it they lost their virtue for a moment and forgot themselves, and here they are crying out and clamoring for a chance to pass a banking bill upon this pretended appropriation bill for an isthmian canal. Why not leave that provision out? Why send that to them? When you refer that to them in preference to referring it to a legislative committee, you declare that it is a subject of appropriation, not a subject of legislation, and when you make that declaration, Mr. President, you violate all the truths which can be written in the English language.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] to refer the bill to the Committee on Appropriations. [Putting the question.] The Chair is in doubt.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BULKELEY (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. RAYNER]. If he were present, he would vote "nay" and I should vote "yea."

Mr. MARTIN (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator form Illinois [Mr. CULLOM]. If he were present, I should vote "yea."

Mr. PETTUS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. CRANE].

The roll call having been concluded, the result was announced—yeas 40, nays 23, as follows:

YEAS—40.

Aldrich	Burnham	Gallinger	Overman
Alger	Carter	Hale	Perkins
Allee	Clark, Wyo.	Hemenway	Simmons
Allison	Clarke, Ark.	Heyburn	Smoot
Ankeny	Daniel	Kean	Spooner
Bacon	Dolliver	Lodge	Stone
Berry	Flint	Long	Sutherland
Beveridge	Foraker	McCreary	Teller
Blackburn	Foster	Mallory	Warner
Brandegee	Frye	Nixon	Warren

NAYS—23.

Bailey	Dubois	Knox	Morgan
Burkett	Frazier	Latimer	Nelson
Carmack	Fulton	McCumber	Piles
Clapp	Gamble	McLaurin	Scott
Clay	Hopkins	Millard	Tillman
Culberson	Kittredge	Money

NOT VOTING—24.

Bulkeley	Depew	Hansbrough	Pettus
Burrows	Dick	McEnery	Platt
Burton	Dillingham	Martin	Proctor
Clark, Mont.	Dryden	Newlands	Rayner
Crane	Elkins	Patterson	Taliaferro
Cullom	Gorman	Penrose	Wetmore

So the bill was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. President, in the course of the remarks made by the Senator from Ohio [Mr. FORAKER] this morning I interrupted him to call his attention to a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in respect to the right and power of a State to authorize a railroad commission to fix rates within that State. I declared that the counsel for the railroad company in that particular case had contended against the validity of the law upon the express ground that it was a delegation of legislative power. It had been some years since I had read the case, and I was stating merely my recollection of it. I find that it is even stronger than I stated it. It was not the contention of the attorneys for the railroad only, but the court itself in the very beginning of the opinion states that as one of the arguments in support of the decree below, the court below having held the Mississippi statute unconstitutional. After stating the facts, Chief Justice Waite, who delivered the opinion of the court, continued:

> The argument in support of the decree below is:
> 1. That the statute under which the commissioners are to act impairs the obligation of the charter contract of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

It is fair to say that two distinguished justices dissented from the opinion of the court, basing their dissent upon the ground that the Mississippi act did not impair the obligation of the contract with the particular railroad which was a defendant in this case.

> 2. That it is, so far as that company is concerned, a regulation of commerce among the States;
> 3. That it denies the company the equal protection of the laws and deprives it of its property without due process of law;
> 4. That it confers both legislative and judicial powers on the commission, and is thus repugnant to the constitution of Mississippi; and
> 5. That it is void on its face by reason of its inconsistencies and uncertainties.

The court considers, in order, each ground stated, and referring to the fourth contention, that the act of the Mississippi legislature conferred both legislative and judicial functions upon the commission which the act created, the Supreme Court declared—dismissing it in one brief paragraph—

> The Supreme Court of Mississippi has decided in the cases of Railroad Commission v. Yazoo and Mississippi Railroad Company, and Railroad Commission v. Natchez, Jackson and Columbia Railroad Company—

My opinion is that is a misprint. It should be the Natchez, Jackson and Columbus—> not yet officially reported, that the statute is not repugnant to the constitution of the State "in that it creates a commission and charges it with the duty of supervising railroads. To this we agree, and that is all that need be decided in this case.

I take it that it will be difficult to distinguish—I mean to distinguish upon that particular objection—between the power of a State legislature to delegate its right to fix rates and the power of the Federal Congress to delegate its right to fix rates. If the State of Mississippi can create a commission and authorize that commission to fix the rates which the railroads should receive for their services in that State, and our highest court holds that not an unlawful delegation of the legislative power of that State, I am utterly unable to perceive how it can be successfully contended that a law of Congress empowering a commission created by Congress to substitute a reasonable for an unreasonable rate is an unwarranted delegation of our power.

Now, it is true, as suggested by the Senator from Ohio this morning, that this case only involved the validity of that law under the constitution of Mississippi, but as I suggested to him, neither the State court nor the United States Supreme Court predicates its decision upon any peculiar language of the constitution of Mississippi. Where the constitution had authorized and created a commission, as in the case of our own State, it might then be contended that there was a difference, but if it is a delegation of the legislative authority I doubt if a State, even by constitutional enactment, could make such a law valid, because I am inclined to think that the Supreme Court of the United States would hold that any law which authorized a commission to exercise the legislative functions of a State is not the due process of law as required by the Constitution of the United States.

In other words, I am inclined to think that the requirement that all property rights in this country shall be adjudicated and protected under the due process of law would lead the Supreme Court of the United States to hold a provision in a State constitution which authorized the delegation of its legislative power to be void and without effect.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, when during the discussion this morning the Senator from Texas called my attention to this case, I did not distinctly recall what the case was. But after I took my seat I sent to the Library and got the case, and I find it not to be in conflict with what I had stated, in answer to which the Senator cited the case. What I stated was that I did not understand that it had been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, in any case or by any other court, that legislative power could be constitutionally delegated to a commission such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, or any other tribunal.

Mr. BAILEY. Of course the Senator from Ohio did not understand me to assert that legislative power can be delegated?

Mr. FORAKER. No; certainly not. The Senator agreed with me on that general proposition, but differed with me as to the application of it.

I then went on to say that it was a delegation of legislative power to confer on a commission the power to fix specific rates, except only where they did it in an administrative way, illustrating it with some instances which I gave on the spur of the moment. However, I then sent for this case to see whether or not I was in error in the statement I had made that there was no decision of the Supreme Court in conflict with the statement in that respect which I had made. I find that the question that we were discussing is not involved in this case at all.

This was a case, Mr. President, where a suit was brought to enjoin the commissioners of the State of Mississippi from applying to the railroad that was complaining the provisions of a statute one section of which conferred on the railroad commissioners of that State the power to fix maximum rates. No maximum rate had been fixed. No action whatever had been taken under that statute by the railroad commissioners of the State of Mississippi. So the precise question we have been discussing was not involved. But the main question involved was whether or not that statute was in conflict with the charter of the railroad, which they claimed was in the nature of a contractual obligation, binding on the State, conferring upon the railroad the power to fix its own rates. The Supreme Court held that this legislation was not in conflict with that right which had been conferred upon the railroad in its charter; and it nowhere considered whether or not it was competent for the legislature to confer on the commission the power to make a rate. What it says upon that subject is that the State of Mississippi has the power to fix railroad rates. Nobody disputes that. The sovereignty of the State is supreme and complete, and it can do that.

Another and very different question arises as to the constitutional power of the United States, acting through Congress, to fix rates. It is very ably insisted by some lawyers that the power has not been conferred by the States upon the Federal Government to fix rates, even by an act of Congress. But I was careful to say I do not now agree with that proposition. There is a good deal to be said, however, in support of it.

Mr. BAILEY rose.

Mr. FORAKER. I was about to call attention to what the case really is and what the Court really decided.

Mr. BAILEY. If the Senator from Ohio will permit me to call his attention to one point, he can answer both at once.

Mr. FORAKER. Very well.

Mr. BAILEY. He now raises rather a different question. When I first interrupted the Senator it was with respect to what I understood him to say in reference to the delegation of legislative authority. I understood him to contend that to authorize the Commission to make rates was a delegation of legislative authority, and therefore not permissible.

Mr. FORAKER. Not in all cases.

Mr. BAILEY. Then in answer to that I called his attention to the decision in the Mississippi case. The Senator is mistaken when he says the court has never held that any State has a right to create a commission to fix rates. They precisely held that in the Reagan case. They held the rates as fixed by the railroad commission of Texas invalid and not enforceable, because they held that those particular rates were confiscatory. But they expressly held the law itself, which authorized the fixing of rates by a commission, to be a valid exercise of the power of the State. The Reagan case holds distinctly, unequivocally, and without any question that a State may create a commission and authorize it to fix railroad rates; and the rates when so fixed must be respected by the railroads unless they are confiscatory.

Mr. FORAKER. We will come to the Reagan case in due time. I want to get through with this case before I leave it. This is the case the Senator cited this morning. I sent to the Library for it. I have it here. I read it. I have it in my hand now. I want to point out what this case decides. I wish to show it does not decide any such thing—saying it with all proper respect—as that it is competent for the legislature to confer upon a commission the right to fix specific rates where it must exercise the legislative discretion that is involved in legislation.

Now, it will be borne in mind that I differentiated. I said this morning there might be a lawful authorization of a commission to fix rates where a rule was prescribed by the legislature that left nothing for that body to do except only to make a mathematical calculation or to make some sort of computation. They could do that—that is an administrative act—where it was necessary only to ascertain a state of facts to give effect and operation to something the legislature had declared should go into effect and operation when such a state of facts was declared to exist, as in the case of Field against Clark.

In the case which the Senator cited this morning I find the principal question involved was whether or not the provision made by the legislature of Mississippi, conferring on the commission the general power of regulation, including the power to fix maximum rates, was in violation of a charter provision under which the railroad was organized and took its franchises and was operating which conferred upon it the power to make its own rates. The Court held that there was no conflict.

The last paragraph of the syllabus shows what the court decided in that respect:

> The provisions of the statute of Mississippi of March 11, 1884, creating a railroad commission, are not so inconsistent and uncertain as to necessarily render the entire act void on its face—

Clearly indicating that there were a number of provisions, as they afterwards say in so many words, under which serious questions might arise, and undoubtedly would arise if the statute should be put into operation, upon which it was not necessary for the court then to pass and upon which it did not pass, but reserved the same until the questions actually arose.

Now, turning to the opinion of the Court, I call attention to the fact that what the Court says is this, which nobody disputes:

> It is now settled in this court that a State has power to limit the amount of charges by railroad companies for the transportation of persons and property within its own jurisdiction, unless restrained by some contract in the charter, or unless what is done amounts to a regulation of foreign or interstate commerce.

Nobody denies that the State has that power. The question whether or not the State, acting through the legislature, in attempting to exercise that power had the right to delegate it to a subordinate tribunal which the legislature created—and that is the question here involved—the Supreme Court does not pretend to pass upon. That is what it says at that point. Now, let me call attention to what the Court says further on. After discussing this whole subject, at page 331 the Court says, concluding that branch of the discussion:

> Under pretense of regulating fares and freights the State can not require a railroad corporation to carry persons or property without reward; neither can it do that which in law amounts to a taking of private property for public use without just compensation or without due process of law. What would have this effect we need not say now, because no tariff has yet been fixed by the Commission—

Reserving the whole subject about which we are having a discussion now—> and the statute of Mississippi expressly provides "that in all trials of cases brought for a violation of any tariff of charges as fixed by the Commission it may be shown in defense that such tariff so fixed is unjust.

Now, further, at the conclusion of the next paragraph, page 333, the Court, after pointing out the nature of the statute, that a portion of it relates to rates and a portion of it to ordinary police regulations, says:

> The first three of these relate entirely to proceedings for fixing charges and supervising the tariff, and the rest, like the correlative requirements of the company, are mere police regulations, which the commissioners are to enforce. All this comes clearly within the supervising power of the State in the administration of the affairs of its domestic corporations.

Nobody disputes that the State has the power to do that. The question is whether or not the State, acting through the legislature, shall exercise this power directly, or whether, being legislative in its character, it can confer the power upon some subordinate tribunal to represent it.

> We conclude, therefore, that the charter of the company contains no contract the obligation of which is in any way impaired by the statute under which the commissioners are to act.

That shows what the Court was discussing. Now, on page 334 the Court says:

> Every person, every corporation, everything within the territorial limits of a State is, while there, subject to the constitutional authority of the State government. Clearly under this rule Mississippi may govern this corporation, as it does all domestic corporations, in respect to every act and everything within the State which is the lawful subject of State government. It may, beyond all question, by the settled rule of decision in this court, regulate freights and fares for business done exclusively within the State.

That is as far as the Court goes, and nobody disputes that proposition. The State may do it. The State may by its legislature enact what shall be maximum rates, but the question is whether or not the State undertaking to exercise that undisputed power and authority has the right to constitute a subordinate tribunal and invest it with the legislative power which the constitution of the State has reposed in the legislature.

Now, I say that nowhere—I will address myself to the Reagan case after I have looked at it again, and if I am mistaken about it I will be only too glad to make proper acknowledgment of the same—I say that nowhere, according to my present understanding of these cases (and I have read all of them) has the Supreme Court said that the legislative power to make rates can be delegated to a commission. And when I say that I do not mean that the Court has not said that the power to make rates may be conferred on a commission. It can be; it has been; and it has been upheld, but always after the legislature has fixed a rule for the commission to be governed by in taking its action, which deprives the commission of the exercise of any legislative discretion. The differentiation is between investing the tribunal with legislative discretion and simply making it an administrative body.

Mr. President, that was recognized in the President's message. The Senator from Texas must have noted—he could not help it; his legal mind is such it could not possibly have escaped him—that the President was careful to say this power should be conferred on an administrative body; "purely administrative body," I think, was the language. To say it shall be purely administrative does not, however, make it so. It is a "purely administrative body," not because you name it such, but because the powers conferred on it make it such, if it be an administrative body at all.

You can not say that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have power to make rates, taking into consideration all the conditions that give rise to competition; that they shall exercise judgment as to the weight to be attached to this, that, and the other factors entering into a problem, and then arrive at a conclusion and make a rate. You can not say they can do that without investing them with legislative discretion.

Mr. SPOONER. Which is the legislative function in the operation to which the Senator has referred?

Mr. FORAKER. The legislative function is in fixing a rate that calls for the exercise of judgment, that calls for the exercise of discretion. There would be no legislative discretion if, as I said this morning, Congress were to say that the rate shall be so much on this or that or the other commodity per ton per mile, or if it should say the rate shall be so and so over a road earning so much per mile within a certain time. It would be a matter then of administration for the board to make a calculation upon and reach a conclusion in regard to it.

There is in such case no discretion. In the other case there is discretion, and that is the point which runs through all these authorities. That is a point which is not touched in this case at all.

It is getting late and we have a lot of other matters to attend to.

Mr. HALE. The Senator from Ohio is putting his point with great strength and vigor. What I would like from him is a statement upon the distinct point he is now touching, whether it is easy in a statute to draw this distinction or differentiation so as to make plain where the legislative power is kept in the legislative body and the administrative functions are imposed upon another body. Is that an easy thing to do? From his study and investigation of this great subject, has the Senator the belief that his proposition is easily translatable into statute language?

Mr. FORAKER. No, Mr. President; I do not think it is easy to make a law that is constitutional conferring on the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to make rates, because to make it constitutional Congress must prescribe the conditions that shall govern rates, so that there shall be nothing left to the Commission except that which is administrative or mere computation. I think it would be very easy for us to confer upon them the right to make rates at so much per ton per mile, but I think it would be very bad policy, and therefore I do not think there is any likelihood of our enacting legislation of that kind. We might find some other and easier way, but what I mean is that it is not easy, if you establish a rule by the conditions you name, to permit rates to be made as they always have been made in this country, as a result of competition and the operation of the laws and the forces of trade and commerce.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. President, a moment only. I agree with all the Senator from Ohio read from the opinion of the court in the Mississippi case, and my only complaint is that he did not read the only paragraph in the opinion which is precisely pertinent to the issue between him and me.

The Senate will remember that this morning, when the Senator from Ohio expressed the opinion that it was not competent for Congress to delegate, as he expressed it, its legislative power to the Commission, I inquired if I understood him to contend that the proposal to authorize the Interstate Commission to fix rates was such an unlawful delegation of our authority. He replied that I did, and then I reminded him rather inaccurately that the counsel for the railroads in the Mississippi case had urged that very contention, and that the court had overruled it. I sent for the decision, which I said a moment ago I had not read for several years, and I find it is even stronger than I stated; that it was not the contention of counsel only, but the restatement by the court itself of all the contentions in the case; and the court states one of the contentions to be that the law was invalid because it conferred judicial and legislative power upon that Commission.

I want to remind the Senator from Ohio, when he says that this case simply asserts the power of the State to control rates, that he overlooks the fact that the Court sustains the validity of the Mississippi law which created a commission to fix those rates. The very substance, the very essence of the law whose validity was sustained in the Stone case was the commission created by the legislature of Mississippi, which was given the power to fix rates, not so much per ton per mile, but they were given the power to fix rates.

My own opinion is that this tribunal which we commonly call a "railroad commission" is administrative rather than legislative; but to say that the legislature has the power to fix the rate and deny it the right to select the most appropriate and the only safe means of executing that power, would be, I venture to say, with all due respect to the Senator, an obvious absurdity. If the legislature have the power to fix the rate, then surely the legislature must have the power to create an administrative board to carry out its will; and that practically is what the court says in the Reagan case.

But if the Senator turns from the Mississippi case, overlooking the fact that that law was sustained when attacked, and when one of the very grounds of attack was that it was a delegation of legislative power, which the State was not competent to make——

Mr. FORAKER. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

Mr. BAILEY. I will. But I was right in the middle of a sentence.

Mr. FORAKER. Oh, I beg pardon.

Mr. BAILEY. I yield cheerfully.

Mr. FORAKER. I wish to call the attention of the Senator from Texas to the very limited extent to which the Supreme Court upheld this law.

They say on page 336:

The argument on this branch of the controversy—

As to the validity of the statute—contains much that might have been useful if addressed to the legislature while considering the bill before its final enactment, but we find nothing in it to show that the statute as it now stands is altogether void and inoperative.

Having pointed out that there were many things under the statute which would perhaps be held to be so, the question was all the while whether this general statute should be allowed to go into operation, and whether, if it did, it would violate the charter rights of the road, which it was contended were involved.

Mr. BAILEY. But the court would never have said it was a question addressing itself either to the judgment or the conscience of a legislature, if that legislature had undertaken to abdicate its legislative functions and to delegate them to another body. I venture to say that if a sovereign State should in its constitution solemnly provide that some other body than the legislature should exercise the legislative function and any man's rights were imperiled or destroyed under the decision of this nonlegislative body exercising legislative functions, he would find a ready redress for the wrong in the Federal courts of this country, and the Supreme Court of the United States, in my judgment, would unhesitatingly declare that he had been deprived of his property without due process of law. For a century, the Senate must know, one invariable test of the due process of law has been that legislatures must exercise legislative powers and courts must exercise judicial powers; and if a State should so far forget the wisdom of our system as to confer its legislative powers upon the court and clothe the legislature with the judicial function such an enactment would not stand the test of an hour's scrutiny in any enlightened court in this land.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Texas yield to the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. BAILEY. I do.

Mr. SPOONER. Of course, it has been held by the Supreme Court of the United States, as I remember, that the fixing of a rate to take effect in the future is a legislative function.

Mr. BAILEY. The court in the Reagan case says "legislative or administrative."

Mr. SPOONER. Very well; I think the Court changed that afterwards. But what I want to ask the Senator is whether the question of the reasonableness of a rate, having been fixed by a railroad company and challenged, is, in his opinion, an administrative question.

Mr. BAILEY. The reasonableness of that particular rate is a judicial question. The courts held——

Mr. SPOONER. I thought the Senator called it an administrative question.

Mr. BAILEY. No; the reasonableness of the rate established—the question as to whether it is reasonable or not—is a judicial inquiry or a judicial question, but the establishment of it is an administrative function, in my judgment. The court says in the Reagan case:

It is doubtless true——

Mr. SPOONER. Of course, if the Senator will allow me, I do not disagree with him. Whether a rate exacted from John Smith for a specified service be an unreasonable rate or not——

Mr. BAILEY. That is a judicial question.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator will agree with me that that is absolutely a judicial question.

Mr. BAILEY. I do; otherwise the court could not determine whether it was confiscatory or not.

Mr. SPOONER. Is the question whether that rate, having been held to be a reasonable rate, shall be effective in the future as a maximum rate, a matter of legal province, or is it legislative or is it administrative?

Mr. BAILEY. Is the Senator through with the question?

Mr. SPOONER. Yes.

Mr. BAILEY. I think it is an administrative, or rather a legislative, question, and then if the legislature desires that it shall be reduced, the extent to which it can be or may be reduced can be assigned by the legislature to an administrative board. Of course, when you present the question to a court as to the reasonableness of an existing rate, that question is determined by conditions existing then, determined not only by conditions existing at the time the railroad fixed the rate, but the court must take into consideration conditions existing at the time when it is called upon to pass its judgment.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President——

Mr. BAILEY. The Senator from Ohio will permit me to finish the quotation which I had begun from the Reagan case. The court in that case declares:

It is doubtless true, as a general proposition, that the formation of a tariff of charges for transportation by a common carrier of person or property is a legislative or administrative rather than a judicial function.

Further on in that very case the State of Texas contended that it was not a judicial question whether the rate existing was a reasonable one or not, but a purely legislative one, over which the courts had no control. The Supreme Court of the United States decided adversely to the contention of our State in that respect, and held they could pursue an inquiry into the reasonableness of these rates, and now for the last time I remind the Senator from Ohio that in that very case the Supreme Court declares the law of Texas constitutional, although the inferior court—and if it were parliamentary I would use the word "inferior" to describe the judge as well as the court—the inferior court held that the law was unconstitutional. The Supreme Court of the United States overruled that decree to that extent, but they enjoined the enforcement of the rate, because upon an elaborate consideration as to the value of the property and the schedule of the rates they held that those rates would not return a sufficient sum upon the property to protect the railroad in its rights; and that to enforce that schedule of rates would be confiscatory and therefore unlawful. Upon that ground only they enjoined not the law, for they set aside the decree of the court that held the law void, but they enjoined the enforcement of the tariff schedule adopted by the commission under the law.

Mr. FORAKER. I shall not undertake at this late hour of the evening to take up the discussion of the Reagan case. I will reserve until to-morrow or some other convenient time the right to make some remarks in answer to the Senator's comments upon that case. I think, in view of the pressure for executive business, I will wait until to-morrow or some other convenient time to call the Senator's attention to what is a lawful rate. My contention is that the statute has already fixed the lawful rate; and I want to speak in answer to the Senator's suggestion about the right of a court to enjoin everything that is exacted in excess of what is lawful. That is not making a rate. It is only giving effect to the rate that Congress has already prescribed.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. ALLISON submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Appropriations be, and is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary, to report such testimony as may be taken by the committee or its subcommittees in connection with appropriation bills, and to have the same printed for its use, and that such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. LODGE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After twenty minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 5 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, December 12, 1905, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 11, 1905.

ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSION.

Civil Engineer Mordecai T. Endicott, United States Navy, for appointment as a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, provided for by act of Congress approved June 28, 1902, entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," to which office he was appointed during the last recess of the Senate. This nomination is forwarded to supersede the nomination of Commissioner Endicott in which his title was given as that of rear-admiral, United States Navy. The change in title is necessary to make the same consistent with Navy Department regulations.

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Herman F. Cellerius, of Ohio, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of Ohio, to succeed Bernard Bettmann, resigned. Mr. Cellerius is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate. This nomination is to correct error in nomination made December 6, 1905, wherein Mr. Cellerius's name was spelled Cellarious.

DEPUTY AUDITOR.

S. John Abbott, of Delaware, to be Deputy Auditor for the Treasury Department, in place of Aloysius E. Bowling, deceased. Mr. Abbott is now serving under a temporary commission issued during the recess of the Senate.

SURVEYOR OF CUSTOMS.

William G. Dearing, of Kentucky, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky, to succeed Cicero M. Barnett, whose term of office will expire by limitation February 9, 1906.

NAVAL OFFICER OF CUSTOMS.

James O. Lyford, of New Hampshire, to be naval officer of customs in the district of Boston and Charlestown, in the State of Massachusetts. (Reappointment.)

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Infantry arm.

First Lieut. George B. Pond, Third Infantry, to be captain from October 6, 1905, vice Morrison, Twentieth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Dana T. Merrill, Twenty-third Infantry, to be captain from October 10, 1905, vice Bash, Seventh Infantry, detailed as commissary.

First Lieut. Alexander M. Wetherill, Thirteenth Infantry, to be captain from October 11, 1905, vice Rowan, Nineteenth Infantry, promoted.

First Lieut. Charles N. Murphy, Twenty-fifth Infantry, to be captain from October 29, 1905, vice Faison, Thirteenth Infantry, detailed as quartermaster.

First Lieut. Theodore A. Baldwin, jr., Twenty-fourth Infantry, to be captain from October 30, 1905, vice Andrus, Eighth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Harry W. Bathiany, Third Infantry, to be first lieutenant from September 22, 1905 (subject to examination required by law), vice McCook, Second Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Fred H. Turner, Twenty-third Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 4, 1905, vice Coleman, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Edwin O. Saunders, Twenty-ninth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 6, 1905, vice Pond, Third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Walter Krueger, Thirtieth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 10, 1905, vice Merrill, Twenty-third Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Beverly C. Daly, Thirteenth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 11, 1905, vice Wetherill, Thirteenth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Asa L. Singleton, Fifth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 24, 1905, vice Norwood, Twenty-third Infantry, resigned.

Second Lieut. Arthur L. Bump, Eighth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 29, 1905, vice Murphy, Twenty-fifth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Willis E. Mills, Ninth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 30, 1905, vice Baldwin, Twenty-fourth Infantry, promoted.

Second Lieut. Gilbert A. McElroy, Thirteenth Infantry, to be first lieutenant from October 30, 1905, vice Brandle, First Infantry, deceased.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS.

Samuel J. M. McCarrell, of Pennsylvania, to be United States attorney for the middle district of Pennsylvania. (A reappointment, his term expiring December 11, 1905.)

William A. Northcott, of Illinois, to be United States attorney for the southern district of Illinois, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate in the place of Thomas Worthington, term expired.

William E. Trautmann, of Illinois, to be United States attorney for the eastern district of Illinois, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate. An original appointment under the provisions of the act approved March 3, 1905, entitled "An act providing for an additional circuit judge in the seventh judicial circuit, and for the appointment of an additional judge for the northern district of Illinois, and for creating an additional district in the State of Illinois, to be known as the eastern district of Illinois, and for the appointment of a judge and other officers of said district, and for changing the boundaries of the districts in Illinois, and for establishing places for holding court in the several districts thus created."

Charles B. Morrison, of Illinois, to be United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate in the place of Solomon H. Bethea, appointed judge northern district of Illinois.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS.

Aulick Palmer, of the District of Columbia, to be United States marshal for the District of Columbia. (A reappointment, his term expiring January 8, 1906.)

Charles P. Hitch, of Illinois, to be United States marshal for the eastern district of Illinois, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate. An original appointment under the provisions of the act approved March 3, 1905, entitled "An act providing for an additional circuit judge in the seventh judicial circuit, and for the appointment of an additional judge for the northern district of Illinois, and for creating an additional district in the State of Illinois, to be known as the eastern district of Illinois, and for the appointment of a judge and other officers of said district, and for changing the boundaries of the districts in Illinois, and for establishing places for holding court in the several districts thus created."

Leon A. Townsend, of Illinois, to be United States marshal for the southern district of Illinois, who was appointed during the last recess of the Senate in the place of Charles P. Hitch, nominated to be United States marshal for the eastern district of Illinois.

RECEIVER OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

T. N. Allen, of Olympia, Wash., to be receiver of public moneys at Olympia, Wash., vice John O'B. Scobey, resigned.

COMMISSIONERS OF IMMIGRATION.

Hart H. North, of California, to be commissioner of immigration at the port of San Francisco, Cal. (Reappointment.)

Louis T. Weis, of Maryland, to be commissioner of immigration at the port of Baltimore, Md., to take effect on December 19, 1905. (Reappointment.)

George B. Billings, of Massachusetts, to be commissioner of immigration at the port of Boston, Mass., to take effect on December 17, 1905. (Reappointment.)

John J. S. Rodgers, of Pennsylvania, to be commissioner of immigration at the port of Philadelphia, Pa. (Reappointment.)

POSTMASTERS.

ALASKA.

Edward J. Williams to be postmaster at Ketchikan, in the district of Alaska. Office became Presidential July 1, 1904.

ARIZONA.

Frieda F. Mashbir to be postmaster at Safford, in the county of Graham and Territory of Arizona, in place of Kate Tuttle, resigned.

ARKANSAS.

S. W. Andrews to be postmaster at Walnut Ridge, in the county of Lawrence and State of Arkansas, in place of Mabel R. Sharum, resigned.

James R. Hudson to be postmaster at De Queen, in the county of Sevier and State of Arkansas, in place of James R. Hudson. Incumbent's commission expired January 31, 1905.

CALIFORNIA.

Richard J. Murphy to be postmaster at Folsom City, in the county of Sacramento and State of California, in place of Christian L. Ecklon, resigned.

FLORIDA.

George C. Crom to be postmaster at Ocala, in the county of Marion and State of Florida, in place of Henry C. Groves. Incumbent's commission expired January 17, 1904.

GEORGIA.

Annie Ard to be postmaster at Lumpkin, in the county of Stewart and State of Georgia. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Walter I. Cooper to be postmaster at Sylvania, in the county of Screven and State of Georgia. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Rutledge A. Griffin to be postmaster at Quitman, in the county of Brooks and State of Georgia, in place of Rutledge A. Griffin. Incumbent's commission expires December 11, 1905.

Thomas K. Heinsohn to be postmaster at Sylvester, in the county of Worth and State of Georgia. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

IDAHO.

J. M. Elder to be postmaster at Coeur d'Alene, in the county of Kootenai and State of Idaho, in place of David F. Mason, removed.

ILLINOIS.

Hibben S. Corwin to be postmaster at Peru, in the county of Lasalle and State of Illinois, in place of Hibben S. Corwin. Incumbent's commission expires December 18, 1905.

George H. Forster to be postmaster at Tonica, in the county of Lasalle and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

William H. Gilliam to be postmaster at Vienna, in the county of Johnson and State of Illinois, in place of William H. Gilliam. Incumbent's commission expires December 18, 1905.

Albert W. McIntire to be postmaster at Mendota, in the county of Lasalle and State of Illinois, in place of Albert W. McIntire. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Sidney B. Miller to be postmaster at Cairo, in the county of Alexander and State of Illinois, in place of Sidney B. Miller. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

George J. Patterson to be postmaster at Genoa, in the county of Dekalb and State of Illinois, in place of Carl B. Crawford, deceased.

William H. Voelpel to be postmaster at Morton, in the county of Tazewell and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Loren E. Wheeler to be postmaster at Springfield, in the county of Sangamon and State of Illinois, in place of Loren E. Wheeler. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

William Strassberger to be postmaster at Purcell, in District Eighteen, Indian Territory, in place of Benjamin L. Robertson, resigned.

INDIANA.

Lawrence V. Buskirk to be postmaster at Bloomington, in the county of Monroe and State of Indiana, in place of Lawrence V. Buskirk. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

William F. Coats to be postmaster at Columbus, in the county of Bartholomew and State of Indiana, in place of William A. Stevens. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

John W. Emison to be postmaster at Vincennes, in the county of Knox and State of Indiana, in place of Thomas H. Adams. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Samuel E. Gray to be postmaster at Terre Haute, in the county of Vigo and State of Indiana, in place of Samuel E. Gray. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Fred Kimbley to be postmaster at Orleans, in the county of Orange and State of Indiana, in place of Fred Kimbley. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

John McCartney to be postmaster at Scottsburg, in the county of Scott and State of Indiana, in place of John W. Martin, deceased.

Harry J. Martin to be postmaster at Franklin, in the county of Johnson and State of Indiana, in place of Harry J. Martin. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Charles T. Miller to be postmaster at Cannelton, in the county of Perry and State of Indiana, in place of Charles T. Miller. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Herman Miller to be postmaster at Hope, in the county of Bartholomew and State of Indiana, in place of Herman Miller. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Archie R. Orr to be postmaster at Carlisle, in the county of Sullivan and State of Indiana. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Taylor Reagan to be postmaster at Plainfield, in the county of Hendricks and State of Indiana, in place of Taylor Reagan. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

Joseph A. Yockey to be postmaster at Plymouth, in the county of Marshall and State of Indiana, in place of Joseph A. Yockey. Incumbent's commission expires December 12, 1905.

IOWA.

Edwin N. Bailey to be postmaster at Britt, in the county of Hancock and State of Iowa, in place of Edwin N. Bailey. Incumbent's commission expired January 16, 1905.

William W. Boylan to be postmaster at Hubbard, in the county of Hardin and State of Iowa, in place of William W. Boylan. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

H. E. Deater to be postmaster at Shenandoah, in the county of Page and State of Iowa, in place of C. N. Marvin. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

Frank C. Downey to be postmaster at Dexter, in the county of Dallas and State of Iowa, in place of Frank C. Downey. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

Rodney G. Hawkins to be postmaster at Wapello, in the county of Louisa and State of Iowa, in place of Rodney G. Hawkins. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

Elmer E. Johnston to be postmaster at Rockwell City, in the county of Calhoun and State of Iowa, in place of Elmer E. Johnston. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

Charles V. Hoffman to be postmaster at Oskaloosa, in the county of Mahaska and State of Iowa, in place of Charles V. Hoffman. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

John Morrison to be postmaster at Hedrick, in the county of Keokuk and State of Iowa, in place of John Morrison. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

Jacob Mummert to be postmaster at Prairie City, in the county of Jasper and State of Iowa, in place of Jacob Mummert. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

William H. Nolte to be postmaster at Holstein, in the county of Ida and State of Iowa, in place of William H. Nolte. Incumbent's commission expires December 16, 1905.

C. H. Smith to be postmaster at Rock Rapids, in the county of Lyon and State of Iowa, in place of William D. Junkin, resigned.

KENTUCKY.

John M. Kennedy to be postmaster at Monticello, in the county of Wayne and State of Kentucky. Office became Presidential January 1, 1905.

Thomas E. Myers to be postmaster at Greenup, in the county of Greenup and State of Kentucky. Office became Presidential July 1, 1905.

LOUISIANA.

Louise Alvarez to be postmaster at Covington, in the parish of St. Tammany and State of Louisiana, in place of Louise Alvarez. Incumbent's commission expired February 4, 1905.

B. F. Dudley to be postmaster at Mansfield, in the county of De Soto and State of Louisiana, in place of Isabel C. Taylor, removed.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Charles F. Bryant to be postmaster at Sharon, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, in place of Charles F. Bryant. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

William C. Hinman to be postmaster at Great Barrington, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts, in place of William C. Hinman. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

William I. Marble to be postmaster at Webster, in the county of Worcester and State of Massachusetts, in place of William I. Marble. Incumbent's commission expires December 18, 1905.

J. Henry Norcross to be postmaster at Medford, in the county of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts, in place of J. Henry Norcross. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

Eugene S. Thatcher to be postmaster at Housatonic, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts, in place of Eugene S. Thatcher. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

Orlando P. Robinson to be postmaster at Ayer, in the county of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts, in place of Orlando P. Robinson. Incumbent's commission expires December 18, 1905.

MICHIGAN.

Shelby C. Field to be postmaster at Sparta, in the county of Kent and State of Michigan, in place of Charles H. Loomis, deceased.

Wallace J. Smith to be postmaster at Cadillac, in the county of Wexford and State of Michigan, in place of Samuel J. Wall, deceased.

MINNESOTA.

H. W. Severns to be postmaster at West Concord, in the county of Dodge and State of Minnesota, in place of M. Miller Severns, deceased.

MISSISSIPPI.

W. T. Branch to be postmaster at Winona, in the county of Montgomery and State of Mississippi, in place of James M. Leverett, removed.

Anna Durham to be postmaster at Clarksdale, in the county of Coahoma and State of Mississippi, in place of Anna Durham. Incumbent's commission expires December 18, 1905.

Alice S. McLean to be postmaster at Greenwood, in the county of Leflore and State of Mississippi, in place of Alice S. McLean. Incumbent's commission expired February 1, 1902.

Rosa M. Ruff to be postmaster at Houston, in the county of Chickasaw and State of Mississippi. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Emma Pringle to be postmaster at McHenry, in the county of Harrison and State of Mississippi, in place of Robert C. Sharbrough, resigned.

MISSOURI.

Francis M. Harrington to be postmaster at Kirksville, in the county of Adair and State of Missouri, in place of Robert D. Hamilton, removed.

W. O. Keffer to be postmaster at Liberal, in the county of Barton and State of Missouri. Office became Presidential October 1. 1905.

Frank McKim to be postmaster at Tarkio, in the county of Atchison and State of Missouri, in place of Thomas T. Wilson, resigned.

MONTANA.

O. M. Baldwin to be postmaster at Stevensville, in the county of Ravalli and State of Montana, in place of William E. Baggs, resigned.

NEBRASKA.

Josiah Coombs to be postmaster at Spencer, in the county of Boyd and State of Nebraska. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Samuel G. Pheasant to be postmaster at Osceola, in the county of Polk and State of Nebraska, in place of Henry H. Campbell, resigned.

NEVADA.

Edward R. Collins to be postmaster at Goldfield, in the county of Esmeralda and State of Nevada. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Charles L. Bemis to be postmaster at Marlboro, in the county of Cheshire and State of New Hampshire. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Charles C. Wright to be postmaster at Plymouth, in the county of Grafton and State of New Hampshire, in place of Walter W. Mason, deceased.

NEW JERSEY.

William M. Bergen to be postmaster at Belmar, in the county of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, in place of Samuel L. Gillin, resigned.

Nathan W. C. Hays to be postmaster at Burlington, in the county of Burlington and State of New Jersey, in place of Nathan W. C. Hays. Incumbent's commission expired January 19, 1903.

Wilson D. Gill to be postmaster at Paulsboro, in the county of Gloucester and State of New Jersey. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

NEW YORK.

Burdette T. Burlingham to be postmaster at McGraw, in the county of Cortland and State of New York, in place of Burdette T. Burlingham. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

Theodore F. Chamberlain to be postmaster at Newark Valley, in the county of Tioga and State of New York, in place of Theodore F. Chamberlain. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

William W. Gregory to be postmaster at Roscoe, in the county of Sullivan and State of New York. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Fred Greiner to be postmaster at Buffalo, in the county of Erie and State of New York, in place of Fred Greiner. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

Thomas Liddle to be postmaster at Amsterdam, in the county of Montgomery and State of New York, in place of Thomas Liddle. Incumbent's commission expired January 16, 1905.

David M. Pratt to be postmaster at Elmira, in the county of Chemung and State of New York, in place of David M. Pratt. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

George F. Rising to be postmaster at Hoosick Falls, in the county of Rensselaer and State of New York, in place of George F. Rising. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

Horace Selleck to be postmaster at Holland, in the county of Erie and State of New York, in place of Horace Selleck. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

William A. Smyth to be postmaster at Owego, in the county of Tioga and State of New York, in place of William A. Smyth. Incumbent's commission expires December 17, 1905.

NORTH CAROLINA.

John G. Brown to be postmaster at Red Springs, in the county of Robeson and State of North Carolina, in place of John G. Brown. Incumbent's commission expired February 7, 1905.

Mary Green to be postmaster at Warrenton, in the county of Warren and State of North Carolina, in place of Mary Green. Incumbent's commission expired March 1, 1905.

Victoria L. Martin to be postmaster at Tarboro, in the county of Edgecombe and State of North Carolina, in place of Victoria L. Martin. Incumbent's commission expired February 7, 1905.

Adolphus R. Wilson to be postmaster at Dunn, in the county of Harnett and State of North Carolina, in place of Adolphus R. Wilson. Incumbent's commission expired February 7, 1905.

C. G. Rosemond to be postmaster at Hillsboro, in the county of Orange and State of North Carolina. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Clarence C. Banks to be postmaster at Lansford, in the county of Bottineau and State of North Dakota. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

William H. Bush to be postmaster at Oakes, in the county of Dickey and State of North Dakota, in place of Martin N. Chamberlin, resigned.

Henry T. Nelson to be postmaster at Courtenay, in the county of Stutsman and State of North Dakota. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

OHIO.

Grant Coats to be postmaster at Rockford, in the county of Mercer and State of Ohio, in place of Grant Coats. Incumbent's commission expired February 24, 1904.

John Finsterwald to be postmaster at Athens, in the county of Athens and State of Ohio, in place of Cornelius D. Gist, deceased.

Frank A. Geesey to be postmaster at Archbold, in the county of Fulton and State of Ohio, in place of Frank A. Geesey. Incumbent's commission expired December 20, 1904.

Fred D. Pierce to be postmaster at Wakeman, in the county of Huron and State of Ohio. Office became Presidential April 1, 1905.

OREGON.

Chester G. Coad to be postmaster at Dallas, in the county of Polk and State of Oregon, in place of Chester G. Coad. Incumbent's commission expired March 2, 1905.

Abel W. Severance to be postmaster at Tillamook, in the county of Tillamook and State of Oregon, in place of Abel W. Severance. Incumbent's commission expired December 20, 1904.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Charles W. Betts to be postmaster at Newhope, in the county of Bucks and State of Pennsylvania. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Harry L. Johnson to be postmaster at Laceyville, in the county of Wyoming and State of Pennsylvania. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Mary S. Murphy to be postmaster at Crafton, in the county of Allegheny and State of Pennsylvania, in place of Alfred Turtle, resigned.

Perry A. Sanborn to be postmaster at North East, in the county of Erie and State of Pennsylvania, in place of Perry A. Sanborn. Incumbent's commission expired December 20, 1903.

William S. Schlichter to be postmaster at Sellersville, in the county of Bucks and State of Pennsylvania, in place of William S. Schlichter. Incumbent's commission expired February 8, 1905.

William E. Wade to be postmaster at Saegerstown, in the county of Crawford and State of Pennsylvania. Office became Presidential July 1, 1905.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

William C. Brown to be postmaster at Belton, in the county of Anderson and State of South Carolina, in place of James E. Horton, removed.

TENNESSEE.

Robert H. Hayes to be postmaster at Lewisburg, in the county of Marshall and State of Tennessee, in place of G. A. McLane, deceased.

Zada Wade to be postmaster at Kenton, in the county of Obion and State of Tennessee. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

TEXAS.

James T. Ballard to be postmaster at Beeville, in the county of Bee and State of Texas, in place of John W. Bell, deceased.

John M. Clark to be postmaster at Yoakum, in the county of De Witt and State of Texas, in place of John M. Clark. Incumbent's commission expired January 10, 1903.

Frank L. Bradley to be postmaster at Gilmer, in the county of Upshur and State of Texas, in place of Frank L. Bradley. Incumbent's commission expired January 17, 1904.

UTAH.

E. Harvey Belcher to be postmaster at Vernal, in the county of Uinta and State of Utah, in place of Simon P. Dillman, resigned.

VIRGINIA.

Emmet W. Brittle to be postmaster at Wakefield, in the county of Sussex and State of Virginia. Office became Presidential July 1, 1905.

Lulu O. Hoge to be postmaster at Blacksburg, in the county of Montgomery and State of Virginia, in place of William C. Ellett. Incumbent's commission expired December 14, 1903.

WASHINGTON.

J. P. Rosebaugh to be postmaster at Harrington, in the county of Lincoln and State of Washington, in place of Francis M. Lighthizer, resigned.

WISCONSIN.

William S. Gilpin to be postmaster at Osseo, in the county of Trempealeau and State of Wisconsin. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

Nathan D. Maxon to be postmaster at Walworth, in the county of Walworth and State of Wisconsin. Office became Presidential October 1, 1905.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 11, 1905.

ENVOYS EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Edwin V. Morgan, of New York, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Cuba.

John Barrett, of Oregon, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Colombia.

John Hicks, of Wisconsin, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Chile.

William W. Russell, of the District of Columbia, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Venezuela.

SECRETARIES OF EMBASSIES.

R. S. Reynolds Hitt, of Illinois, to be secretary of the embassy of the United States at Rome, Italy.

John W. Garrett, of Maryland, to be second secretary of the embassy of the United States at Berlin, Germany.

Paxton P. Hibben, of Indiana, to be third secretary of the embassy of the United States at St. Petersburg, Russia.

SECRETARIES OF LEGATION.

Paul Grand d'Hauteville, of Rhode Island, now secretary of the legation to the Netherlands and Luxemburg, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Berne, Switzerland.

Roger Sherman Gates Boutell, of Illinois, now secretary of the legation at Berne, Switzerland, to be secretary of the legation of the United States to the Netherlands and Luxemburg.

George L. Lorillard, of Rhode Island, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Copenhagen, Denmark.

William F. Sands, of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at Panama, Panama.

Henry L. James, of Wisconsin, to be second secretary of the legation of the United States at Habana, Cuba.

CONSULS-GENERAL.

George C. Cole, of West Virginia, to be consul-general of the United States at Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic.

Alfred L. M. Gottschalk, of New York, lately consul at Callao, to be consul-general of the United States at Callao, Peru.

Edward H. Ozmun, of Minnesota, now consul at Stuttgart, to be consul-general of the United States at Coburg, Germany.

Arnold Shanklin, of Missouri, to be consul-general of the United States at Panama, Panama.

CONSULS.

George N. Ifft, of Idaho, to be consul of the United States at Chatham, Ontario, Canada.

Francis B. Keene, of Wisconsin, to be consul of the United States at Geneva, Switzerland.

Gabriel Bie Ravndal, of South Dakota, to be consul of the United States at Dawson City, Yukon Territory, Canada.

John B. Richardson, of Kansas, to be consul of the United States at Jalapa, Mexico.

Evan E. Young, of South Dakota, to be consul of the United States at Harput, Turkey.

William Harrison Bradley, of Illinois, now consul-general at Manchester, to be consul of the United States at Manchester, England.

Frank Dillingham, of California, now consul at Aix la Chapelle, to be consul of the United States at Stuttgart, Würtemberg.

Pierre Paul Demers, of New Hampshire, to be consul of the United States at Barranquilla, Colombia.

Milo A. Jewett, of Massachusetts, now consul at Sivas, to be consul of the United States at Trebizond, Turkey.

John Edward Jones, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States at Dalny, Manchuria.

Harry A. Conant, of Michigan, to be consul of the United States at Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

Edward A. Creevey, of Connecticut, to be consul of the United States at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

James W. Davidson, of Minnesota, to be consul of the United States at Antung, China.

James E. Dunning, of Maine, to be consul of the United States at Milan, Italy.

Thomas D. Edwards, of South Dakota, to be consul of the United States at Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

Ernest L. Harris, of Illinois, to be consul of the United States at Chemnitz, Saxony.

MARSHALS.

Seth Bullock, of South Dakota, to be United States marshal for the district of South Dakota.

Frank H. Tyree, of West Virginia, to be United States marshal for the southern district of West Virginia.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

George H. Lyman, of Massachusetts, to be collector of customs for the district of Boston and Charlestown, in the State of Massachusetts.

Rufus A. Soule, of Massachusetts, to be collector of customs for the district of New Bedford, in the State of Massachusetts.

POSTMASTERS.

ALASKA.

Frank M. Boyle to be postmaster at Valdez, in the district of Alaska.

ARKANSAS.

Robert B. Board to be postmaster at Mena, in the county of Polk and State of Arkansas.

Edgar H. Finch to be postmaster at Crossett, in the county of Ashley and State of Arkansas.

James M. Hill, jr., to be postmaster at Hartford (late Gwynn), in the county of Sebastian and State of Arkansas.

Frank H. Kennedy to be postmaster at Cottonplant, in the county of Woodruff and State of Arkansas.

CONNECTICUT.

Willard Baker to be postmaster at Sharon, in the county of Litchfield and State of Connecticut.

George B. French to be postmaster at Ivoryton, in the county of Middlesex and State of Connecticut.

Edward D. Gilbert to be postmaster at Higganum, in the county of Middlesex and State of Connecticut.

Wilson M. Reynolds to be postmaster at Newtown, in the county of Fairfield and State of Connecticut.

INDIANA.

Fremont M. Neal to be postmaster at Jonesboro, in the county of Grant and State of Indiana.

Frank Sheets to be postmaster at Mooresville, in the county of Morgan and State of Indiana.

John A. Zahm to be postmaster at Notre Dame, in the county of St. Joseph and State of Indiana.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Rena Russell to be postmaster at Krebs, in district 15, Indian Territory.

Adolphus D. Orcutt to be postmaster at Coweta, in district 7, Indian Territory.

KENTUCKY.

Charles H. Berryman to be postmaster at Lexington, in the county of Fayette and State of Kentucky.

James M. Carey to be postmaster at Morehead, in the county of Rowan and State of Kentucky.

James L. Grissom to be postmaster at Burnside, in the county of Pulaski and State of Kentucky.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Charles W. Abbott to be postmaster at Reading, in the county of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts.

George B. Bennett to be postmaster at Plymouth, in the county of Plymouth and State of Massachusetts.

Charles A. Chase to be postmaster at Holyoke, in the county of Hampden and State of Massachusetts.

William F. Craig to be postmaster at Lynn, in the county of Essex and State of Massachusetts.

Henry A. Hutchinson to be postmaster at Dedham, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts.

MICHIGAN.

Isadore J. Barnett to be postmaster at Onaway, in the county of Presque Isle and State of Michigan.

Thomas E. Dawson to be postmaster at Sandusky (late Sanilac Center), in the county of Sanilac and State of Michigan.

Arthur J. Gibson to be postmaster at Central Lake, in the county of Antrim and State of Michigan.

James G. Hines to be postmaster at Stockbridge, in the county of Ingham and State of Michigan.

George L. Lusk to be postmaster at Bay City, in the county of Bay and State of Michigan.

Otis Miner to be postmaster at Lake Odessa, in the county of Ionia and State of Michigan.

MINNESOTA.

Ferdinand H. Berning to be postmaster at Renville, in the county of Renville and State of Minnesota.

Ivan R. Gillpatrick to be postmaster at Biwabik, in the county of St. Louis and State of Minnesota.

Owen Wangensteen to be postmaster at Lake Park, in the county of Becker and State of Minnesota.

MISSISSIPPI.

Margaret N. Cabaniss to be postmaster at Clinton, in the county of Hinds and State of Mississippi.

James G. Cammack to be postmaster at Rolling Fork, in the county of Sharkey and State of Mississippi.

Henry E. Davis to be postmaster at Wiggins, in the county of Harrison and State of Mississippi.

George W. Field to be postmaster at Grenada, in the county of Grenada and State of Mississippi.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Harry M. Eaton to be postmaster at Littleton, in the county of Grafton and State of New Hampshire.

Charles C. Wright to be postmaster at Plymouth, in the county of Grafton and State of New Hampshire.

OKLAHOMA.

David Barrett to be postmaster at Prague, in the county of Lincoln and Territory of Oklahoma.

George Brophy to be postmaster at Woodward, in the county of Woodward and Territory of Oklahoma.

RHODE ISLAND.

Edgar E. Matteson to be postmaster at Apponaug, in the county of Kent and State of Rhode Island.

WISCONSIN.

Lydia Chapman to be postmaster at Horicon, in the county of Dodge and State of Wisconsin.

Nettie J. Danielson to be postmaster at Medford, in the county of Taylor and State of Wisconsin.

Frank C. Densmore to be postmaster at Sharon, in the county of Walworth and State of Wisconsin.

Ida E. Gilbert to be postmaster at Blair, in the county of Trempealeau and State of Wisconsin.

Byron R. Godfrey to be postmaster at North Milwaukee, in the county of Milwaukee and State of Wisconsin.

Edward Morrissey to be postmaster at Delavan, in the county of Walworth and State of Wisconsin.

Hans S. Olson to be postmaster at Weyauwega, in the county of Waupaca and State of Wisconsin.

Horatio S. Tipple to be postmaster at West Allis, in the county of Milwaukee and State of Wisconsin.

Charles E. Wood to be postmaster at Mukwonago, in the county of Waukesha and State of Wisconsin.

VIRGINIA.

William E. Cunningham to be postmaster at Louisa, in the county of Louisa and State of Virginia.

John W. Thompson to be postmaster at Dayton, in the county of Rockingham and State of Virginia.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Columbus W. Law to be postmaster at Salem, in the county of Harrison and State of West Virginia.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, December 11, 1905.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Thursday, December 7, 1905, was read and approved.

INCREASING MEMBERSHIP OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. DALZELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the adoption of the following resolution, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That section 1 of Rule X be, and hereby is, amended as follows:

By increasing by one member each of the following-named committees: Ways and Means, Judiciary, Banking and Currency, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Rivers and Harbors, Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Agriculture, Foreign Affairs, Military Affairs, Naval Affairs, Post-Office and Post-Roads, Public Lands, Indian Affairs, Territories, Insular Affairs, Railways and Canals, Mines and Mining, Public Buildings and Grounds, Militia, Patents, Invalid Pensions, Pensions, District of Columbia, Irrigation of Arid Lands, Census, Industrial Arts and Expositions.

By increasing by two members the Committee on Manufactures and by three members the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By inserting after the designation of the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture the following:

"On Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor, to consist of seven members."

Resolved, That Rule XI be amended as follows:

By inserting after paragraph 50 a new paragraph, as follows:

"51. In the Department of Commerce and Labor: To the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor."

And by renumbering the succeeding paragraphs of Rule XI, and by amending in accordance with such renumbering the reference to clause 60 of Rule XI contained in paragraph 2 of Rule XIII.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania to grant me a little time.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. DALZELL. Certainly.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that this resolution gives the Republicans one additional member upon the committees which we have heard named. Upon the committee where the three additional members are provided for the Republicans in the House get two and the Democrats one. Some time since I was afraid that the Democratic membership upon the committees would be reduced. The Speaker has solved the problem by increasing the Republican membership without reducing the Democratic membership. Indeed, we get one additional place on this committee where the three are provided for. This was largely done at my own suggestion as a method of reaching a modus vivendi between the two parties. The Republican party has 64 per cent of the membership of the present House. They are taking now two-thirds of the places, which is 66⅔ per cent—practically two-thirds—of the membership. As two-thirds is a vulgar fraction which approximates nearer the decimal 64 per cent than any other vulgar fraction, I want to say to the House and to the country that I think we can well afford to give the unanimous consent.

Mr. DALZELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say just one word with regard to what the gentleman from Mississippi has said. Of course the justification for the increase in the number of members of the various committees arises out of the fact that this is a House of 386 Members, whereas the largest House heretofore has consisted only of 356 Members. In all cases where there has been no increase of the membership of the committees the relative standing on the committees of the Republicans and the Democrats is precisely the same as it was in the last House. Where there is an increase of one, that increase has gone to the Republican representation, but with that increase the proportion of the minority on these committees is in its favor, greater than was the proportion in favor of the minority in the Fifty-second and the Fifty-third Congresses.

The only addition provided for by the resolutions to the increase in the number of Members is the increase of one committee—the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor, which has not heretofore been provided for—and the change in the numbers of the paragraphs in two or three rules, rendered necessary by the introduction of this new committee.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts. Will the gentleman allow a question?

Mr. DALZELL. Certainly.

Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts. Does this rule provide how many members shall be on each committee? I did not hear it as it was read.

Mr. DALZELL. No; it does not.

Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts. All this matter, then, will be left to the Speaker as it was before?

Mr. DALZELL. It rests with the Speaker; certainly.

COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. The Chair lays before the House an announcement of the following committees. The Chair also desires to state that the rules provide for two Delegates from the Territories on the Committee on Territories. Last session the House, by unanimous consent, added all the Delegates as members of that committee. There are still four Delegates, and without objection the four Delegates will be named upon that committee. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. The Clerk will report the committees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee on Elections No. 1.—Messrs. James R. Mann, Illinois; Llewellyn Powers, Maine; Charles L. Knapp, New York; H. Olin Young, Michigan; Grant E. Mouser, Ohio; Mial E. Lilley, Pennsylvania; Ollie M. James, Kentucky; Ernest E. Wood, Missouri; Moses L. Broocks, Texas.

Committee on Elections No. 2.—Messrs. Marlin E. Olmsted, Pennsylvania; James M. Miller, Kansas; Capell L. Weems, Ohio; Rockwood Hoar, Massachusetts; James F. Burke, Pennsylvania; Arthur P. Murphy, Missouri; Joshua F. C. Talbott, Maryland; Adam M. Byrd, Mississippi; Mounce G. Butler, Tennessee.

Committee on Elections No. 3.—Messrs. Michael E. Driscoll, New York; H. Burd Cassel, Pennsylvania; William E. Humphrey, Washington; Henry T. Bannon, Ohio; Marshall Van Winkle, New Jersey; Frank B. Fulkerson, Missouri; Choice B. Randell, Texas; Claude Kitchin, North Carolina; John Gill, jr., Maryland.

Committee on Ways and Means.—Messrs. Sereno E. Payne, New York; John Dalzell, Pennsylvania; Charles H. Grosvenor, Ohio; James T. McCleary, Minnesota; Samuel W. McCall, Massachusetts; Joseph W. Babcock, Wisconsin; Ebenezer J. Hill, Connecticut; Henry S. Boutell, Illinois; James E. Watson, Indiana; Charles Curtis, Kansas; James C. Needham, California; William Alden Smith, Michigan; John S. Williams, Mississippi; Samuel M. Robertson, Louisiana; Champ Clark, Missouri; William Bourke Cockran, New York; Oscar W. Underwood, Alabama; Daniel L. D. Granger, Rhode Island.

Committee on Appropriations.—Messrs. James A. Tawney, Minnesota; Henry H. Bingham, Pennsylvania; Lucius N. Littauer, New York; Walter P. Brownlow, Tennessee; Washington Gardner, Michigan; Frederick H. Gillett, Massachusetts; Walter I. Smith, Iowa; Joseph V. Graff, Illinois; Abraham L. Brick, Indiana; J. Warren Keifer, Ohio; Martin B. Madden, Illinois; Leonidas F. Livingston, Georgia; George W. Taylor, Alabama; Stephen Brundidge, jr., Arkansas; John J. Fitzgerald, New York; A. S. Burleson, Texas; John A. Sullivan, Massachusetts.

Committee on the Judiciary.—Messrs. John J. Jenkins, Wisconsin; Richard Wayne Parker, New Jersey; De Alva S. Alexander, New York; Charles E. Littlefield, Maine; Robert M. Nevin, Ohio; Henry W. Palmer, Pennsylvania; George A. Pearre, Maryland; James N. Gillett, California; Charles Q. Tirrell, Massachusetts; John A. Sterling, Illinois; Benjamin P. Birdsall, Iowa; John H. Foster, Indiana; David A. De Armond, Missouri; David H. Smith, Kentucky; Henry D. Clayton, Alabama; Robert L. Henry, Texas; John S. Little, Arkansas; William G. Brantley, Georgia.

Committee on Banking and Currency.—Messrs. Charles N. Fowler, New Jersey; George W. Prince, Illinois; William A. Calderhead, Kansas; Llewellyn Powers, Maine; Henry McMorran, Michigan; Capell L. Weems, Ohio; George D. McCreary, Pennsylvania; Joseph R. Knowland, California; George E. Waldo, New York; Cassius M. Shartel, Missouri; Everis A. Hayes, California; John W. Weeks, Massachusetts; Elijah B. Lewis, Georgia; Arsene P. Pujo, Louisiana; Carter Glass, Virginia; O. W. Gillespie, Texas; Ollie M. James, Kentucky; George S. Legare, South Carolina.

Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.—Messrs. James H. Southard, Ohio; Justin D. Bowersock, Kansas; Thomas Hedge, Iowa; George W. Cromer, Indiana; Solomon R. Dresser, Pennsylvania; Ira W. Wood, New Jersey; Joseph R. Knowland, California; William C. Lovering, Massachusetts; Mial E. Lilley, Pennsylvania; Thomas E. Scroggy, Ohio; John W. Gaines, Tennessee; Timothy D. Sullivan, New York; Thomas W. Hardwick, Georgia; R. G. Southall, Virginia; J. Thomas Heflin, Alabama; R. M. Wallace, Arkansas; Jonah K. Kalanianaole, Hawaii.

Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.—Messrs. William P. Hepburn, Iowa; James S. Sherman, New York; Irving P. Wanger, Pennsylvania; James R. Mann, Illinois; William C. Lovering, Massachusetts; Fred C. Stevens, Minnesota; Charles H. Burke, South Dakota; John J. Esch, Wisconsin; Francis W. Cushman, Washington; Charles E. Townsend, Michigan; Joseph H. Gaines, West Virginia; James Kennedy, Ohio; Robert C. Davey, Louisiana; William C. Adamson, Georgia; William H. Ryan, New York; William Richardson, Alabama; Charles L. Bartlett, Georgia; Gordon Russell, Texas.

Committee on Rivers and Harbors.—Messrs. Theodore E. Burton, Ohio; Blackburn B. Dovener, West Virginia; Roswell P. Bishop, Michigan; Ernest F. Acheson, Pennsylvania; De Alva S. Alexander, New York; George P. Lawrence, Massachusetts; James H. Davidson, Wisconsin; James McLachlan, California; William Lorimer, Illinois; Wesley L. Jones, Washington; J. Adam Bede, Minnesota; Edgar C. Ellis, Missouri; Rufus E. Lester, Georgia; John H. Bankhead, Alabama; Stephen M. Sparkman, Florida; Joseph E. Ransdell, Louisiana; George F. Burgess, Texas; Benjamin G. Humphreys, Mississippi.

Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.—Messrs. Charles H. Grosvenor, Ohio; Edward S. Minor, Wisconsin; William S. Greene, Massachusetts; Joseph W. Fordney, Michigan; Frank C. Wachter, Maryland; Charles E. Littlefield, Maine; William E. Humphrey, Washington; William H. Flack, New York; Benjamin P. Birdsall, Iowa; William W. Wilson, Illinois; James E. Watson, Indiana; Edmund H. Hinshaw; Nebraska; Thomas Spight, Mississippi; Allan L. McDermott, New Jersey; Joseph A. Goulden, New York; Harry L. Maynard, Virginia; Swagar Sherley, Kentucky; Gilbert B. Patterson, North Carolina.

Committee on Agriculture.—Messrs. James W. Wadsworth, New York; E. Stevens Henry, Connecticut; Gilbert N. Haugen, Iowa; Charles F. Scott, Kansas; Kittredge Haskins, Vermont; George W. Cromer, Indiana; William Lorimer, Illinois; Franklin E. Brooks, Colorado; Henry C. Adams, Wisconsin; Charles R. Davis, Minnesota; Daniel F. Lafean, Pennsylvania; William W. Cocks, New York; John Lamb, Virginia; Sydney J. Bowie, Alabama; Asbury F. Lever, South Carolina; South Trimble, Kentucky; Ezekiel S. Candler, jr., Mississippi; Scott Field, Texas; William H. Andrews, New Mexico.

Committee on Foreign Affairs.—Messrs. Robert R. Hitt, Illinois; Robert Adams, jr., Pennsylvania; Robert G. Cousins, Iowa; Charles B. Landis, Indiana; James Breck Perkins, New York; David J. Foster, Vermont; Theobold Otjen, Wisconsin; Adin B. Capron, Rhode Island; Nicholas Longworth, Ohio; J. Sloat Fassett, New York; Edwin Denby, Michigan; William B. McKinley, Illinois; William M. Howard, Georgia; Henry D. Flood, Virginia; Charles A. Towne, New York; William B. Lamar, Florida; William S. McNary, Massachusetts; John N. Garner, Texas.

Committee on Military Affairs.—Messrs. John A. T. Hull, Iowa; John H. Ketcham, New York; Richard Wayne Parker, New Jersey; Adin B. Capron, Rhode Island; Frank W. Mondell, Wyoming; George W. Prince, Illinois; Elias S. Holliday, Indiana; H. Olin Young, Michigan; George R. Patterson, Pennsylvania; Julius Kahn, California; Loren Fletcher, Minnesota; Beman G. Dawes, Ohio; William Sulzer, New York; James Hay, Virginia; James L. Slayden, Texas; Robert F. Broussard, Louisiana; Joshua F. C. Talbott, Maryland; Ariosto A. Wiley, Alabama; Bird S. McGuire, Oklahoma.

Committee on Naval Affairs.—Messrs. George Edmund Foss, Illinois; Henry C. Loudenslager, New Jersey; Thomas S. Butler, Pennsylvania; Sydney E. Mudd, Maryland; Robert G. Cousins, Iowa; Ernest W. Roberts, Massachusetts; Edward B. Vreeland, New York; George Alvin Loud, Michigan; Arthur L. Bates, Pennsylvania; George L. Lilley, Connecticut; W. Aubrey Thomas, Ohio; Albert F. Dawson, Iowa; Adolph Meyer, Louisiana; John F. Rixey, Virginia; W. W. Kitchin, North Carolina; Lemuel P. Padgett, Tennessee; Harvey C. Garber, Ohio; Alexander W. Gregg, Texas.

Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.—Messrs. Jesse Overstreet, Indiana; John J. Gardner, New Jersey; Nehemiah D. Sperry, Connecticut; Thomas Hedge, Iowa; Joseph C. Sibley, Pennsylvania; Howard M. Snapp, Illinois; Herman P. Goebel, Ohio; Halvor Steenerson, Minnesota; William H. Stafford, Wisconsin; Archibald B. Darragh, Michigan; Victor Murdock, Kansas; John W. Dwight, New York; John A. Moon, Tennessee; James M. Griggs, Georgia; David E. Finley, South Carolina; James T. Lloyd, Missouri; John H. Small, North Carolina; Wilson S. Hill, Mississippi; Marcus A. Smith, Arizona.

Committee on the Public Lands.—Messrs. John F. Lacey, Iowa; James M. Miller, Kansas; Eben W. Martin, South Dakota; Joseph W. Fordney, Michigan; Andrew J. Volstead, Minnesota; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Philip Knopf, Illinois; John J. McCarthy, Nebraska; Burton L. French, Idaho; Sylvester C. Smith, California; Asle J. Gronna, North Dakota; William T. Tyndall, Missouri; John L. Burnett, Alabama; William W. Rucker, Missouri; John W. Gaines, Tennessee; Adam M. Byrd, Mississippi; Clarence D. Van Duzer, Nevada; Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas; Marcus A. Smith, Arizona.

Committee on Indian Affairs.—Messrs. James S. Sherman, New York; Charles Curtis, Kansas; John F. Lacey, Iowa; Thomas F. Marshall, North Dakota; Webster E. Brown, Wisconsin; Charles H. Burke

South Dakota; Charles L. Knapp, New York; Binger Hermann, Oregon; Charles B. Buckman, Minnesota; Edmund H. Hinshaw, Nebraska; Herschel M. Hogg, Colorado; Harry C. Woodyard, West Virginia; John H. Stephens, Texas; William T. Zenor, Indiana; Charles C. Reid, Arkansas; Claude Kitchin, North Carolina; Wyatt Aiken, South Carolina; Clarence D. Van Duzer, Nevada; Bird S. McGuire, Oklahoma.

Committee on the Territories.—Messrs. Edward L. Hamilton, Michigan; Abraham L. Brick, Indiana; Adin B. Capron, Rhode Island; George N. Southwick, New York; Llewellyn Powers, Maine; James McKinney, Illinois; Ralph D. Cole, Ohio; Edwin W. Higgins, Connecticut; John M. Reynolds, Pennsylvania; Frank B. Klepper, Missouri; John A. Moon, Tennessee; Charles C. Reid, Arkansas; James T. Lloyd, Missouri; Jack Beall, Texas; Edwin Y. Webb, North Carolina; Augustus O. Stanley, Kentucky; Bird S. McGuire, Oklahoma; Marcus A. Smith, Arizona; William H. Andrews, New Mexico; Jonah K. Kalanianaole, Hawaii.

Committee on Insular Affairs.—Messrs. Henry A. Cooper, Wisconsin; Edgar D. Crumpacker, Indiana; Edward L. Hamilton, Michigan; Marlin E. Olmsted, Pennsylvania; George W. Smith, Illinois; Charles E. Fuller, Illinois; Moses P. Kinkaid, Nebraska; Amos R. Webber, Ohio; William H. Graham, Pennsylvania; Elbert H. Hubbard, Iowa; Herbert Parsons, New York; Duncan E. McKinlay, California; William A. Jones, Virginia; Malcolm R. Patterson, Tennessee; William T. Zenor, Indiana; William W. Rucker, Missouri; George G. Gilbert, Kentucky; Robert N. Page, North Carolina; Tulio Larrinaga, Porto Rico.

Committee on Railways and Canals.—Messrs. James H. Davidson, Wisconsin; Ernest W. Roberts, Massachusetts; Elias Deemer, Pennsylvania; Charles L. Knapp, New York; George H. Huff, Pennsylvania; Harry C. Woodyard, West Virginia; Allen F. Cooper, Pennsylvania; Henry T. Bannon, Ohio; Hiram R. Burton, Delaware; John L. Burnett, Alabama; Thomas A. Smith, Maryland; Thomas B. Davis, West Virginia; James O'H. Patterson, South Carolina; Jacob Ruppert, jr., New York.

Committee on Manufactures.—Messrs. Joseph C. Sibley, Pennsylvania; William S. Greene, Massachusetts; Henry McMorran, Michigan; Nathan W. Hale, Tennessee; Pleasant T. Chapman, Illinois; Charles B. Law, New York; Henry C. Allen, New Jersey; Gustav A. Schneebeli, Pennsylvania; Charles H. Weisse, Wisconsin; John T. Hunt, Missouri; Thomas M. Bell, Georgia; Joseph T. Johnson, South Carolina; W. W. Kitchin, North Carolina.

Committee on Mines and Mining.—Messrs. Webster E. Brown, Wisconsin; Thomas H. Dale, Pennsylvania; Charles F. Scott, Kansas; George F. Huff, Pennsylvania; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; John N. Williamson, Oregon; Joseph Howell, Utah; Robert W. Bonynge, Colorado; Cassius M. Shartel, Missouri; Augustus O. Stanley, Kentucky; J. Thomas Heflin, Alabama; Gordon Lee, Georgia; John T. Hunt, Missouri; Charles C. Reid, Arkansas; William H. Andrews, New Mexico.

Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.—Messrs. Richard Bartholdt, Missouri; Edwin C. Burleigh, Maine; Benjamin F. Howell, New Jersey; James P. Conner, Iowa; Eben W. Martin, South Dakota; Edward S. Minor, Wisconsin; William A. Rodenberg, Illinois; George W. Norris, Nebraska; Frederick Landis, Indiana; John E. Andrews, New York; John H. Bankhead, Alabama; William G. Brantley, Georgia; Charles R. Thomas, North Carolina; Morris Sheppard, Texas; Joseph T. Johnson, South Carolina; Eaton J. Bowers, Mississippi.

Committee on Pacific Railroads.—Messrs. Thomas S. Butler, Pennsylvania; Michael E. Driscoll, New York; Theobold Otjen, Wisconsin; Henry W. Palmer, Pennsylvania; Moses P. Kinkaid, Nebraska; Sydney E. Mudd, Maryland; William B. McKinley, Illinois; Albert F. Dawson, Iowa; James L. Slayden, Texas; David E. Finley, South Carolina; Henry T. Rainey, Illinois; William C. Houston, Tennessee; John S. Little, Arkansas; William B. Lamar, Florida.

Committee on Levees and Improvements of the Mississippi River.—Messrs. George W. Prince, Illinois; Thomas Hedge, Iowa; William A. Rodenberg, Illinois; George F. Huff, Pennsylvania; Charles B. Buckman, Minnesota; Allen F. Cooper, Pennsylvania; William W. Tyndall, Missouri; Robert F. Broussard, Louisiana; Robert B. Macon, Arkansas; Finis J. Garrett, Tennessee; John C. Floyd, Arkansas; E. E. Wood, Missouri.

Committee on Education.—Messrs. George N. Southwick, New York; William E. Humphrey, Washington; Andrew J. Volstead, Minnesota; Marshall Van Winkle, New Jersey; Edmund W. Samuel, Pennsylvania; Sylvester C. Smith, California; Anthony Michalek, Illinois; Edwin Y. Webb, North Carolina; Asbury F. Lever, South Carolina; Finis J. Garrett, Tennessee; Thomas A. Smith, Maryland; John C. Floyd, Arkansas.

Committee on Labor.—Messrs. John J. Gardner, New Jersey; Richard Bartholdt, Missouri; Samuel W. McCall, Massachusetts; Edward B. Vreeland, New York; James P. Conner, Iowa; Herman P. Goebel, Ohio; Kittredge Haskins, Vermont; George W. Norris, Nebraska; William Randolph Hearst, New York; John T. Hunt, Missouri; Henry T. Rainey, Illinois; A. O. Stanley, Kentucky; Thomas B. Davis, West Virginia.

Committee on Militia.—Messrs. Edward De V. Morrell, Pennsylvania; John A. T. Hull, Iowa; George W. Smith, Illinois; Halvor Steenerson, Minnesota; Butler Ames, Massachusetts; William O. Smith, Pennsylvania; Frank J. Le Fevre, New York; Henry C. Allen, New Jersey; Frank S. Dickson, Illinois; Jacob Ruppert, jr., New York; Aristo A. Wiley, Alabama; John A. Keliher, Massachusetts; John Gill, jr., Maryland; John C. Floyd, Arkansas.

Committee on Patents.—Messrs. Frank D. Currier, New Hampshire; Solomon R. Dresser, Pennsylvania; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Edward H. Hinshaw, Nebraska; Robert W. Bonynge, Colorado; William W. Campbell, Ohio; Andrew J. Barchfeld, Pennsylvania; John C. Chaney, Indiana; Charles McGavin, Illinois; William Sulzer, New York; George S. Legare, South Carolina; Edwin Y. Webb, North Carolina; Robert G. Southall, Virginia; John Gill, jr., Maryland.

Committee on Invalid Pensions.—Messrs. Cyrus A. Sulloway, New Hampshire; Samuel W. Smith, Michigan; William A. Calderhead, Kansas; Elias Deemer, Pennsylvania; Elias S. Holliday, Indiana; Thomas W. Bradley, New York; Charles E. Fuller, Illinois; Pleasant T. Chapman, Illinois; John C. Chaney, Indiana; Don C. Edwards, Kentucky; George H. Lindsay, New York; Frank A. Hopkins, Kentucky; Charles H. Weisse, Wisconsin; John A. Keliher, Massachusetts; James M. Gudger, jr., North Carolina; Lincoln Dixon, Indiana.

Committee on Pensions.—Messrs. Henry C. Loudenslager, New Jersey; George R. Patterson, Pennsylvania; William H. Draper, New York; Philip P. Campbell, Kansas; Butler Ames, Massachusetts; Herschel M. Hogg, Colorado; Nicholas Longworth, Ohio; Joseph B. Bennett, Kentucky; Frank S. Dickson, Illinois; William Richardson, Alabama; Frank A. McLain, Mississippi; Wyatt Aiken, South Carolina; Robert B. Macon, Arkansas; James M. Richardson, Kentucky.

Committee on Claims.—Messrs. James M. Miller, Kansas; Charles Q. Tirrell, Massachusetts; Joseph Howell, Utah; William H. Graham, Pennsylvania; George E. Waldo, New York; Grant E. Mouser, Ohio; Charles McGavin, Illinois; John Welborn, Missouri; Zeno J. Rives, Illinois; Henry M. Goldfogle, New York; Claude Kitchin, North Carolina; Jack Beall, Texas; Dorsey W. Shackleford, Missouri; Finis J. Garrett, Tennessee; Frank Clark, Florida.

Committee on War Claims.—Messrs. Thaddeus M. Mahon, Pennsylvania; Theobold Otjen, Wisconsin; Gilbert N. Haugen, Iowa; Kittredge Haskins, Vermont; Elias S. Holliday, Indiana; James H. Southard, Ohio; John L. Kennedy, Nebraska; Frank B. Fulkerson, Missouri; Thetus W. Sims, Tennessee; Thomas Spight, Mississippi; Henry D. Clayton, Alabama; James O'H. Patterson, South Carolina; Gordon Lee, Georgia.

Committee on Private Land Claims.—Messrs. George W. Smith, Illinois; Thomas F. Marshall, North Dakota; Francis W. Cushman, Washington; George A. Castor, Pennsylvania; Martin L. Smyser, Ohio; William S. Bennet, New York; Marion E. Rhodes, Missouri; William A. Jones, Virginia; George G. Gilbert, Kentucky; William R. Smith, Texas; Robert M. Wallace, Arkansas; Charles H. Weisse, Wisconsin; Thomas A. Smith, Maryland; Jonah K. Kalanianaole, Hawaii.

Committee on the District of Columbia.—Messrs. Joseph W. Babcock, Wisconsin; Samuel W. Smith, Michigan; Amos L. Allen, Maine; Edward De V. Morrell, Pennsylvania; Campbell Slemp, Virginia; Philip P. Campbell, Kansas; William H. Wiley, New Jersey; William S. Greene, Massachusetts; Jacob A. Beidler, Ohio; E. Spencer Blackburn, North Carolina; Edward L. Taylor, jr., Ohio; Jacob Van V. Olcott, New York; Thetus W. Sims, Tennessee; Adolph Meyer, Louisiana; Edward W. Pou, North Carolina; Frank A. McLain, Mississippi; Dorsey W. Shackleford, Missouri; Marcus C. L. Kline, Pennsylvania.

Committee on Revision of the Laws.—Messrs. Reuben O. Moon, Pennsylvania; Charles T. Dunwell, New York; Martin L. Smyser, Ohio; Rockwood Hoar, Massachusetts; Charles B. Law, New York; Newton W. Gilbert, Indiana; Joseph B. Bennett, Kentucky; Frank B. Klepper, Missouri; Robert Bruce Macon, Arkansas; Swagar Sherley, Kentucky; Edward W. Pou, North Carolina; John T. Watkins, Louisiana; William C. Houston, Tennessee.

Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.—Messrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Massachusetts; John F. Lacey, Iowa; Charles N. Fowler, New Jersey; Justin D. Bowersock, Kansas; James R. Mann, Illinois; William O. Smith, Pennsylvania; Amos L. Allen, Maine; Jacob A. Beidler, Ohio; Edward W. Pou, North Carolina; William T. Zenor, Indiana; Robert G. Southall, Virginia; Mounce G. Butler, Tennessee; John T. Watkins, Louisiana.

Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.—Messrs. John H. Gaines, West Virginia; Cyrus A. Sulloway, New Hampshire; Binger Hermann, Oregon; George W. Norris, Nebraska; Franklin E. Brooks, Colorado; Charles T. Dunwell, New York; William W. Campbell, Ohio; James F. Burke, Pennsylvania; William W. Rucker, Missouri; O. W. Gillespie, Texas; Thomas W. Hardwick, Georgia; James E. Ellerbe, South Carolina; John T. Watkins, Louisiana.

Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.—Messrs. Nehemiah D. Sperry, Connecticut; Justin D. Bowersock, Kansas; Amos L. Allen, Maine; Andrew J. Barchfeld, Pennsylvania; Thomas E. Scroggy, Ohio; John L. Burnett, Alabama; George H. Lindsay, New York; James M. Gudger, jr., North Carolina; Ezekiel S. Candler, jr., Mississippi; Harvey C. Garber, Ohio.

Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.—Messrs. Frank W. Mondell, Wyoming; William A. Reeder, Kansas; John W. Dwight, New York; Thomas F. Marshall, North Dakota; Allen F. Cooper, Pennsylvania; John N. Williamson, Oregon; Ralph D. Cole, Ohio; John L. Kennedy, Nebraska; Clarence D. Van Duzer, Nevada; William R. Smith, Texas; Henry T. Rainey, Illinois; William R. Hearst, New York.

Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.—Messrs. Benjamin F. Howell, New Jersey; Robert Adams, jr., Pennsylvania; Augustus P. Gardner, Massachusetts; Burton L. French, Idaho; Robert W. Bonynge, Colorado; Frederick C. Stevens, Minnesota; Ira W. Wood, New Jersey; William S. Bennet, New York; Everis A. Hayes, California; Jacob Ruppert, jr., New York; John L. Burnett, Alabama; James E. Ellerbe, South Carolina; John M. Moore, Texas; Thomas M. Bell, Georgia.

Committee on Ventilation and Acoustics.—Messrs. Roswell P. Bishop, Michigan; Jacob A. Beidler, Ohio; Zeno J. Rives, Illinois; David H. Smith, Kentucky; George H. Lindsay, New York; Eaton J. Bowers, Mississippi.

Committee on Expenditures in the State Department.—Messrs. John H. Ketcham, New York; Robert Adams, jr., Pennsylvania; John W. Weeks, Massachusetts; Rufus E. Lester, Georgia; Charles A. Towne, New York; William S. McNary, Massachusetts.

Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury Department.—Messrs. Robert G. Cousins, Iowa; Edward De V. Morrell, Pennsylvania; Philip Knopf, Illinois; Ebenezer J. Hill, Connecticut; John Lamb, Virginia; Frank A. Hopkins, Kentucky; John N. Garner, Texas.

Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.—Messrs. George P. Lawrence, Massachusetts; J. Adam Bede, Minnesota; Campbell Slemp, Virginia; John M. Reynolds, Pennsylvania; George F. Burgess, Texas; Malcolm R. Patterson, Tennessee; Joseph L. Rhinock, Kentucky.

Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department.—Messrs. Joseph W. Fordney, Michigan; Ernest F. Acheson, Pennsylvania; Edwin W. Higgins, Connecticut; Choice B. Randell, Texas; Lemuel P. Padgett, Tennessee; William C. Adamson, Georgia.

Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department.—Messrs. Irving P. Wanger, Pennsylvania; William H. Flack, New York; George W. Cromer, Indiana; Carter Glass, Virginia; John M. Moore, Texas; Frank Clark, Florida.

Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department.—Messrs. Edward S. Minor, Wisconsin; Blackburn B. Dovener, West Virginia; George R. Patterson, Pennsylvania; Henry C. Adams, Wisconsin; Robert N. Page, North Carolina; Moses L. Broocks, Texas; Wilson S. Hill, Mississippi.

Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice.—Messrs. William A. Calderhead, Kansas; Eben W. Martin, South Dakota; John J. McCarthy, Nebraska; Henry M. Goldfogle, New York; John H. Stephens, Texas; Adam M. Byrd, Mississippi.

Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture.—Messrs. Charles E. Littlefield, Maine; William E. Humphrey, Washington; Charles R. Davis, Minnesota; Edmund W. Samuel, Pennsylvania; Henry D. Flood, Virginia; Ezekiel S. Candler, jr., Mississippi; Robert C. Davey, Louisiana.

Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labor.—Messrs. David J. Foster, Vermont; William M. Calder, New York; Arthur P. Murphy, Missouri; Anthony Michalek, Illinois; A. P. Pujo, Louisiana; Morris Sheppard, Texas; T. D. Sullivan, New York.

Committee on Expenditures on Public Buildings.—Messrs. James A. Hughes, West Virginia; James N. Gillett, California; Augustus P. Gardner, Massachusetts; E. Stevens Henry, Connecticut; John H. Small, North Carolina; South Trimble, Kentucky; Scott Field, Texas.

Committee on Accounts.—Messrs. H. Burd Cassel, Pennsylvania; James A. Hughes, West Virginia; Frank D. Currier, New Hampshire; William H. Draper, New York; Ernest M. Pollard, Nebraska; Marion E. Rhodes, Missouri; Charles L. Bartlett, Georgia; Allan L. McDermott, New Jersey; Joseph A. Goulden, New York.

Committee on the Census.—Messrs. Edgar D. Crumpacker, Indiana; Edwin C. Burleigh, Maine; James A. Hughes, West Virginia; Charles T. Dunwell, New York; Butler Ames, Massachusetts; Hiram R. Burton, Delaware; Nathan W. Hale, Tennessee; William M. Calder, New York; Charles S. Wharton, Illinois; James Hay, Virginia; Gilbert B. Patterson, North Carolina; Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas; Sydney J. Bowie, Alabama; Thomas W. Hardwick, Georgia.

Committee on the Library.—Messrs. James T. McCleary, Minnesota; Samuel W. McCall, Massachusetts; James P. Conner, Iowa; William M. Howard, Georgia; Charles R. Thomas, North Carolina.

Committee on Printing.—Messrs. Charles B. Landis, Indiana; James B. Perkins, New York; James M. Griggs, Georgia.

Committee on Enrolled Bills.—Messrs. Frank C. Wachter, Maryland; William W. Wilson, Illinois; Frederick Landis, Indiana; George A. Castor, Pennsylvania; James T. Lloyd, Missouri; Henry T. Rainey, Illinois; Lincoln Dixon, Indiana.

Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions.—Messrs. Augustus P. Gardner, Massachusetts; James S. Sherman, New York; Justin D. Bowersock, Kansas; William A. Rodenberg, Illinois; Joseph Howell, Utah; Harry C. Woodyard, West Virginia; Ernest M. Pollard, Nebraska; Newton W. Gilbert, Indiana; James McKinney, Illinois; Frank J. Le Fevre, New York; Charles L. Bartlett, Georgia; Harry L. Maynard, Virginia; George S. Legare, South Carolina; Henry M. Goldfogle, New York; Marcus C. L. Kline, Pennsylvania; Joseph L. Rhinock, Kentucky.

SWEARING IN OF MEMBERS.

Mr. Byrd, a Representative from the State of Mississippi, and Mr. Loud, a Representative from the State of Michigan, appeared before the bar and took the oath of office.

PRINTING FOR THE COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS.

Mr. HULL. Mr Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration and passage of the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and the resolution is agreed to.

On motion of Mr. HULL, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

PRINTING FOR THE COMMITTEE ON POST-OFFICES AND POST-ROADS.

Mr. OVERSTREET. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana asks unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business during this Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and the resolution is agreed to.

LEAVES TO SIT DURING THE SESSIONS OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. OVERSTREET. I also offer the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the same.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads, and any subcommittee thereof, be allowed to sit during the sessions of the Fifty-ninth Congress.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the resolution will be considered as agreed to. [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the same.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means be authorized to sit during the sessions of the House.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the resolution will be considered as agreed to. [After a pause.] The Chair hears no objection.

PRINTING FOR WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I also ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Ways and Means be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which has just been read. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. PAYNE, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL WEDNESDAY.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that when the House adjourns to-day it adjourn to meet Wednesday next.

The motion was agreed to.

PRINTING FOR COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. JENKINS] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which has just been read. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. JENKINS, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

PRINTING FOR THE COMMITTEE ON MERCHANT MARINE AND FISHERIES.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries shall have authority to order such printing and binding done as it may deem to be necessary, connected with the transaction of the business of said committee, during this Congress.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which has just been read. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. GROSVENOR, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

PANAMA CANAL.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to prefer a request for unanimous consent. In the debate on the Panama Canal bill last week I stated to the Committee of the Whole House that the distinguished gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN], the chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and myself had requested certain data from the Isthmian Canal Commission more in detail than we were then able to lay before the House. A portion of that data I have now received, and I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] asks unanimous consent for the printing in the RECORD the data to which he refers. Is there objection?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, while that is very much in the nature of locking the door after the horse is gone, I do not object.

The SPEAKER. Unanimous consent is asked.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I say I do not object.

There was no objection; and the data referred to was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

The data is as follows:

List of salaries of members and employees of the Isthmian Canal Commission receiving more than $2,000 per annum.

[Revised December 9, 1905.]

THE COMMISSIONERS.

Name.	Position.	Salary.	Army or navy pay deducted from salary paid by Commission.
T. P. Shonts	Chairman of Commission	$30,000
C. E. Magoon	Commissioner and governor of Zone.	17,500
M. T. Endicott, U. S. N.	Commissioner	7,500	$6,220
O. H. Ernst, U. S. A.	do	7,500	5,220
P. C. Hains, U. S. A.	do	7,500	4,125
B. M. Harrod	do	7,500

OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES AT WASHINGTON.

J. B. Bishop	Secretary to Commission	$10,000
W. L. Pepperman	Assistant chief	3,000
E. S. Benson	General auditor	10,000
H. C. Lewis	Chief deputy general auditor	2,800
D. W. Ross	General purchasing officer	10,000
H. J. Gallagher, U. S. N	Deputy general purchasing officer.	6,480	$3,500
J. G. Jester	Disbursing officer	3,100
A. Anderson	Assistant purchasing agent, New York.	2,400

List of salaries of members and employees of the Isthmian Canal Commission receiving more than $2,000 per annum—Continued.

OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES AT WASHINGTON—continued.

Name.	Position.	Salary.	Army or navy pay deducted from salary paid by Commission.
C. A. Devol, U. S. A.	Assistant purchasing agent, San Francisco.	$5,076	$4,076
W. P. Armstrong	Law clerk	2,400
E. B. Hardin	Chief draftsman	2,400
H. L. Stuntz	Auditing clerk	2,100
E. F. Maurer	Draftsman	2,100

DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION ON ISTHMUS.

W. B. Starke	Local auditor	$4,500
C. S. Todd	Chief clerk	2,400
E. J. Williams	Disbursing officer	[a]5,000
G. C. Schafer, U. S. N.	do	[a]5,000	$2,400
W. M. Wood	Chief clerk	3,000
J. P. Waldrop	Cashier	3,000
C. T. Schwegler	Assistant chief clerk	2,400
J. A. Embry	Pay clerk	2,400
C. C. Metcalf	do	2,400
E. Lepiez	Clerk	2,160
J. E. Kidwell	Pay clerk	2,100
E. C. Tobey, U. S. N.[b]	Chief division material and supplies.	[b]6,000	2,400
W. G. Tubby[b]	do	[b]9,000
V. S. Jackson, U. S. N.	Assistant chief material and supplies.	4,500	2,400
E. Hauer	do	3,000
J. Burk	do	2,700
J. H. Cotter	do	2,500
E. T. Paterson	Traveling inspector	3,000
J. J. Jackson	Bookkeeper	2,500
A. J. Hollenbec	Division storekeeper	2,500
C. S. Prentiss	do	2,500
M. H. Carpenter	Lumber inspector	2,500
G. V. Crowell	Member board of appraisal	2,400
H. Leonard	Chief clerk	2,100

DEPARTMENT OF GOVERNMENT AND SANITATION.

C. E. Magoon	Governor	[c]
H. D. Reed	Executive secretary	$3,600
R. A. Lane	Assistant secretary	3,000
I. Galindo	Legal adviser	4,000
J. J. Reidy	Plumbing inspector	2,400
J. K. Baxter	Civil-service secretary	2,100
J. M. Keedy	Prosecuting attorney	5,000
F. M. Durand	Chief justice	6,500
H. A. Gudger	Associate justice	6,000
L. C. Collins	do	6,000
N. C. Gorgas, U. S. A.	Chief sanitary officer	10,000	$4,950
E. C. Smith	Chief of division	2,100
A. I. Kendall	Bacteriologist	3,000
H. R. Carter, U. S. M. H. S.	Director of hospitals	8,000	3,500
B. W. Caldwell	Physician	2,400
R. T. Burr	do	2,400
R. L. Bartlett	do	2,400
W. F. Smith	do	3,000
H. T. Summersgill	do	3,000
J. P. Randall	do	3,000
A. L. Haines	do	2,400
J. L. Phillips, U. S. A.	Superintendent hospital	7,000	3,850
T. C. Lyster, U. S. A.	Surgeon and specialist	4,500	3,696
A. B. Herrick	Pathologist	4,000
S. T. Darling	do	2,400
J. P. Bates	Physician	3,000
W. Brem, jr	do	2,400
S. Coolridge	do	2,400
J. P. Lacroidade	do	2,400
H. C. Curl, U. S. A.	Superintendent hospital	5,000	2,640
E. P. Beverly	Chemist	3,000
L. Noland	Pathologist	3,000
N. E. Williamson	do	2,400
P. de Obarrio	Superintendent hospital	3,600
J. H. Purnell	Health officer	3,600
E. H. Wheeler	do	3,000
J. A. Le Prince	Chief sanitary inspector	3,600
J. F. Hoskinson	Assistant sanitary inspector	2,100
J. C. Perry, U. S. M. H. S.	Chief quarantine officer	7,000	3,250
M. E. Connor	Assistant quarantine officer	2,400
J. Tomaselli	Physician	2,400
G. R. Shanton	Chief of police	3,000
T. M. Cook	Collector of revenues	5,000
A. M. Miller	Surveyor	2,100
C. C. Pierce	Quarantine officer	3,300
E. W. Clarke	Division engineer	6,000
W. I. Baucus	Assistant engineer	2,700
H. W. Durham	Resident engineer	3,600

[a] Paymaster Schafer was succeeded as disbursing officer on the Isthmus of Panama by Mr. Williams in the latter part of November. The outgoing officer will be carried on the rolls while engaged in the closing of his accounts, when his services with the Commission will terminate. Mr. Williams is required to give bond in the sum of $200,000 and to pay the annual premium thereon, amounting to $360.

[b] Paymaster Tobey was succeeded by Mr. Tubby, also in the latter part of November. This outgoing officer will be carried on the rolls only until he closes his accounts.

[c] See Commissioners' salaries.

List of salaries of members and employees of the Isthmian Canal Commission receiving more than $2,000 per annum—Continued.

DEPARTMENT OF GOVERNMENT AND SANITATION—continued.

Name.	Position.	Salary.	Army or navy pay deducted from salary paid by Commission.
H. P. Linnell	Resident engineer	$3,600
C. E. Marshall	Assistant engineer	2,700
E. C. McFarland	Chief clerk	2,100
R. G. Castel	Chief of division	2,100
G. A. Heath	Supervisor	2,100
J. E. Wood	do	2,100
G. V. Barril	Instrument man	2,100

DEPARTMENT OF CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING.

J. F. Stevens	Chief engineer	$30,000
J. G. Sullivan	Assistant chief engineer	15,000
E. P. Shannon	Private secretary	3,000
H. F. Tenny	Assistant secretary	2,400
C. F. Burtoncini	Chief of division	3,000
J. Smith	Manager labor and quarters	7,200
H. Burnett	Assistant manager labor and quarters.	3,600
R. E. Wood, U. S. A.	Superintendent	3,000	$1,935
W. Bodette	Hotel manager	2,280
J. M. Maguire	Superintendent	2,400
W. G. Shea	do	3,000
C. L. Parker	Chief clerk	2,100
R. W. Glaw	Chief of division	2,100
T. O'Connell	Labor agent	3,600
S. W. Settoon	do	2,400
J. A. Tabor	do	3,000
H. A. Smith	Assistant engineer	[a]3,000
L. Park	do	[a]3,000
J. J. Loftus	do	[a]2,400
W. E. Dauchy	Division engineer	9,000
J. G. Holcombe	do	7,500
G. D. Brooke	Superintendent motive power and machinery.	6,000
F. B. Martby	Division engineer	6,000
W. Gerig	do	5,000
R. M. Arango	do	3,600
H. F. Dose	Resident engineer	4,800
E. Zeok	do	3,600
A. B. Nichols	do	3,300
W. G. Comber	do	3,300
W. B. Ruggles	do	3,300
A. C. Harper	do	3,300
R. W. Hebard	do	3,000
J. L. Little	do	3,000
F. R. Bartles	Assistant engineer	3,000
C. T. Kenley	do	3,000
O. F. Lackey	do	3,000
C. M. DuBois	do	3,000
C. L. Carpenter	do	3,000
M. W. Tenny	do	3,000
J. Hayes	do	2,700
G. M. Wells	do	2,400
A. Raggi	do	2,400
F. O. Martin	do	2,400
J. A. Card	do	2,400
E. C. Smith	do	2,400
W. F. R. Griffith	do	2,400
G. P. Philip	do	2,400
G. F. Anger	Steam-shovel engineer	2,280
W. H. Bedell	do	2,280
J. A. Baker	do	2,280
P. M. Bates	do	2,280
W. H. Bates	do	2,280
T. Custy	do	2,280
H. H. V. Fleming	do	2,280
W. Holcomb	do	2,280
F. Loulan	do	2,280
J. J. Meehan	do	2,280
L. Ward	do	2,280
T. C. Freeman	do	2,280
A. N. Arnold	do	2,280
J. H. Averill	do	2,280
E. C. Cummings	Master mechanic	3,600
A. L. Robinson	do	3,000
U. Lorentz	do	2,700
W. J. Thomas	do	2,700
E. C. Harrington	do	2,700
E. J. Banta	do	2,400
W. F. Carey	Superintendent	3,000
J. Monahan	do	3,000
T. W. Osterheld	do	3,000
J. MacFarlane	do	3,000
C. N. Boswell	do	3,600
E. S. Claybourn	do	2,400
L. M. Lepper	do	2,400
T. Jobe	Supervisor	2,400
L. B. Murray	do	2,400
C. L. Thorne	do	2,100
E. E. Rigney	do	2,100
W. D. Waltman	do	2,100
J. Gradison	do	2,100
C. E. Garrett	do	2,100
M. Regis	Boss mechanic	2,100
G. W. Steiner	General foreman	2,220
J. D. Stevens	Shop foreman	2,100

[a] Messrs. Smith, Park, and Loftus are temporarily engaged as labor agents, securing at points in the United States employees for the engineering department on the Isthmus.

List of salaries of members and employees of the Isthmian Canal Commission receiving more than $2,000 per annum—Continued.

DEPARTMENT OF CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING—continued.

Name.	Position.	Salary.	Army or navy pay deducted from salary paid by Commission.
W. D. Holland	Foreman	$2,100
H. F. Younge	do	2,100
W. W. Lindsey	do	2,100
J. E. Morrissey	do	2,100
F. Corbin	do	2,100
H. B. Mattimore	do	2,100
J. E. Fogerty	do	2,100
J. A. Fornander	do	2,100
J. J. Eason	do	2,100
P. J. Griffin	do	2,100
H. F. Cody	do	2,100
H. G. Halleck	do	2,100
W. E. Kepperly	do	2,100
A. K. Stone	Train master	2,400
A. Sessions	do	2,400
W. L. Thompson	Instrument man	2,100
T. F. Boltz	do	2,100
G. S. Walsh	do	2,100
H. R. Clark	do	2,100
R. B. Manter	do	2,100
S. Tatum	do	2,100
F. W. Doty	Chief clerk	2,100
S. J. Kennedy	do	2,100
E. H. Morrice	Timekeeper	2,100
W. M. Belding	Master builder	6,000
A. M. Burtt	Assistant master builder	2,600
P. O. Wright	Architect	3,000
J. H. Barbour	Chief clerk	2,100
G. H. Ruggles	Assistant engineer	2,700
G. A. Caldwell	Draftsman	2,100
W. H. Farrington	do	2,400
P. Perkins	do	2,100
C. L. Stockelberg	Superintendent	2,400
H. E. Daly	do	2,400
A. G. Evans	do	2,400
C. A. Luck	do	2,400
P. J. Downey	do	2,100
L. M. Lipsett	do	2,100
J. P. Kyte	do	2,100
F. B. Thomas	do	2,100
T. F. McGrath	Assistant superintendent	2,100
J. D. Wood	Expert machinist	2,400
S. M. Hitt	Instrument man	2,100
W. G. Uffendell	do	2,100

E. S. BENSON, General Auditor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 6, 1905.

Statement of status of the fiscal affairs of the Isthmian Canal Commission when taken up by the present Commissioners on April 3, 1905.

Appropriated funds in the United States Treasury available for expenditures	$7,429,068.27
Cash in the hands of collecting and disbursing officers	610,422.00
Total	8,039,490.27
The total amount expended to April 1, 1905, from appropriation of June 28, 1902, was	1,977,684.40
The miscellaneous collections to April 1, 1905, were	17,176.67
The expenditures of the present Commission from April 1 to June 30, 1905, amounted to	2,031,857.36
The amount paid for indebtedness incurred prior to April 1, 1905, was	788,371.51
The amount paid for current expenses, supplies, and equipment purchased after April 3, 1905, was	1,243,485.85
Miscellaneous receipts from April 1 to June 30, 1905, amounted to	49,446.22
There were also collected from April 1 to June 30 miscellaneous receipts pertaining to the period prior to April 1, 1905, in the sum of	26,336.40

———— ————, General Auditor.

DECEMBER 9, 1905.

Statement of general and department of administration expenditures from July 1 to September 30, 1905.

	For indebtedness incurred—		Total.
	Prior to April 1, 1905.	After April 3, 1905.
GENERAL.
The Isthmian Canal Commission:
Salaries of Commissioners		$7,629.58	$7,629.58
Transportation		118.72	118.72
Furniture and fixtures	$1.00	268.25	269.25
Transportation employees to and from Isthmus	11,952.38	18,868.73	30,821.11
Contingent expenses	10.25	8,693.50	8,703.75
Office of committee on engineering:
Salaries and wages		65.00	65.00
Transportation		292.27	292.27
Furniture and fixtures		829.29	829.29
Contingent expenses		92.59	92.59

Statement of general and department of administration expenditures from July 1 to September 30, 1905—Continued.

	For indebtedness incurred—		Total.
	Prior to April 1, 1905.	After April 3, 1905.
GENERAL—continued.
Special commissioner, J. L. Bristow:
Extra compensation		$2,500.00	$2,500.00
Per diem and traveling expenses		1,147.35	1,147.35
Contingent expenses		.43	.43
Secretary to special commissioner:
Per diem and traveling expenses		287.90	287.90
Contingent expenses		1.20	1.20
Board of consulting engineers:
Salaries and wages		207.00	207.00
Per diem and traveling expenses		1,658.50	1,658.50
Transportation		387.08	387.08
Contingent expenses		3.75	3.75
DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION.
The chairman:
Salaries and wages		5,625.00	5,625.00
Contingent expenses		54.00	54.00
Office of administration:
Salaries and wages		16,711.96	16,711.96
Transportation		731.75	731.75
Furniture and fixtures	$452.83	3,206.90	3,659.73
Contingent expenses	390.28	6,574.93	6,965.21
The general auditor, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		9,110.73	9,110.73
Transportation		148.55	148.55
Furniture and fixtures		1,247.21	1,247.21
Contingent expenses	2.50	225.01	227.51
The general auditor, Isthmus office:
Salaries and wages		12,866.00	12,866.00
Furniture and fixtures		303.00	303.00
Contingent expenses		1,450.45	1,450.45
Disbursing officers, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		2,115.00	2,115.00
Transportation		77.60	77.60
Furniture and fixtures		267.44	267.44
Contingent expenses		107.10	107.10
Disbursing officers, Isthmus office:
Salaries and wages		7,585.89	7,585.89
Transportation	469.75	270.40	740.15
Contingent expenses	7.22	6,086.65	6,093.87
MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.[a]
Purchased in United States	159,892.19	740,689.56	900,581.75
Purchased on Isthmus	3,748.50	99,201.83	102,950.33
Steamers owned		1,300,000.00	1,300,000.00
Floating equipment	8,868.84		8,868.84
COST OF PURCHASE, HANDLING, AND TRANSPORTATION OF MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.[a]
The general purchasing officer, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		10,286.00	10,286.00
Transportation		249.30	249.30
Furniture and fixtures	127.00	1,557.16	1,684.16
Services of inspectors	111.28	6,800.71	6,911.99
Transportation of inspectors	58.55	407.61	466.16
Contingent expenses		2,822.11	2,822.11
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, New York office:
Salaries and wages	6.23	2,571.65	2,577.88
Transportation		9.76	9.76
Furniture and fixtures	18.25	439.29	457.54
Contingent expenses	4.35	1,103.75	1,108.10
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, New Orleans office:
Salaries and wages		611.11	611.11
Transportation		55.90	55.90
Furniture and fixtures		21.85	21.85
Contingent expenses		134.06	134.06
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, Tacoma office:
Salaries and wages		482.61	482.61
Transportation		224.90	224.90
Furniture and fixtures		193.07	193.07
Contingent expenses		120.30	120.30
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, San Francisco office:
Salaries and wages		166.66	166.66
Material and supplies division on Isthmus, office of chief of material and supplies:
Salaries and wages		22,487.54	22,487.54
Transportation of employees	541.72	45.00	586.72
Contingent expenses	362.44	281.52	643.96
Freight, advertising, etc	48,116.79	74,929.79	123,046.58
Storehouses:
Salaries and wages		111,511.31	111,511.31
Contingent expenses	100.00	300.83	400.83
Total, first department	235,242.35	2,495,521.89	2,730,764.24

[a] Material and supplies purchased and cost of purchase, handling, and transportation of material and supplies are common to the several divisions, offices, and classes of work and are to be distributed to them in equitable proportion.

Statement of department of government and sanitation expenditures from July 1 to September 30, 1905.

	For indebtedness incurred— Prior to April 1, 1905.	For indebtedness incurred— After April 3, 1905.	Total.
The executive office:
Salaries and wages		$19,217.73	$19,217.73
Transportation	$1,822.50	1.00	1,823.50
Furniture and fixtures		129.15	129.15
Contingent expenses	180.00	1,798.46	1,978.46
The Zone treasurer:
Contingent expenses		25.00	25.00
The administration of justice:
The prosecuting attorney—
Salaries and wages		1,738.73	1,738.73
Contingent expenses	348.33	214.20	562.53
The supreme court—
Salaries and wages	403.75	3,114.65	3,518.40
Transportation		15.35	15.35
Contingent expenses		1.86	1.86
The circuit court—
Salaries and wages		3,518.43	3,518.43
Transportation		15.35	15.35
Contingent expenses		14.40	14.40
The collector of revenue and director of posts:
Customs service—
Salaries and wages		1,055.45	1,055.45
Contingent expenses		.92	.92
Division of internal revenue:
Salaries and wages		1,192.28	1,192.28
Traveling expenses		28.15	28.15
Contingent expenses		15.36	15.36
Postal service:
Salaries and wages, superintendence		1,371.83	1,371.83
Salaries and wages, postmasters		1,219.91	1,219.91
Salaries and wages, railway mail clerks		587.08	587.08
Transportation of mails	560.60	539.88	1,100.48
Traveling expenses	59.62		59.62
Contingent expenses		51.91	51.91
Division of education:
Salaries and wages, superintendence		540.45	540.45
Contingent expenses		92.12	92.12
Division of estates:
Salaries and wages		360.29	360.29
Contingent expenses		.92	.92
Land department:
Salaries and wages		2,438.69	2,438.69
Surveying expenses		1,494.53	1,494.53
Contingent expenses		93.54	93.54
Police and prisons:
General headquarters—
Salaries and wages		3,596.49	3,596.49
Transportation	5.50		5.50
Furniture and fixtures		7.68	7.68
Contingent expenses		78.73	78.73
La Boca jail—
Equipment	112.93		112.93
Empire penitentiary—
Subsistence of prisoners		315.03	315.03
Municipality of Ancon—
Salaries and wages		5,255.51	5,255.51
Transportation		28.20	28.20
Contingent expenses		81.35	81.35
Municipality of Emperador—
Salaries and wages		6,158.54	6,158.54
Equipment		67.30	67.30
Contingent expenses		5.20	5.20
Municipality of Gorgona—
Salaries and wages		2,284.52	2,284.52
Contingent expenses		42.03	42.03
Municipality of Buena Vista—
Salaries and wages		1,221.96	1,221.96
Municipality of Cristobal—
Salaries and wages		3,748.58	3,748.58
Equipment		16.65	16.65
Contingent expenses		14.00	14.00
Sanitation, hospitals and asylums:
Office of chief sanitary officer—
Salaries and wages		8,843.11	8,843.11
Contingent expenses	6.75	1,264.15	1,270.90
Director of hospitals—
Salaries and wages		2,585.63	2,585.63
Contingent expenses		46.38	46.38
Ancon Hospital—
Salaries and wages		40,412.36	40,412.36
Transportation		148.15	148.15
Subsistence		a1,396.62	1,396.62
Contingent expenses		a627.16	627.16
Miraflores Hospital—
Salaries and wages		3,335.94	3,335.94
Paraiso Hospital—
Salaries and wages		150.00	150.00
Culebra Hospital—
Salaries and wages		2,210.37	2,210.37
Contingent expenses		100.00	100.00
Gorgona Hospital—
Salaries and wages		1,731.29	1,731.29
Contingent expenses	82.50		82.50
Colon Hospital—
Salaries and wages		13,229.20	13,229.20
Transportation	3.75		3.75
Equipment		146.15	146.15
Subsistence		a167.78	167.78
Contingent expenses	563.78	169.35	733.13
Panama, Corozal, and La Boca Dispensary—
Salaries and wages		748.21	748.21

Statement of department of government and sanitation expenditures from July 1 to September 30, 1905—Continued.

	For indebtedness incurred— Prior to April 1, 1905.	For indebtedness incurred— After April 3, 1905.	Total.
Sanitation, hospitals, and asylums—Continued:
Empire Dispensary—
Salaries and wages		$864.55	$864.55
Convalescent Station at Taboga Is—land
Salaries and wages		185.14	185.14
Gamboa and Bas Obispo Hospital—
Salaries and wages		7.50	7.50
Cristobal Dispensary—
Salaries and wages		150.00	150.00
Chief quarantine officer—
Office of chief quarantine officer—
Salaries and wages		3,246.57	3,246.57
Contingent expenses		180.79	180.79
Quarantine officer, Panama—
Quarantine station—
Salaries and wages		686.67	686.67
Transportation		161.85	161.85
Subsistence		3,758.25	3,758.25
Contingent expenses		252.79	252.79
Quarantine officer, Colon—
Office of quarantine officer—
Salaries and wages		1,190.42	1,190.42
Contingent expenses		71.15	71.15
Quarantine station, Colon—
Salaries and wages		190.49	190.49
Transportation		60.00	60.00
Health officer, Panama:
Office of health officer—
Salaries and wages		8,506.84	8,506.84
Transportation		33.00	33.00
Contingent expenses		339.47	339.47
Street-cleaning service—
Salaries and wages		6,962.51	6,962.51
Transportation		4,686.50	4,686.50
Contingent expenses		292.00	292.00
Mosquito, contagious diseases, and disinfecting service—
Salaries and wages		43,055.53	42,055.53
Transportation		1,576.75	1,576.75
Contingent expenses		190.50	190.50
Health officer, Colon:
Office of health officer—
Salaries and wages	$33.50	4,279.84	4,313.34
Contingent expenses		456.58	456.58
Street-cleaning service—
Salaries and wages		10,283.20	10,283.20
Transportation		1,406.25	1,406.25
Mosquito, contagious diseases, and disinfecting service—
Salaries and wages		4,109.22	4,109.22
Transportation		617.50	617.50
Contingent expenses		16.10	16.10
Chief sanitary officer:
Office of chief sanitary inspector—
Salaries and wages		10,028.59	10,028.59
Contingent expenses	8.19	214.69	222.88
Mosquito, contagious diseases, and disinfecting service—
Salaries and wages		55,213.59	55,213.59
Contingent expenses		3,531.06	3,531.06
Division of municipal engineering:
Office of municipal engineer—
Salaries and wages		249.80	249.80
Transportation	180.00	53.90	233.90
Contingent expenses	4.70	462.70	467.40
Improvement of Zone highways:
Construction of Sabanas road—
Salaries and wages		8,863.79	8,863.79
Contingent expenses		20.00	20.00
Construction of La Boca road—
Salaries and wages		4,997.29	4,997.29
Contingent expenses		40.00	40.00
Construction of Ancon Hill road—
Salaries and wages		2,264.95	2,264.95
Construction of Corozal road—
Salaries and wages		1,659.70	1,659.70
Contingent expenses		5.00	5.00
Construction of St. Lazaro road—
Equipment		172.08	172.08
Construction of waterworks and sewers, Panama—
Salaries and wages		79,515.88	79,515.88
Contingent expenses		553.80	553.80
Construction of waterworks and sewers, Colon—
Salaries and wages		12,138.41	12,138.41
Contingent expenses		1.30	1.30
Construction and maintenance of waterworks and sewers on Zone—
Salaries and wages		43,440.72	43,440.72
Contingent expenses		23.50	23.50
Paving, Panama—
Salaries and wages		5,266.68	5,266.68
Office buildings, Isthmus, repairs of		303.39	303.39
Total second department	4,376.40	462,576.90	466,953.30 a Deduct.

Statement of department of construction and engineering expenditures from July 1 to September 30, 1905.

	For indebtedness incurred— Prior to April 1, 1905.	For indebtedness incurred— After April 3, 1905.	Total.
Office of chief engineer:
Salaries and wages		$23,087.01	$23,087.01
Transportation	$1,207.50	925.61	2,133.11
Furniture and fixtures		100.00	100.00
Contingent expenses	275.00	1,639.36	1,914.36
Timekeeping bureau:
Contingent expenses		413.25	413.25
Office of manager, labor and quarters:
Salaries and wages	4.17	22,864.23	22,868.40
Transportation		53.75	53.75
Contingent expenses	683.32	7,962.71	8,646.03
Division of meteorology and river hydraulics:
Salaries and wages		3,672.67	3,672.67
Division of building construction:
Expenses		285,343.51	285,343.51
Mechanical division:
General superintendence—
Salaries and wages		28,946.31	28,946.31
Transportation		50.00	50.00
Contingent expenses	14.78	338.04	352.82
Empire machine shops		45,911.06	45,911.06
Bas Matachin machine shops	22.50	45,548.30	45,570.80
Cristobal machine shops		43,379.98	43,379.98
La Boca machine shops, contingent expenses		2.37	2.37
La Boca ship ways		30,481.68	30,481.68
Cristobal ship ways		12,004.69	12,004.69
Corrals:
Ancon		11,386.06	11,386.06
Corozal		35.88	35.88
Culebra		3,993.11	3,993.11
Cristobal		2,084.96	2,084.96
CANAL CONSTRUCTION.
Colon division:
Office of division engineer—
Salaries and wages		1,768.53	1,768.53
Transportation	8.53		8.53
Contingent expenses	20.00	431.20	451.20
Miscellaneous construction expenses—
Engineering		3,455.14	3,455.14
Contingent expenses		840.05	840.05
Docks—
Transportation—
Salaries and wages		26.67	26.67
Foundations—
Salaries and wages	86.82	53.22	140.04
Contingent expenses	609.69	230.00	839.69
Piers, foundations—
Salaries and wages	68.16		68.16
Equipment	135.00		135.00
Cuts, dredging—
Salaries and wages		156.25	156.25
Harbors, dredging—
Salaries and wages		3,375.66	3,375.66
Repairs to equipment		62.72	62.72
Chagres division:
Miscellaneous construction expenses—
Engineering		325.50	325.50
Cuts, foundations—
Salaries and wages		14.00	14.00
Cuts, transportation—
Salaries and wages		3.33	3.33
Cuts, excavations—
Transportation of material	33.00		33.00
Contingent expenses	256.00		256.00
Gamboa division:
Office of division engineer—
Contingent expenses		264.97	264.97
Miscellaneous construction expenses—
Engineering		16,502.89	16,502.89
Contingent expenses		161.94	161.94
Culebra division:
Office of division engineer—
Salaries and wages		4,606.95	4,606.95
Transportation	8.98		8.98
Contingent expenses		1,843.14	1,843.14
Miscellaneous construction expenses—
Engineering		48,031.86	48,031.86
Contingent expenses		13.28	13.28
Repairs and renewals of buildings		4,238.26	4,238.26
Cuts—
Excavations—
Salaries and wages		42,390.41	42,390.41
Transportation of material	678.00		678.00
Repairs to equipment		192.43	192.43
Contingent expenses	8,160.91	1,280.74	9,441.65
Transportation—
Salaries and wages		67,953.98	67,953.98
Tracks and track repairs		62,475.72	62,475.72
Repairs to equipment		4,922.08	4,922.08
Superintendent of transportation—
Salaries and wages		175.00	175.00
Transportation		71.15	71.15
Contingent expenses		135.49	135.49
Superintendent of dumps—
Contingent expenses		55.97	55.97
Salaries and wages		16,498.46	16,498.46
Tracks and track repairs		429.84	429.84
Culebra division—Continued.
Cuts—
Dumps—
Contingent expenses		$207.42	$207.42
Tracks—
Contingent expenses	$6.43		6.43
Dams—
Tracks—
Contingent expenses	153.36		153.36
Quarters for employees—
Salaries and wages		16.20	16.20
La Boca division:
Office of division engineer—
Contingent expenses		45.25	45.25
Office of resident engineer—
Contingent expenses		315.20	315.20
Miscellaneous construction expenses—
Engineering		5,633.33	5,633.33
Contingent expenses		386.15	386.15
Harbors, dredging—
Salaries and wages		12,854.12	12,854.12
Contingent expenses	321.91		321.91
Cuts, excavations—
Contingent expenses		7.50	7.50
Docks, foundations—
Salaries and wages		978.37	978.37
Material used		926.28	926.28
Contingent expenses	66.10	160.00	226.10
Dams, masonry—
Contingent expenses	269.50		269.50
Total disbursements, third department	13,089.66	874,741,19	887,830.85

E. S. BENSON, General Auditor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 9, 1905.

Detailed statement of expenditures made by settlements in the Washington office, and estimated expenditures on the Isthmus during the months of October and November, 1905.

OCTOBER, 1905.

	For indebtedness incurred— Prior to April 1, 1905.	For indebtedness incurred— After April 3, 1905.	Total.
GENERAL.
The Isthmian Canal Commission:
Salaries of commissioners		$1,827.92	$1,827.92
Per diem and traveling expenses		56.44	56.44
Transportation of employees to and from Isthmus		6,264.50	6,264.50
Transportation of employees on Isthmus		3,459.09	3,459.09
Contingent expenses		1,000.00	1,000.00
Office of committee on engineering:
Transportation		83.70	83.70
Contingent expenses		60.69	60.69
Special commissioners:
Advisory board of engineers—
Per diem and traveling expenses, members		1,446.42	1,446.42
Salaries and traveling expenses, employees		1,280.66	1,280.66
Contingent expenses		172.75	172.75
DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION.
The chairman:
Salaries and wages		1,875.00	1,875.00
Office of administration:
Salaries and wages		5,833.57	5,833.57
Per diem and traveling expenses		82.55	82.55
Contingent expenses	$106.21	602.71	708.92
The general auditor, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		3,304.95	3,304.95
Per diem and traveling expenses		15.50	15.50
Contingent expenses		3.30	3.30
Disbursing officers, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		694.98	694.98
MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.
Purchased in the United States	47,318.08	282,858.54	330,176.62
COST OF PURCHASE, HANDLING, AND TRANSPORTATION OF MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.
The general purchasing officer, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		3,128.88	3,128.88
Services of inspectors		6,037.10	6,037.10
Per diem and traveling expenses of inspectors		235.54	235.54
Contingent expenses		22.58	22.58

Detailed statement of expenditures, etc.—Continued.
OCTOBER, 1905—Continued.

	For indebtedness incurred—		Total.
	Prior to April 1, 1905.	After April 3, 1905.
COST OF PURCHASE, HANDLING, AND TRANSPORTATION OF MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES—continued.
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, New York office:
Salaries and wages		$226.10	$226.10
Contingent expenses	$39.35	301.37	340.72
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, New Orleans office:
Salaries and wages		291.67	291.67
Contingent expenses		17.90	17.90
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, Tacoma office:
Salaries and wages		241.67	241.67
Per diem and traveling expenses		39.30	39.30
Contingent expenses		31.70	31.70
Freight, advertising, etc	4,201.79	20,274.99	24,476.78
PURCHASE OF FURNITURE, EQUIPMENT, AND INSTRUMENTS.
Office of administration		1,302.86	1,302.86
General auditor, Washington office		90.45	90.45
Disbursing officers, Washington office		42.50	42.50
Committee on engineering		162.75	162.75
The general purchasing officer		32.20	32.20
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents:
New York office	41.25	274.13	315.38
New Orleans office		3.39	3.39
Special commissioners		26.01	26.01
Purchase of Panama Railroad stock		1,460.75	1,460.75
GOVERNMENT AND SANITATION.
Chief quarantine officer, contingent expenses	10.00		10.00
Colon Hospital, contingent expenses		40.00	40.00
Postal administration, mail transportation		160.28	160.28
CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING.
Culebra division, superintendent dumps, contingent expenses		75.00	75.00
Culebra division, cuts, excavations, contingent expenses	1,024.50	777.50	1,802.00
Bureau waterworks and sewers, transportation		112.50	112.50
Intermediate waterworks, construction division, contingent expenses		456.00	456.00
Superintendent motive power and machinery, salaries and wages		680.56	680.56
Chief engineer:
Salaries and wages		226.68	226.68
Contingent expenses		158.00	158.00
Per diem and traveling expenses		84.90	84.90
Public amusements, salaries and wages		1,000.00	1,000.00
Total	52,741.18	348,938.73	401,679.91

Estimated expenditures on the Isthmus during the month of October, 1905.

Salaries and wages	$530,000.00
Material and supplies	55,000.00
Miscellaneous items	20,000.00
Total, October	605,000.00
Total expenditures Isthmian Canal Commission, month of October, 1905	1,006,679.91

NOVEMBER, 1905.

GENERAL.
The Isthmian Canal Commission:
Salaries of commissioners		$1,827.92	$1,827.92
Per diem and traveling expenses		53.65	53.65
Transportation of employees to and from Isthmus		5,005.80	5,005.80
Contingent expenses		1,000.00	1,000.00
Office of Committee on Engineering:
Per diem and traveling expenses		16.50	16.50
Special commissioners:
Per diem and traveling expenses		153.66	153.66
Advisory board of engineers:
Per diem and traveling expenses, members		12,116.39	12,116.39
Salaries and traveling expenses, employees		2,757.22	2,757.22
Contingent expenses		1.25	1.25
DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION.
The chairman:
Salaries and wages		1,875.00	1,875.00
Office of Administration:
Salaries and wages		5,856.49	5,856.49
Per diem and traveling expenses		96.85	96.85
Contingent expenses	$435.23	4,323.27	4,758.50
The general auditor, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		3,177.77	3,177.77
Disbursing officers, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		665.84	665.84
Per diem and traveling expenses		18.50	18.50

Detailed statement of expenditures, etc.—Continued.
NOVEMBER, 1905—continued.

	For indebtedness incurred—		Total.
	Prior to April 1, 1905.	After April 3, 1905.
DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION—continued.
Disbursing officers, Isthmus office:
Per diem and traveling expenses		$59.50	$59.50
MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.
Purchased in the United States	$239.80	229,257.32	229,497.12
COST OF PURCHASE, HANDLING, AND TRANSPORTATION OF MATERIAL AND SUPPLIES.
The general purchasing officer, Washington office:
Salaries and wages		3,133.87	3,133.87
Services of inspectors		816.50	816.50
Per diem and traveling expenses of inspectors		386.04	386.04
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, New York office:
Salaries and wages		1,087.75	1,087.75
Per diem and traveling expenses		19.00	19.00
Contingent expenses		391.71	391.71
Assistant purchasing and shipping agent, New Orleans office:
Salaries and wages		284.16	284.16
Contingent expenses		2.50	2.50
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, Tacoma office:
Salaries and wages		258.16	258.16
Per diem and traveling expenses		28.50	28.50
Contingent expenses		17.00	17.00
Assistant purchasing and shipping agents, San Francisco office:
Salaries and wages		166.67	166.67
Freight, advertising, etc	2,864.19	3,018.81	5,883.00
PURCHASE OF FURNITURE, EQUIPMENT, AND INSTRUMENTS.
Office of administration		406.70	406.70
General auditor, Washington office		54.29	54.29
General purchasing officer		18.00	18.00
Assistant purchasing and shipping agent, New York office		62.34	62.34
GOVERNMENT AND SANITATION.
The executive office:
Contingent expenses	202.07	303.10	505.17
Ancon Hospital:
Salaries and wages		92.00	92.00
CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING.
Office of chief engineer:
Salaries and wages		896.66	896.66
Per diem and traveling expenses		65.93	65.93
Contingent expenses		288.50	288.50
Floating equipment, credit	137.40		137.40
Total	3,603.89	283,061.12	283,665.01

Estimated expenditures on the Isthmus during the month of November, 1905.

Salaries and wages	$550,000.00
Material and supplies	37,000.00
Miscellaneous items	18,000.00
Total, November	605,000.00
Total expenditures, Isthmian Canal Commission, month of November, 1905	888,665.01

E. S. BENSON, General Auditor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 9, 1905.

ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSIAN,
Washington, D. C., December 9, 1905.

The estimates of $2,300,000 for miscellaneous material purchases from December 1, 1905, to June 30, 1906, will cover the purchase of the following articles:

Anchors, anchor gear, and chains.
Apparatus and materials, electric.
Blocks, pulleys, etc.
Bolts, rivets, nuts, nails, lag screws, and washers.
Brushes and brooms.
Building materials: Brick, cement, lumber, doors, sash, screens, roofing materials.
Canvas, rope, twine.
Explosives.
Furniture and fittings, kitchen, house, and table.
Glass.
Hardware, miscellaneous.
Harness and horse furnishings.
Instruments and apparatus, miscellaneous.
Lamps and lamp fixtures.
Leather and belting.

Machinery and machine tools.
Metals.
Packing, rubber, and hose.
Paints, oils, chemicals, drugs, etc.
Pipe (water and sewer) fittings, plumbing supplies.
Ship, boat equipment and repair parts.
Stationery, books, and blanks.
Stoves and fixtures.
Hand tools.
Bridge materials.
Car repair parts: Wheels, axles, bolsters, journal boxes, journal bearings, coupler and repair parts, air brakes and repair parts, brake shoes, brake beams, bar and sheet iron and steel.
Castings, iron, steel, and brass.
Cranes and hoisting machinery and repair parts.
Dredge repair parts.
Drills, air, steam, and repair parts.
Engineering instruments and apparatus and repair parts.
Hospital and medical supplies.
Ice.
Locomotive repair parts: Wheels, tires, axles, journal boxes, journal bearings, coupler and repair parts, air brakes and repair parts, brake shoes, brake beams, boiler tubes, headlights, injectors, bar and sheet iron and steel.
Oils, lubricating.
Oils, illuminating.
Rails.
Steam shovel repair parts.
Track materials other than rail): Frogs, switches, switch, stands, bolts, spikes, tie plates, rail braces, rail benders, rail punches, rail saws, rail gauges, cross-ties, switch ties.
Unloaders, earth spreaders, and repair parts.

As an example of the way in which miscellaneous purchases are likely to run there is given below a statement outlining the miscellaneous purchases actually made in the month of October, 1905, which is an average month's purchases of miscellaneous supplies at the present time. It is estimated that the average miscellaneous purchases for the next seven months will approximate $325,000 per month.

Memorandum of miscellaneous purchases in October, 1905.

Laundry equipment	$5,641.69
Lead pipe and fittings	4,826.93
Iron pipe and fittings	41,507.90
Vitrified sewer pipe and fittings	13,930.98
Lumber	43,834.28
Cement	39,000.00
Wagons, carts, harness, and repair parts	7,813.85
Forage for animals	19,075.50
Machinery and tools:
Portable well-drilling machinery and repair parts	14,456.00
Gasoline engine and parts	738.99
Pumps	336.00
Boilers	870.00
Drills	163.50
Printing machinery	837.95
Steam shovel repair parts	15,926.03
Pipe tools	421.08
Miscellaneous tools	1,762.89
Railway and track material and tools:
Brake shoes	711.00
Other repair parts for cars	970.51
Coal-chute pockets	5,500.00
Tie plates	6,570.00
Bridge floor beams and rivets	4,402.90
Rail punches and benders	592.65
Paints and oils	1,023.75
Stationery, office supplies, and printing	10,723.33
Office furniture	1,859.66
Safes and vault doors	576.65
Typewriters	2,624.30
Police equipment, watchmen's clocks, handcuffs, etc	1,149.68
Sanitary fixtures, water-closets, urinals, etc	28,579.40
Furniture and equipment for quarters	1,632.66
Engineering instruments and draftsmen's supplies	3,434.66
Valves	1,096.40
Tents, cotton duck, sponges, etc	982.13
Repairs water sterilizers, wooden faucets, etc	1,791.00
Instruments for bureau of meterology and river hydraulics	1,355.00
Nails, bolts, rivets, and screws	214.79
Brooms, brushes, etc	108.40
Miscellaneous tools and supplies	7,078.05
Total	294,120.49

D. E. Ross, General Purchasing Officer.

Detail of miscellaneous supplies included in item of $4,000,000—Estimated liabilities December 1, 1905.

Sulphuric acid, beeswax, turpentine, etc	$10,934
Japanned dryer, red ocher, etc	19,447
25,000 gallons linseed oil	13,150
Tents and accessories	12,821
Swivel hooks, snatch blocks, wire rope, emery paper, etc	5,546
Iron bolts, spikes, sheathing, nails	12,466
Red and white lead	16,275
Fire hose	4,621
Rope	2,454
227,000 pounds round iron	4,566
Laundry equipment	5,604
Cement	39,000
Forage	20,535
Steam shovel repair parts	15,926
Portable well-drilling tools and repair parts	14,456
Coal-chute pockets	5,500
Bridge-floor beams and rivets	4,402
Stationery and printing	10,373
Engineering instruments, draftsmen's supplies	7,099
Pipe tongs, wrenches, and valves	1,460
Malleable iron castings	2,684
Garbage carts	450
Brass castings	2,607
Numbering machines	$756
Stationery	15,922
Crane chains	1,330
Wire cables	384
Steel vault doors	1,381
Whitewashing machines	273
Furniture and equipment for quarters	1,362
Instruments, bureau of meteorology and river hydraulics	1,355
Typewriters	2,624
Wagon parts and repair parts	7,813
Police equipment, watchman clocks, handcuffs, etc	1,149
Miscellaneous	36,614
Total	303,539

E. S. Benson, General Auditor.

December 9, 1905.

Statement of miscellaneous receipts from all sources.

	To April 1.	April 3 to June 30.	Total.
UNITED STATES FUNDS.
Sales:
Sales of material and supplies	$4,034.77	$384.55	$4,419.32
Sales of water	256.88		256.88
Electric lighting	13.20	305.57	318.77
Commissary supplies	1,438.90	23,834.73	25,273.63
Mess accounts, Ancon Hospital	3,412.65	1,670.00	5,082.65
Receipts from pay patients, Ancon Hospital	1,576.24	1,353.75	2,929.99
Mess accounts, Colon Hospital	105.00	150.00	255.00
Receipts from pay patients, Colon Hospital	768.68	207.30	975.98
Receipts from pay patients, other hospitals		7.00	7.00
Mess accounts, other hospitals	167.89		167.89
Rentals and taxes:
Rents of land and buildings	10,439.75	2,478.42	12,918.17
Rent of equipment	15.88	1,142.56	1,158.44
Rent of material	4,163.38	475.36	4,638.74
Real-estate tax	198.29		198.29
Work done:
Labor and material furnished	149.32	8,545.75	8,695.07
Reimbursements for overpayments and for services and supplies	377.35	2,369.77	2,747.12
50 per cent earnings joint telegraph lines		1,138.45	1,138.45
Gain on exchange of currency	459.45		459.45
Total United States funds	27,577.63	44,063.21	71,640.84
ZONE GOVERNMENT REVENUES.
Postal revenues	7,372.25	3,671.40	11,043.65
Internal revenues:
Slaughter tax	1,547.46		1,547.46
Tax on sale of liquor	2,511.59		2,511.59
Tax on distilling apparatus	3,703.80	1,276.73	4,980.53
Internal-revenue stamps	26.86	3.31	30.17
Stamped paper	141.22	68.72	209.94
Miscellaneous revenues:
Court fees and fines	12.10	158.35	170.45
Police-department fines	16.68	46.00	62.68
Forfeited bonds	466.73		466.73
Examination fees	5.00	5.00	10.00
Permits to carry firearms	10.00	5.00	15.00
Quarantine receipts	58.50	148.50	207.00
Money left by deceased patients	19.40		19.40
Miscellaneous receipts	43.85		43.85
Total Zone government funds	15,935.44	5,383.01	21,318.45
Total from all sources	43,513.07	49,446.22	92,959.29

PRINTING FOR THE INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE COMMITTEE.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce shall have authority to order such printing and binding done as it may deem to be necessary, connected with the hearings and other business before said committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which has just been read. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. HEPBURN, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR] rises to a question of personal privilege. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LAMAR. I am not sure, Mr. Speaker, if this is a question of personal privilege, but I desire a formal ruling from the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not rule unless the Chair understands the question.

Mr. LAMAR. I will submit the paragraph to which I refer, stating at the same time that I consider that paragraph a reflection upon me in my Representative capacity in Congress. I would like to ask the Chair to read it, and, if proper, to have it announced for a formal record ruling.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman desire the Chair to read it personally?

Mr. LAMAR. No, sir; I desire to have it read by the Clerk, and if it is in the nature of a personal privilege, or if it is personal privilege, I desire to speak upon it. If it is not, I will ask the Chair to rule upon it.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Much of the trouble comes from the fact that he has removed from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce DORSEY W. SHACKLEFORD, of Missouri, and WILLIAM B. LAMAR, of Florida, the two Democrats who last year submitted to the House a subsidiary report on the Hearst railroad-rate bill.

In addition to this action, which, it is claimed, was taken by Mr. WILLIAMS without notice to the two men concerned, he yesterday made a statement that SHACKLEFORD and LAMAR had broken faith with the caucus agreement on the Davie rate bill last session.

"There is nothing personal in this," said Mr. WILLIAMS. "SHACKLEFORD and LAMAR simply broke the party agreement reached in the caucus."

Mr. LAMAR. Now, Mr. Speaker, if that is not a question of personal privilege, of course I do not desire to make the slightest attempt to address the House upon it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is quite clear that the paragraph read at the Clerk's desk does not present a question of personal privilege.

Mr. LAMAR. I am in doubt myself, Mr. Speaker, but I desired that it should be formally made of record in the House to estop and debar forever any possible suggestion that I did not attempt to bring that matter up here in this House.

Mr. PAYNE. I suggest to the gentleman that he ask unanimous consent if he desires to make a statement.

Mr. LAMAR. I do ask unanimous consent that I may make a statement.

Mr. PAYNE. Say ten minutes?

A MEMBER. An hour.

Mr. PAYNE. Or twenty minutes?

Mr. LAMAR. Twenty minutes. I would like to have a square deal.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Florida asks unanimous consent to make a personal statement.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, pending the request, and reserving the right to object, I wish to say that in the interest of Democratic harmony and effectiveness and general good feeling, which will not be promoted by washing Democratic linen for the amusement of a Republican House, I object. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

Mr. LAMAR. I will not ask one thing that is unfair of this House——

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. I wish to ask a question.

Mr. LAMAR. I decline to be interrupted.

The SPEAKER. Well, the gentleman has not the floor. Objection has been made.

Mr. LAMAR. May I have the floor?

The SPEAKER. Objection has been made.

Mr. LAMAR. Then I will ask the minority leader if he will not withdraw that objection. I will not detain the House——

Mr. WILLIAMS. I have stated my reasons for having made that objection. I have assumed the responsibility for that course, and I persist in the objection.

Mr. PAYNE. All this is out of order. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. LAMAR (to Mr. WILLIAMS). Will you call a Democratic caucus——

Mr. WILLIAMS. This is not a question for the consideration of the House of Representatives——

Mr. LAMAR. Will you call a caucus?

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman can put that question to me somewhere else.

Mr. LAMAR. The gentleman went to the newspapers with this matter, and now objects here on the floor to a settlement of it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman from Mississippi has not gone to the newspapers.

The SPEAKER. This is not in order. [Cries of "Regular order!"]

Mr. LAMAR. The House will understand it. I have gotten it before the House in part.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the House do now adjourn.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Pending the motion to adjourn, by unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted as follows:

To Mr. VAN DUZER, indefinitely, on account of sickness in his family.

To Mr. GRANGER, for this week, on account of illness.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

Mr. TOWNSEND, by unanimous consent, obtained leave to withdraw from the files of the House, without leaving copies, the papers in the case of Sue M. Salsbury, no adverse report having been made thereon.

The motion to adjourn was then agreed to; and accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 55 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until Wednesday, December 13, 1905.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting report of inspections of disbursements and transfers by officers of the Army—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor submitting an estimate or appropriation for repairs of vessels of the Coast and Geodetic Survey—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the governor of the Territory of New Mexico submitting an estimate of appropriation for rental of offices at Santa Fe—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for national trophy and prizes for Army and militia—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, submitting recommendation for legislation respecting the fees of United States courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, submitting a recommendation for legislation relating to the compensation of deputy marshals and bailiffs in United States courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, transmitting, with a favorable recommendation, the draft of a bill for adjusting the salaries of certain attorneys of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor submitting an estimate of appropriation for carrying out the provisions of an act of Congress for the relief of the sureties of Frank A. Webb—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation claims relating to the schooner Farmer, Nathan S. Thompson, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the superintendent of the State, War, and Navy building submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for fuel, lights, etc.—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Thetis, Russell Kilbourn, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the ship Chace, Thomas Johnston, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Louis Nelson, administrator of estate of Samuel B. Nelson, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Robert Waters against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Julia Gailey, sole heir of estate of Hiram Gailey, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of W. A. Montgomery, administrator of estate of John Read, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of the south shore of Lake Superior in vicinity of Keweenaw Point—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Lake Harbor, Michigan—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of the mouth of Black River and Dexter Harbor, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Conecuh River, Alabama—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Welles Harbor, Midway Island—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Tallahatchie River, Mississippi—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Brier Creek, Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Ipswich River, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Pawtucket (Seekonk) River, Rhode Island—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Upper Machodoc Creek, Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Meherrin River, North Carolina—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Quantico Creek, Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Cedar Keys, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Librarian of Congress submitting an estimate of transfer appropriation for printing for the Library—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for the support of military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting a report of receipts and expenditures on account of appropriations for contingent expenses of the War Department—to the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of St. Francis River, Arkansas—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Big Sandy River, Tennessee—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of harbor at Anacortes, Wash.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Oconto Harbor, Wisconsin—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of the vicinity of Rogers City, Mich.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Matagorda Bay, Texas—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of St. Johns and Little rivers, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a report of expenditures from the contingent fund, amount of balances due, accrued postage, etc.—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Ohio River at and near Metropolis, Ill.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Clatskanie River, Oregon—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Saugus River, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Allerton Point, Boston Harbor, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Winthrop Head, Boston Harbor, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Mystic River, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of August Schlapp against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Shallotte River, North Carolina—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of upper White River, Arkansas—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of harbor at St. Petersburg, Fla.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Warwick Creek or River, Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Lloyds Harbor, New York—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with draft of a bill, a recommendation for an appropriation to satisfy the claim of Mrs. Anne H. Wagner, widow of Col. Arthur L. Wagner—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Postmaster-General, submitting a statement of allowances to postmasters for reimbursement—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Valentine S. Brewer against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of John H. Black against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Robert C. Cozine, son of John S. Cozine, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Jacob Samuel Weaver against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Sarah Ann Dobbs, widow of Nathaniel B. Dobbs, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Ellen R. Smith, widow of James R. Smith, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Andrew G. Gorrell against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Robert W. Pemberton against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Mary A. Mathews, widow of Fenelon B. Mathews, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Elizabeth Magruder, niece and heir of Alexander Magruder, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Thomas P. Caldwell against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Kate W. Milward, widow of Hubbard K. Milward, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Frank E. Foster against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Ion B. Nall against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Andrew J. Guilford against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of State submitting an estimate of appropriation for participation in an exposition at Milan, Italy—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Supervising Architect of the Treasury submitting an estimate of appropriation for public buildings at Los Angeles, Cal.; Nashville, Tenn., and Rome, Ga.—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, recommending a repeal of the law allowing expenses of the trial of Indians who have committed offenses within the jurisdiction of States and Territories—to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with approval, a letter from the Assistant Secretary of War recommending legislation affecting the expenditures and appropriations of the War Department—to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a report of the public property in the Post-Office Department—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Post-Office Department, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, transmitting a recommendation for legislation relating to fees of United States commissioners—to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, recommending legislation relating to purchase of supplies in the War Department—to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 5964) for the construction of a waterway and barge canal connecting the waters of the Mississippi River with those of the St. Marys River, in the State of Georgia, along the landlocked waters of the coast of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Florida, and a canal from St. Georges Sound, in Florida, to the St. Marys River, in Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5965) to regulate the removal of causes from the State courts to the Federal courts on account of prejudice or local influence—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ADAMSON: A bill (H. R. 5966) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce"—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. MURDOCK: A bill (H. R. 5967) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Newton, State of Kansas—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. GILBERT of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 5968) providing for the punishment of United States prisoners for crimes committed while confined in State penal institutions—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5969) authorizing and directing the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and the Attorney-General to ascertain and report as to the existence of certain alleged trusts or monopolies, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5970) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States," approved July 24, 1897—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ALLEN of Maine: A bill (H. R. 5971) authorizing the extension of T street (formerly W street) NW.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5972) granting the right to sell burial sites in parts of certain streets in Washington City to the vestry of Washington parish for the benefit of the Congressional Cemetery—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5973) to provide for the payment of damages to owners of property on account of changes of grade under acts of Congress approved February 12, 1901, which provide for the eliminating of certain grade crossings of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5974) to regulate the employment of child labor in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 5975) to purchase a painting of the frigate Constitution, known as "Old Ironsides," and entitled "Old Ironsides"—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 5976) to provide for the final disposition of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. PERKINS: A bill (H. R. 5977) to provide for the erection of an addition to the public building at Rochester, N. Y.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: A bill (H. R. 5978) to provide for the extension of time within which homestead settlers may establish their residence upon certain lands which were heretofore a part of the Unitah Indian Reservation, within the counties of Uinta and Wasatch, in the State of Utah—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 5979) to grant the thirty-sixth section of public lands in each township to the State of Arkansas for school purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 5980) increasing the limit of cost of public building at Meriden, Conn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5981) for the maintenance and improvement of the Connecticut River below Hartford—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5982) for the improvement of harbor of refuge at Duck Island Harbor, Connecticut—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5983) for the improvement of the Housatonic River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5984) for the improvement of the New Haven (Conn.) Harbor breakwater—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. DAWES: A bill (H. R. 5985) to provide for the erection of a public building at Marietta, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas: A bill (H. R. 5986) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Arkansas River at Pine Bluff—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. JOHNSON: A bill (H. R. 5987) for an addition to the public building at Greenville, S. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 5988) punishing officers or employees who shall prematurely impart information which is accessible to such officers or employees—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 5989) to provide for the erection of a public building at Livingston, Tenn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 5990) to prevent the locating of placer-mining claims in the district of Alaska by powers of attorney—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5991) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of North Yakima, in the State of Washington—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5992) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Walla Walla, in the State of Washington—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 5993) to provide for the purchase of a site and erection of a public building thereon at Middletown, N. Y.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5994) to provide for the casting in bronze and erection in the city of Washington of the colossal equestrian group known as "The Indian Buffalo Hunt"—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 5995) to amend an act to increase the limit of cost of certain public buildings, to authorize the purchase of sites for public buildings, to authorize the erection and completion of public buildings, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5996) to amend the act entitled "An act to regulate commutation for good conduct to United States prisoners," approved June 21, 1902—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. HOGG: A bill (H. R. 5997) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Grand Junction, Colo.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 5998) creating the Mesa Verde National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BABCOCK: A bill (H. R. 5999) to amend section 605 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6000) to rectify the boundary line of Rock Creek Park—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6001) providing for compulsory education in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 6002) granting pensions to Army locomotive firemen, and providing pensions to widows and minor children of Army locomotive firemen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALZELL: A bill (H. R. 6003) to incorporate the Lake Erie and Ohio River Ship Canal, to define the powers thereof, and to facilitate interstate commerce—to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 6004) to authorize and direct the Secretary of War to cause a survey to be made of Big Swift Creek, Craven County, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6005) for the improvement of navigation of Carrot Island Slough, Carteret County, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6006) for a survey of the waters of Bogue Sound and Beaufort Harbor, North Carolina, adjacent to the town of Morehead City, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6007) to amend chapter 1437 of the United States Statutes at Large, volume 33, part 1, Fifty-eighth Congress, entitled "An act to provide for terms of the United States district and circuit courts at Washington, N. C., approved March 3, 1905—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6008) to establish United States courts at Goldsboro, N. C.—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 6009) to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. MACON: A bill (H. R. 6010) to amend an act entitled "An act granting an increase of pension to soldiers of the Mexican war in certain cases," approved January 5, 1893—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 6011) for the erection of a public building at Red Wing, Minn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6012) for the erection of a public building at Faribault, Minn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BOWIE: A bill (H. R. 6013) prohibiting the issuing of special-tax stamps to retail and wholesale dealers in liquors in prohibition districts—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6014) requiring collectors of internal revenue to give information in certain cases—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 6015) providing for the erection of a public building at Muskogee, Ind. T.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. WEBBER: A bill (H. R. 6061) to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BONYNGE: A bill (H. R. 6017) to amend sections 1 and 2 of the act of March 3, 1903, to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6018) to enable the President of the United States to call an international conference for the purpose of securing an international agreement relative to the regulation of the immigration of aliens to the United States—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 6019) to amend an act entitled "An act to further regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States," Public No. 103, approved February 19, 1903, so as to restore imprisonment penalties for violations of interstate and foreign commerce laws—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 6020) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Iola, in the State of Kansas—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 6021) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Beverly, in the State of Massachusetts—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. WEBB: A bill (H. R. 6022) providing for more frequent reports of amount of cotton ginned—to the Committee on the Census.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6023) providing for daily reports of amount of cotton ginned—to the Committee on the Census.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 6024) to abolish the office of receiver of public moneys for land districts, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6025) to amend the commutation provisions of the homestead laws—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 6026) for the printing of a report on the hog industry—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. BURGESS: A bill (H. R. 6027) to construct a post-office building at Gonzales, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6028) to make uniform the salaries of United States district attorneys and marshals in Texas—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BOWERS: A bill (H. R. 6029) to provide for a resurvey of township 4 north, range 13 west, St. Stephens meridian, in Perry County, Miss.—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 6030) to authorize the sale and disposition of surplus or unallotted lands of the Fort Hall

Indian Reservation, in the State of Idaho—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. BOWERS: A bill (H. R. 6031) to acquire certain ground in the District of Columbia for a Government reservation—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 6032) for the construction of a suitable vessel for the Revenue-Cutter Service for duty at Savannah, Ga.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. JOHNSON: A bill (H. R. 6033) to amend section 5209, Revised Statutes of the United States, 1878—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6034) for the relief of Confederate soldiers and citizens of the Confederate States—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. TAWNEY (by request): A bill (H. R. 6035) to amend sections 4924, 4925, 4926, and 4927 of the Revised Statutes relating to patents—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. ZENOR: A bill (H. R. 6036) to divide the judicial district of the State of Indiana into five divisions, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. OTJEN: A bill (H. R. 6037) to pension masters of Army transports and so forth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 6038) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Elizabethtown, in the State of Kentucky—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6039) for the erection of a public building at Lebanon, Marion County, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6040) for the erection of a public building at Bardstown, Nelson County, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6041) to provide for the improvement of Rough River, in Kentucky—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6042) to provide for the improvement of Salt River, in the State of Kentucky—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6043) to provide for the further improvement of Green River, in the State of Kentucky—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. MACON: A bill (H. R. 6044) to preserve and maintain the river channel and to prevent the threatened cut-off in White River, near Augusta, Ark.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 6045) providing for a United States judge for the middle and northern districts of Alabama—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. GILBERT of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 6046) to establish a national military park at Perryville—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BURGESS: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 44) requesting the President to consider the expediency of effecting a treaty with European powers providing for the neutralization of the Philippine Islands and to protect an independent government there when established—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

By Mr. LOVERING: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 45) directing the Secretary of Agriculture to furnish certain information concerning the cotton crop of the season of 1905 and 1906—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A resolution (H. Res. 55) authorizing the Doorkeeper of the House to employ a laborer in the ladies' reception room—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. SULZER: A resolution (H. Res. 56) concerning the murder of the Jews in Russia—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. JENKINS: A resolution (H. Res. 57) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary to appoint a messenger—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. ACHESON: A resolution (H. Res. 58) to pay the daughter of Norton McGiffin, deceased, late employee in the House folding room, a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

Also, a resolution (H. Res. 59) to pay the widow of Henry Robinson a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 6047) granting an increase of pension to John G. W. Book—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6048) granting an increase of pension to Joseph E. McCabe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6049) granting an increase of pension to J. M. Caldwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6050) granting a pension to George Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6051) to correct the military record of George Collins—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6052) granting pensions to honorably discharged soldiers who served in the Fifty-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Militia Infantry, and to their widows and minor children—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6053) granting an increase of pension to Charles Funkhauser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTLETT: A bill (H. R. 6054) for the relief of Mary O'Connell—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6055) granting an increase of pension to Angeline Watson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BEIDLER: A bill (H. R. 6056) granting an increase of pension to Herman J. Trask—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6057) granting an increase of pension to Emery Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6058) granting an increase of pension to Emilie Scheldt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6059) granting an increase of pension to Elias Hanes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6060) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo B. Fish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6061) granting an increase of pension to William H. Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6062) granting an increase of pension to Sebastian C. Goss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6063) granting an increase of pension to Maria Dyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6064) granting an increase of pension to George Reese—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6065) granting an increase of pension to Charles Crowe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6066) granting an increase of pension to Albert H. Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6067) to change the records of the War Department relative to Levi A. Meacham—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 6068) for the relief of Emma F. Everman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6069) for the relief of Baldwin De Bell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6070) for the relief of James C. Brickley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6071) for the relief of Erwin Johnson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6072) for the relief of Henry Taylor—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6073) for the relief of George W. Ingram—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6074) for the relief of Daniel McDowell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6075) for the relief of Joseph M. Wilburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6076) granting a pension to Anna M. Case—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6077) granting a pension to Gertie Riley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6078) granting a pension to Samuel Short—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6079) granting a pension to Francis B. Trussell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6080) granting a pension to James H. Jobe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6081) granting a pension to Lois Van Thom—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6082) granting a pension to Daniel Pack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6083) granting an increase of pension to John H. Groves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6084) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Gilbride—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6085) granting an increase of pension to Jacob C. Rardin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6086) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Merrill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6087) granting an increase of pension to David Osborne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6088) granting an increase of pension to James R. Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6089) granting an increase of pension to Joseph E. Pugh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6090) granting an increase of pension to James F. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6091) granting an increase of pension to Amanda Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6092) granting an increase of pension to James McCue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOUTELL: A bill (H. R. 6093) to correct the military record of Stephen W. Coakley—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6094) granting a pension to Julia G. Aldrich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOWERSOCK: A bill (H. R. 6095) granting an increase of pension to James M. Stanley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6096) granting a pension to Louisa Rouseloux—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6097) for the relief of Isaac Cogswell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6098) granting an increase of pension to Sadie A. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6099) granting an increase of pension to James P. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 6100) for the relief of the estate of Eleanor C. Lockwood, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6101) for the relief of the estate of Charles M. Demarest, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6102) to reimburse Charlotte E. Brennan, widow of D. D. Brennan, for expenses incurred in travel from Yokohama, Japan, to Haverstraw, N. Y., after the summary discharge of said D. D. Brennan as paymaster's clerk in the United States Navy—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6103) for the relief of Charles Backman—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6104) to reimburse John Waller, late postmaster at Monticello, N. Y., for moneys expended in carrying the mails—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6105) correcting the military record of John W. King—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6106) correcting the military record of Melvin R. Green—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R.) 6107) correcting the military record of William H. Cole—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6108) correcting the military record of Patrick Shields—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6109) granting an increase of pension to William H. Ackert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6110) granting an increase of pension to Abram W. Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6111) granting an increase of pension to Edwin R. Steenrod—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6112) granting an increase of pension to Edmund Fish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6113) granting an increase of pension to Moses Schoonmaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6114) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Douglass—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6115) granting an increase of pension to Edward Sarles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6116) granting a pension to John Gainsback—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6117) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Dill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6118) granting an increase of pension to Bridget Reidy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6119) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6120) granting a pension to Harriet M. Smithers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6121) granting a pension to Margaret B. Houston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 6122) granting a pension to certain East Tennesseans engaged in the secret service of the United States during the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6123) for the relief of the legal representatives of P. M. Craigmiles, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 6124) for the relief of Revilow N. Spohn—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6125) granting an increase of pension to George W. Stormer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURKE of South Dakota: A bill (H. R. 6126) granting an increase of pension to William T. Trott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6127) granting a pension to Lysander Needham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6128) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Patterson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: A bill (H. R. 6129) granting a pension to Nancy S. Prentiss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6130) granting a pension to Benjamin R. Fish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6131) granting a pension to Martha S. Hackett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6132) granting a pension to Gustavus Cooley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6133) granting an increase of pension to Mary Bagley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6134) granting an increase of pension to Richard M. Daniels—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6135) granting an increase of pension to Herbert M. Blackwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6136) granting an increase of pension to Robert W. Cook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6137) granting an increase of pension to Henry S. Stowell—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6138) granting an increase of pension to Melvin C. Wadsworth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6139) granting an increase of pension to Horace C. Webber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6140) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Gannett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6141) granting an increase of pension to Emilus A. Wellman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6142) granting an increase of pension to David Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: A bill (H. R. 6143) granting a pension to James Eiffert—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6144) granting a pension to Eli Brazilton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

My Mr. CAPRON: A bill (H. R. 6145) granting an increase of pension to Parris J. Latham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6146) for the relief of the estate of Harriet H. Wilcox, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CASSEL: A bill (H. R. 6147) granting a pension to Maud O. Worth—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6148) granting a pension to Henry P. Will—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6149) granting an increase of pension to John J. Fordney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 6150) for the relief of the heirs of William H. Blades—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6151) granting a pension to G. W. Rush—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6152) granting a pension to Nancy Day—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6153) granting a pension to Ferely Newby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6154) granting a pension to Andrew W. Bonds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6155) granting a pension to Ellsworth Hobbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6156) granting an increase of pension to Iradell W. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6157) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan J. Boyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6158) granting an increase of pension to Henry Rittenhouse—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6159) granting an increase of pension to Joel Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6160) granting an increase of pension to Martin Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6161) granting an increase of pension to Horatio Ernest—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6162) granting an increase of pension to William E. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6163) removing the charge of desertion from the record of D. L. d'Elysee—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6164) removing the charge of desertion from the record of William Deniston—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 6165) granting a pension to Nelson Everson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6166) granting a pension to Else C. Isachsen—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. COUSINS: A bill (H. R. 6167) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Eli Jones—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6168) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Wilson Certain—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 6169) granting an increase of pension to Daniel T. Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6170) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Lowe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6171) granting a pension to Sarah A. Bargar—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALZELL: A bill (H. R. 6172) granting an increase of pension to Abraham K. Van Tine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6173) granting an increase of pension to George Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 6174) for the relief of Charles J. Kayser—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6175) granting a pension to Van R. Gifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6176) granting an increase of pension to John Walters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6177) granting an increase of pension to John Haack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6178) granting an increase of pension to Carl W. Block—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6179) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Stamm—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6180) granting an increase of pension to Amherst F. Graves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6181) granting an increase of pension to Fayette E. Ford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAWES: A bill (H. R. 6182) for the relief of Henry C. Vincent—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6183) granting an increase of pension to Amanuel Russell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6184) granting an increase of pension to Alfred Weldon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6185) granting an increase of pension to John F. Waxler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6186) granting an increase of pension to William Harvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 6187) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6188) granting an increase of pension to Erve H. Soule—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: A bill (H. R. 6189) granting an increase of pension to Arthur Tibbits—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6190) granting an increase of pension to John J. Schneller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FASSETT: A bill (H. R. 6191) granting an increase of pension to Martin V. B. Bachman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6192) granting an increase of pension to Edward J. Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6193) granting a pension to T. M. Clarkson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6194) granting a pension to Ruth A. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 6195) for the relief of Jacob Gibbard—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6196) granting a pension to Eugene H. Hillyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6197) granting an increase of pension to Lambert Johnston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6198) granting an increase of pension to William W. Hargrave—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6199) granting an increase of pension to George A. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6200) granting an increase of pension to Susan L. Burdick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6201) granting an increase of pension to George W. Lakin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 6202) granting a pension to Joseph Vernia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6204) granting a pension to Carrie A. Leach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6205) granting an increase of pension to Lucy E. Engler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6206) granting an increase of pension to Stephen J. Henning—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6207) granting an increase of pension to

Also, a bill (H. R. 6203) granting a pension to Viola Dilbeck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

William H. Brady—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6208) granting an increase of pension to William D. Connor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6209) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Dossett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6210) granting an increase of pension to John D. McCullough—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6211) granting an increase of pension to Christian Reister—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6212) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Walters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6213) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Linn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 6214) granting an increase of pension to John N. Shermerhorn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6215) granting an increase of pension to James B. Bird—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6216) granting an increase of pension to Stephen D. Hopkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6217) granting an increase of pension to Edward C. Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6218) granting an increase of pension to Aaron Preston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6219) granting a pension to John W. Holcomb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6220) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John Lavigne—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6221) for the relief of Robert D. Benedict—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6222) for the relief of the Choctaw Nation or tribe of Indians—to the Committee on Indians Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6223) for the relief of the Creek tribe or nation of Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6224) for the relief of the Cherokee Nation of Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6225) for the relief of the Chickasaw Nation or tribe of Indians—to the Commitee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 6226) granting an increase of pension to George Bruner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6227) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARRETT: A bill (H. R. 6228) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan H. Terrell—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6229) for the relief of the heirs of William Tinder, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6230) for the relief of the heirs of Robert B. Love, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GILBERT of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 6231) granting an increase of pension to Boston Dillion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6232) granting an increase of pension to Jackson Holmes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6233) granting an increase of pension to John Carmical—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6234) granting an increase of pension to Jason Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6235) granting an increase of pension to Harden Golden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6236) granting an increase of pension to William Browning—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6237) granting an increase of pension to David Bethusum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6238) granting an increase of pension to Jesse Woods—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6239) granting an increase of pension to Cornelius Vousy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6240) granting an increase of pension to John Huffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6241) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Noon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6242) granting an increase of pension to John D. Myers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6243) granting a pension to M. D. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6244) granting a pension to W. H. O'Dear—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6245) granting a pension to M. E. Fish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6246) granting a pension to Charles C. Sacrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6247) granting a pension to M. Weiser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6248) granting a pension to Harriet Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6249) granting a pension to James L. Webb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6250) granting a pension to Amy Griffey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6251) granting a pension to Mary Weber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6252) granting a pension to John M. Heath—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6253) granting a pension to Thomas W. Cardwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6254) granting a pension to Theodore C. Arons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6255) granting a pension to James Morris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6256) granting an increase of pension to Solomon Riddell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6257) granting a pension to Isaiah Proctor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6258) granting a pension to R. T. Mattingly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6259) granting a pension to Levi Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6260) granting a pension to Abe L. McAnelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6261) granting a pension to Maria Baughman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6262) granting a pension to Kate Good—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6263) granting a pension to W. D. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6264) granting an increase of pension to Abram W. Barker—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6265) granting an increase of pension to Allen Demaree—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6266) granting a pension to Edgar Woolfolk—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6267) for the relief of John Taylor—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6268) for the relief of John H. McBrayer—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6269) for the benefit of James Woods, administrator—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6270) for the relief of George Bentley—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6271) for the relief of Madison County, Ky.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6272) for the relief of Madison County, Ky.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6273) for the relief of R. Z. Moss—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6274) for the relief of the trustees of the Christian Church of Danville, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6275) for the benefit of D. N. Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6276) for the benefit of John Wesley Eubanks—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6277) for the relief of the heirs of W. L. Waddy—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6278) for the relief of the heirs of Mary A. Dennis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6279) for the relief of Ben F. Bryant—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6280) for the relief of M. J. Vanarsdale—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6281) for the relief of Joseph Martin—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6282) for the relief of John E. Herrod—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6283) for the relief of A. Portwood—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6284) for the relief of John H. McBrayer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6285) for the benefit of the heirs of James D. McKenzie—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6286) for the relief of Ellerson Padgett—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6287) for the relief of Henry P. Bottom—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6288) for the relief of Henry S. Branaman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6289) for the benefit of Henry F. Newland, executor of A. C. Newland, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6290) for the relief of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Harrodsburg, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6291) for the relief of the Nicholasville Baptist Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6292) granting an increase of pension to James K. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6293) for the relief of the trustees of the Baptist Church of Crab Orchard, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6294) for the relief of Dr. William O. Robards—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6295) for the relief of Van Foreman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6296) for the relief of the Madison Female Institute, of Richmond, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6297) for the relief of Belle M. Robards, of Boyle County, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6298) for the benefit of H. P. Bottom—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6299) for the relief of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Bryantsville, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6300) for the benefit of Mary Conn, administratrix of John Conn—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6301) for the relief of Simeon H. King's executrix—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6302) for the relief of Mrs. Eugenia D. Potts and Elizabeth Huette—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6303) for the relief of the heirs of James Madison Martin—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6304) for the relief of Jacob Robinson's estate—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6305) for the benefit of the heirs of G. W. Rogers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6306) for the relief of B. N. C. Allen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6307) for the benefit of the Methodist Church at Perryville, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6308) for the relief of James G. Dunn, administrator of R. B. Dunn, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6309) for the relief of S. P. Martin—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6310) for the relief of the heirs of John F. Logan—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6311) for the relief of the heirs of John Moss—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6312) for the relief of M. C. Reynolds—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6313) for the relief of Benjamin F. Chatham—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6314) for the relief of the heirs of C. L. Carter—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6315) for the relief of James M. Clowers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6316) for the relief of the heirs of Thomas Stone—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6317) for the benefit of the heirs of Caleb Marratta, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6318) for the benefit of James M. Crawford—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6319) for the relief of H. Manwaring—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6320) for the relief of the heirs of Archibald C. Hays—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6321) for the relief of W. G. Dunn, administrator of Cooper Dunn—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6322) for the relief of E. B. Caldwell, jr.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6323) for the benefit of the Harrodsburg Presbyterian Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6324) for the relief of Peter Tribble—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6325) for the relief of the estate of J. L. Walker, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6326) for the relief of Jasper N. Cooper—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6327) for the relief of David Huddleson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6328) for the relief of Jonathan Jacobs—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6329) for the relief of the Madison Female Institute, at Richmond, Ky.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6330) for the relief of Levi H. Hendren—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6331) for the benefit of Thomas W. Caldwell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6332) for the relief of James Naylor—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6333) for the relief of John Nolan, or Nolen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6334) for the relief of Milton Newcomb—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6335) to correct the military record of Simeon R. Cook—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GRAFF: A bill (H. R. 6336) granting a pension to Elizabeth A. Ames—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6337) granting a pension to Louisa A. Demorest—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6338) granting an increase of pension to Richard McCarthy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAUGEN: A bill (H. R. 6339) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Bryant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6340) granting an increase of pension to William D. Hatch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6341) granting an increase of pension to George Platts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6342) granting an increase of pension to John F. Wier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6343) granting an increase of pension to Robert Lappin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6344) granting an increase of pension to Edwin H. Tyler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6345) granting an increase of pension to John F. Riegel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6346) granting an increase of pension to George Hill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6347) granting an increase of pension to Silas W. Harris—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6348) granting an increase of pension to Brinsley Ball—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6349) granting an increase of pension to John L. Cease—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6350) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin W. Gaylord—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6351) granting an increase of pension to David G. Glenn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6352) granting an increase of pension to Fountleroy B. Florence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6353) granting an increase of pension to John Schobert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6354) granting an increase of pension to Samuel D. Pickel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6355) granting an increase of pension to Barney Feeney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6356) granting an increase of pension to George B. Painton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6357) granting a pension to A. O. Doolittle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6358) granting a pension to Frank Smidt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6359) granting a pension to Edgar N. Sleeper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6360) granting a pension to Julia A. Heath—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6361) granting a pension to Edward Hogan—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6362) granting a pension to Francis E. Mason—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6363) granting a pension to Warren Casaday—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6364) granting a pension to Byron C. Hale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6365) granting a pension to Henry Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6366) granting a pension to Elizabeth Kimball—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6367) granting a pension to John Lossing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6368) granting a pension to Daniel P. Andrus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6369) granting a pension to Alice A. Murray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6370) granting a pension to Eva A. Cloyer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6371) for the relief of Addison L. Brown—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6372) for the relief of William Ryan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6373) for the relief of Robert McFarland—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6374) for the relief of James Curran—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6375) for the relief of Hiram Marlett—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6376) for the relief of C. S. Stilwell, jr.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6377) for the relief of Daniel Kuhn—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6378) for the relief of David L. Dorland—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6379) to pay Velvia Tucker arrears of pension due her father, William N. Tucker—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6380) to establish a record of service of Charles J. Werner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6381) granting a restoration of former rate of pension to John Holverson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6382) to remove the charge of desertion and grant an honorable discharge to Frank Averill—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 6383) granting a pension to Anna L. Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6384) granting an increase of pension to William McBeth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6385) granting an increase of pension to David Henry Hastings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 6386) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Finley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6387) granting an increase of pension to William L. Laws—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6388) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6389) granting an increase of pension to John Blake, alias John Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6390) granting an increase of pension to William J. N. Burns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6391) granting an increase of pension to Argyle Z. Buck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6392) granting a pension to Margaret E. Eveland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUGHES: A bill (H. R. 6393) granting an increase of pension to William J. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6394) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Woosley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6395) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL: A bill (H. R. 6396) granting an increase of pension to James N. Coulter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6397) for the relief of Frank E. Lyman, jr.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOGG: A bill (H. R. 6398) granting a pension to George W. Henry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6399) granting an increase of pension to David Hanna—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6400) granting a pension to Harry W. Omo—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6401) granting a pension to William V. Van Ostern—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6402) for the relief of the legal representatives of G. B. Stimpson—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6403) to correct the military record of F. A. Land—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 6404) granting a pension to Mrs. Jimmie T. Coop—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6405) granting a pension to Nora Stokes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6406) for the relief of Thomas M. Emerson—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 6407) granting an increase of pension to William Blair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6408) granting an increase of pension to Isaiah Queman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JOHNSON: A bill (H. R. 6409) for the relief of the estate of Samuel Bolt, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6410) for the relief of the legal representative of Farley C. Sims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6411) for the relief of John R. Switzer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6412) for the relief of James Y. Pitts—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6413) for the relief of F. G. Fuller and J. A. Mitchell, executors of the will of John O'Dell, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6414) for the relief of the legal representative of Richard Henderson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6415) for the relief of A. Y. Thompson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6416) for the relief of Charles A. Parkins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6417) for the relief of T. J. H. Harris—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6418) for the relief of T. B. Stackhouse, a deputy collector of internal revenue for the district of South Carolina during the fiscal years 1894 and 1895—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 6419) providing for the issuance of patent in fee to an Indian allottee—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6420) providing for the issuance of patent in fee to an Indian allottee—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6421) granting an increase of pension to Reuben Van Buskirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6422) granting a pension to Anthony Van Slyke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6423) granting a pension to Levi A. Canfield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6424) granting a pension to George Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6425) for the relief of Thomas J. Miller—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6426) for the relief of Robert Frost—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6427) for the relief of George J. Miller—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6428) to provide for the payment to the heirs of Darius B. Randall, deceased, for certain improvements relinquished to the United States for use of the Nez Percé Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6429) granting an increase of pension to Marcus L. Box—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6430) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to German M. Rouse informer's fees for certain opium seizures—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6431) for the relief of Simon M. Preston—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6432) for the relief of John M. Hill—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6433) for the relief of Minerva Carmichael, John M. Beck, and Thomas B. Beck, surviving children of Jeffery Beck and Sarah Beck—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6434) authorizing the issuance of a certificate of merit to Robert Williams—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 6435) granting a pension to Florence Dunham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6436) granting a pension to Mary Coates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 6437) for the relief of Samuel A. Pinyon—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6438) for the relief of Joel Cross—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6439) for the relief of the trustees, or their successors in office, of the Cherokee Baptist College, located in Cassville, Ga.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6440) granting a pension to W. M. Morgan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTAUER: A bill (H. R. 6441) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Carroll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6442) for the relief of the estate of Chauncey Kilmer—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6443) for the relief of the estate of George West—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 6444) granting an increase of pension to Jacob A. Geiger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6445) mustering into the United States Army Frank Skinner as second lieutenant Company F, Twelfth Regiment New Jersey Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McMORRAN: A bill (H. R. 6446) granting an increase of pension to Silas N. Bradshaw—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6447) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 6448) granting an increase of pension to Samuel A. Shaw—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6449) granting an increase of pension to James R. Zearing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6450) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. William A. Schmitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6451) granting an increase of pension to Adam Wucher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6452) granting an increase of pension to William H. Doherty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARSHALL: A bill (H. R. 6453) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Marsden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6454) granting an increase of pension to Milo B. Morse—to the Commitee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6455) making appropriation to pay the estate of Samuel Lee, deceased, in full for any claim for pay and allowances made by reason of the election of said Lee to the Forty-seventh Congress and his services therein—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 6456) for the relief of Robert H. Holland—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6457) for the relief of James F. Carr—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6458) for the relief of William Edward Bailey—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6459) granting a pension to Thomas Allen—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6460) granting a pension to Cecilia H. Long—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6461) granting an increase of pension to Daniel G. Sterling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6462) to place Dr. Henry Smith on the retired list of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 6463) to remove the charge of desertion against the name of Thomas J. Schrimpsher—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6464) granting an increase of pension to Thomas R. Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6465) granting an increase of pension to Augustus Joyeux—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6466) granting an increase of pension to James F. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6467) to remove the charge of desertion from the name of Gabriel P. Keith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6468) granting an increase of pension to Matison M. Kilgore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6469) for the relief of William H. Bean—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6470) for the relief of the estate of Francis A. De Georgis, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6471) granting an increase of pension to McKinney Adams, sr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6472) granting a pension to James M. Ikard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6473) to amend and correct war records so as to muster in and muster out of service in the United States Army Joshua E. Carlton, of Charleston, Tenn., and to grant him an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 6474) granting an increase of pension to David Burks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6475) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6476) granting an increase of pension to Thomas W. Gibbons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6477) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6478) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6479) granting an increase of pension to Thomas B. Collahan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6480) granting an increase of pension to Samuel W. Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6481) granting an increase of pension to Edward Cottingham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6482) granting an increase of pension to Marshall Osborn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6483) granting an increase of pension to Rolon M. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6484) granting an increase of pension to John W. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6485) granting a pension to Edward Cook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6486) granting a pension to Adam Mauer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6487) granting an honorable discharge to John Standacher—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. OTJEN: A bill (H. R. 6488) granting a pension to Frank Osterberg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6489) granting a pension to Mary E. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6490) granting an increase of pension to William H. Gilbert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PADGETT: A bill (H. R. 6491) granting an increase of pension to Albert Riley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6492) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Dunn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6493) granting an increase of pension to Eli Boynton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6494) granting an increase of pension to William Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6495) granting an increase of pension to Phineas Hyde—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 6496) for the relief of George M. Harraway—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6497) granting a pension to Eveline Fondren—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RIXEY: A bill (H. R. 6498) granting an increase of pension to I. C. France—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6499) for the relief of John W. Fairfax—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 6500) granting an increase of pension to Jesse Bucey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6501) granting an increase of pension to William T. Snow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6502) granting an increase of pension to Charity Breeding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6503) granting an increase of pension to Jasper N. Cummins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6504) granting an increase of pension to John R. Pickens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6505) granting an increase of pension to Mary C. Chapman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6506) granting an increase of pension to Edward N. Burns—to the Committee on Inavlid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6507) granting an increase of pension to James M. Busby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6508) granting an increase of pension to John P. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6509) granting an increase of pension to Sheldon L. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6510) granting an increase of pension to Richard A. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6511) granting an increase of pension to Jessie E. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6512) granting a pension to Martha Eyler—to the Committe on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6513) granting a pension to Nancy B. Ruberson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6514) granting a pension to Mary P. Crampton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6515) granting a pension to Lewis A. Vaughn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 6516) granting an increase of pension to Joseph G. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6517) granting an increase of pension to William C. Scofield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6518) granting an increase of pension to James M. Long—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SHARTEL: A bill (H. R. 6519) granting an increase of pension to Samuel W. Whybark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6520) granting an increase of pension to William M. Stephens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6521) granting an increase of pension to Edward Weiford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SIBLEY: A bill (H. R. 6522) granting a pension to William P. Johnston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6523) granting an increase of pension to Walter Harwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6524) granting an increase of pension to Amos Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6525) granting an increase of pension to William J. Sager—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6526) granting an increase of pension to George C. Richards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6527) granting an honorable discharge to Henry G. Breed—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SLEMP: A bill (H. R. 6528) granting a pension to Elizabeth B. Preston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6529) granting a pension to Victoria G. Harrington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of California: A bill (H. R. 6530) for the relief of David C. McGee—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6531) granting a pension to Martha L. Rummel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6532) granting a pension to Louis Reisser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6533) granting a pension to Horace Salter—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6534) granting an increase of pension to Levi N. Gregory—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6535) granting an increase of pension to Calvin N. Swineford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6536) granting an increase of pension to James Ferguson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6537) granting an increase of pension to William Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6538) granting an increase of pension to George H. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6539) granting an increase of pension to J. W. Stephens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 6540) granting an increase of pension to James Howe—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6541) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Kyler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6542) granting an increase of pension to William W. Edelin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6543) granting an increase of pension to John Willett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6544) granting an increase of pension to Buford P. Moss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6545) granting an increase of pension to George W. Kinzly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6546) granting an increase of pension to Samuel A. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6547) granting an increase of pension to Virginia Bryant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6548) granting an increase of pension to R. H. Dedrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6549) granting an increase of pension to Luther Morris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6550) granting an increase of pension to Fannie A. Hutchason—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6551) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6552) granting an increase of pension to George E. Muth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6553) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Russell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6554) granting an increase of pension to Peter P. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6555) granting a pension to Enoch Kessinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6556) granting an increase of pension to J. A. Kemp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6557) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Jasper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6558) granting an increase of pension to Wiley R. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6559) granting an increase of pension to Larkin Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6560) granting an increase of pension to Humphrey Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6561) granting an increase of pension to Madison Chapel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6562) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Ferguson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6563) granting an increase of pension to George Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6564) granting an increase of pension to John R. Kenney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6565) granting an increase of pension to Francis Marion Hatter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6566) granting an increase of pension to Roden B. Swain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6567) granting an increase of pension to N. R. Brasheor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6568) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6569) for the relief of S. G. Parker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6570) for the relief of William W. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6571) granting a pension to Elizabeth Morris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6572) granting an increase of pension to Clifford Haddock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6573) granting an increase of pension to E. F. Hocker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6574) granting an increase of pension to William M. Hicks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6575) granting an increase of pension to Rawleigh M. Monin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6576) granting an increase of pension to Napoleon McDowell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6577) granting an increase of pension to Thomas McClure—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6578) granting an increase of pension to James B. McWhorter—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6579) granting an increase of pension to William Petit—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6580) granting an increase of pension to Albert B. Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6581) granting an increase of pension to John C. Vanfleet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6582) granting an increase of pension to Ideral Vanfleet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6583) granting an increase of pension to John R. Vickers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6584) granting an increase of pension to Luther Towne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6585) granting an increase of pension to John W. Simpson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6586) granting an increase of pension to William Yates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6587) granting an increase of pension to William Whitworth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6588) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Farmer—to the Committee on Invalid Penisons.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6589) granting an increase of pension to M. W. Dunkin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6590) granting an increase of pension to John Daly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6591) granting an increase of pension to Jerome B. Duggins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6592) granting an increase of pension to W. A. Dever—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6593) granting an increase of pension to Virginia Crump—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6594) granting an increase of pension to Martha Corder—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6595) granting an increase of pension to John T. Stasel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6596) granting an increase of pension to A. O. Huffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6597) granting an increase of pension to Francis Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6598) granting an increase of pension to Thomas F. Lankford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6599) granting an increase of pension to Mark Smock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6600) granting an increase of pension to John Brafford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6601) granting an increase of pension to James Drewry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6602) providing for the payment of certain claims growing out of the Army maneuvers at West Point, Ky., in 1903—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6603) for the benefit of the national cemetery near the city of Lebanon, in the State of Kentucky—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6604) for the relief of Anthony McAndrew—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6605) for the relief of J. R. Claybrooke—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6606) for the relief of Merril Denham—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6607) for the relief of the minor children of Alice Evans, deceased—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6608) for the relief of James I. Friend—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6609) for the benefit of H. C. Wood—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6610) for the relief of the estate of R. C. Hazelip—to the Committee on Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 6611) for the relief of James Clark Smith—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6612) for the relief of the survivors of the Cromwell Company of Home Guards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6613) granting a pension to Thomas J. Stevens—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6614) for the relief of Caroline Commandun—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6615) for the relief of Fannie Crump—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6616) for the relief of Columbus B. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6617) for the relief of Daniel J. Basham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6618) granting a pension to Rebecca Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6619) granting a pension to Harvey W. Kelly and Augustus Kelly, minor children of H. P. B. Kelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6620) granting a pension to Thomas Kinkaid—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6621) granting a pension to Sebastian F. Kissinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6622) granting a pension to Samuel M. James—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6623) granting a pension to John J. Hornback—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6624) granting a pension to Matilda V. Helton and Alex. Whitehouse—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6625) granting a pension to Rufus Helms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6626) granting a pension to John Messinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6627) granting a pension to P. A. Milner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6628) granting a pension to Tabitha L. McGlasson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6629) granting a pension to Addie L. McFelia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6630) granting a pension to Harvey Langham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6631) granting a pension to Mary Dolores O'Neal—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6632) granting a pension to Elizabeth Stinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6633) granting a pension to James Rabern—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6634) granting a pension to Henry Ramey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6635) granting a pension to Elzie Paynter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6636) granting a pension to Allen Popham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6637) granting a pension to Jacob D. Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6638) granting a pension to Cynthia Stone—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6639) granting a pension to William P. Slaughter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6640) granting a pension to Samuel Shepherd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6641) granting a pension to Thomas J. Sparkman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6642) granting a pension to Samuel T. Wallace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6643) granting a pension to Laura Ann Willis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6644) granting a pension to Richard West—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6645) granting a pension to Harriett Wheatley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6646) granting a pension to William T. Gorr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6647) granting a pension to Mary D. England—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6648) granting a pension to Richard Eubank—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6649) granting a pension to Bennett Davenport—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6650) granting a pension to Adolph Denkhoff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6651) granting a pension to Lucy B. Culver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6652) granting a pension to James Bird—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6653) granting a pension to Sidney Bozarth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6654) granting a pension to Jefferson G. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6655) granting a pension to Mary E. Brashear—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6656) granting a pension to Anna B. Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6657) granting a pension to James Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6658) granting a pension to John Logsdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6659) to place the names of William D. Rabern and George W. Raybern on the roll of the United States Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6660) granting a pension to Malvina C. Stith—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6661) granting a pension to W. B. Scroggy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6662) granting a pension to William L. Chamberlain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6663) granting a pension to Lloyd Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6664) granting a pension to Susan Higdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6665) granting a pension to John Whitlow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6666) granting a pension to Margaret Douglass—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6667) granting an increase of pension to Robert W. Craddock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6668) granting a pension to Alfred L. Hudson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6669) granting a pension to Kitty Downs—the the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6670) for the relief of G. W. Ebert—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6671) for the relief of J. S. Neal—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6672) for the relief of Moses Horrel—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6673) for the relief of George C. Wooley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6674) for the relief of the First Presbyterian Church, at Lebanon, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6675) for the relief of the Methodist Church at Newhaven, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6676) for the relief of the trustees of the Colored Baptist Church, of Lebanon, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6677) for the relief of the Baptist Church at Bloomfield, Ky.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6678) for the relief of Conrad Claycomb, of Kentucky—to the Committee on Claims.

Also (by request), a bill (H. R. 6679) for the relief of John Cover—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6680) for the relief of the drafted men of Pendleton and other counties, in the State of Kentucky—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6681) for the relief of Stephen Dever—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6682) for the relief of Carrie M. Boone—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6683) for the relief of Lawrence H. Rousseau—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6684) for the relief of Hubbard K. Milward—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6685) for the relief of Anderson T. Keen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6686) for the settlement of claims of volunteer soldiers by the Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6687) to correct the military record of Alfred J. Carter—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6688) for the relief of Fred Hamilton—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6689) to correct the military record of Robert H. Shofner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6690) to correct the military record of Daniel F. Tracey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6691) for the relief of Robert Hubbord—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6692) for the relief of Benjamin F. Hasson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6693) to correct the military record of Jesse M. Ball—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6694) to correct the military record of John Archbishop—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6695) to correct the military record of Ebenezer Logsdon—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6696) to correct the military record of William G. Dougherty—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6697) to correct the military record of Alexander Nugent and grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6698) to correct the military record of Franklin Nix and grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6699) to amend and correct the military record of Thomas Etherton—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6700) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of W. F. Akridge and grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6701) to remove the charges of desertion from the military record of James Braden—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6702) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Michael Cullen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6703) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of David Coats and restore him to the pension roll of the United States—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6704) removing charge of desertion from the military record of John P. Fox and to grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6705) granting an increase of pension to William H. Zachary—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6706) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Stephen Greenwell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6707) granting a discharge to Peter Wilson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6708) to remove the charge of desertion against Nathan Stewart—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6709) to remove the charge of desertion against W. B. Summers and to grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6710) to remove the charge of desertion against John B. Perkins—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6711) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of J. H. Morris and grant him a discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6712) to complete the military record of James Hicks—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6713) to remove the charge of desertion against Benjain A. Helm—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6714) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Charles T. Jackson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6715) granting a pension to John M. Galloway and correct his military record—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6716) for the relief of Henry C. Bumgardner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6717) for the relief of Samuel Bartlett—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6718) for the relief of Joseph Metcalfe—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6719) for the relief of Benjamin O. Purvis—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6720) for the relief of Mrs. Emma P. Barbour—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6721) for the relief of Mrs. Mary Bewley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6722) for the relief of D. S. Bradley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6723) for the relief of T. R. McBeath—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6724) for the relief of Stephen Duncan—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6725) for the relief of George M. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6726) for the relief of David L. Terry—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6727) for the relief of the estate of John Avritt, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6728) for the relief of Elijah Q. Cooper, of Kentucky—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6729) for the relief of Clement Calhoon—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6730) for the relief of the heirs of Lucinda Cook—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6731) for the relief of the estate of Harrison Cox—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6732) for the relief of Stephen Camplin—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6733) for the relief of J. R. Claybrooke—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6734) for the relief of the estate of Charles Darnell—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6735) for the relief of E. T. Dram—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6736) for the relief of the estate of Levi Fields, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6737) for the relief of Mrs. E. S. Golladay and Mrs. M. F. Bowling—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6738) for the relief of Abner Goodman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6739) for the relief of the estate of Harvey Woodward—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6740) for the relief of the estate of James Z. Watkins, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6741) for the relief of the estate of B. J. Stoner, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6742) for the relief of the estate of Samuel A. Spencer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6743) for the relief of the lawful heirs of G. W. Upton, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6744) for the relief of James G. Queen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6745) for the relief of Isham Richardson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6746) for the relief of the estate of William H. Routt—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6747) for the relief of the estate of Thomas W. Robinson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6748) for the relief of Thomas J. Pottinger—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6749) for the relief of Mary L. Piatt—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6750) for the relief of P. H. McDonough—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6751) for the relief of D. J. K. Maddox—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6752) for the relief of the estate of William A. Nally—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6753) for the relief of F. M. Head—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6754) for the relief of James S. Iglehort—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6755) for the relief of the estate of William Harlow, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6756) for the relief of the estate of Franklin S. Whitney, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6757) for the relief of the legal representatives of Jacob Kauffman, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6758) for the relief of the estate of Robert Holbrook—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6759) for the relief of the estate of Franklin Le Grand—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6760) for the relief of Charles H. Adams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6761) for the relief of Charles Lee—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6762) for the relief of Lewis Anderson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6763) for the relief of F. K. Beaven—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6764) for the relief of the estate of R. Colvin, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6765) for the relief of the estate of Thomas Heyser—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH: A bill (H. R. 6766) granting an increase of pension to Louisa Hart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6767) granting an increase of pension to Hobart P. Sweet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6768) granting an increase of pension to H. H. Pennington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 6769) granting an honorable discharge to William J. Miller—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6770) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John A. White and grant him an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6771) granting a pension to Clarissa Roll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 6772) granting an increase of pension to Edward E. Crandall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6773) granting an increase of pension to Weston Ferris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6774) granting an increase of pension to John Platt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6775) granting an increase of pension to William A. Lincoln—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6776) granting an increase of pension to Stephen C. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6777) for the relief of Morgan Kavanagh—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6778) for the relief of John Moriarty—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 6779) for the relief of the estate of James A. Suydam, deceased, late of Craven County, N. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6780) for the relief of R. N. White—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6781) for the relief of Zachariah Toler—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6782) for the relief of the estate of George S. De Bruhl, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6783) for the relief of David J. Middleton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6784) for the relief of Calvin G. Perkins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6785) for the relief of the heirs of D. W. Morton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6786) for the relief of the heirs of Nancy Wood—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6787) for the relief of the heirs of Joseph R. Bell—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6788) for the relief of the heirs of Nathan D. Adams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6789) for the relief of W. P. Lane, administrator of W. K. Lane—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6790) for the relief of the estate of William C. Lewis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6791) for the relief of S. S. Waters—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6792) for the relief of the heirs of Edward Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6793) for the relief of the estate of B. L. Robinson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6794) for the relief of William T. Perry—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6795) for the relief of Mary N. Bryan, of Craven County, N. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6796) for the relief of Henry K. Bryan, of Craven County, N. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6797) for the relief of John D. Hawkins, executor of Jonathan Hawkins—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6798) for the relief of W. B. Whitfield—to to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6799) for the relief of Franklin Foy—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6800) for the relief of Eleanor B. Cayton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6801) for the relief of Joseph B. Banks—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6802) for the relief of James F. White—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6803) for the relief of the heirs of Needham B. White—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6804) for the relief of the heirs of C. H. Foy—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6805) for the relief of James M. Howard, administrator of Thomas S. Howard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6806) for the relief of William Foy and H. B. Lane, executor of Mrs. H. B. Lane, of North Carolina—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6807) for the relief of George A. Russell, administrator of Stephen Chadwick—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6808) for the relief of the heirs of John H. Richardson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6809) for the relief of W. J. Craddock—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6810) for the relief of Stephen F. Fulford—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6811) granting a pension to Julia Elgie—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6812) granting a pension to Mary J. Smith—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6813) granting a pension to Emsley Kinsauls—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6814) granting a pension to Elizabeth French—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6815) granting an increase of pension to Susan B. Walker—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6816) to pay Mary L. Taylor for property taken during the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 6817) granting an increase of pension to Caleb F. Bandle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6818) granting a pension to Maria C. Waste—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6819) granting an increase of pension to Vendruth Washburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6820) granting a pension to Mary C. James—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6821) to remove the charge of desertion and grant an honorable discharge to Richard Lanigan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6822) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Barber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6823) granting an increase of pension to Margaret L. Getty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6824) granting a pension to Lois E. Mosier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6825) granting an increase of pension to Andrew H. Vorderman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6826) granting an increase of pension to Almira G. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6827) to remove the charge of desertion against A. B. Ackerman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6828) to remove the charge of desertion against and grant an honorable discharge to Ceylon Gowdy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6829) granting an increase of pension to Sarah O. Lyon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6830) to remove the charge of desertion and grant an honorable discharge to Marshall N. Murphy, alias William R. Hallam—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6831) granting a pension to Sadie C. Steadman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6832) granting an increase of pension to George A. Breckinridge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6833) granting a pension to Rollin H. Crane—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6834) granting a pension to Emma C. Hayes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6835) granting a pension to Maryetta Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6836) granting an increase of pension to Verus A. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6837) for the relief of Carl F. Kolbe—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6838) granting a pension to Martha J. Hurlbut—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6839) granting a pension to Mary E. Kern—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6840) granting an increase of pension to M. Cornelia Harmon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6841) granting an increase of pension to Amos L. Hood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TIRRELL: A bill (H. R. 6842) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Mary S. B. Thompson—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6843) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Franklin King—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6844) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Charles M. Seaver—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6845) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Catherine S. Fay—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6846) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Daniel A. Gregory—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6847) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Ellen Frothingham—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6848) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of William S. Eaton—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6849) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Oliver H. Durrell—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6850) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Salmon P. Hibbard—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6851) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Horace W. Jordan—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6852) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Charles A. Kennedy—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6853) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Joseph H. Chadwick—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6854) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Robert Codman—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 6855) for the relief of the heirs of John Smith, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6856) granting a pension to Maria Holloway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6857) granting a pension to Lucetta Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6858) granting a pension to Harriet N. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6859) granting a pension to Eva B. Koch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6860) granting a pension to Kittie C. Beach—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6861) granting a pension to Charlotte A. Dubry—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6862) granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6863) granting an increase of pension to Libbie D. Lowrey—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6864) granting an increase of pension to Henry Good—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6865) granting an increase of pension to Charles F. Voss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6866) granting an increase of pension to Charles N. How—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TYNDALL: A bill (H. R. 6867) granting a pension to Harriett O'Donnald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6868) granting a pension to members of the Enrolled Missouri Militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6869) granting a pension to J. W. Mooney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6870) granting a pension to James O. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6871) for the relief of William B. Reich—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6872) granting honorable discharge to L. M. Baird—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WADSWORTH: A bill (H. R. 6873) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Phillips—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6874) to refund duties paid by the State of New York upon arms imported in 1863—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WATSON: A bill (H. R. 6875) granting a pension to Lucy A. Harding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6876) granting a pension to James Spencer, alias John Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6877) granting a pension to Sarah M. Bracey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6878) granting a pension to Lucy Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6879) granting a pension to Louisa A. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6880) granting an increase of pension to Marine D. Tackett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6881) granting an increase of pension to Nancy C. Brooks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6882) granting an increase of pension to Catherine Hendricks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6883) granting an increase of pension to Mary L. Knisell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6884) granting an increase of pension to Josie Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6885) granting an increase of pension to Mary L. Armbuster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6886) granting an increase of pension to Henry L. Sparks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6887) granting an increase of pension to James E. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6888) granting an increase of pension to John W. Hannah—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6889) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Redout—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6890) granting an increase of pension to Travis Alexander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 6891) for the relief of David Smith—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6892) granting a pension to John Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6893) granting a pension to Augusta Reichburg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6894) granting an increase of pension to Daniel O. Corbin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6895) granting an increase of pension to Robert T. Bishop—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6896) granting an increase of pension to Edwin P. Gurney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6897) granting an increase of pension to Abbie B. Gould—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6898) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6899) to authorize the President of the United States to appoint John Gibbon captain and quartermaster in the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 6900) granting an increase of pension to John Rawling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6901) granting an increase of pension to William G. Marshall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6902) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Pray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6903) granting an increase of pension to Alvah R. Munger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6904) granting an increase of pension to John Neugebauer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6905) granting an increase of pension to Andreas Schmidt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6906) granting an increase of pension to Albert Bacon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6907) granting an increase of pension to Charles Graefe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6908) granting an increase of pension to Henry Braun—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6909) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Albright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6910) granting an increase of pension to Thomas L. MacDonald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6911) granting an increase of pension to William J. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6912) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Weaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6913) granting an increase of pension to John Gibbons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6914) granting an increase of pension to John Hecker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6915) to remove the charge of desertion against Jacob Imig, late a landsman on the ships North Carolina and Naubuc, United States Navy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WILSON: A bill (H. R. 6916) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Meier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6917) granting an increase of pension to Edmund R. Strang—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6918) granting an increase of pension to Heinrich Krumdick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6919) granting an increase of pension to Joseph A. C. Curtis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6920) granting an increase of pension to Simon Millison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6921) granting a pension to Eliza B. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6922) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Michael J. Doyle—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6923) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Frederick Frosch—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6924) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Melville N. Goodrich—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6925) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of George S. Green and to allow his widow, Minnie E. Green, a pension—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 6926) granting an increase of pension to William Crouch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6927) granting an increase of pension to James W. Milligan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6928) granting a pension to C. C. Wolfe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOWERS: A bill (H. R. 6929) for the relief of William R. Gunn—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6930) for the relief of Martha B. Moore—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6931) for the relief of the estate of Elkanah J. Sullivan, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6932) granting an increase of pension to Henry Hatel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOWIE: A bill (H. R. 6933) granting a pension to William D. Newman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 6934) granting pensions to artisans in the construction corps of the United States Army and providing pensions to widows and minor children of artisans in the construction corps of the United States Army—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRICK: A bill (H. R. 6935) granting an increase of pension to Darius Ault—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 6936) granting an increase of pension to William Miller—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CASTOR: A bill (H. R. 6937) for the relief of Thomas Furey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 6938) for the relief of Mrs. R. D. Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CROMER: A bill (H. R. 6939) granting a pension to Eliza J. Petty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 6940) granting permission to Capt. Dorr F. Tozier to accept the sword tendered him by the British Government—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. DAWSON: A bill (H. R. 6941) granting an increase of pension to Alice Gearkee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6942) granting an increase of pension to Mary Driscoll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6943) granting an increase of pension to Linas Van Steenburg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6944) granting an increase of pension to David P. Kimball—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6945) granting an increase of pension to John S. Billups—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6946) granting an increase of pension to Elias Claunch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6947) granting an increase of pension to Charles Washburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 6948) for the relief of S. D. Sprinkle—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. DRAPER: A bill (H. R. 6949) granting a pension to Alice W. Powers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLACK: A bill (H. R. 6950) granting an increase of pension to Smith Vaughan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULKERSON: A bill (H. R. 6951) granting an increase of pension to Alexander T. Reel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6952) granting a pension to John W. Dinwiddie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6953) granting a pension to William Kunkle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GAINES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 6954) granting a pension to Bernardine Elfwing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6955) granting a pension to Joseph M. Bryant—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6956) granting an increase of pension to Henry L. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6957) granting an increase of pension to Adam Kerns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6958) for the relief of Mrs. Mary Shannon—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 6959) for the relief of the estate of Lucy R. Groves, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6960) to amend the record of Benjamin W. Chase—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6961) for the relief of the heirs of Melvin B. Smith—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6962) granting an increase of pension to Richard Phillips, jr.—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6963) granting a pension to William P. Knowlton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6964) providing for the payment of a bounty to the surviving members of the Seventeenth Unattached Company, Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, and to the widows of deceased members—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6965) to provide suitable medals for the officers and crew of the United States vessel of war Kearsarge—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 6966) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of the late William Keys—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6967) granting a pension to Minnie J. Winn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6968) for the relief of John Worthington—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6969) granting a pension to Ellen C. Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6970) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of Joseph W. Reed, and grant him a pension—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6971) granting a pension to William H. Booth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRANGER: A bill (H. R. 6972) for the relief of the estate of John C. Bancroft—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GREGG: A bill (H. R. 6973) for the relief of Harry Devlin—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6974) for the relief of W. L. Ratisseau—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 6975) for the relief of George E. Robinson, successor to the Galveston Gasfitting and Plumbing Company, of Galveston, Tex.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: A bill (H. R. 6976) for the refund of certain tonnage duties—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 6977) granting an increase of pension to Alfred S. Isaacs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 6978) for the relief of Robert Tillson & Co., a partnership composed of Robert Tillson and Maitland Boon—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LAMB: A bill (H. R. 6979) for the relief of Letitia Tyler Semple—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: A bill (H. R. 6980) for the relief of the legal representatives of Samuel E. Bratton, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LLOYD: A bill (H. R. 6981) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to make an examination of certain claims of the State of Missouri—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LONGWORTH: A bill (H. R. 6982) for the relief of James W. Jones—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 6983) granting an increase of pension Chalkley Petitt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOVERING: A bill (H. R. 6984) granting an increase of pension to James B. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 6985) granting a pension to Susan C. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARSHALL: A bill (H. R. 6986) granting an increase of pension to Lemuel Herbert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 6987) granting a pension to Sarah H. Willhite—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NORRIS: A bill (H. R. 6988) granting an increase of pension to Seymour Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: A bill (H. R. 6989) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Canter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PERKINS: A bill (H. R. 6990) for the relief of Alice M. Stafford, administratrix of the estate of Capt. Stephen R. Stafford—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 6991) granting an increase of pension to Logan A. Tallman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUPPERT: A bill (H. R. 6992) granting an increase of pension to Mary Duffy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHEPPARD: A bill (H. R. 6993) granting an increase of pension to John Sarvis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 6994) to correct the military record of Dewitt W. Hall—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SLAYDEN: A bill (H. R. 6995) granting an increase of pension to William C. Herridge—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WM. ALDEN SMITH: A bill (H. R. 6996) for the relief of William Leech—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. STANLEY: A bill (H. R. 6997) granting an increase of pension to A. R. Shacklett—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. VREELAND: A bill (H. R. 6998) for the relief of the estate of Solomon Jones, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WEBB: A bill (H. R. 6999) to complete the military record of James A. Sams and for an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WILEY of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 7000) granting a pension to Cullen E. Stanley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7001) granting an increase of pension to Andrew M. Dunham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ZENOR: A bill (H. R. 7002) granting a pension to Noah Rickard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Petition of National Committee on the Proposed Change of Inauguration Day, for early action on a proposed amendment to Constitution—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania: Petition of Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, No. 404, of Philadelphia, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of S. D. Griffin, relative to navigability of the Chicago Canal—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of William O. Stillman, against proposed extension of the statutory limit of twenty-eight hours during which live stock in transit may be confined in cars without food, water, or rest—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Joint Executive Commission for the improvement of the harbor of Philadelphia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BARTLETT: Resolution of the Georgia legislature, regarding markets for American cotton goods—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petitions of S. Altmayer and Massee-Felton Lumber Company, of Macon; Bramblett & Brother, of Forsyth; J. T. Lewis, of Woolsey, and J. G. Smith & Sons, of Barnesville, all in Georgia, for a postal law providing for two classes of mail only and the rate on first-class to be 1 cent per ounce—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Council No. 4, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Griffin, Ga., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BOWERS: Papers to accompany bill to provide for a resurvey of township 4 north, range 13 west, St. Stephens meridian, in Perry County, Miss.—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BOWIE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William Newman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CASSEL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Ephraim D. Achey—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petitions of the Free Methodist Church, of Pittsburg, Pa.; the Allegheny (Pa.) Roman Catholic Church; the Washington (Pa.) Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Washington (Pa.) Baptist Church, for an amendment to the Constitution against polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ESCH: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John J. Schniller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of William O. Fellman, against any amendment of law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Jndiciary.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Arthur Tibbits—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLETCHER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Argyle Z. Buck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: Resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for a constitutional amendment to enable Congress to regulate hours of labor—to the Committee on Labor.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for Government control of railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, favoring transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for freer trade relations with Canada—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, relative to duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GOULDEN: Petition of the Humane Association of Albany, N. Y., against any amendment in the existing law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Mohonk Conference, relating to Indian Affairs—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. GREENE: Resolution of the legislature of Massachusetts, for transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of Boston Division, No. 61, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, against Esch-Townsend bill—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, resolution of the general court of Massachusetts, relative to railway transportation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, resoluion of the general court of Massachusetts, relative to freer trade relations with Canada—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the general court of Massachusetts, relative to removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the general court of Massachusetts, for an amendment of the Constitution enabling Congress to regulate hours of labor—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Jews of Fall River, Mass., against persecution and outrages in Russia—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: Petition of Doger Andrews & Co., of Columbus, Ohio, for repeal of the duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Abaldo Tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men, of Hemlock, Ohio—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HOUSTON: Petition of Sarah R. Price, for reference of claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, papers to accompany bill (H. R. 105) for the improvement of Caney Fork River—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. JONES: Petition relative to issuance of certificate of merit to Robert Williams—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of Morse & Rodgers, wholesale shoe dealers, of New York, for removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McKINNEY: Petition of F. S. Moon and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. MAHON: Petition of Washington Camp, No. 665, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Quincy, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for improvement of court-house and post-office buildings at Chattanooga, Tenn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James M. Ikard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for removal of charge of desertion from Gabriel P. Keith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samantha Schrimpsher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas R. Harris, of Marion County, Tenn.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Joshua E. Carlton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of E. P. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MURPHY: Resolution of the legislature of the State of Missouri, for repeal of the national bankruptcy bill—to the the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an appropriation for improvement of the Mississippi River at or near the foot of the Des Moines River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an appropriation for the improvement of the Missouri River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an amendment to Constitution for the election of Senators of the United States by direct vote of the people—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an appropriation for upper Mississippi Valley improvement—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Petition of residents of Indianapolis, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. PATTERSON of Tennessee: Petition of Carpenters' Union, No. 350, of Tennessee, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Dames of 1846, relative to Mexican war pensions—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, petition of the Mohonk Conference, relating to Indian affairs—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. PAYNE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Martin Ottinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Francis L. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Jonas Gurnee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: Petition of the Mohonk Conference, relating to Indian affairs—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of the Bethlehem Indian Association, of Bethlehem, Pa., favoring relief of Alaskan Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of the Charity Organization Society of eastern Pennsylvania, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of S. D. Griffin, relative to making navigable the Chicago Canal—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. SIBLEY: Petition of Summit Grange, No. 1155, of St. Marys, Elk County, Pa., for amendment of the oleomargarine law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Cigar Maker's Union No. 122, of Warren, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of residents of Johnsburg, Pa., and Johnsburg Lodge, No. 134, Knights of Pythias, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SMITH of Pennsylvania: Petition of Washington (Pa.) Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, and Vesuvius Council, No. 116, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SULZER: Petition of William O. Stillman, against any amendment of the present law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of S. D. Griffin, relative to building canals connecting the Great Lakes, the Mississippi River, and the ocean—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: Paper to accompany bill for relief of W. J. Croddack—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Stephen F. Fulford—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Petition of Frenchtown Grange, No. 149, of Monroe, Mich., favoring a tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of David Becker Post, for an amendment to the pension laws—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Scott Post, No. 43, asking an amendment to the pension laws—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. WEBB: Petition of Dilworth Council, No. 12, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Charlotte, N. C., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ZENOR: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John H. Lagle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of John W. Dempster and others, of New Albany, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Travis W. Tichenor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, December 12, 1905.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

THOMAS M. PATTERSON, a Senator from the State of Colorado, appeared in his seat to-day.

SUPPLIES TO INDIANS IN ALASKA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a copy of an account and accompanying papers presented by Bishop P. T. Rowe for expenses incurred by and through the United States commissioner at Circle City, Alaska, in the sum of $806.75, for furnishing in July of 1904 rations, etc., to Indians in the vicinity of Fort Yukon, etc.; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF DIRECTOR OF BUREAU OF AMERICAN REPUBLICS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting the annual report of the Director of the Bureau of the American Republics; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Postmaster-General for the fiscal year 1905; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

INVESTIGATION OF BLACK SANDS OF PACIFIC SLOPE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 7th instant, a letter from the Director of the Geological Survey forwarding a report on the progress of the investigation of the black sands of the Pacific Slope, etc.; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on the Geological Survey, and ordered to be printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the petition of Liliuokalani, ex-Queen of the Hawaiian Islands, praying that she be reimbursed for certain lands taken from her by the United States in that Territory; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of Unity Epworth League, Chapter No. 6704, of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, of Portland, Oreg., praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a petition of the city council of Albuquerque, N. Mex., praying for the enactment of legislation to admit Arizona and New Mexico into the Union as one State; which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

He also presented a petition of the Board of Trade of St. Paul, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of the Sierra Club, of California, praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the recession by that State of the Yosemite Valley and the Mariposa Big Tree Grove to the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also presented petitions of Local Union No. 642, of Port Richmond; of Typographical Union No. 231, of San Jose; of the American Federation of Labor; of Local Council No. 22, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Oakland, and of sundry citizens of Richmond, all in the State of California, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented petitions of the Mountain View Orange and Lemon Association, of Upland; of the Indian Hill Citrus Union, of North Pomona; of the Queen Colony Fruit Exchange, of Corona; of the Citrus Association of Upland, and of the Covina Orange Growers' Association, of Covina, all in the State of California, praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the national convention of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Long Beach, Cal., praying for the repeal of the law relating to Government schools in Alaska, and also that an appropriation be made to reopen and maintain the schools now closed under the provisions of the act; which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

He also presented a memorial of the Importers and Wholesale Tea Dealers' Association of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation imposing a duty on tea; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the Importers and Wholesale Coffee Dealers' Association of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation imposing a duty on coffee; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. PLATT presented a petition of Local Council No. 12, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Lynbrook, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Yonkers, N. Y., praying for the enactment of an anticanteen law; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. LODGE presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Fall River, Mass., remonstrating against the oppression of the Jews in Russia; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. NELSON presented a petition of the Merchants' Association of Aitkin County, Minn., praying for the construction of a canal from Waldeck to Pineknoll, in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also (for Mr. CLAPP) presented a petition of the Minnesota Shippers and Receivers' Association, and a petition of the Board of Trade of St. Paul, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also (for Mr. CLAPP) presented a petition of the Produce Exchange of St. Paul, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation to protect perishable property intrusted to common carriers; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. SUTHERLAND presented a petition of the legislature of Utah, praying that a pension be granted to the Indian war veterans of that State; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Resolved by the senate (the house concurring), That the Senators and Representatives of Utah in the Congress of the United States of America be, and are hereby, requested to use their efforts to the end that Congress shall recognize the faithful services of the Indian war veterans of Utah by accepting records of such service between the years 1850 to 1872, inclusive, from the State of Utah, and filed with the Secretary of War, and by granting pay for thirty days as privates of volunteer militia to such Indian war veterans of Utah as shall file such proof, and that the provisions of the act of July 27, 1892, as amended by the act of June 27, 1902, shall be applicable to said Indian war veterans.

S. H. LOVE, President of the Senate.
THOMAS HULL, Speaker of the House.

Approved this 9th day of March, 1905.

JOHN C. CUTLER, Governor.

Attest:
[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

STATE OF UTAH,
Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I, Charles S. Tingey, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and correct copy of senate concurrent resolution No. 7, adopted by the legislature of the State of Utah on March 9, 1905, and on said day approved by the governor and filed in my office, as appears on file in my office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah this 17th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

Mr. ALLEE presented petitions of Local Council No. 4, of Harrington; of John M. Clayton Council, No. 24, of Clayton; of Fairmont Council, No. 39, of Angola; of Local Council No. 37, of Millville; of Telegraph Council, No. 29, of Wilmington; of Industry Council, No. 25, of Newcastle, all of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics; of Local Lodge No. 184, International Association of Machinists, of Wilmington; of Union Lodge, No. 3, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Georgetown, and of sundry citizens of Georgetown, all in the State of Delaware, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. FULTON presented a petition of Local Union No. 10, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers, of Portland, Oreg., praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on grain alcohol; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BURNHAM presented a paper to accompany the bill (S. 1427) granting an increase of pension to Edward C. Emerson; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

BRIDGES IN ARKANSAS.

Mr. BERRY. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 410) to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct a bridge across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas, to report it favorably with amendments.

Mr. CLARKE of Arkansas. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered at the present time.

Mr. KEAN. Let the bill be read.

The Secretary read the bill; and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The first amendment of the Committee on Commerce was, in line 7, page 1, after the word "maintain," to strike out the words "a bridge" and insert in lieu thereof the word "bridges."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, to strike out all of section 2 of the bill and to insert in lieu thereof the following:

SEC. 2. That the bridges constructed, maintained, and operated under this act and according to its limitations shall be lawful structures, and shall be recognized and known as post routes, upon which also no higher charge shall be made for the transportation over the same of the mails, the troops, and the munitions of war of the United States than the rate per mile paid for the transportation of said mails, troops, and munitions over the railroads and public highways leading to said bridges, and the United States shall have the right of way for postal telegraph and telephone purposes over said bridges.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct bridges across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas."

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. GALLINGER on the 7th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the District of Columbia, or any subcommittee thereof, be authorized to send for persons and papers and to administer oaths, and to employ a stenographer to report such hearings as may be had in connection with any bills which may be pending before said committee; that the committee may sit during the sessions or recess of the Senate, and that the expense thereof be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. FRYE on the 11th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Commerce be, and the same is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary, to report such hearings as may be had on bills or other matters pending before said committee, and to have the same printed for the use of the committee, and that such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted on the 11th instant by Mr. ALLISON, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Appropriations be, and is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary, to report such testimony as may be taken by the committee or its subcommittees in connection with appropriation bills, and to have the same printed for its use, and that such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. CARMACK introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1380) for the relief of Jesse Walling;

A bill (S. 1381) for the relief of George L. Whitmore;

A bill (S. 1382) for the relief of the estate of J. T. Stringer, deceased;

A bill (S. 1383) for the relief of the trustees of the Primitive Baptist Church, of Pelham, Tenn.;

A bill (S. 1384) for the relief of the estate of Washington Turner, deceased;

A bill (S. 1385) for the relief of the heirs of Simeon Graves, deceased;

A bill (S. 1386) for the relief of D. J. Rogers;

A bill (S. 1387) for the relief of the trustees of Hennegans Chapel, Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Dunlap, Tenn. (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1388) for the relief of Alexander L. Anderson;

A bill (S. 1389) for the relief of John M. Heard;

A bill (S. 1390) for the relief of Mrs. Nancy Walden (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1391) for the relief of Abner Souder (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1392) for the relief of the estate of Robert Langford, deceased (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1393) for the relief of the heirs of Erban Powell, deceased;

A bill (S. 1394) for the relief of the estate of John Rick, deceased;

A bill (S. 1395) for the relief of Alexander L. Anderson; and

A bill (S. 1396) for the relief of James B. Brown (with accompanying papers).

Mr. BEVERIDGE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1397) granting an increase of pension to Anna L. Walker (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1398) granting an increase of pension to Edmund Morgan (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1399) granting an increase of pension to Henry Jordan; and

A bill (S. 1400) granting an increase of pension to Herbert C. Miller (with accompanying papers).

Mr. BEVERIDGE introduced a bill (S. 1401) for the relief of Isaac D'Isay; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ALGER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1402) granting an increase of pension to William Russell;

A bill (S. 1403) granting an increase of pension to Emma E. Hollis;

A bill (S. 1404) granting an increase of pension to Annie Young;

A bill (S. 1405) granting an increase of pension Edward Blanchard;

A bill (S. 1406) granting an increase of pension to Moses Hill;

A bill (S. 1407) granting a pension to John McCaughn;

A bill (S. 1408) granting an increase of pension to Julia W. Estes;

A bill (S. 1409) granting an increase of pension to Lyman A. Sayles;

A bill (S. 1410) granting an increase of pension to Emma Robbins;

A bill (S. 1411) granting an increase of pension to Artemus Ward; and

A bill (S. 1412) granting an increase of pension to George L. Van Dyne.

Mr. ALGER introduced a bill (S. 1413) for the relief of Thomas J. Spencer; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 1414) granting an increase of pension to Sidney G. Smith; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1415) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Esler; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BURNHAM introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1416) granting a pension to Mary M. Sherman;

A bill (S. 1417) granting an increase of pension to Henry A. Tilton;

A bill (S. 1418) granting an increase of pension to Levi E. Cross;

A bill (S. 1419) granting an increase of pension to John F. Green;

A bill (S. 1420) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Tyler;

A bill (S. 1421) granting an increase of pension to Harvey C. Brown;

A bill (S. 1422) granting an increase of pension to George L. Wakefield;

A bill (S. 1423) granting an increase of pension to John H. Steward;

A bill (S. 1424) granting an increase of pension to William P. Nevins;

A bill (S. 1425) granting an increase of pension to Edmund L. Carpenter;

A bill (S. 1426) granting an increase of pension to Austin Goings;

A bill (S. 1427) granting an increase of pension to Edward C. Emerson;

A bill (S. 1428) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Lamprey; and

A bill (S. 1429) granting an increase of pension to Jennie L. Overton.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming introduced a bill (S. 1430) for the relief of George Stoll and the heirs of Charles P. Regan, Marshall Turley, Edward Lannigan, James Manley, and John Hunter; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1431) granting an increase of pension to William W. Lane; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ALLEE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1432) granting an increase of pension to John W. Foreaker;

A bill (S. 1433) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Willard;

A bill (S. 1434) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Derry;

A bill (S. 1435) granting an increase of pension to L. T. Davis;

A bill (S. 1436) granting an increase of pension to William W. Broadway;

A bill (S. 1437) granting an increase of pension to William F. Davis;

A bill (S. 1438) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Martindale; and

A bill (S. 1439) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Moore.

Mr. McENERY introduced a bill (S. 1440) for the relief of the heirs of Charles and Palmyra Barre, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1441) for the relief of the heirs of Frederick Arbor, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. DICK introduced a bill (S. 1442) to increase the efficiency of the militia and promote rifle practice; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1443) granting an increase of pension to Hiram C. Clark (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1444) granting a pension to Dora H. Kuhns.

Mr. LATIMER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

A bill (S. 1445) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building thereon at Chester, in the State of South Carolina;

A bill (S. 1446) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building thereon at Greenwood, in the State of South Carolina; and

A bill (S. 1447) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Anderson, in the State of South Carolina.

Mr. CLARK of Montana introduced a bill (S. 1448) for the relief of the estate of James W. Mardis; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1449) granting an increase of pension to C. W. Geddes (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (S. 1450) granting an increase of pension to Frances B. Kellogg.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1451) for the relief of the drafted men of Pendleton and other counties, in the State of Kentucky;

A bill (S. 1452) for the relief of Alex. Kennedy;

A bill (S. 1453) for the relief of drafted men in the State of Kentucky; and

A bill (S. 1454) for the relief of Irene E. Johnson, administratrix of the estate of Leo L. Johnson, deceased.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 1455) extending the provisions of existing pension laws to the officers and privates, their widows, children, and dependent parents, of the "Dakota Militia of 1862 and 1863;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 1456) granting a pension to Joann Morris; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1457) granting an increase of pension to Clara Y. Corben; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEYBURN introduced a bill (S. 1458) granting an increase of pension to Durbin L. Badley; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1459) to encourage private salmon hatcheries in Alaska; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Fisheries.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1460) for the relief of ship keepers at the Mare Island Navy-Yard, Cal.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1461) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of M. M. Carson, enlisted under the name of Thomas Cox; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. ANKENY introduced a bill (S. 1462) to establish one or more fish-cultural stations on Puget Sound, State of Washington; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Fisheries.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced a bill (S. 1463) granting an increase of pension to Anna Z. Potter; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. NELSON introduced a bill (S. 1464) granting an increase of pension to John Dempster Croissant; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (for Mr. CLAPP) introduced a bill (S. 1465) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Fallihee; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DILLINGHAM introduced a bill (S. 1466) granting an increase of pension to Philena Davis; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1467) granting an increase of pension to Laura A. Blodgett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also (by request) introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs:

A bill (S. 1468) for the relief of the Cherokee tribe or nation of Indians;

A bill (S. 1469) for the relief of the Choctaw tribe or nation of Indians;

A bill (S. 1470) for the relief of the Chickasaw tribe or nation of Indians; and

A bill (S. 1471) for the relief of the Creek tribe or nation of Indians.

Mr. CARTER introduced a bill (S. 1472) for the relief of the executors of the estate of Charles E. Conrad, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. HEMENWAY introduced a bill (S. 1473) for the relief of Malinda S. Gray; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CLAY introduced a bill (S. 1474) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Davis; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 1475) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for Isthmian Canal construction, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1476) granting certain lands to the town of Tincup, Colo., for cemetery purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

AMENDMENT TO INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. GAMBLE submitted an amendment authorizing the payment of $200,000 to certain Sioux Indians of Cheyenne River Reservation, Crow Creek Reservation, and Standing Rock Reservation, in South Dakota, to reward them for services and sacrifice of ponies in accomplishing the rescue of Mrs. Julia Wright, Mrs. Emma Deely, and six children, in 1862, intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

EMPLOYMENT OF NEW YORK INDIANS IN WAR OF 1812.

Mr. PLATT submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

Resolved, That in furtherance of the purpose of Senate bill 2299, Fifty-sixth Congress, first session, and Senate resolution of February 20, 1901, the Secretary of War is hereby directed to furnish the Senate, in addition to information furnished November 18, 1905, an authenticated copy of the records, muster, and pay rolls of paymasters or other officers relative to the employment of any or all of the so-called Six Nations of the New York Indians who were in the military service of the United States during the war of 1812, giving the names of all of the Indian soldiers or warriors—about 1,000 thereof, and the names of their 24 chiefs of tribes—their company, regiment or tribe to which they belonged, their time in service, whether they were paid; and if so, how many, the amount due to those not paid, if any, to include equipments, perquisites, etc., and all other allowances to which these wards of the Government may be entitled under any and all acts of Congress or army regulations.

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Mr. LODGE submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations be, and is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary to report such testimony as may be taken by the Committee or its subcommittees in connection with matters before them and have the same printed for its use, and such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that said Committee on Foreign Relations be permitted to sit during the sessions of the Senate.

SENATOR FROM FLORIDA.

Mr. MALLORY. A few days ago the credentials of James P. Taliaferro, a Senator-elect from the State of Florida, were read and placed on file during his absence. He is now present, and I ask that he be sworn in.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator-elect will present himself at the desk and take the oath prescribed by law.

Mr. Taliaferro was escorted to the Vice-President's desk by Mr. MALLORY, and the oath prescribed by law having been administered to him, he took his seat in the Senate.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. LODGE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After forty-five minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 1 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, December 13, 1905, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 12, 1905.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

George W. Allen, of Florida, to be collector of customs for the district of Key West, in the State of Florida. (Reappointment.)

John E. Stillman, of Florida, to be collector of customs for the district of Pensacola, in the State of Florida. (Reappointment.)

Tip Warren, of Florida, to be collector of customs for the district of Apalachicola, in the State of Florida. (Reappointment.)

William L. Gerrish, of Maine, to be collector of customs for the district of Saco, in the State of Maine. (Reappointment.)

Charles H. Darling, of Vermont, to be collector of customs for the district of Vermont, in the State of Vermont, to succeed Olin Merrill, whose term of office will expire by limitation December 18, 1905.

Curtis S. Emery, of Vermont, to be collector of customs for the district of Memphremagog, in the State of Vermont, to succeed Zophar M. Mansur, whose term of office will expire by limitation December 18, 1905.

Matthew B. Macfarlane, of Florida, to be collector of customs for the district of Tampa, in the State of Florida. (Reappointment.)

UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS.

Nathan V. Harlan, of Nebraska, to be United States attorney for the district of Alaska, division No. 3. A reappointment, his term expiring December 16, 1905.

Earl M. Cranston, of Colorado, to be United States attorney for the district of Colorado. A reappointment, his term expiring December 16, 1905.

John M. Cheney, of Florida, to be United States attorney for the southern district of Florida, vice Joseph N. Stripling, whose term will expire January 22, 1906.

Marion Erwin, of Georgia, to be United States attorney for the southern district of Georgia. A reappointment, his term expiring December 17, 1905.

Robert C. Lee, of Mississippi, to be United States attorney for the southern district of Mississippi. A reappointment, his term expiring January 19, 1906.

William D. Frazee, of Mississippi, to be United States attorney for the northern district of Mississippi, vice Mack A. Montgomery, whose term will expire January 20, 1906.

James R. Penland, of Tennessee, to be United States attorney for the eastern district of Tennessee, vice William D. Wright, whose term expires December 16, 1905.

UNITED STATES MARSHALS.

John F. Horr, of Florida, to be United States marshal for the southern district of Florida. A reappointment, his term expiring February 17, 1906.

Edgar S. Wilson, of Mississippi, to be United States marshal for the southern district of Mississippi. A reappointment, his term expiring February 2, 1906.

Creighton M. Foraker, of New Mexico, to be United States marshal for the Territory of New Mexico. A reappointment, his term expiring December 16, 1905.

William Henkel, of New York, to be United States marshal for the southern district of New York. A reappointment, his term expiring January 13, 1906.

William A. Dunlap, of Tennessee, to be United States marshall for the eastern district of Tennessee, vice Richard W. Austin, whose term expires December 16, 1905.

PENSION AGENT.

William Rule, of Knoxville, Tenn., to be pension agent at Knoxville, Tenn., vice John T. Wilder, whose term will expire January 13, 1906.

REGISTERS OF LAND OFFICES.

Miles Cannon, of Washington, to be register of the land office at North Yakima, Wash., by transfer from receiver of public moneys at North Yakima, vice Henry V. Hinman, deceased.

Lucius Q. C. Lamar, of Oxford, Miss., to be register of the land office at Jackson, Miss., vice Frederick W. Collins, whose term will expire January 13, 1906.

POSTMASTERS.

ILLINOIS.

Robert G. Boyd to be postmaster at Glenellyn, in the county of Du Page and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential April 1, 1905.

Fritz Dorries to be postmaster at Breese, in the county of Clinton and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential April 1, 1905.

Americus Gasaway to be postmaster at Herrin, in the county of Williamson and State of Illinois, in place of William A. Stotlar, resigned.

Herrick Houghton to be postmaster at Gilman, in the county of Iroquois and State of Illinois, in place of Miles E. Hunt, removed.

Edward A. Jeffers to be postmaster at Kankakee, in the county of Kankakee and State of Illinois, in place of Hiram J. Dunlap, resigned.

Malcomb T. McIntyre to be postmaster at Ladd, in the county of Bureau and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential July 1, 1905.

Mary McLaughlin to be postmaster at Lake Forest, in the county of Lake and State of Illinois, in place of Mary McLaughlin. Incumbent's commission expired January 18, 1899.

Edward J. Meyer to be postmaster at Des Plaines, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential April 1, 1905.

Elbert C. Stanley to be postmaster at Downers Grove, in the county of Dupage and State of Illinois, in place of Charles Carpenter, resigned.

Walter Stickney to be postmaster at Warren, in the county of Jo Daviess and State of Illinois, in place of Hezekiah S. Van Dervort, removed.

Cornelius Sullivan to be postmaster at Riverside, in the county of Cook and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential October 1, 1896.

William M. Swingle to be postmaster at Athens, in the county of Menard and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential January 1, 1904.

Abraham L. Williams to be postmaster at Edinburg, in the county of Christian and State of Illinois. Office became Presidential January 1, 1905.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 12, 1905.

ASSISTANT TO THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Milton D. Purdy, of Minnesota, to be assistant to the Attorney-General.

ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTER PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Joseph W. J. Lee, of Maryland, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Ecuador.

CONSULS.

G. Jarvis Bowens, of Virginia, to be consul of the United States at Guadeloupe, West Indies.

James C. Kellogg, of Louisiana, to be consul of the United States at Colon, Panama.

Dominic I. Murphy, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States at Bordeaux, France.

Thomas B. Van Horne, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States at Rosario, Argentine Republic.

Pendleton King, of North Carolina, to be consul of the United States at Aix la Chapelle, Germany.

Joseph A. Howells, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States at Turks Island, West Indies.

Alexander Heingartner, of Ohio, to be consul of the United States at Guelph, Ontario, Canada.

Carl Bailey Hurst, of the District of Columbia, to be consul of the United States at Plauen, Germany.

Thornwell Haynes, of South Carolina, to be consul of the United States at Nanking, China.

DISTRICT BOARD OF CHARITIES.

Charles P. Neill, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the board of charities of the District of Columbia for the term of three years from July 1, 1905.

Simon Wolf, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the board of charities of the District of Columbia for the term of three years from July 1, 1905.

DISTRICT POLICE JUDGE.

Alexander R. Mullowney, of the District of Columbia, to be judge of the police court of the District of Columbia.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Lewis I. O'Neal, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

Samuel C. Mills, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

Luke C. Strider, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

Thomas H. Callan, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

Charles S. Bundy, of the District of Columbia, to be a justice of the peace in and for the District of Columbia.

COMMISSIONER TO REVISE THE LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

John L. Lott, of Ohio, to be a commissioner to revise the laws of the United States.

INDIAN INSPECTOR.

Frank C. Churchill, of Grafton, N. H., to be an Indian inspector.

MARSHALS.

Henry C. Pettit, of Indiana, to be United States marshal for the district of Indiana.

George H. Baker, of Washington, to be United States marshal for the eastern district of Washington.

George W. Long, of Kentucky, to be United States marshal for the western district of Kentucky.

James H. Judkins, of Alabama, to be United States marshal for the middle district of Alabama.

Walter H. Johnson, of Georgia, to be United States marshal for the northern district of Georgia.

CIRCUIT JUDGE.

Elmer B. Adams, of Missouri, to be United States circuit judge for the eighth judicial circuit.

DISTRICT JUDGE.

Gustavus A. Finkelnburg, of Missouri, to be United States district judge for the eastern district of Missouri.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS.

Joseph B. Kealing, of Indiana, to be United States attorney for the district of Indiana.

Joseph L. B. Alexander, of Arizona, to be United States attorney for the Territory of Arizona.

Farish Carter Tate, of Georgia, to be United States attorney for the northern district of Georgia.

James H. Tinsley, of Kentucky, to be United States attorney for the eastern district of Kentucky.

Reuben D. Hill, of Kentucky, to be United States attorney for the western district of Kentucky.

Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, of Missouri, to be United States attorney for the western district of Missouri.

A. George Avery, of Washington, to be United States attorney for the eastern district of Washington.

Elliott Northcott, of West Virginia, to be United States attorney for the southern district of West Virginia.

APPOINTMENTS IN MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Egil T. Olsen, of Illinois, to be an assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

Marshall C. Guthrie, of North Carolina, to be an assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

Hugh de Valin, of the District of Columbia, to be an assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States.

Asst. Surg. Thomas D. Berry to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from March 24, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Baylis H. Earle to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 13, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Edward Francis to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from June 23, 1905.

PROMOTIONS IN THE MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Asst. Surg. Mervin W. Glover to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 13, 1905.

Asst. Surg. John D. Long to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 14, 1905.

Asst. Surg. George W. McCoy to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from June 27, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Allan J. McLoughlin to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from April 10, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Claude C. Pierce to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from June 27, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Benjamin S. Warren to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States, to rank as such from June 25, 1905.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

Frank Lynn Austin, of Michigan, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

James Albert Alger, of Massachusetts, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Le Roy Reinburg, of the District of Columbia, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Howard Eugene Rideout, of Massachusetts, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

William Clayton Ward, of the District of Columbia, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Roger Chew Weightman, of California, to be a third lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

William Benjamin Cothran, of South Carolina, to be a second assistant engineer, with the rank of third lieutenant, in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

John Thomas Carr, of Massachusetts, to be a second assistant engineer, with the rank of third lieutenant, in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Charles Iven Day, of Maine, to be a second assistant engineer, with the rank of third lieutenant, in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

PROMOTIONS IN THE REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

First Lieut. Johnstone Hamilton Quinan to be a captain in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

First Lieut. Byron L. Reed to be a captain in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

First Lieut. James L. Sill to be a captain in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Second Lieut. Leonard Taylor Cutter to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Second Lieut. Harry G. Hamlet to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Second Lieut. William Edwin At Lee to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Second Lieut. Randolph Ridgely, jr., to be a first lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Third Lieut. Thaddeus Greaves Crapster to be a second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Third Lieut. Cecil Maunsell Gabbett to be a second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

Third Lieut. William Albert Whittier to be a second lieutenant in the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

To be chief gunners in the Navy from the 6th day of March, 1905, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904:

James T. Roach.
David F. Diggins.
David Hepburn.
Edwin N. Fisher.

To be chief gunners in the Navy from the 10th day of April, 1905, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904:

James C. McDermott.
John Kenyon.
Charles Hierdahl.

Gunner James Donald to be a chief gunner in the Navy from the 27th day of April, 1905, after having completed six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904.

Gunner Adolph Hasler to be chief gunner in the Navy from the 19th day of July, 1905, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904.

Boatswains Charles T. Chase, Christopher J. Cooper, and James H. Doyle to be chief boatswains in the Navy from the 6th day of March, 1905, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904.

To be chief boatswains in the Navy from the 10th day of April, 1905, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904:

George B. Hendry.
Arthur R. Nickerson.
John Mahoney.
Ernest V. Sandstrom.
John McGrath.
Christian Crone.

To be chief boatswains in the Navy from the dates set opposite their names, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved April 27, 1904:

Frederick Muller, from May 26, 1905.
John W. Stoakley, from August 15, 1905.
John D. Walsh, from August 29, 1905.

Gunner William Zeitler to be a chief gunner in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1904, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of section 12 of the "navy personnel act," approved March 3, 1899, as amended by the act of April 27, 1904.

Assistant Naval Constructors Stuart F. Smith and William G. Groesbeck to be naval constructors in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, upon the completion of eight years' service in their present grade.

Naval Constructors George H. Rock and Thomas F. Ruhm to be naval constructors in the Navy with the rank of lieutenant-commander from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Naval Constructors Frank B. Zahm, Horatio G. Gillmor, and Richard M. Watt to be naval constructors in the Navy with the rank of lieutenant-commander from the 8th day of July, 1905.

Assistant Naval Constructors William McEntee, William B. Ferguson, and John A. Spilman to be assistant naval constructors in the Navy with the rank of lieutenant from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Victor Blue to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905.

Capt. William W. Mead to be a rear-admiral in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Casey B. Morgan to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Ensign Hollis T. Winston to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, after having completed three years' service in his present grade.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Hollis T. Winston to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Gunner Joseph Hill to be a chief gunner in the Navy from the 27th day of April, 1905, after having completed six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of section 12 of the "navy personnel act," approved March 3, 1899, as amended by the act of April 27, 1904.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Wilbert Smith to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Robert L. Berry to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Robert A. Abernathy to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Frank D. Berrien to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut (Junior Grade) Paul Foley to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

To be ensigns in the Navy from the 3d day of February, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Alexander H. Van Keuren.
William W. Smyth.
Paul H. Fretz.
Stephen C. Rowan.
Walter S. Anderson.
Roy W. Ryden.
Henry D. Cooke, jr.
Samuel M. Robinson.
Leo Sahm.
Ralston S. Holmes.
Ernest Friedrick.
William J. Giles.
Ralph A. Koch.
Lamar R. Leahy.
Milton S. Davis.
Charles C. Moses.
Sam C. Loomis.
Alfred T. Brisbin.
Lindsay H. Lacy.
Charles A. Blakely.
Macgillivray Milne.
Wilbur R. Van Auken.
Harold R. Stark.
James D. Willson.
John S. Arwine, jr.
Austin S. Kibbee.
Martin K. Metcalf.
William Ancrum.
Hugh M. Walker.
Frank H. Sadler.
John Rodgers.
Daniel T. Ghent.

Surg. Charles M. De Valin to be a surgeon in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant-commander, from the 3d day of March, 1903.

P. A. Surgs. Joseph C. Thompson and Frederick L. Benton to be surgeons in the Navy from the 3d day of March, 1903, to correct the dates of their promotions as confirmed on April 27, 1904.

P. A. Surg. Joseph A. Guthrie to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 15th day of December, 1904, to correct the date of his promotion as confirmed on April 27, 1904.

P. A. Surg. Ralph T. Orvis to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 1st day of March, 1905, to correct the date of his promotion as confirmed on April 27, 1904.

P. A. Surg. Will M. Garton to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 12th day of March, 1903.

P. A. Surg. Frank E. McCullough to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 9th day of June, 1903.

P. A. Surg. Francis M. Furlong to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 20th day of June, 1903.

Medical Inspector Daniel N. Bertolette to be a medical director in the Navy from the 5th day of April, 1905.

Surg. Henry G. Beyer to be a medical inspector in the Navy from the 5th day of April, 1905.

P. A. Surg. David B. Kerr to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 5th day of April, 1905.

P. A. Surg. Granville L. Angeny to be a surgeon in the Navy from the 24th day of April, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Robert E. Hoyt to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 8th day of May, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service in his present grade.

Lieut. Newton A. McCully to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 22d day of April, 1905.

Lieut. Marcus L. Miller to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Edison E. Scranton to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Ensigns Daniel P. Mannix, Harry K. Cage, and Benjamin G. Barthalow to be lieutenants (junior grade) in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Daniel P. Mannix to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Benjamin G. Barthalow to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Harry K. Cage to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Asst. Surg. Robert A. Bachmann to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 20th day of March, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. Howard F. Strine to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 8th day of May, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. Joseph P. Traynor to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 8th day of May, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Asst. Surg. John L. Neilson to be a passed assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 4th day of October, 1905, upon the completion of three years' service.

Francis M. Shook, a citizen of Minnesota, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 15th day of March, 1905.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 3d day of May, 1905:

Richard A. Warner, a citizen of the District of Columbia.

Paul R. Stalnaker, a citizen of Texas.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 24th day of May, 1905:

Ernest O. J. Eytinge, a citizen of New York.

George M. Olson, a citizen of Minnesota.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 7th day of July, 1905:

Curtis B. Munger, a citizen of California.

Edward R. Marshall, a citizen of Tennessee.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 14th day of July, 1905:

Fletcher H. Brooks, a citizen of Maryland.

John B. Mears, a citizen of Virginia.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 1st day of August, 1905:

George S. Hathaway, a citizen of Rhode Island.

Frank E. Sellers, a citizen of Virginia.

To be assistant surgeons in the Navy from the 21st day of September, 1905:

Edward H. H. Old, a citizen of Virginia.

George H. McConnon, a citizen of Virginia.

Edward C. White, a citizen of New Jersey.

Thurlow W. Reed, a citizen of New York.

Edward U. Reed, a citizen of Pennsylvania.

Edward L. Woods, a citizen of Virginia, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 14th day of October, 1905.

Robert C. Ransdell, a citizen of the District of Columbia, to be an assistant surgeon in the Navy from the 24th day of November 1905.

Paymaster Frank T. Arms to be a pay inspector in the Navy from the 10th day of March, 1905, to correct the date of his promotion, as confirmed on the 16th day of March, 1905, caused by the failure of Paymaster Henry E. Jewett to qualify for promotion.

Paymaster Thomas H. Hicks to be a pay inspector in the Navy from the 13th day of March, 1905.

Paymaster Ziba W. Reynolds to be a pay inspector in the Navy from the 14th day of June, 1905.

P. A. Paymaster Rishworth Nicholson to be a paymaster in the Navy from the 14th of June, 1905.

P. A. Paymaster John D. Barber to be a paymaster in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Asst. Paymaster Jere Maupin to be a passed assistant paymaster in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Paymaster Henry E. Jewett to be a paymaster in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant-commander, from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Paymaster Eugene D. Ryan to be a paymaster in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant-commander, from the 8th day of July, 1905.

P. A. Paymasters Edward T. Hoopes, Walter A. Greer, and Cecil S. Baker to be passed assistant paymasters in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant, from the 31st day of March, 1905.

P. A. Paymasters Donald W. Nesbit, Arthur M. Pippin, John S. Higgins, and Ignatius T. Hagner to be passed assistant paymasters in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant, from the 1st day of July, 1905.

To be passed assistant paymasters in the Navy, with the rank of lieutenant, from the 30th day of July, 1905:

George P. Auld.
James S. Beecher.
Henry A. Wise, jr.
Henry de F. Mel.
John A. B. Smith, jr.
Felix R. Holt.
Emmett C. Gudger.
Stewart E. Barber.
Howard D. Lamar.
Frederic H. Lemly.
Ervin A. McMillan.
Eugene H. Tricou.
Alvin Hovey-King.
George A. Deering.
William C. Fite.

Harold W. Browning, a citizen of New York, to be an assistant paymaster in the Navy from the 15th day of March, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

To be assistant paymasters in the Navy from the 8th day of July, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date:

Benjamin H. Brooke, a citizen of Pennsylvania.
Thomas J. Bright, a citizen of Pennsylvania.
Emory D. Stanley, a citizen of Nevada.
Lewis W. L. Jennings, a citizen of Virginia.
Brantz Mayer, a citizen of Iowa.
Swinton L. Bethea, a citizen of South Carolina.
Edward R. Wilson, a citizen of California.
William G. Neill, a citizen of West Virginia.
Harry E. Collins, a citizen of the District of Columbia.
John H. Gunnell, a citizen of New York.
Emmett H. Tebeau, a citizen of South Carolina.
Charles E. Parsons, a citizen of Maryland.
William J. Hine, a citizen of Tennessee.
Kenneth C. McIntosh, a citizen of Indiana.
Francis J. Daly, a citizen of New Jersey.
Roland W. Schumann, a citizen of New York.
Franklin P. Williams, a citizen of Pennsylvania.
Leon N. Wertenbaker, a citizen of Ohio.
John J. Luchsinger, a citizen of California.
Eugene H. Douglass, a citizen of Massachusetts.
Robert K. Van Mater, a citizen of New Jersey.
William S. Zane, a citizen of Pennsylvania.
James C. Hilton, a citizen of Maryland.

Midshipman George F. Blair to be an ensign in the Navy from the 2d day of May, 1904.

Midshipman Kirby B. Crittenden to be an ensign in the Navy from the 1st day of November, 1904.

Commander Richard G. Davenport to be a captain in the Navy from the 21st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Commander John T. Newton to be a commander in the Navy from the 21st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Kenneth McAlpine to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 21st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles W. Forman to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 21st day of March, 1905.

Capt. George C. Reiter to be a rear-admiral in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Commander John A. Norris to be a captain in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Commander Edward B. Barry to be a captain in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Benjamin Tappan to be a commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Charles F. Pond to be a commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Walter McLean to be a commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Benton C. Decker to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Mark L. Bristol to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. Benjamin W. Wells to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Zachariah H. Madison to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Henry B. Soulé to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Francis Martin to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 31st day of March, 1905.

Commander Herbert Winslow to be a captain in the Navy from the 22d day of April, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Washington I. Chambers to be a commander in the Navy from the 22d day of April, 1905.

Lieut. Commander James C. Gillmore to be a commander in the Navy from the 30th day of April, 1905.

Lieut. Levi C. Bertolette to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 30th day of April, 1905.

Capt. Willard H. Brownson to be a rear-admiral in the Navy from the 6th day of May, 1905.

Commander William H. Turner to be a captain in the Navy from the 6th day of May, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Charles A. Gove to be a commander in the Navy from the 6th day of May, 1905.

Lieut. George W. Logan to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 6th day of May, 1905.

Commander Albert G. Berry to be a captain in the Navy from the 16th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander De Witt C. Coffman to be a commander in the Navy from the 16th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Henry F. Bryan to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 16th day of June, 1905.

Commander Nathaniel J. K. Patch to be a captain in the Navy from the 21st day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Richard Henderson to be a commander in the Navy from the 21st day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Andrew T. Long to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 21st day of June, 1905.

Commander Thomas S. Phelps to be a captain in the Navy from the 26th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Thomas D. Griffin to be a commander in the Navy from the 26th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Edward H. Durell to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 26th day of June, 1905.

Commander Karl Rohrer to be a captain in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Henry Minett to be a commander in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Archibald H. Scales to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Richard T. Mulligan to be a commander in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905.

Commander Theodoric Porter to be a captain in the Navy from the 30th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Commander William Braunersreuther to be a commander in the Navy from the 30th day of June, 1905.

Lieut. Thomas Washington to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 30th day of June, 1905.

Commander Daniel D. V. Stuart to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Commander Kossuth Niles to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Commander Warner B. Bayley, an additional number in grade, to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander William S. Hogg to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Archibald H. Davis to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Guy H. Burrage to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Commander Dennis H. Mahan to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Reynold T. Hall to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander William F. Fullam to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Frank M. Russell to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

To be lieutenants (junior grade) in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, after having completed three years' service in that grade:

Charles P. Snyder.
Carleton R. Kear.
Joseph R. Defrees.
Willis G. Mitchell.
Samuel W. Bryant.
Edward S. Jackson.
William F. Bricker.
Henry L. Wyman.
John W. Timmons.
John G. Church.
Charles N. Freeman.
Robert L. Berry.
Robert A. Abernathy.
Ward K. Wortman.
Hayne Ellis.
Frank D. Berrien.
Arthur B. Keating.
Frederick R. Naile.
Emil P. Svarz.
Wilbert Smith.
Julius F. Hellweg.
Sinclair Gannon.
Robert Morris.
John D. Wainwright.
George W. Steele, jr.
Stafford H. R. Doyle.
William K. Riddle.
William N. Jeffers.
James H. Comfort.
Paul Foley.
Carlos A. Gardiner.
Edison E. Scranton.
John W. Schoenfeld.
Clarence L. Arnold.
Stanley Woods.
Edwin H. Dodd.
Charles P. Huff.
Charles R. Train.
Hugo W. Osterhaus.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles P. Snyder to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Carleton R. Kear to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Joseph R. Defrees to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Willis G. Mitchell to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Samuel W. Bryant to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Edward S. Jackson to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) William F. Bricker to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Henry L. Wyman to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Arthur B. Keating to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Frederick R. Naile to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Emil P. Svarz to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Commander Albert F. Dixon to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Commander Samuel P. Comly to be a captain in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Albert G. Winterhalter to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander John M. Orchard to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Augustus F. Fechteler to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Edward E. Wright to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Albert Gleaves to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander James P. Parker to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Ben W. Hodges to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Herbert O. Dunn to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Arthur W. Dodd to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Albert W. Grant to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Horace W. Harrison to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Valentine S. Nelson to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander William S. Benson to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Frank M. Bostwick to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Commander Harry M. Dombaugh to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut Commander Thomas S. Rodgers to be a commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Ashley H. Robertson to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Carlo B. Brittain to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William M. Crose to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. John F. Hubbard to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Lloyd H. Chandler to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Oscar W. Koester to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. George N. Hayward to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Samuel S. Robison to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Charles F. Hughes to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Albert L. Norton to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. James H. Reid to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Edward L. Beach to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Herman O. Stickney to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Henry A. Wiley to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Frederic B. Bassett, jr., to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Herbert G. Gates to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Richard H. Jackson to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Arthur B. Hoff to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Nathan C. Twining to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Benjamin F. Hutchison to be lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Thomas P. Magruder to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Sumner E. W. Kittelle to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William V. Pratt to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Louis McC. Nulton to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. George R. Marvell to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. John B. Patton to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. George B. Bradshaw to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Cleland N. Offley to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Louis R. de Steiguer to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William W. Phelps to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Louis A. Kaiser to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William C. Cole to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Charles A. Brand to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Philip Williams to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Warren J. Terhune to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. George G. Mitchell to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Cleland Davis to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William K. Harrison to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Frank H. Schofield to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Urban T. Holmes to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Jehu V. Chase to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Henry J. Ziegemeier to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Matt H. Signor to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Claude B. Price to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Montgomery M. Taylor to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Carl T. Vogelgesang to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Charles B. McVay, jr., to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. John H. Dayton to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Lucius A. Bostwick to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. William A. Moffett to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. Julian L. Latimer to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Julius F. Hellweg to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Sinclair Gannon to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Robert Morris to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) John D. Wainwright to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) George W. Steele, jr., to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Stafford H. R. Doyle to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) William K. Riddle to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) William N. Jeffers to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) John W. Timmons to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles S. Freeman to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Ward K. Wortman to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Hayne Ellis to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) James H. Comfort to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Carlos A. Gardiner to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) John W. Schoenfeld to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Clarence L. Arnold to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Stanley Woods to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.
Lieut. (Junior Grade) Edwin H. Dodd to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles P. Huff to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Charles R. Train to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

Capt. Edward Longnecker to be a rear-admiral in the Navy from the 8th day of July, 1905.

Commander John Hubbard to be a captain in the Navy from the 8th day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Commander John G. Quinby to be a commander in the Navy from the 8th day of July, 1905.

Lieut. John R. Edie to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 8th day of July, 1905.

Lieut. Reginald R. Belknap to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 18th day of July, 1905.

To be ensigns in the Navy from the 30th day of July, 1905, to fill vacancies existing in that grade on that date, in accordance with the provisions of an act of Congress approved March 3, 1901, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1903, and April 27, 1904:

Boatswain Charles H. Bullock.

Gunner John Grady.

Gunner Arthur C. Kail.

Gunner William D. Greetham.

Gunner Robert W. Kessler.

Ensign Louis J. Connelly to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the Navy from the 30th day of July, 1905, having completed three years' service in his present grade.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Louis J. Connelly to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 30th day of July, 1905, to fill a vacancy existing in that grade on that date.

Capt. Thomas Perry to be a rear-admiral in the Navy from the 8th day of September, 1905.

Commander Alexander McCrackin to be a captain in the Navy from the 8th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. Commander James H. Glennon to be a commander in the Navy from the 8th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. De Witt Blamer to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 8th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. Commander Percival J. Werlich to be a commander in the Navy from the 9th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. John K. Robinson to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 9th day of September, 1905.

Commander Corwin P. Rees, an additional number in grade, to be a captain in the Navy from the 30th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. Commander William R. Rush to be a commander in the Navy from the 30th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. Arthur L. Willard to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 30th day of September, 1905.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Hugo W. Osterhaus to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905.

POSTMASTERS.

ALABAMA.

Ella G. Nix to be postmaster at Fort Payne, in the county of Dekalb and State of Alabama.

CALIFORNIA.

Adaline Bailhache to be postmaster at Coronado, in the county of San Diego and State of California.

Edmund L. Brown to be postmaster at San Fernando (late Fernando), in the county of Los Angeles and State of California.

Daniel H. Coates to be postmaster at Campbell, in the county of Santa Clara and State of California.

Angus J. Drynan to be postmaster at Redding, in the county of Shasta and State of California.

Frank H. Duden to be postmaster at Jackson, in the county of Amador and State of California.

Albert B. Hill to be postmaster at Coalinga, in the county of Fresno and State of California.

William A. Long to be postmaster at Hanford, in the county of Kings and State of California.

GEORGIA.

Richard O. Rogers to be postmaster at Lafayette, in the county of Walker and State of Georgia.

Albert M. Smith to be postmaster at Brunswick, in the county of Glynn and State of Georgia.

IDAHO.

William W. Stephens to be postmaster at Rexburg, in the county of Fremont and State of Idaho.

George L. Wall to be postmaster at Blackfoot, in the county of Bingham and State of Idaho.

KANSAS.

Thomas C. Babb to be postmaster at Fredonia, in the county of Wilson and State of Kansas.

Willis E. Bodley to be postmaster at Quenemo, in the county of Osage and State of Kansas.

Lewis W. Breyfogle to be postmaster at Olathe, in the county of Johnson and State of Kansas.

Eben Carlsson to be postmaster at Lindsborg, in the county of McPherson and State of Kansas.

Robert I. Hillman to be postmaster at Peru, in the county of Chautauqua and State of Kansas.

Irwin C. McDowell to be postmaster at Phillipsburg, in the county of Phillips and State of Kansas.

James T. Miller to be postmaster at Altoona, in the county of Wilson and State of Kansas.

John C. Petty to be postmaster at Strong, in the county of Chase and State of Kansas.

LOUISIANA.

Arthur A. Boudreaux to be postmaster at Thibodaux, in the parish of Lafourche and State of Louisiana.

Benjamin S. Gallup to be postmaster at Hammond, in the parish of Tangipahoa and State of Louisiana.

Rudolph A. Gehringer to be postmaster at Napoleonville, in the parish of Assumption and State of Louisiana.

Cora Sharpless to be postmaster at De Ridder, in the parish of Calcasieu and State of Louisiana.

MISSOURI.

Julian Courteol to be postmaster at Granby, in the county of Newton and State of Missouri.

George K. Gwathmey to be postmaster at Lathrop, in the county of Clinton and State of Missouri.

Roscoe N. Dean to be postmaster at Norborne, in the county of Carroll and State of Missouri.

Guersant P. Herriott to be postmaster at Novinger, in the county of Adair and State of Missouri.

Clyde M. Hudson to be postmaster at Hale, in the county of Carroll and State of Missouri.

Frank P. Kitchen to be postmaster at Clinton, in the county of Henry and State of Missouri.

William T. Lessley to be postmaster at Glasgow, in the county of Howard and State of Missouri.

Nellie B. Shelton to be postmaster at Puxico, in the county of Stoddard and State of Missouri.

Theodore Walther to be postmaster at De Soto, in the county of Jefferson and State of Missouri.

MONTANA.

Orson B. Prickett to be postmaster at Billings, in the county of Yellowstone and State of Montana.

James McTaggart to be postmaster at Belgrade, in the county of Gallatin and State of Montana.

NEW YORK.

Emerson W. Addis to be postmaster at Brewster, in the county of Putnam and State of New York.

Samuel G. Barton to be postmaster at Gasport, in the county of Niagara and State of New York.

George C. Lane to be postmaster at Fishers Island, in the county of Suffolk and State of New York.

William E. Mills to be postmaster at Rose Hill, in the county of Onondaga and State of New York.

John N. Parsons to be postmaster at Yonkers, in the county of Westchester and State of New York.

Sylvester Pearsall to be postmaster at Lynbrook, in the county of Nassau and State of New York.

Harry H. Pratt to be postmaster at Corning, in the county of Steuben and State of New York.

Charles J. Shults to be postmaster at Cherry Creek, in the county of Chautauqua and State of New York.

Alexander S. Taylor to be postmaster at Westbury Station, in the county of Nassau and State of New York.

Henry P. Tuthill to be postmaster at Mattituck, in the county of Suffolk and State of New York.

Willis G. C. Wood to be postmaster at Whitehall, in the county of Washington and State of New York.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Drury W. Deweese to be postmaster at Murphy, in the county of Cherokee and State of North Carolina.

James D. Dorsett to be postmaster at Spencer, in the county of Rowan and State of North Carolina.

Malinda A. Renigar to be postmaster at Shore, in the county of Yadkin and State of North Carolina.

William E. Snow to be postmaster at High Point, in the county of Guilford and State of North Carolina.

NORTH DAKOTA.

William H. Bush to be postmaster at Oakes, in the county of Dickey and State of North Dakota.

OHIO.

Orrin C. Andre to be postmaster at Waverly, in the county of Pike and State of Ohio.

Charles W. Brainerd to be postmaster at Mantua (late Mantua Station), in the county of Portage and State of Ohio.

Betsey Erskine to be postmaster at Lowellville, in the county of Mahoning and State of Ohio.

Lewis T. Marrott to be postmaster at Hudson, in the county of Summit and State of Ohio.

John C. McManus to be postmaster at Jewett, in the county of Harrison and State of Ohio.

George W. Nickels to be postmaster at Galion, in the county of Crawford and State of Ohio.

Ralston Russell to be postmaster at Pomeroy, in the county of Meigs and State of Ohio.

Tom J. Smith to be postmaster at West Salem, in the county of Wayne and State of Ohio.

Judson N. Stone to be postmaster at Oberlin, in the county of Lorain and State of Ohio.

David B. Wilson to be postmaster at Corning, in the county of Perry and State of Ohio.

OREGON.

Harvey S. Buck to be postmaster at Sumpter, in the county of Baker and State of Oregon.

Louis J. Simpson to be postmaster at North Bend, in the county of Coos and State of Oregon.

Frank W. Welcome to be postmaster at Burns, in the county of Harney and State of Oregon.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

John E. Heustess to be postmaster at Hartsville, in the county of Darlington and State of South Carolina.

Isham A. Mayfield to be postmaster at Greer, in the county of Greenville and State of South Carolina.

Ira S. Pitts to be postmaster at Westminster, in the county of Oconee and State of South Carolina.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Erick Olson to be postmaster at Fairfax, in the county of Gregory and State of South Dakota.

William Toomey to be postmaster at Gettysburg, in the county of Potter and State of South Dakota.

TEXAS.

Harry H. Barkham to be postmaster at Plano, in the county of Collin and State of Texas.

Jefferson D. Bell to be postmaster at Bartlett, in the county of Williamson and State of Texas.

Belle W. Bridges to be postmaster at Mason, in the county of Mason and State of Texas.

Thomas F. Calhoon to be postmaster at Liberty, in the county of Liberty and State of Texas.

Gerald W. Calrow to be postmaster at Boerne, in the county of Kendall and State of Texas.

George W. Cash to be postmaster at Hubbard, in the county of Hill and State of Texas.

Joshua W. Cunningham to be postmaster at De Kalb, in the county of Bowie and State of Texas.

William A. Hawn to be postmaster at Athens, in the county of Henderson and State of Texas.

Clara I. Lockwood to be postmaster at Sealy, in the county of Austin and State of Texas.

Richard T. Polk to be postmaster at Killeen, in the county of Bell and State of Texas.

Anna J. Roach to be postmaster at Atlanta, in the county of Cass and State of Texas.

Charlie Simmons to be postmaster at Valley Mills, in the county of Bosque and State of Texas.

Harvey H. Twyman to be postmaster at Rosebud, in the county of Falls and State of Texas.

UTAH.

George W. Bryan to be postmaster at Mercur, in the county of Tooele and State of Utah.

WASHINGTON.

Jacob F. Hill to be postmaster at Davenport, in the county of Lincoln and State of Washington.

Robert H. Stapleton to be postmaster at Monroe, in the county of Snohomish and State of Washington.

Frank L. Turner to be postmaster at South Bend, in the county of Pacific and State of Washington.

Henry L. Votaw to be postmaster at Tacoma, in the county of Pierce and State of Washington.

WYOMING.

Ida Fowkes to be postmaster at Cumberland, in the county of Uinta and State of Wyoming.

Frank O. Thompson to be postmaster at Cody, in the county of Bighorn and State of Wyoming.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, December 13, 1905.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

EXPENDITURES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, recommending the repeal of section 3 of the act of June 30, 1879, which provides that the Attorney-General shall include in his annual report a statement of all payments or expenditures during any fiscal year out of any appropriation fund subject to requisitions from him, etc.; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relating to the vessel schooner Lovely Lass, William Moore, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of the City of Memphis v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Karoline Mulhaupt v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of the Christian Church of Corinth, Miss., v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of The Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Cleveland, Tenn., v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of The Columbia National Bank, of Columbia, Pa., v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Antonia Q. Lovell, Rosalie Q. Duncan, Fredrica Q. Ogden, Eliza T. Routh, and Louise Q. Lovell, since deceased, children and heirs at law of Gen. J. A. Quitman, deceased, and Eva C. Lovell and Alice Q. Lovell, children and heirs at law of Louise Q. Lovell, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

COURTESIES TO MEMBERS OF CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate an extract from the minutes and proceedings of the Senate of Canada, expressing thanks for the cordial reception extended to the Hon. Raoul Dandurand, speaker of the Senate of the Dominion of Canada; the Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, ex-premier and senator, and the Hon. Senator McSweeney at the inauguration of the President of the United States at Washington on the 4th of March last, and also for the courtesies of the United States Senate and the privileges of the floor. The extract from the minutes will be read.

The paper was read, and ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

[Extract from the minutes and proceedings of the Senate of Canada, March 17, 1905.]

With leave of the Senate, his honor the speaker made the following statement:

"HONORABLE GENTLEMEN: I deem it my duty to take this the first opportunity of reassembling of the Senate to bring to its notice the very cordial reception which was given to your speaker and to the Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, ex-premier and senator, and the Hon. Senator McSweeney at the inauguration of the President of the United States at Washington on the 4th day of March last.

"On learning of our presence in the city the President accorded us a private reception, and requested me as your speaker to convey to the Canadian Senate his high appreciation of our attendance at his inauguration, and his hearty wishes that the intercourse between the public men of both neighboring nations should be more frequent and more intimate.

"I desire at the same time, on behalf of myself and colleagues, to thank the Senate of the United States for the very gracious act it performed on the day of our arrival by adopting the following resolution, granting to us the courtesies of the Senate and the privileges of the floor of that honorable body:

"'IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,
"'March 3, 1905.

"'On motion by Mr. SPOONER,

"'Resolved, That the courtesies of the Senate, including the privileges of the floor, are extended to the Hon. Raoul Dandurand, speaker of the Senate of the Dominion of Canada, and the Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, ex-premier and senator of the said Dominion, who are at the capital to attend the inaugural ceremonies.

"'Attest:

"'CHARLES G. BENNETT, Secretary.'

"As this resolution is of record in the minutes of that body, I felt that this act of courtesy on the part of our brother Senators from over the line should be officially acknowledged and taken cognizance of as a friendly act toward our whole chamber, and duly recorded in our own proceedings.

"The Hon. Senator McSweeney, whose presence at the American capital had not been announced, was granted the same reception as that given to his colleagues."

The Hon. Mr. Ellis, moved, seconded by the Hon. Mr. Kerr, that the said statement be recorded in the minutes and proceedings of the Senate; that a copy of the same be transmitted to the President of the United States and to the President of the Senate.

The question of concurrence being put thereon, the same was unanimously resolved in the affirmative, and ordered accordingly.

Attest:

SAML. E. ST. O. CHAPLEAU, Clerk of the Senate.

EXAMINATIONS OF NATIONAL BANKS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 7th instant, a report from the Comptroller of the Treasury containing certain information concerning the reports made of national-bank examiners touching the subject of contributions to political campaigns. The Chair would ask the senior Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN] what disposition he wishes to have made of the communication. [A pause.] The Secretary will read the letter.

The Secretary read as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, December 12, 1905.

SIR: In response to a resolution passed by your body on December 7, 1905, requesting the Secretary of the Treasury to submit certain information concerning the reports made by national-bank examiners touching the subject of contributions to political campaigns, I beg to transmit the following from the report to me by the Comptroller of the Treasury. He answers the inquiries seriatim, and as follows:

"1. All reports made by national-bank examiners since March 4, 1893, have been preserved and are on file in the Comptroller's office.

"2. Since 1894 it has been the practice to make regular semiannual examinations of all national banks. Prior to 1894 only one regular examination a year was made of each bank.

"3. It is the duty and the practice of examiners to examine the expense and profit and loss accounts of banks, covering all items of expenditures for the period since the last previous examination, and the vouchers or memorandum tickets for any large or unusual item of expense.

"4. It is the duty and practice of examiners to report any illegal, wasteful, or improper use of a bank's funds or any undue proportion of expenses to earnings.

"5. While it is impossible to state positively whether any report shows any payments by any bank to any political committee, or to any chairman, treasurer, or other officer of a political committee, without an examination of each and every one of more than 100,000 reports on file of examinations made during the period covered by the resolution, to the best of my knowledge and belief such reports as have been made during my incumbency of the office of Comptroller, covering the period since October 1, 1901, do not show any payments of the nature indicated, except in one or two instances, and these were in banks of the smaller capital class and for amounts not exceeding two or three hundred dollars. The reports in these instances simply show the payment, contribution, or donation of the sum stated for local political campaign purposes, without any of the details connected with such payments.

"Careful inquiry of subordinate officers of the Comptroller's Bureau who have been connected with the Bureau prior to and since March 4, 1893, and whose duty it has been to make critical examination of examiners' reports and to prepare the letters to the banks based thereon, has failed to bring to their recollection any report showing payments of the nature indicated, except the one or two instances hereinbefore cited.

"6. To the best of my knowledge and belief, therefore, such reports do not show any payments, except as stated, of the moneys of any bank to any person, upon any voucher or without any voucher, where the circumstances of the payments suggest that the money was to be used to carry on a political campaign or for any political purpose.

"When an examiner's report shows any unlawful use of the funds of a bank by its officers, it is the practice of the Comptroller to call the attention of the directors of the bank to the matter and to require them to cause a restoration to be made of the amount unlawfully used.

"In one of the instances above referred to I know from my personal recollection the officers of the bank were called on to make good the amount thus contributed for political purposes. I have not so distinct a recollection in regard to the other case, although I am quite positive the same course must have been pursued. I do not remember the name or location of the bank, and as no one else in the office does, it would be difficult to find it without a search of all the reports, which would be a matter of many days' labor."

Respectfully submitted.

L. M. SHAW, Secretary.

The PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What disposition does the Senator from South Carolina wish to have made of the communication?

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, it will appear in the RECORD, having been read, and it is, therefore, to that extent a public document. Probably I shall pursue the matter a little further by an additional resolution that will make some specifications, which will not take so much labor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The communication will be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BURROWS. I trust that it will be printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so printed.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Santa Fe, Territory of New Mexico, praying for the enactment of legislation incorporating into the pending bill for statehood for New Mexico and Arizona a provision donating to the counties of Santa Fe and Grant, in New Mexico, and to the county of Pima and such others as may be similarly affected in Arizona, sufficient public nonmineral-bearing lands, the proceeds from the sale of which to be applied to the payment and satisfaction of all bonded indebtedness against said counties, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. ALLISON presented a petition of Group Four of the Iowa Bankers' Association, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, praying for the enactment of legislation to repeal the present bankruptcy law; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the Ministerial Association of Muscatine, Iowa, praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of Local Union No. 634, Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of Creston, Iowa, and a petition of the Charity Organization of Dubuque, Iowa, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Postal Progress League of Pacific Grove, Cal., praying for the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Nora Springs, Iowa, praying for the ratification of treaty of arbitration with all nations; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented a petition of the Des Moines Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Des Moines, Iowa, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a petition of the Trades League of Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the admission of Chinese into the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the central committee of the National Live Stock Association of the United States, praying that increased appropriation be made for the purpose of agricultural experimental stations and for the use of the Bureau of Animal Industry, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. ANKENY presented a memorial of the Harmony Club of Seattle, Wash., remonstrating against the oppression of the Jews in Russia; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. DOLLIVER presented a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New Sharon, Iowa, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against the Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented petitions of Subdivisions No. 184, of Stuart; No. 159, of Cedar Rapids; No. 391, of Fort Madison; No. 203, of Perry; No. 113, of Des Moines; No. 229, of Mason City, all of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in the State of Iowa, praying for the enactment of legislation prohibiting the employment of men as locomotive engineers who have not had at least three years' experience as locomotive firemen or one year's experience as a locomotive engineer; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. KNOX presented a petition of Central Labor Union, American Federation of Labor, of Easton, Pa., praying for the enactment of legislation to exclude Chinese and Korean laborers from the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 1203) granting a pension to Albert B. Lawrence; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented a petition of the Cumberland Valley Medical Association, of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the efficiency of the Medical Department of the United States Army; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented petitions of Camp No. 215, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Ambler; Camp No. 650, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Broad Top City; Camp No. 456, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Sykesville; Camp No. 337, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Mill Hall; Camp No. 581, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Ricketts; Camp No. 65, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Lebanon; Camp No. 632, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Franklindale; Camp No. 614, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Pillow; Camp No. 28, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Adamstown; Vine Cliff Council, No. 107, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Blairsville Council, No. 216, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Blairsville; Tescallette Council, No. 442, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; J. P. Winower Council, No. 618, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pittsburg; Columbia Council, No. 43, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Wilkesbarre; Good Will Council, No. 42, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Tyrone; the United Labor League of Western Pennsylvania; Local Union No. 1693, Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Harrisburg; Local No. 947, Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Ridgway, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented petitions of William E. McCall, jr., of Philadelphia; of sundry citizens of Reading; The Declaration of Independence Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of Philadelphia; Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia; Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Darby; Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Landsdowne; William C. Taylor, of Bethlehem; Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Media; Warren H. Hershey, of New Holland; First United Presbyterian Church of Rochester; College Hill Reformed Presbyterian Church, of Beaver Falls, and Olivet Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented the memorial of B. Ezra Herr, of Rosedale, Pa., and the memorial of S. L. Johns, of Hanover, Pa., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Curtis bill," relative to a reduction of the duty on tobacco imported from the Philippine Islands; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the general board of adjustment, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Easton, Pa., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Trades League of Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the enactment of legislation to permit the admission into the United States of Chinese visitors and travelers not of the cooly class; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the congregation of the United Presbyterian Church of Stone Valley; of 75 members of the United Presbyterian Church of Conway; 200 members of the First United Presbyterian Church of Rochester; 130 members of the College Hill Reformed Presbyterian Church, of Beaver Falls; 200 members of the Central Allegheny Reformed Presbyterian Church, of Allegheny; 100 members of the Free Methodist Church of Pittsburg; 186 members of the Mount Washington Baptist Church, of Pittsburg; all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit polygamy; which were referred to the Committe on the Judiciary.

He also presented petitions of Laurel Hill Grange, No. 1161, Patrons of Husbandry, of Milan; Concord Grange, No. 1141, Patrons of Husbandry, of Concord; Brandywine Grange, No. 60, Patrons of Husbandry, of Westchester; Summit Grange, No. 1155, Patrons of Husbandry, of St. Marys; Columbus Grange, No. 826, Patrons of Husbandry, of Columbus; Penfield Grange, No. 1240, Patrons of Husbandry, of Penfield; Winfield Grange, No. 1105, Patrons of Husbandry, of Carbonblack; Liberty Grange, No. 1182, Patrons of Husbandry, of Port Allegheny; Elk Lake Grange, No. 806, Patrons of Husbandry, of Elk Lake; Waterford Grange, No. 423, Patrons of Husbandry, of Waterford; Keiserville Grange, No. 508, Patrons of Husbandry, of Keiserville, and of Highland Grange, No. 980, Patrons of Husbandry, of Cochranville, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to amend the present oleomargarine law by striking out the word "knowingly;" which were referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. BRANDEGEE presented a petition of the common council of Hartford, Conn., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the preservation of the forests of New Hampshire; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of Liberty Bell Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of New Haven, Conn., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Epworth League of Ledyard, Conn., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in all Government buildings; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. WETMORE presented a petition of the board of managers of the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, praying that increased appropriations be made for the support of agricultural experiment stations; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

Mr. BEVERIDGE presented a petition of the American Bar Association, praying for the continuation of the present bankruptcy law; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented petitions of Ohio Valley Council, No. 23, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Evansville; of Local Union No. 436, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of New Albany; of Sheet Metal Workers' Local Union No. 41, of Indianapolis; of Local Union No. 1380, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of Bedford, and of Typographical Union No. 128, of South Bend, all in the State of Indiana; and of Local Union No. 276, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of Oklahoma City, Okla., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the surviving members of the Thirty-fourth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, of Lincolnville, Ind., praying for the enactment of legislation to equalize pensions received by widows of soldiers; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PANAMA CANAL APPROPRIATION.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, from the Committee on Appropriations, I report back, with sundry amendments, the bill H. R. 480, supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes."

I also report in connection with the bill testimony taken by the Committee on Appropriations in reference to it, and I ask that the testimony may be printed as a public document. I would state to Senators that nearly all the testimony is now in print and all will be in print by to-morrow morning, or perhaps during the afternoon.

On behalf of the committee I shall ask the Senate to take the bill up for consideration to-morrow morning at the earliest practicable hour.

Mr. ALDRICH. I ask that the bill as reported may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill as amended by the committee will be read for the information of the Senate.

The Secretary read the amendments and the bill as amended, as follows:

Strike out section 1, in the following words:

"That the bonds authorized by section 8 of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans,' approved June 28, 1902, shall be subject to the provisions of section 13 of the act entitled 'An act to define and fix the standard of value, to maintain the parity of all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, to refund the public debt, and for other purposes,' approved March 14, 1900, the same as though said bonds were issued under the provisions of said act of March 14, 1900."

In section 2, page 2, line 7, before the word "act," strike out "said."

In section 3, page 2, line 21, before the words "Canal Zone," strike out "said" and insert "the;" in line 22, before the word "Canal," strike out "said Panama" and insert "the isthmian;" in the same line, before the words "Panama Railroad," strike out "said" and insert "the;" and in line 25, after the word "Congress," strike out the following:

"And any of the persons appointed or employed by the President in connection with the said government or the said work of construction or operation shall give to Congress or to either House of Congress such information as may at any time be required either by act of Congress or by the order of either House of Congress in relation to their respective actings and doings and the receipt and expenditure of money."

In section 3, page 3, line 18, after the word "purposes," strike out "named in this act" and insert "of constructing and maintaining said isthmian canal;" and in line 19, after the word "Congress," strike out the following:

"except that the moneys received, in the ordinary course of business, from the operation of the Panama Railroad and the property and rights appertaining thereto may be expended, so far as necessary, in defraying the expenses of such operation, including maintenance, without being covered into the Treasury of the United States, and such moneys are hereby appropriated for such purpose, and monthly reports of such receipts and expenditures shall be made to the President by the person or persons in charge."

So as to make the bill read:

"Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $11,000,000 to continue the construction of the isthmian canal, to be expended under the direction of the President in accordance with the act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, approved June 28, 1902, and for each and every purpose connected with the same, the said sum to continue available until expended: Provided, That all expenditures from the appropriation herein made shall be reimbursed to the Treasury of the United States out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds authorized in section 8 of the said act approved June 28, 1902.

"SEC. 2. That the President shall annually, and at such other periods as may be provided, either by law or by his order, require full and complete reports to be made to him by the persons appointed or employed by him in charge of the government of the Canal Zone, the construction of the isthmian canal, and the operation of the Panama Railroad, including an itemized account of all moneys received and expended, which said reports shall be by the President transmitted to Congress. The President shall annually cause to be made, by the persons appointed and employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone and the construction of said canal, estimates of expenditures and appropriations, in detail as far as practicable, which estimates shall be submitted to Congress in the manner provided in section 5 of the act entitled 'An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and for other purposes.' And no money shall be expended for any of the purposes of constructing and maintaining said isthmian canal except in accordance with appropriations made by Congress."

"Amend the title so as to read: 'An act making an appropriation to continue the construction of the isthmian canal, and for other purposes.'"

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Iowa asks that the hearing before the Committee on Appropriations with respect to the bill just read be printed as a document. Without objection it is so ordered.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senate will observe the committee recommend that the first section of the bill be stricken out—that portion of the bill relating to the amendment of the bond provision. That the committee regarded as purely a legislative provision and one which ought to go to a legislative committee. I believe the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] introduced a bill yesterday covering the provisions of the first section, which has been referred to the Committee on Finance, and I suppose it will be considered at a very early date. It ought to be. We amend certain other provisions of the bill, but that is the only section we strike out. It will appear when the bill is printed with the amendments that that is the only material change we have made in the bill. We modify somewhat the last section, so as to make it conform to existing law. The amount appropriated by the bill as it came from the House is believed to be sufficient for the present purposes of the construction of the canal, so we have not increased the amount.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

COLUMBIA RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. BERRY. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 260) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company, to report it favorably with amendments.

Mr. FULTON subsequently said: I was unavoidably absent this morning from the Chamber when the Committee on Commerce reported favorably, with two slight amendments, the bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be now taken up and considered.

Mr. FRYE. Let it be read for information.

The Secretary read the bill; and by unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The amendments of the Committee on Commerce were, in section 11, page 8, line 8, after the word "within," to strike out "two years" and insert "one year;" and in the same line, after the word "within," to strike out the word "four" and insert "three;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 11. That this act shall be null and void if actual construction of the bridge herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date of approval thereof.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BERRY introduced a bill (S. 1477) to remove the charge of desertion now standing against James F. Wood; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1478) for the relief of Martha A. Vaughn Benton (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1479) for the relief of the firm of Bertrand & Scull;

A bill (S. 1480) for the relief of Mrs. Sarah Winter;

A bill (S. 1481) for the relief of the estate of Eliza A. Fielder, deceased, and Benjamin L. Fielder; and

A bill (S. 1482) for the relief of the heirs of John McAnulty, deceased.

Mr. PROCTOR introduced a bill (S. 1483) for the relief of Col. Medad C. Martin; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. ELKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1484) for the relief of George A. Davis, administrator of Mrs. Martha N. Davis, deceased;

A bill (S. 1485) for the relief of the estate of Jacob W. Hudson, deceased;

A bill (S. 1486) for the relief of George A. Davis, administrator of Patrick Brady, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1487) for the relief of the estate of Jacob J. Foreman, deceased.

Mr. ELKINS introduced a bill (S. 1488) to amend section 4136, Revised Statutes of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1489) granting a pension to Robert Hedrick;

A bill (S. 1490) granting an increase of pension to Alexander P. Hart;

A bill (S. 1491) granting an increase of pension to Alfred L. Hoult;

A bill (S. 1492) granting a pension to Mary A. Parks;

A bill (S. 1493) granting an increase of pension to Catharine Huff (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1494) granting a pension to John W. Hooser;

A bill (S. 1495) granting an increase of pension to John Holley;

A bill (S. 1496) granting a pension to James Y. Egbert;

A bill (S. 1497) granting a pension to Jesse A. Thomas (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1498) granting a pension to Jeanette G. Johnson (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1499) granting a pension to Lemuel Richards;

A bill (S. 1500) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Hilfinger; and

A bill (S. 1501) granting a pension to James Olney.

Mr. SCOTT introduced a bill (S. 1502) for the relief of Isaac W. Busey; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1503) for the relief of David Tuckwiller and Sarah Bettie Wilson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. ANKENY introduced a bill (S. 1504) granting an increase of pension to Jane Livery; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. NIXON introduced a bill (S. 1505) granting an increase of pension to Uriah D. Barrett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CARTER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1506) for the relief of Capt. Frederick Ford; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PILES introduced a bill (S. 1507) for the relief of Herman C. Funk; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1508) granting an increase of pension to James A. Murch;

A bill (S. 1509) granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Hodges (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (S. 1510) granting an increase of pension to Byron K. May (with accompanying papers).

Mr. PATTERSON introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1511) granting an increase of pension to Marvin F. Barton;

A bill (S. 1512) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Wehrle;

A bill (S. 1513) granting an increase of pension to Harriet A. Rawles;

A bill (S. 1514) granting an increase of pension to George W. Wicks;

A bill (S. 1515) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Strong;

A bill (S. 1516) granting an increase of pension to O. O. Austin;

A bill (S. 1517) granting an increase of pension to John C. Kennedy;

A bill (S. 1518) granting an increase of pension to Phineas F. Lull;

A bill (S. 1519) granting an increase of pension to Henry J. Smith;

A bill (S. 1520) granting an increase of pension to Laura N. Freeman;

A bill (S. 1521) granting an increase of pension to Harriet Williams;

A bill (S. 1522) granting an increase of pension to Ellen Milam;

A bill (S. 1523) granting an increase of pension to C. A. Wyeth;

A bill (S. 1524) granting an increase of pension to John M. Berkey;

A bill (S. 1525) granting an increase of pension to Zachariah Bradfield;

A bill (S. 1526) granting an increase of pension to Theodore W. Gates;

A bill (S. 1527) granting an increase of pension to John M. Odenheimer;

A bill (S. 1528) granting an increase of pension to William H. Fletcher;

A bill (S. 1529) granting an increase of pension to James L. Small; and

A bill (S. 1530) granting an increase of pension to E. V. R. Colton.

Mr. PATTERSON introduced a bill (S. 1531) for the relief of Thomas McGrath; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. McENERY introduced a bill (S. 1532) for the relief of the legal representatives of the late firm of Lapène & Ferré which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1533) for the relief of George H. Green and another, administrators of George W. Green, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WARNER introduced a bill (S. 1534) providing for procurement of site and erection of a public building at Independence, Mo.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. McLAURIN introduced a bill (S. 1535) granting an increase of pension to Charles Martin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BULKELEY introduced a bill (S. 1536) granting an increase of pension to William H. Brown; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 1537) to acquire land for a park approach to Connecticut Avenue Bridge over Rock Creek, District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1538) granting a pension to Indiana A. Paul; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 1539) to increase the efficiency of the Medical Department of the United States Army; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1540) to increase the efficiency of the Ordnance Department of the United States Army; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1541) granting an increase of pension to John Ryder; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ALLEE introduced a bill (S. 1542) for the relief of George T. Hamilton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1543) for the relief of Albert S. Henderer; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. TILLMAN introduced a bill (S. 1544) to amend an act entitled "An act granting an increase of pension to soldiers of the Mexican War in certain cases, approved January 5, 1893;" which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BAILEY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1545) for the relief of the estate of John Ivey, deceased (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (by request) (S. 1546) for the relief of the estate of William Hugley, deceased (with an accompanying paper).

Mr. BAILEY (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1547) for the relief of the estate of Robert McCoy, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. STONE introduced a bill (S. 1548) to amend an act entitled "An act to prevent the importation of impure and unwholesome tea," approved March 2, 1897; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1549) for the relief of the estate of R. G. Potter, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1550) for the relief of William P. Clements (with accompanying papers).

Mr. McCREARY introduced a bill (S. 1551) granting an increase of pension to Thomas P. McCracken; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1552) granting a pension to Granville C. West; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BRANDEGEE introduced a bill (S. 1553) providing for reopening and readjustment of the accounts of Joseph A. Mower, deceased, late major-general of the United States Army, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1554) for the relief of the heirs of Jenkins & Havens; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1555) granting an increase of pension to Mary C. Bishop; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1556) granting an increase of pension to Hannah M. Kingsley; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. LONG introduced a bill (S. 1557) to authorize the accounting officers of the Treasury Department to readjust the accounts of transportation companies for the transportation of troops, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. ALLISON introduced a bill (S. 1558) granting an increase of pension to Ella K. Dinwiddie; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1559) granting a pension to Laura Clark; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SPOONER introduced a bill (S. 1560) granting a pension to Stanley G. Bowron; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1561) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Miller;

A bill (S. 1562) granting a pension to Jennie R. Hunt;

A bill (S. 1563) granting an increase of pension to Frank B. Sears; and

A bill (S. 1564) granting an increase of pension to Leander C. Reeve (with accompanying papers).

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 1565) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of James A. Knight;

A bill (S. 1566) for the relief of Isaiah Heylin McDonald; and

A bill (S. 1567) to correct the military record of Thomas M. Elliott.

Mr. WETMORE introduced a bill (S. 1568) for the relief of Patrick J. Sullivan, Jeremiah McCarthy, and Bartholomew Shea, and for the relief of the heirs and legal representatives of John B. Dillon; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 1569) for the relief of the estate of W. W. Jackson, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

AMENDMENT TO STATEHOOD BILL.

Mr. GALLINGER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 1158) to enable the people of Oklahoma and of the Indian Territory to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; and to enable the people of New Mexico and of Arizona to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; which was referred to the Committee on Territories, and ordered to be printed.

THE COMMITTEE ON THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. GALLINGER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That authority is hereby granted to print and bind, for use of the Committee on the District of Columbia, such papers and documents as may be deemed necessary in connection with subjects heretofore considered, or to be considered, by said committee during the Fifty-ninth Congress.

STATUE OF COUNT DE ROCHAMBEAU.

Mr. WETMORE submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committe on Printing:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the concurrent resolution passed February 2, 1904, providing for the publication of the proceedings on the occasion of the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue is hereby continued in force and excepted from the limitation of one year as provided in section 80 of the act of January 12, 1895, providing for the public printing and binding and the distribution of public documents.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. LODGE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After forty-one minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 1 o'clock and 24 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, December 14, 1905, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate December 13, 1905.

TREASURER OF THE ISLAND OF PORTO RICO.

William F. Willoughby, of the District of Columbia, to be treasurer of the island of Porto Rico. (Reappointment.)

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Erastus J. Parsons, of Alabama, to be United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama, vice Warren S. Reese, jr., whose term will expire January 12, 1906.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Frederick W. Collins, of Mississippi, to be collector of customs for the district of Pearl River, in the State of Mississippi, to succeed William F. Swan, whose term of office will expire by limitation January 17, 1906.

REGISTER OF LAND OFFICE.

Galen J. Dixon, of Independence, Cal., to be register of the land office at Independence, Cal., vice Stafford W. Austin, resigned.

POSTMASTERS.

MISSISSIPPI.

Richard O. Edwards to be postmaster at Jackson, in the county of Hinds and State of Mississippi, in the place of Richard O. Edwards. Incumbent's commission expires January 22, 1906.

William T. Martin to be postmaster at Natchez, in the county of Adams and State of Mississippi, in place of John P. Walworth, deceased.

Michael J. Mulvihill to be postmaster at Vicksburg, in the county of Warren and State of Mississippi, in place of Michael J. Mulvihill. Incumbent's commission expires January 21, 1906.

Nannie S. Neilson to be postmaster at Greenville, in the county of Washington and State of Mississippi, in place of Nannie S. Neilson. Incumbent's commission expires January 21, 1906.

WITHDRAWALS.

Executive nominations withdrawn December 13, 1905.

Miles Cannon to be register of the land office at North Yakima, Wash.

Albert W. McIntire to be postmaster at Mendota, in the State of Illinois.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate December 13, 1905.

ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY AND MINISTER PLENIPOTENTIARY.

Henry W. Furniss, of Indiana, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Haiti.

CONSULS.

Maxwell K. Moorhead, of Pennsylvania, to be consul of the United States at St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada.

Benjamin F. Chase, of Pennsylvania, to be consul of the United States at Catania, Italy.

PUBLIC PRINTER.

Charles A. Stillings, of Massachusetts, to be Public Printer.

NAVAL OFFICER OF CUSTOMS.

James O. Lyford, of New Hampshire, to be naval officer of customs in the district of Boston and Charlestown, in the State of Massachusetts.

SURVEYOR OF CUSTOMS.

William G. Dearing, of Kentucky, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky.

POSTMASTERS.

ARKANSAS.

James R. Hudson to be postmaster at De Queen, in the county of Sevier and State of Arkansas.

CALIFORNIA.

Richard J. Murphy to be postmaster at Folsom City, in the county of Sacramento and State of California.

GEORGIA.

Annie Ard to be postmaster at Lumpkin, in the county of Stewart and State of Georgia.

Walter I. Cooper to be postmaster at Sylvania, in the county of Screven and State of Georgia.

Rutledge A. Griffin to be postmaster at Quitman, in the county of Brooks and State of Georgia.

Thomas K. Heinsohn to be postmaster at Sylvester, in the county of Worth and State of Georgia.

INDIANA.

William F. Coats to be postmaster at Columbus, in the county of Bartholomew and State of Indiana.

Fred Kimbley to be postmaster at Orleans, in the county of Orange and State of Indiana.

Harry J. Martin to be postmaster at Franklin, in the county of Johnson and State of Indiana.

John McCartney to be postmaster at Scottsburg, in the county of Scott and State of Indiana.

Charles T. Miller to be postmaster at Cannelton, in the county of Perry and State of Indiana.

Herman Miller to be postmaster at Hope, in the county of Bartholomew and State of Indiana.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

William Strassberger to be postmaster at Purcell, in District Eighteen, Indian Territory.

IOWA.

Bert E. Bower to be postmaster at Traer, in the county of Tama and State of Iowa.

Albert S. Burnett to be postmaster at Valley Junction, in the county of Polk and State of Iowa.

Gordon W. Laflar to be postmaster at Manning, in the county of Carroll and State of Iowa.

Isaiah A. Mains to be postmaster at Charter Oak, in the county of Crawford and State of Iowa.

Stephen C. Maynard to be postmaster at Grand Junction, in the county of Greene and State of Iowa.

Esther M. McFarlan to be postmaster at Cumberland, in the county of Cass and State of Iowa.

Thomas W. Purcell to be postmaster at Hampton, in the county of Franklin and State of Iowa.

Belle Sherwood to be postmaster at Shellrock, in the county of Butler and State of Iowa.

KENTUCKY.

John M. Kennedy to be postmaster at Monticello, in the county of Wayne and State of Kentucky.

Thomas E. Myers to be postmaster at Greenup, in the county of Greenup and State of Kentucky.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Charles F. Bryant to be postmaster at Sharon, in the county of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts.

William C. Hinman to be postmaster at Great Barrington, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts.

William I. Marble to be postmaster at Webster, in the county of Worcester and State of Massachusetts.

J. Henry Norcross to be postmaster at Medford, in the county of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts.

Orlando P. Robinson to be postmaster at Ayer, in the county of Middlesex and State of Massachusetts.

Eugene S. Thatcher to be postmaster at Housatonic, in the county of Berkshire and State of Massachusetts.

MICHIGAN.

Shelby C. Field to be postmaster at Sparta, in the county of Kent and State of Michigan.

Wallace J. Smith to be postmaster at Cadillac, in the county of Wexford and State of Michigan.

MINNESOTA.

H. W. Severns to be postmaster at West Concord, in the county of Dodge and State of Minnesota.

NEBRASKA.

Robert R. Douglas to be postmaster at Clarks, in the county of Merrick and State of Nebraska.

Charles H. Hodges to be postmaster at Collegeview, in the county Lancaster and State of Nebraska.

Amanda Wille to be postmaster at Neligh, in the county of Antelope and State of Nebraska.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Charles L. Bemis to be postmaster at Marlboro, in the county of Cheshire and State of New Hampshire.

NEW YORK.

Burdette T. Burlingham to be postmaster at McGraw, in the county of Cortland and State of New York.

Theodore F. Chamberlain to be postmaster at Newark Valley, in the county of Tioga and State of New York.

William W. Gregory to be postmaster at Roscoe, in the county of Sullivan and State of New York.

Fred Greiner to be postmaster at Buffalo, in the county of Erie and State of New York.

Thomas Liddle to be postmaster at Amsterdam, in the county of Montgomery and State of New York.

David M. Pratt to be postmaster at Elmira, in the county of Chemung and State of New York.

George F. Rising to be postmaster at Hoosick Falls, in the county of Rensselaer and State of New York.

Horace Selleck to be postmaster at Holland, in the county of Erie and State of New York.

William A. Smyth to be postmaster at Owego, in the county of Tioga and State of New York.

OHIO

Grant Coats to be postmaster at Rockford, in the county of Mercer and State of Ohio.

John Finsterwald to be postmaster at Athens, in the county of Athens and State of Ohio.

Fred D. Pierce to be postmaster at Wakeman, in the county of Huron and State of Ohio.

PENNSYLVANIA.

David Dalton to be postmaster at Sharon Hill, in the county of Delaware and State of Pennsylvania.

Malin Ewing to be postmaster at Sharon, in the county of Mercer and State of Pennsylvania.

William H. Fretz to be postmaster at Jenkintown, in the county of Montgomery and State of Pennsylvania.

Solomon G. Krepps to be postmaster at Cadwallader, in the county of Fayette and State of Pennsylvania.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

William C. Brown to be postmaster at Belton, in the county of Anderson and State of South Carolina.

TEXAS.

James T. Ballard to be postmaster at Beeville, in the county of Bee and State of Texas.

Frank L. Bradley to be postmaster at Gilmer, in the county of Upshur and State of Texas.

John M. Clark to be postmaster at Yoakum, in the county of De Witt and State of Texas.

UTAH.

E. Harvey Belcher to be postmaster at Vernal, in the county of Uinta and State of Utah.

VIRGINIA.

Emmet W. Brittle to be postmaster at Wakefield, in the county of Sussex and State of Virginia.

Lula O. Hoge to be postmaster at Blacksburg, in the county of Montgomery and State of Virginia.

WASHINGTON.

J. P. Rosebaugh to be postmaster at Harrington, in the county of Lincoln and State of Washington.

WISCONSIN.

William S. Gilpin to be postmaster at Osseo, in the county of Trempealeau and State of Wisconsin.

Nathan D. Maxon to be postmaster at Walworth, in the county of Walworth and State of Wisconsin.

EXTRADITION WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

The injunction of secrecy was removed December 13, 1905, from a supplementary extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London on April 12, 1905.

BANCOS IN THE RIO GRANDE.

The injunction of secrecy was removed December 13, 1905, from a convention between the United States and Mexico, signed on March 20, 1905, for the elimination of the bancos in the Rio Grande from the effects of Articles II of the treaty of Novemebr 12, 1884.

SANITARY CONVENTION.

The injunction of secrecy was removed December 13, 1905, from the following message from the President of the United States, transmitting a sanitary convention signed ad referendum, on October 14, 1905, by the delegates of the United States, etc., and it was ordered to be printed as a document and also in the RECORD, as follows:

To the Senate:

I transmit, for the advice and consent of the Senate to its ratification, a sanitary convention signed ad referendum on October 14, 1905, by the delegates of the United States, Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, Nicaragua, Peru, and Venezuela.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 6, 1905.

The PRESIDENT:

The undersigned, Secretary of State, has the honor to lay before the President, with a view to its transmission to the Senate to receive the advice and consent of that body to its ratification, a sanitary convention signed ad referendum on October 14, 1905, by delegates of the United States and of Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, Nicaragua, Peru, and Venezuela.

Respectfully submitted.

ELIHU ROOT.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, December 5, 1905.

SANITARY CONVENTION AD REFERENDUM CONCLUDED IN WASHINGTON ON OCTOBER 14, 1905.

The presidents of the Republics of Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, Nicaragua, Peru, United States of America, and Venezuela:

Having found that it is useful and convenient to codify all the measures destined to guard the public health against the invasion and propagation of yellow fever, plague, and cholera, have designated as their delegates, to wit:

Republic of Chile, Sr. Dr. D. Eduardo Moore, professor of the medical faculty, hospital physician;

Republic of Costa Rica, Sr. Dr. D. Juan J. Ulloa, ex-vice-president, ex-minister of the interior of Costa Rica, ex-president of the medical faculty of Costa Rica;

Republic of Cuba, Sr. Dr. D. Juan Guiteras, member of the superior board of health of Cuba, director of the "Las Animas" Hospital, professor of general pathology and tropical medicine of the University of Havana, and Sr. Dr. D. Enrique B. Barnet, executive chief of the health department of Havana, member and secretary of the superior board of health of Cuba;

Republic of Ecuador, Sr. Dr. D. Serafin S. Wither, chargé d'affaires and consul-general of Ecuador in New York, and Sr. Dr. D. Miguel H. Alcívar, member of the superior board of health of Guayaquil, professor of the medical faculty and surgeon of the general hospital of Guayaquil;

Republic of the United States of America, Dr. Walter Wyman, Surgeon-General of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States; Dr. H. D. Geddings, Assistant Surgeon-General of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service of the United States and representative of the United States at the sanitary convention of Paris; Dr. J. F. Kennedy, secretary of the board of health of the State of Iowa; Dr. John S. Fulton, secretary of the board of health of the State of Maryland; Dr. Walter D. McCaw, major, surgeon in the United States Army; Dr. J. D. Gatewood, surgeon in the United States Navy; Dr. H. L. E. Johnson, member of the American Medical Association (member of the board of trustees);

Republic of Guatemala, Sr. Dr. D. Joaquín Yela, consul-general of Guatemala in New York;

Republic of Mexico, Sr. Dr. D. Eduardo Licéaga, president of the superior council of health of Mexico, director and professor of the National School of Medicine, member of the Academy of Medicine;

Republic of Nicaragua, Sr. Dr. D. J. L. Medina, member of the second Pan-American Medical Congress of the city of Havana in 1901;

Republic of Peru, Sr. Dr. D. Daniel Eduardo Lavorería, professor of the medical faculty, member of the National Academy of Medicine, physician of the "Dos de Mayo" Hospital, chief of the division of hygiene of the ministry of fomento;

Dominican Republic, Sr. D. Emilio C. Joubert, minister resident in Washington;

Republic of Venezuela, Sr. D. Nicolás Veloz-Goiticoa, chargé d'affaires of Venezuela,

Who, having made an interchange of their powers and found them good, have agreed to adopt, ad referendum, the following propositions:

CHAPTER I.—Regulations to be observed by the powers signatory to the convention as soon as plague, cholera, or yellow fever may appear in their territory.

SECTION I.—NOTIFICATION AND SUBSEQUENT COMMUNICATIONS TO OTHER COUNTRIES.

ARTICLE I. Each government should immediately notify other governments of the first appearance in its territory of authentic cases of plague, cholera, or yellow fever.

ARTICLE II. This notification is to be accompanied, or very promptly followed, by the following additional information:

(1) The neighborhood where the disease has appeared.

(2) The date of its appearance, its origin, and its form.

(3) The number of established cases and the number of deaths.

(4) For plague: The existence among rats or mice of plague or of an unusual mortality. For yellow fever: The existence of stegomyia fasciata in the locality.

(5) The measures taken immediately after the first appearance.

ARTICLE III. The notification and the information prescribed in Articles I and II are to be addressed to diplomatic and consular agents in the capital of the infected country; but this is to be construed as not preventing direct communication between officials charged with the public health of the several countries.

For countries which are not thus represented, they are to be transmitted directly by telegraph to the governments of such countries.

ARTICLE IV. The notification and the information prescribed in Articles I and II are to be followed by further communications dispatched in a regular manner in order to keep the governments informed of the progress of the epidemic.

These communications, which are to be made at least once a week, and which are to be as complete as possible, should indicate in detail the precautions taken to prevent the extension of the disease.

They should set forth, first, the prophylactic measures taken relative to sanitary or medical inspection, to isolation, and disinfection; second, the measures taken relative to departing vessels to prevent the exportation of the disease, and, especially under the circumstances mentioned in paragraph 4 of Article II of this section, the measures taken against rats and mosquitoes.

ARTICLE V. The prompt and faithful execution of the preceding provisions is of the very first importance.

The notifications only have a real value if each government is warned in time in cases of plague, cholera, or yellow fever and of suspicious cases of those diseases supervening in its territory. It can not, then, be too strongly recommended to the various governments to make obligatory the declaration of cases of plague, cholera, or yellow fever, and of giving information of all unusual mortality of rats and mice, especially in ports.

ARTICLE VI. It is understood that neighboring countries reserve to themselves the right to make special arrangements with a view of organizing a service of direct information between the chiefs of administration upon the frontiers.

SECTION II.—CONDITIONS SHOWING A GIVEN TERRITORIAL AREA TO BE INFECTED OR TO HAVE BEEN FREED FROM INFECTION.

ARTICLE VII. Information of a first case of plague, cholera, or yellow fever does not justify against a territorial area where it may appear the application of the measures prescribed in Chapter II, as hereinafter indicated.

Upon the occurrence of several nonimported cases of plague or a nonimported case of yellow fever or when cases of cholera form a focus the area is to be declared infected.

ARTICLE VIII. To limit the measures to the affected regions alone, governments should only apply them to persons and articles proceeding from the contaminated or infected areas.

By the word "area" is understood a well-determined portion of territory described in the information which accompanies or follows notification—thus, a province, a state, "a government," a district, a department, a canton, an island, a commune, a city, a quarter of a city, a village, a port, a "polder," a hamlet, etc., whatever may be the extent and population of these portions of territory.

But this restriction, limited to the infected area, should only be accepted upon the formal condition that the government of the infected country shall take the necessary measures, 1, to prevent, unless previously disinfected, the exportation of articles named in 1 and 2 of Article XII, coming from the contaminated area, and 2, measures to prevent the extension of the epidemic; and provided further that there be no doubt that the sanitary authorities of the infected country have faithfully complied with Article I of this convention.

When an area is infected no restrictive measure is to be taken against departures from this area if these departures have occurred five days at least before the beginning of the epidemic.

ARTICLE IX. That an area should no longer be considered as infected, official proof must be furnished:

First. That there has been neither a death nor a new case of plague or cholera for five days after isolation,[a] death, or cure of the last plague or cholera case. In the case of yellow fever the period shall be eighteen adys, but each government may reserve the right to extend this period.

Second. That all the measures of disinfection have been applied; in the case of plague, that the precautions against rats have been observed, and in the case of yellow fever that the measures against mosquitoes have been executed.

CHAPTER II.—Measures of defense by other countries against territories declared to be infected.

SECTION I.—PUBLICATION OF PRESCRIBED MEASURES.

ARTICLE X. The government of each country is obliged to immediately publish the measures which it believes necessary to take against departures either from a country or from an infected territorial area.

The said government is to communicate at once this publication to the diplomatic or consular agent of the infected country residing in its capital as well as to the International Sanitary Bureau.

The government shall be equally obliged to make known through the same channels the revocation of these measures or modifications which may be made in them.

In default of a diplomatic or consular agency in the capital, communications are made directly to the government of the country interested.

SECTION II.—MERCHANDISE—DISINFECTION—IMPORTATION AND TRANSIT—BAGGAGE.

ARTICLE XI. There exists no merchandise which is of itself capable of transmitting plague, cholera, or yellow fever. It only becomes dangerous in case it is soiled by pestous or choleraic products, or, in the case of yellow fever, when such merchandise may harbor mosquitoes.

ARTICLE XII. No merchandise or objects shall be subjected to disinfection on account of yellow fever, but in cases covered by the previous article the vehicle of transportation may be subjected to fumigation to destroy mosquitoes. In the case of cholera and plague disinfection should only be applied to merchandise and objects which the local sanitary authority considers as infected.

[a] The word "isolation" signifies isolation of the patient, of the persons who care for him, and the forbidding of visits of all other persons, the physician excepted. By isolation in the case of yellow fever is understood the isolation of the patient in an apartment so screened as to prevent the access of mosquitoes.

Nevertheless merchandise or objects enumerated hereafter may be subjected to disinfection or prohibited entry independently of all proof that they may or may not be infected:

1. Body linen, wearing apparel in use, clothing which has been worn, bedding already used.

When these objects are transported as baggage, or in the course of a change of residence (household furniture), they should not be prohibited, and are to be subjected to the regulations prescribed by Article XIX.

Baggage left by soldiers and sailors, and returned to their country after death, are considered as objects comprised in the first paragraph of No. 1 of this article.

2. Rags and rags for making paper, with the exception, as to cholera, of rags which are transported as merchandise in large quantities compressed in bales held together by hoops.

New clippings coming directly from spinning mills, weaving mills, manufactories or bleacheries, shoddy, and clippings of new paper should not be forbidden.

ARTICLE XIII. In the case of cholera and plague there is no reason to forbid the transit through an infected district of merchandise, and the objects specified in Nos. 1 and 2 of the preceding article, if they are so packed that they can not have been exposed to infection in transit.

In like manner, when merchandise or objects are so transported that in transit they can not come in contact with soiled objects, their transit across an infected territorial area should not be an obstacle to their entry into the country of destination.

ARTICLE XIV. The entry of merchandise and objects specified in Nos. 1 and 2 of Article XII should not be prohibited, if it can be shown to the authorities of the country of destination that they were shipped at least five days before the beginning of the epidemic.

ARTICLE XV. The method and place of disinfection, as well as the measures to be employed for the destruction of rats and mosquitoes, are to be fixed by authority of the country of destination upon arrival at said destination. These operations should be performed in such a manner as to cause the least possible injury to the merchandise.

It devolves upon each country to determine questions relative to the payment of damages resulting from disinfection or from the destruction of rats or mosquitoes.

If taxes are levied by a sanitary authority, either directly or through the agency of any company or agent, to insure measures for the destruction of rats and mosquitoes on board ships, the amount of these taxes ought to be fixed by a tariff published in advance, and the result of these measures should not be a source of profit for either state or sanitary authorities.

ARTICLE XVI. Letters and correspondence, printed matter, books, newspapers, business papers, etc. (postal parcels not included), are not to be submitted to any restriction or disinfection. In case of yellow fever, postal parcels are not to be subjected to any restrictions or disinfection.

ARTICLE XVII. Merchandise, arriving by land or by sea, should not be detained permanently at frontiers or in ports.

Measures which it is permissible to prescribe with respect to them are specified in Article XII.

Nevertheless, when merchandise, arriving by sea in bulk (vrac) or in defective packages, is contaminated by pest-stricken rats during the passage, and is incapable of being disinfected, the destruction of the germs may be assured by putting said merchandise in a warehouse for a period to be decided by the sanitary authorities of the port of arrival.

It is to be understood that the application of this last measure should not entail delay upon any vessel nor extraordinary expenses resulting from the want of warehouses in ports.

ARTICLE XVIII. When merchandise has been disinfected by the application of the measures prescribed in Article XII, or put temporarily in warehouses in accordance with the third paragraph of Article XVII, the owner, or his representative, has the right to demand from the sanitary authority which has ordered such disinfection or storage a certificate setting forth the measures taken.

ARTICLE XIX. Baggage. In the case of soiled linen, bed clothing, clothing and objects forming a part of baggage or furniture coming from a territorial area declared contaminated, disinfection is only to be practiced in cases where the sanitary authority considers them as contaminated. There shall be no disinfection of baggage on account of yellow fever.

SECTION III.—MEASURES IN PORTS AND AT MARITIME FRONTIERS.

ARTICLE XX. Classification of ships. A ship is considered as infected which has plague, cholera, or yellow fever on board, or which has presented one or more cases of plague or cholera within seven days, or a case of yellow fever at any time during the voyage.

A ship is considered as suspected on board of which there have been a case or cases of plague or cholera at the time of departure or during the voyage, but no new case within seven days; also such ships as have lain in such proximity to the infected shore as to render them liable to the access of mosquitoes.

The ship is considered indemne which, although coming from an infected port, has had neither death nor case of plague, cholera, or yellow fever on board, either before departure, during the voyage, or at the time of arrival, and which in the case of yellow fever has not lain in such proximity to the shore as to render it liable, in the opinion of the sanitary authorities, to the access of mosquitoes.

ARTICLE XXI. Ships infected with plague are to be subjected to the following regulations:

1. Medical visit (inspection).
2. The sick are to be immediately disembarked and isolated.
3. Other persons should also be disembarked, if possible, and subjected to an observation,[a] which should not exceed five days, dating from the day of arrival.
4. Soiled linen, personal effects in use, the belongings of crew [b] and passengers which, in the opinion of the sanitary authorities, are considered as infected should be disinfected.
5. The parts of the ship which have been inhabited by those stricken with plague and such others as, in the opinion of the sanitary authorities, are considered as infected should be disinfected.
6. The destruction of rats on shipboard should be effected before or after the discharge of cargo as rapidly as possible, and in all cases with a maximum delay of forty-eight hours, care being taken to avoid damage of merchandise, the vessel, and its machinery.

For ships in ballast this operation should be performed immediately before taking on cargo.

ARTICLE XXII. Ships suspected of plague are to be subjected to the measures which are indicated in Nos. 1, 4, and 5 of Article XXI.

Further, the crew and passengers may be subjected to observation, which should not exceed five days, dating from the arrival of the ship. During the same time the disembarkment of the crew may be forbidden except for reasons of duty.

The destruction of rats on shipboard is recommended. This destruction is to be effected, before or after the discharge of cargo, as quickly as possible, and in all cases with a maximum delay of forty-eight hours, taking care to avoid damage to merchandise, ships, and their machinery.

For ships in ballast this operation should be done, if done at all, as early as possible, and in all cases before taking on cargo.

ARTICLE XXIII. Ships indemne from plague are to be admitted to free pratique immediately, whatever may be the nature of their bill of health.

The only regulation which the sanitary authorities at a port of arrival may prescribe for them consists of the following measures:

1. Medical visit (inspection).
2. Disinfection of soiled linen, articles of wearing apparel, and the other personal effects of the crew and passengers, but only in exceptional cases when the sanitary authorities have special reason to believe them infected.
3. Without demanding it as a general rule, the sanitary authorities may subject ships coming from an infected port to a process for the destruction of the rats on board before or after the discharge of cargo. This operation should be done as soon as possible, and in all cases should not last more than twenty-four hours, care being taken to avoid damaging merchandise, ships, and their machinery, and without interfering with the passing of passengers and crew between the ship and the shore. For ships in ballast this procedure, if practiced, should be put in operation as soon as possible, and in all cases before taking on cargo.

When a ship coming from an infected port has been subjected to a process for the destruction of rats, this process should only be repeated if the ship has touched meanwhile at an infected port and has been alongside a quay in such port, or if the presence of sick or dead rats on board is proven.

The crew and passengers may be subjected to a surveillance, which should not exceed five days, to be computed from the date when the ship sailed from the infected port. The landing of the

[a] The word "observation" signifies isolation of the passengers, either on board ship or at a sanitary station, before being given free pratique.

[b] The term "crew" is applied to persons who may make, or who have made, a part of the personnel of the vessel and of the administration thereof, including stewards, waiters, "cafedji," etc. The word is to be construed in this sense wherever employed in the present convention.

crew may also, during the same time, be forbidden except for reasons of duty.

Competent authority at the port of arrival may always demand, under oath, a certificate of the ship's physician, or in default of a physician, of the captain, setting forth that there has not been a case of plague on board since departure and that no marked mortality among the rats has been observed.

ARTICLE XXIV. When upon an indemne ship rats have been recognized as pest-stricken as a result of bacteriological examination, or when a marked mortality has been established among these rodents, the following measures should be applied:

1. Ships with plague-stricken rats:

(a) Medical visit (inspection).

(b) Rats should be destroyed before or after the discharge of cargo as rapidly as possible, and in all cases with a delay not to exceed forty-eight hours, the deterioration of merchandise, vessels, and machinery to be avoided. Upon ships in ballast this operation should be performed as soon as possible, and in all cases before taking on cargo.

(c) Such parts of the ship and such articles as the local sanitary authority regards as infected shall be disinfected.

(d) Passengers and crew may be submitted to observation, the duration of which should not exceed five days, dating from the day of arrival, except in special cases, where the sanitary authority may prolong the observation to a maximum of ten days.

2. Ships where a marked mortality among rats is observed:

(a) Medical visit (inspection).

(b) An examination of rats, with a view to determining the existence of plague, should be made as quickly as possible.

(c) If the destruction of rats is judged necessary, it shall be accomplished under the conditions indicated above in the case of ships with plague-stricken rats.

(a) Until all suspicion may be eliminated the passengers and crew may be submitted to observation, the duration of which should not exceed five days, counting from the date of arrival, except in special cases, when the sanitary authority may prolong the observation to a maximum of ten days.

ARTICLE XXV. The sanitary authorities of the port must deliver to the captain, the owner, or his agent, whenever a demand for it is made, a certificate setting forth that the measures for the destruction of rats have been efficacious and indicating the reasons why these measures have been applied.

ARTICLE XXVI. Ships infected with cholera are to be subjected to the following regulations:

1. Medical visit (inspection).

2. The sick are to be immediately disembarked and isolated.

3. Other persons ought also to be disembarked, if possible, and subjected, dating from the arrival of the ship, to an observation the duration of which shall not exceed five days.

4. Soiled linen, wearing apparel, and personal effects of crew and passengers which, in the opinion of the sanitary authority of the port, are considered as infected are to be disinfected.

5. The parts of the ship which have been inhabited by persons sick with cholera, or which are considered by the sanitary authority as infected, are to be disinfected.

6. The bilge water is to be discharged after disinfection.

The sanitary authority may order the substitution of good potable water for that which is contained in the tanks on board.

The discharge or throwing overboard into the water of a port of dejecta shall be forbidden unless they have been previously disinfected.

ARTICLE XXVII. Ships suspected of cholera are to be subjected to measures prescribed under Nos. 1, 4, 5, and 6 of Article XXVI.

The crew and passengers may be subjected to an observation, which should not exceed five days, to date from the arrival of the ship. It is recommended during the same time to prevent the debarkation of the crew except for reasons of duty.

ARTICLE XXVIII. Ships indemne of cholera are to be admitted to free pratique immediately, whatever may be the nature of their bill of health.

The only regulations which the sanitary authorities of a port may prescribe in their case are the measures provided in Nos. 1, 4, and 6 of Article XXVI.

The crew and passengers may be submitted, in order to show their state of health, to an observation, which should not exceed five days, to be computed from the date when the ship sailed from the infected port.

It is recommended that during the same time the debarkation of the crew be forbidden except for reasons of duty.

Competent authority at the port of arrival may always demand, under oath, a certificate from the ship's surgeon, or, in the absence of a surgeon, from the captain, setting forth that there has not been a case of cholera upon the ship since sailing.

ARTICLE XXIX. Competent authority will take account, in order to apply the measures indicated in Articles XXI to XXVIII, of the presence of a physician on board and a disinfecting apparatus in ships of the three categories mentioned above.

In regard to plague, it will equally take account of the installation on board of apparatus for the destruction of rats.

Sanitary authorities of such countries, where it may be convenient to make such regulations, may dispense with the medical visit and other measures toward indemne ships which have on board a physician specially commissioned by their country.

ARTICLE XXX. Special measures may be prescribed in regard to crowded ships, notably emigrant ships, or any other ship presenting bad hygienic conditions.

ARTICLE XXXI. Any ship not desiring to be subjected to the obligations imposed by the authority of the port in virtue of the stipulations of the present convention is free to proceed to sea.

It may be authorized to disembark its cargo after the necessary precautions shall have been taken; namely, first, isolation of the ship, its crew and passengers; second, in regard to plague, demand for information relative to the existence of an unusual mortality among rats; third, in regard to cholera, the discharge of the bilge water after disinfection and the substitution of a good potable water for that which is provided on board the ship.

Authority may also be granted to disembark such passengers as may demand it, upon condition that these submit themselves to all measures prescribed by the local authorities.

ARTICLE XXXII. Ships coming from a contaminated port, which have been disinfected and which may have been subjected to sanitary measures applied in an efficient manner, shall not undergo a second time the same measures upon their arrival at a new port, provided that no new case shall have appeared since the disinfection was practiced, and that the ships have not touched in the meantime at an infected port.

When a ship only disembarks passengers and their baggage, or the mails, without having been in communication with terra firma, it is not to be considered as having touched at a port, provided that in the case of yellow fever it has not approached sufficiently near the shore to permit the access of mosquitoes.

ARTICLE XXXIII. Passengers arriving on an infected ship have the right to demand of the sanitary authority of the port a certificate showing the date of their arrival and the measures to which they and their baggage have been subjected.

ARTICLE XXXIV. Packet boats shall be subjected to special regulations, to be established by mutual agreement between the countries in interest.

ARTICLE XXXV. Without prejudice to the right which governments possess to agree upon the organization of common sanitary stations, each country should provide at least one port upon each of its seaboards, with an organization and equipment sufficient to receive a vessel, whatever may be its sanitary condition.

When an indemne vessel, coming from an infected port, arrives in a large mercantile port, it is recommended that she be not sent to another port for the execution of the prescribed sanitary measures.

In every country, ports liable to the arrival of vessels from ports infected with plague, cholera, or yellow fever, should be equipped in such a manner that indemne vessels may there undergo, immediately upon their arrival the prescribed measures, and not be sent for this purpose to another port.

Governments should make declaration of the ports which are open in their territories to arrivals from ports infected with plague, cholera, or yellow fever.

ARTICLE XXXVI. It is recommended that in large seaports there be established:

(a) A regular medical service and a permanent medical supervision of the sanitary conditions of crews and the inhabitants of the port.

(b) Places set apart for the isolation of the sick and the observation of suspected persons. In the stegomyia belt there must be a building or part of a building screened against mosquitoes, and a launch and ambulance similarly screened.

(c) The necessary installation for efficient disinfection and bacteriological laboratories.

(d) A supply of potable water above suspicion, for the use of the port, and the installation of a system of sewerage and drainage adequate for the removal of refuse.

SECTION IV.—MEASURES UPON LAND FRONTIERS—TRAVELERS—RAILROADS—FRONTIER ZONES—RIVER ROUTES.

ARTICLE XXXVII. Land quarantines should no longer be established, but the governments reserve the right to establish camps of observation if they should be thought necessary for the temporary detention of suspects.

This principle does not exclude the right for each country to close a part of its frontier in case of necessity.

ARTICLE XXXVIII. It is important that travelers should be submitted to a surveillance on the part of the personnel of railroads, to determine their condition of health.

ARTICLE XXXIX. Medical intervention is limited to a visit (inspection) with the taking of temperature of travelers and the succor to be given to those actually sick. If this visit is made, it should be combined as much as possible with the custom-house inspection to the end that travelers may be detained as short a time as possible. Only persons evidently sick should be subjected to a searching medical examination.

ARTICLE XL. As soon as travelers coming from an infected locality shall have arrived at their destination it would be of the greatest utility to submit them to a surveillance which should not exceed ten or five days, counting from the date of departure, the time depending upon whether it is a question of plague or cholera. In case of yellow fever the period should be six days.

ARTICLE XLI. Governments may reserve to themselves the right to take particular measures in regard to certain classes of persons, notably vagabonds, emigrants, and persons traveling or passing the frontier in bands.

ARTICLE XLII. Coaches intended for the transportation of passengers and mails should not be retained at frontiers.

In order to avoid this retention a system of relays ought to be established at frontiers, with transfer of passengers, baggage, and mails. If one of these carriages be infected or shall have been occupied by a person suffering from plague, cholera, or yellow fever, it shall be detached from the train for disinfection at the earliest possible moment.

ARTICLE XLIII. Measures concerning the passing of frontiers by the personnel of railroads and of the post-office are matters for agreement of the sanitary authorities concerned. These measures should be so arranged as not to hinder the service.

ARTICLE XLIV. The regulation of frontier traffic, as well as the adoption of exceptional measures of surveillance, should be left to special arrangement between contiguous countries.

ARTICLE XLV. The power rests with governments of countries bordering upon rivers to regulate by special arrangement the sanitary regime of river routes.

ARTICLES RELATING TO YELLOW FEVER.

ARTICLE XLVI. Ships infected with yellow fever are to be subjected to the following regulations:

1. Medical visit (inspection).

2. The sick are to be immediately disembarked, protected by netting against the access of mosquitoes, and transferred to the place of isolation in an ambulance or a litter similarly screened.

3. Other persons should also be disembarked, if possible, and subjected to an observation of six days, dating from the day of arrival.

4. In the place set apart for observation, there shall be screened apartments or cages where anyone presenting an elevation of temperature above 37.6 degrees Centigrade shall be screened until he may be carried in the manner indicated above to the place of isolation.

5. The ship shall be moored at least two hundred meters from the inhabited shore.

6. The ship shall be fumigated for the destruction of mosquitoes before the discharge of cargo, if possible. If a fumigation be not possible before the discharge of the cargo, the health authorities shall order, either

(a) The employment of immune persons for discharging the cargo, or

(b) If nonimmunes be employed they shall be kept under observation during the discharging of cargo and for six days, to date from the last day of exposure on board.

ARTICLE XLVII. Ships suspected of yellow fever are to be subjected to the measures which are indicated in Nos. 1, 3, and 5 of the preceding article; and, if not fumigated, the cargo shall be discharged as directed under subparagraph (a) or (b) of the same article.

ARTICLE XLVIII. Ships indemne from yellow fever coming from an infected port, after the medical visit (inspection), shall be admitted to free pratique, provided the duration of the trip has exceeded six days.

If the trip be shorter, the ship shall be considered as suspected until the completion of a period of six days, dating from the day of departure.

If a case of yellow fever develop during the period of observation, the ship shall be considered as infected.

ARTICLE XLIX. All persons who can prove their immunity to yellow fever, to the satisfaction of the health authorities, shall be permitted to land at once.

ARTICLE L. It is agreed that in the event of a difference of interpretation of the English and Spanish texts the interpretation of the English text shall prevail.

TRANSITORY DISPOSITION.

The governments which may not have signed the present Convention are to be admitted to adherence thereto upon demand; notice of this adherence to be given through diplomatic channels to the Government of the United States of America and by the latter to the other signatory Governments.

Made and signed in the city of Washington on the 14th day of the month of October, nineteen hundred and five, in two copies, in English and Spanish, respectively, which shall be deposited in the State Department of the Government of the United States of America, in order that certified copies thereof, in both English and Spanish, may be made to transmit them through diplomatic channels to each one of the signatory countries.

DR. EDUARDO MOORE.
JUAN J. ULLOA.
JUAN GUITERAS.
E. B. BARNET.
EMILIO C. JOUBERT.
M. H. ALCÍVAR.
WALTER WYMAN.
H. D. GEDDINGS.
JOHN S. FULTON.
WALTER D. MCCAW.
J. D. GATEWOOD.
H. L. E. JOHNSON, M. D.
JOAQUÍN YELA.
E. LICÉAGA.
J. L. MEDINA, M. D.
DANIEL EDO. LAVORERÍA.
N. VELOZ-GOITICOA.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 13, 1905.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of Monday, December 11, 1905, was read and approved.

COMMITTEE CHANGES.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to say to the House that Representative MONDELL, who, in the arrangement of committees the other day, went off of the Public Lands, having been second on that committee in the last Congress, retained his place on Military Affairs. Representative MILLER of Kansas was appointed to the Committee on the Public Lands. These gentlemen desire to exchange committee places, and if there be no objection, Mr. MONDELL will go onto the Committee on the Public Lands and retire from Military Affairs, taking the place in the Committee on the Public Lands that he held in the last Congress, and Mr. MILLER, if there be no objection, will go off from the Committee on the Public Lands onto the Committee on Military Affairs. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PARKINSON, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed bill of the following title; in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives was requested:

An act (S. 410) to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct bridges across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas.

COMMITTEE ON THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. BABCOCK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the District of Columbia be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota offers a resolution which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Appropriations, or such subcommittee as they may designate, shall have leave to sit during the sessions of the House during the Fifty-ninth Congress and during the recess.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, a further resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota offers a further resolution, which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That authority be granted to print and bind, for use of the Committee on Appropriations, all documents deemed necessary in connection with subjects considered or to be considered by said committee during the Fifty-ninth Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON THE TERRITORIES.

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of two resolutions which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution, which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Territories be authorized to have printed and bound such papers and documents for the use of said committee as it may deem necessary in connection with subjects considered or to be considered by the said committee during the Fifty-ninth Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, also the following resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of another resolution, which will be reported by the Clerk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Territories, or such subcommittee as they may designate, shall have leave to sit during the sessions of the House during the Fifty-ninth Congress and during the recess.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Mr. FOSS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution, which will be reported by the Clerk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection; and the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. FOSS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be authorized to sit during the sessions of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was agreed to.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to introduce at this time a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, relating to the settlement of certain claims against the United States, and that it be read by the Clerk and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Ohio asks unanimous consent that the following resolution be read and printed in the RECORD. Is there objection?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to hear some statement from the gentleman explanatory of the necessity of taking this rather irregular course, one that is not usual.

Mr. KEIFER. It used to be usual.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Why can not it go into the basket?

Mr. KEIFER. It used to be usual to read such resolutions as this and print them in the RECORD. It is very brief; there is nothing political in it, and it would take considerable time to explain it, although I would be glad to do so if the House would give me that time. It does not affect the question of ordinary claims that are created by law, but is intended to take away from the Congress of the United States the power to make appropriations for claims not arising out of existing law, and provides that there shall be a court where they can go and have them adjudicated, a court that will be subject to the statute of limitations.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman misunderstood me. I did not ask about the merits of the proposition. I asked what reason there was for its taking an unusual course.

Mr. KEIFER. The reason in my own mind is that there are so many things introduced here that we know nothing about that I thought the attention of the Members of the House would be attracted to it, probably some of them would examine it, and it would be ready for consideration in better shape than if it simply went through the basket.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Does not the gentleman think that every Member of Congress would have that idea about some resolution that he wished to introduce?

Mr. KEIFER. That might be, but this is an extraordinary matter.

Mr. WILLIAMS. It would be taking up the time of the House by Members introducing public resolutions under the rule that should go to the desk. I think, Mr. Speaker, the resolution had better pursue the usual course.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Mississippi objects.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC LANDS.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the passage of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Public Lands be authorized to have printed and bound all documents for the use of said committee that it may deem necessary in connection with the subject under consideration or to be considered by said committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution just read. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was considered, and agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS NO. 1.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the following resolution. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Elections No 1 be authorized to sit during the sessions of the House and have such printing and binding done as may be necessary in the transaction of its business.

The resolution was considered, and agreed to.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE.

Mr. HENRY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, in behalf of the Committee on Agriculture I present the following resolution, and ask unanimous consent for its present consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Agriculture be authorized to sit during the sessions of the House, and to have such binding and printing done as may be necessary in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Connecticut asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The resolution was considered, and agreed to.

ISTHMIAN CANAL.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, during the discussion on the canal appropriation bill I asked the gentleman from Iowa several questions about employees. I addressed communications to the chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission about it, and he has replied, and I ask unanimous consent that my letter and the reply from the chairman of the Commission be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a letter from him to the chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission and reply of the chairman to the gentleman. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The letter and reply are as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., December 6, 1905.

The Hon. THEODORE P. SHONTS,
Chairman Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: Please send me at your earliest convenience the following information:

(a) The name, date of appointment, and compensation of the present secretary of the Commission.

(b) What are the duties of the secretary of the Commission?

(c) What position did the present secretary have under the Commission prior to his appointment as its secretary, or what were his official relations to the Commission prior to such appointment?

(d) What duties were assigned to the present secretary in his former position under the Commission?

(e) What compensation was paid to the present secretary by the Commission, or from the funds at its command, previous to his appointment as secretary?

(f) Any other information that would be of value in connection with that asked for herein.

Respectfully, yours,

JOHN J. FITZGERALD.

ISTHMIAN CANAL COMMISSION,
Washington, D. C., December 8, 1905.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 6th instant asking for information concerning the secretary of this Commission is at hand. I beg to submit the following replies to your questions in the order in which they are asked:

(a) Mr. Joseph Bucklin Bishop was appointed secretary of the Commission on October 30, 1905.

(b) The duties of the secretary of the Commission are set forth in the following resolutions of the Commission, adopted on October 30, 1905:

"Resolved, That the office now held by Mr. Joseph B. Bishop, as executive secretary, be known and designated as "secretary of the Commission," and that it shall be the duty of the secretary of the Commission to keep the minutes of the Commission and have custody of the same; to attend to the giving and serving of all notices of meetings of the Commission; to collect, prepare, and maintain a general historical record and data of the history of the Panama Canal and the salient features of the history and progress of the isthmian canal, particularly from the time of its acquisition by the United States, and to prepare and submit to the Commission from time to time digests, indices, and summary of the same, and generally to perform such other duties as may be from time to time assigned to him by the Commission or its chairman.

"Resolved, That to facilitate the dispatch of current business at Washington office of the Commission the chairman be, and he hereby is, empowered to authorize and direct in writing the secretary of the Commission or other employee of the Commission to approve for payment, under the caption 'By direction of the chairman,' vouchers for any payments by the Commission, and to make requisition for supplies for the maintenance of said Washington office."

(c) Executive secretary of the Commission.

(d) Substantially the same he now performs as secretary, which are set forth in the resolutions cited above.

(e) For services in September, $666.67; in October, $833.33, the same being at the rate of $10,000 a year.

(f) In addition to the duties set forth in the resolution cited, Mr. Bishop has charge of the publicity and literary branches of the Commission's work. He prepares the various statements which the chairman or the Commission as a body may desire to make public.

In addition to all of these duties enumerated in the replies to your questions and also in the resolutions cited, the chairman assigns special work to Mr. Bishop from time to time as exigency requires.

Very respectfully,

T. P. SHONTS, Chairman.

Hon. JOHN J. FITZGERALD,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the following resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Affairs have authority to have such printing done as may be necessary in the transaction of its business.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The resolution was considered, and agreed to.

CONTESTED-ELECTION CASES.

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House the following report from the Clerk of the House, touching contested-election cases.

The Clerk read as follows:

CLERK'S OFFICE, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., December 6, 1905.

SIR: I have the honor to lay before the House of Representatives a list of contests for seats in the House of Representatives for the Fifty-ninth Congress of the United States, notices of which have been filed in the office of the Clerk of the House, and also transmit therewith all original testimony, papers, and documents relating thereto, as follows, to wit:

Territory of Hawaii.
State of Maryland, First district.
State of Missouri, Twelfth district.
State of South Carolina, First district.
State of South Carolina, First district.
State of South Carolina, Second district.
State of South Carolina, Seventh district.
State of Texas, Second district.

The Clerk has opened and printed the testimony in all of the above cases. In compliance with the act approved March 2, 1897, entitled "An act relating to contested elections," such portions of the testimony in the above cases as the parties in interest agreed upon or as seemed proper to the Clerk, after giving the requisite notices, have been printed and indexed, together with the notices of contest and the answers thereto, and such portions of the testimony as were not printed with the original papers have been sealed up and are ready to be laid before the Committee on Elections.

Two copies of the printed testimony in each case have been mailed to the contestant and the same number to the contestee. The law in reference to the briefs of both the contestant and contestee in each case has been complied with as far as possible upon receipt by the Clerk of said briefs.

In the case of the contested election of John A. Noland v. George S. Legare, from the First Congressional district of South Carolina, there are no briefs. Nothing but notice of contest and answer were filed in the case.

So far as the briefs have been furnished to the Clerk they are ready to be laid before the Committee on Elections upon the order of the House, together with a tabulated statement which has been prepared by the Clerk, showing the number of pages of testimony and the present status of each contested-election case and all papers in connection therewith.

Very respectfully,

A. MCDOWELL,
Clerk of the House of Representatives.

Hon. JOSEPH G. CANNON,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

District.	Contestant.	Contestee.	Testimony opened.	Testimony printed.	Printed pages of testimony and briefs.
					Testimony.	Briefs.	Total.
Territory of Hawaii	Curtis P. Iaukea	Jonah K. Kalanianaole	July 11, 1905	Aug. 12, 1905	447	86	533
First Maryland	William H. Jackson	Thomas A. Smith	July 12, 1905	Sept. 5, 1905	687	141	828
Twelfth Missouri	Harry M. Coudrey	Ernest E. Wood	do	Aug. 12, 1905	1,409	282	1,691
First South Carolina	Aaron P. Prioleau	George S. Legare	July 11, 1905	do	182	35	217
Do	John A. Noland	do	do	do	8		8
Second South Carolina	Isaac Myers	James O. Patterson	do	do	83	59	142
Seventh South Carolina	Charles C. Jacobs	Asbury F. Lever	do	do	152	169	321
Second Texas	A. J. Houston	Moses L. Brooks	July 12, 1905	do	386	190	576
Total							4,316

District.	Contestant.	Contestee.	Contestant notified to file brief.	Contestant's brief filed.	Contestee notified to file brief.	Contestee's brief filed.	Contestee's brief sent to contestant.	Contestant's reply brief filed.
Territory of Hawaii	Curtis P. Iaukea	Jonah K. Kalanianaole	Aug. 12, 1905	Oct. 2, 1905	Oct. 2, 1905	Nov. 15, 1905	Nov. 15, 1905
First Maryland	William H. Jackson	Thomas A. Smith	Sept. 5, 1905	Oct. 4, 1905	Oct. 4, 1905	Nov. 4, 1905	Nov. 4, 1905	Dec. 4, 1905
Twelfth Missouri	Harry M. Coudrey	Ernest E. Wood	Aug. 12, 1905	Oct. 10, 1905	Oct. 10, 1905	Nov. 29, 1905	Dec. 1, 1905
First South Carolina	Aaron P. Prioleau	George S. Legare	do	Sept. 9, 1905	Sept. 11, 1905
Do	John A. Noland	do	do
Second South Carolina	Isaac Myers	James O. Patterson	do	Sept. 11, 1905	Sept. 11, 1905	Oct. 9, 1905	Oct. 9, 1905
Seventh South Carolina	Charles C. Jacobs	Asbury F. Lever	do	Sept. 14, 1905	Sept. 14, 1905	do	do
Second Texas	A. J. Houston	Moses L. Brooks	do	Oct. 7, 1905	Oct. 7, 1905	Nov. 2, 1905	Dec. 2, 1905

The SPEAKER. The Chair makes the following assignment of the contested-election cases: To Elections No. 1, the four cases from South Carolina; to Elections No. 2, the cases from Maryland and Missouri; to Elections No. 3, the cases from Texas and the Territory of Hawaii; to Elections No. 1, the memorial relating to the qualifications of Mr. MICHALEK, of Illinois.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE COLUMBIA RIVER BY THE PORTLAND AND SEATTLE RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. CUSHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which I now send to the desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Washington asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a bill, the title of which the Clerk will read, after which the Chair will submit to the House the request for unanimous consent.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 299) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask whether this bill has been reported from the committee?

Mr. CUSHMAN. The bill was unanimously reported from the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on yesterday. The House not being in session, though the report was made on yesterday morning, it was impossible to have the report printed. I will say that this bill has been recommended by the War Department and is the unanimous report of the entire committee.

The only reason I call the bill up at this early time is by reason of the fact that the railway company is waiting with some two hundred men and materials to begin the construction of this bridge.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, this bill in its several provisions has met with the approval of the War Department?

Mr. CUSHMAN. Oh, absolutely.

Mr. WILLIAMS. It is a unanimous report by the committee?

Mr. CUSHMAN. Unanimous.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I have no objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and the Clerk will report the bill.

The bill was read at length.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. CUSHMAN, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

BRIDGES ACROSS THE OUACHITA RIVER AND OTHER NAVIGABLE RIVERS IN THE STATE OF ARKANSAS.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 410, and that the same may be now considered.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Arkansas asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table a Senate bill, the title of which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

An act (S. 410) authorizing the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct bridges across the Ouachita and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and the Clerk will report bill.

The bill was read at length.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if this bill is in the usual form and has been recommended by the Secretary of War?

Mr. WALLACE. Yes, sir; and has passed the Senate.

Mr. PAYNE. Has a similar bill been reported in the House?

Mr. WALLACE. Yes, sir; and I move to substitute this for the House bill.

Mr. PAYNE. And is identical in its terms.

Mr. CURTIS. The House bill is identical in terms with the Senate bill.

Mr. MANN. After the House had reported the Senate changed their bill.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time; was read the third time, and passed.

The SPEAKER. The corresponding House bill, without objection, will be laid upon the table. [After a pause.] The Chair hears no objection.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Mr. PAYNE, from the Committee on Ways and Means, presented a report from the Committee on Ways and Means in regard to the distribution of the President's message; which was read and referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

On motion of Mr. PAYNE, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the above report, Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the resolution for the distribution of the President's message, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read the report and resolution, as follows:

The Committee on Ways and Means, to whom was referred the House resolution (H. Res. 42) for the distribution of the President's message, report the same back with the following amendments, viz: Page 1, line 4, after the words "United States" insert the words "and insurance;" page 3, line 13, strike out the words "and to Cuba;" and recommend that the resolution as amended be adopted:

Resolved, That so much of the annual message of the President of the United States to the two Houses of Congress at the present session as relates to the revenue and the bonded debt of the United States be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

That so much as relates to the appropriations of the public revenue for support of the Government as herein provided, namely, for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses; for sundry civil expenses; for fortifications and coast defenses; for pensions; for the District of Columbia, and for all deficiencies, be referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

That so much as relates to the judiciary of the United States, to the administration of justice, to the punishment and prevention of crime, and the organization of courts be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

That so much as relates to banks and banking and the currency be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

That so much as relates to commerce, life-saving service, intercolonial railways and cables, and the isthmian canal be referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

That so much as relates to the merchant marine and fisheries be referred to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

That so much as relates to agriculture, and appropriations therefor, and to forestry be referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

That so much as relates to the foreign affairs, the consular and diplomatic service, including appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

That so much as relates to the military establishment, and appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

That so much as relates to the naval establishment and to the construction of additional vessels for the Navy, and appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

That so much as relates to the post-office and post-roads and to the carrying of the foreign mails, and appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

That so much as relates to the public domain be referred to the Committee on the Public Lands.

That so much as relates to the relations of the United States to the Indian tribes, and appropriations therefor, be referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

That so much as relates to the Territories, Alaska, and the Hawaiian Islands, and to the admission of States, be referred to the Committee on the Territories.

That so much as relates to the islands which came to the United States through the treaty of 1899 with Spain, and to Cuba (except so much as relates to the revenue and the appropriations), be referred to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

That so much as relates to labor be referred to the Committee on Labor.

That so much as relates to the levees of the Mississippi River be referred to the Committee on Levees and Improvements of the Mississippi River.

That so much as relates to patents, copyrights, and trade-marks be referred to the Committee on Patents.

That so much as relates to the pensions of the civil war be referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

That so much as relates to the pensions of all the wars of the United States, other than the civil war, be referred to the Committee on Pensions.

That so much as relates to the affairs of the District of Columbia (excepting appropriations) be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

That so much as relates to reform in the civil service be referred to the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

That so much as relates to the election of the President, Vice-President, or Representatives in Congress be referred to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

That so much as relates to immigration or naturalization be referred to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

That so much as relates to printing be referred to the Joint Committee on Printing on the part of the House.

That so much as relates to the industrial arts and expositions, other than revenue and appropriations, be referred to the Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask that that part of the resolution stating what was referred to the Committee on the Election of the President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress be read again. I do this because I could not hear it.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the Clerk will again read the paragraph referred to.

The Clerk again read the paragraph.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I would say to my colleague, the gentleman from New York [Mr. COCKRAN], that the resolution follows the rule.

Mr. COCKRAN. I would ask the gentleman from New York, the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, if any reference has been made of that very weighty paragraph in the message concerning campaign contributions?

Mr. PAYNE. I have no doubt that this general subject includes that, because the regulation of campaign funds by Congress could only proceed under the clause of the Constitution which authorizes Congress to deal with the election of the President, the Vice-President, and Members of Congress. This refers all matters relating to the election of the President, the Vice-President, and Members of Congress to that committee, and I have no doubt that that includes it.

Mr. COCKRAN. That explanation is perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I desire to ask a question of the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE].

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. This resolution, as I understand it, in no way affects the jurisdiction of the several committees as fixed by the standing rules of the House?

Mr. PAYNE. It does not, with one or two exceptions, in the way of amendments, which I will explain to the House.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I had in mind the question of insurance.

Mr. PAYNE. I intend speaking about that later.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to call the attention of the Chair to the fact that the colloquy between the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] is entirely inaudible to the House.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair has no doubt that the gentleman from New York [Mr. COCKRAN] is right. Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] yield to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER]?

Mr. PAYNE. Oh, I had already yielded to the gentleman from Indiana, and he has asked his question.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Yes, Mr. Chairman, we are both through.

Mr. COCKRAN. Then, Mr. Chairman, will some one tell us what it was about?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair must insist that the committee be in order before we proceed with business.

Mr. COCKRAN. I merely ask in behalf of the committee to know what the colloquy was about which transpired between the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER], assuming, of course, that it was of importance.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I would state to my colleague that I will speak of that when we get order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE].

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, this resolution as introduced follows the precedent in respect to resolutions which have gone before it distributing different subjects in the President's message and almost universally in the language of the rules of the House. There are one or two exceptions where other language has crept into this series of resolutions, and I will speak of one—for instance, the jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The rule gives that committee jurisdiction over matters relating to commerce and to lighthouses and the Life-Saving Service. Some years ago an amendment was introduced giving that committee in terms jurisdiction over the isthmian canal and also over interoceanic cables. That language is followed in this resolution.

The resolutions as before introduced and passed in terms did not cover the portion of the President's message relating to insurance, and I will say to my colleague the gentleman from New York [Mr. COCKRAN] that this was the question that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER] asked about. The resolution heretofore did not cover that question. Now, at the beginning of this session a number of bills were introduced regulating insurance and placing it under the control of the United States, or proposing to do so, in various ways. Most of those bills provided a tax upon insurance companies, the authors of them presumably believing that that was the only method by which Congress could deal with them under the Constitution of the United States. In this I think they were exactly right. I do not see what authority the Congress of the United States has over insurance companies, except under the clause of the Constitution giving the taxing power. I understand that the Supreme Court has decided that the United States can not get jurisdiction under the Constitution over insurance companies under the interstate-commerce clause in the Constitution, and it would seem that taxation was the only way in which the Constitution gave any jurisdiction whatever.

These bills were referred by the Speaker to the Committee on Ways and Means. It was done without any intimation from any member of that committee. The first I knew of it, at least, was that those bills had been so referred. Some of them did not involve the taxing power.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will allow me to finish this statement, then I shall be glad to yield to him. Some of them, I repeat, do not involve the taxing power, although most of them do involve the question of taxation. Those bills are there now. The Committee on Ways and Means was not anxious to take up this subject, but, of course, coming to us as it did, these bills, under the rules of the House, plainly going to that committee and to no other, because they involved the question of taxation, and having been placed there by the direction of the Speaker, the committee thought unanimously that that was where they belonged, and directed me to offer the amendment in the resolution, which is proposed in language and in terms strictly sending those bills to the Committee on Ways and Means.

It has been a rule, I am informed by the Clerk at the Speaker's desk, that whenever a class of bills comes in and the main feature compels the reference of a portion of these bills to a certain committee, for uniformity it is the custom to send all of those bills to that committee, whether they involve the particular question or not. But if I am right in the proposition that the only way Congress can deal with insurance companies is under the taxing clause of the Constitution, then no other committee would have jurisdiction of this subject-matter and it would belong to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Now I will yield to a question from the gentleman from Texas [Mr. STEPHENS].

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I desire to ask the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] what became of the recommendation made by the President relative to extending the irrigation laws of the United States so as to include the State of Texas—to what committee that went? He made the recommendation in his recent message. I did not catch the information from the reading of the resolution.

Mr. PAYNE. I do not remember now, but I think there is a reference of that to the Committee on Arid Lands.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. The gentleman will find the recommendation in the latter part of the President's message, relating to the irrigation of arid lands.

Mr. MANN. Before the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] enters upon that question, will he yield for another question concerning the insurance matter?

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] please suspend for a moment?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I do not find any clause in this resolution referring to the question of arid lands. I think that clause has gone out of the resolution, and I will state to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. STEPHENS] that in drawing the resolution I overlooked the matter and did not know until the moment he referred to it that there was any recommendation in regard to arid lands. If there is such a recommendation, I will very cheerfully accept an amendment referring that question, in the usual terms, to the Committee on Arid Lands. That can be done later, and the gentleman and myself will have no difficulty about that.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Then I shall desire to obtain the floor for the purpose of making that amendment at the proper time.

Mr. LACEY. May I say a word upon that question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] yield to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY]?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. LACEY. I desire to say that the question of irrigation of arid lands would go to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands, but the subject of arid lands alone would go to the Committee on Public Lands, as well as the question of grazing and matters of that kind that come up in connection with the arid lands. It is only the subject of irrigation that, under the rules of this House, would go to the Irrigation Committee, and the rule ought to draw that distinction.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I want to say right there, in reply to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY], that the amendment, if it goes into the bill, will refer all matters in the President's message relating to the subject of irrigation of arid lands to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands, so that there will be no question about that.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY] a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY] yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD]?

Mr. LACEY. Certainly.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I would like to ask the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands as to how the Committee on Arid Lands can control the situation under the present law, which gives them a right not only to water the arid lands, but carries with it the disposition of those arid lands, when the subject-matter goes to their committee?

Mr. LACEY. There is no Committee on Arid Lands.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Will the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] yield to me for a question?

Mr. PAYNE. I will yield to the gentleman from Tennessee. However, I do not yield for debate until the amendment is before the committee.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I see nothing in this reference relative to bills introduced on the subject of coinage, weights, and measures. It was omitted entirely, I think.

Mr. PAYNE. This refers the President's message, not a bill, and the President's message does not refer to that subject.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. PAYNE. I promised to yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN], but I will yield to the gentleman from Texas, however, for a moment.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I will state to the gentleman that I have a bill pending before the Committee on Irrigation providing for extending the irrigation laws of the United States under the reclamation act. I think, that this portion of the President's message should go to that committee.

Mr. PAYNE. If there is anything in the President's message referring to the subject of arid lands, it should go to that committee, and I will have an amendment inserted that will send it to that committee.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I desire to bring this question before the attention of the House, and ask unanimous consent that that portion of the President's message be referred to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

Mr. PAYNE. I will offer an amendment myself later. I now yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I understood the distinguished gentleman from New York to say on the insurance question that the reason they propose to refer the matter of insurance to the Committee on Ways and Means was because, in his judgment, or the judgment of the committee, that the only method of dealing with that subject was through the taxing power. Suppose Congress should desire to proceed upon the theory that it had power under the provisions of the Constitution relating to the control of interstate commerce, would not that matter go then properly to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, that is for the House to determine. If the House determines that Congress has the right under the interstate-commerce clause to regulate insurance companies, it will be open for the House to say so and to send the subject to that committee.

Mr. MANN. Well, I understand that no one has any disposition in the House to quarrel about where bills shall be referred if they receive consideration.

Mr. PAYNE. The Committee on Ways and Means have no desire to grasp business that does not belong to them.

Mr. MANN. I understand that perfectly well, and the Interstate Commerce Committee has no desire to grasp business that does not belong to it.

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly not.

Mr. MANN. In my own judgment on the subject, in the time I have had to consider it, and I have given consideration to the subject for several years following the creation of the Department of Commerce and Labor, I am convinced that Congress can regulate the insurance question under the provisions of the Constitution concerning interstate commerce. It is a new thing to me that you can do it under the taxing power. I fail to see myself how under the taxing power you have any control of the insurance business. Now, then, I have no desire to argue that question with the gentleman, but if I introduce bills on the subject—as I expect to do—I do not want them buried in your committee, which will not hear anything excepting under the taxing clause, because I do not propose to proceed on that line. I want it sent to the proper committee of the House. I would like to say to this House that when there is anything in bills which is referred to in the President's message, that carries the bill introduced on that subject to that committee.

Mr. PAYNE. I do not understand that where there is a reference to anything in the President's message that changes the rules; and if the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce have jurisdiction of that subject under the rules, that reference of the subject in the President's message to a certain measure does not change the rule.

Mr. MANN. That is all I wished to say. That satisfies me.

Mr. PAYNE. I do not care for further debate. I understand the gentleman from Iowa——

Mr. HEPBURN. I desire to be heard in my own time.

Mr. PAYNE. I was about to reserve my time.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the resolution as it was introduced at the time of its reference. I do object to the amendment made in the fourth line, by inserting the words "and insurance." The effect of that is to carry all matters of legislation concerning the control of insurance to the Committee on Ways and Means; and the reason assigned for that is that in the opinion of the Chairman the only manner in which Congress can have jurisdiction over that subject is through the exercise of the taxing power.

Mr. Chairman, even if that were true, that would not indicate, necessarily, the direction which this class of business should take in assignment to committees. It is true that all matters of taxation, where taxation—the raising of revenue—is the object to be attained, should be considered by the Committee on Ways and Means; but where taxation is resorted to solely for the purpose of securing jurisdiction, solely for the purpose of the exercise of a power, I submit that it is not the rule of this House to send matters of that kind to that Committee—notably the legislation with reference to oleomargarine. A tax nominal was resorted to only to give power to the Congress, or justify it in the exercise of power. Yet you will remember that that matter was considered and reported by the Committee on Agriculture. They had jurisdiction of it, recognizing the fact that the assumption upon the part of the Committee on Ways and Means was a mere fiction. The object was not to secure revenue. The object was to secure the right to exercise a power. Therefore the taxing power was resorted to, or taxation was made the pretext. There are a number of instances that might be given where this rule has been observed and where jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means has been denied, notwithstanding the fact that a nominal tax was provided for in the legislation sought.

Mr. Chairman, I am willing to concede that there is more than one decision of the Supreme Court in which it has been held, in a casual way, that insurance was not commerce; but I want to call attention to the fact that that was not the major proposition considered by the Supreme Court, that but little attention was paid to that question in the argument, that that was simply one of the incidents in the case; and it is the opinion of a great many men learned in the law that when the proposition is fairly made, when the attention of the Supreme Court is called to the fact of the immense interest there is in insurance, interwoven inextricably with trade, when it is remembered that the annihilation of insurance would well-nigh annihilate commerce, that thousands and tens of thousands of commercial enterprises would never for a moment be considered or undertaken but for the auxiliary of insurance; when it is shown how interwoven insurance is with all commercial transactions, with the millions of money invested in trade and commerce, that another view of that subject may be taken. And I want to call attention to the fact that I have in my possession a bill prepared by the secretary of the National Bar Association, and, as I understand, a bill that met with their approval, from which it is clear that, in their opinion—in the opinion of the National Bar Association of the United States—the regulation of insurance companies is a power given to Congress under the commerce clause of the Constitution. The language of these gentlemen, as used in the bill, declares that the writing of policies and other business of that character is commerce, and therefore it is a power conferred by the commerce clause of the Constitution.

This is a matter of importance. I want to call attention to the fact that, so far as there is any precedent upon the part of the House, you will discover from that precedent that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce had jurisdiction over this subject. The only legislation that we have upon that subject emanated from that committee. That committee reported the bill creating the Department of Commerce and Labor, by which there is created a Bureau of Corporations, and in express terms, with the other conferments of power, is the one including insurance. So that, so far as precedent goes, I think the gentleman is wrong in his assumption that the committee he has referred to and over which he presides (the Committee on Ways and Means) is the sole committee that may take jurisdiction of this subject.

I reserve my time, but I will yield to any gentleman who desires me to do so.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Iowa yield to the gentleman from Florida?

Mr. HEPBURN. I will yield; yes.

The CHAIRMAN. How much time does the gentleman yield?

Mr. HEPBURN. How much time does the gentleman from Florida desire?

Mr. LAMAR. How much time can my friend spare?

Mr. HEPBURN. Oh, fifteen minutes.

Mr. LAMAR. That is scarcely enough for my purposes, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. HEPBURN. I do not know what other gentlemen may want to discuss this matter. I will reserve the time and let the gentleman take the floor in his own right.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa reserves the balance of his time. The gentleman from Florida is recognized.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, on Monday last I attempted to make an explanation to this House. The matter that I sent to the desk not being considered in the nature of privilege by the Speaker, I naturally desisted. In the colloquy which ensued between the leader of the minority on this side of the House and myself he suggested that in the interest of party harmony I should not pursue a discussion which he evidently saw I intended to pursue were the time allowed me.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I will accord to the gentleman that respect as a party leader which I have heretofore accorded to him personally, but which until he, as I conceive, relieves me of an unjust charge on his part I will always concede him as a party leader hereafter, but which under no circumstances could I concede to him personally.

Mr. Chairman, I shall not indulge in any personalities on this occasion, nor do I agree with the leader of the minority of this House that if I did so it would please any Republicans upon the other side. I do not believe that there is a man of any sense or sensibility in this House, be he Republican or Democrat, who would take any pleasure in a discussion in this House of a highly personal character. In the heat of debate acrid colloquies and controversies will sometimes occur. But, sir, it is bad enough if those happen between political opponents; and even then when the time has passed that aroused the feeling it should subside. No man of generous instincts should cherish a revengeful feeling, and certainly I do not.

Therefore, I say, Mr. Chairman, I do not think that the Republican side of this House would be amused at anything that I might say personally against the minority leader, and I will suggest to the leader of the minority that he would be in a much more fortunate position to suggest party harmony to me had he as the leader of this side of the House set the precedent.

I shall allude to a controversy on the floor of this House between the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. SULLIVAN] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. HEARST]. I had nothing to do with that controversy. I stated on the floor of this House that I would not be bound by the personal controversies in this House, and I will not be.

These are matters that gentlemen must settle for themselves. This House and the public will judge according to the merits, and not upon the rashness of speech of any one Member of the House. The leader of this House, because he is an elected leader, should have set a magnanimous example. Every man who heard the gentleman from Massachusetts arraign the gentleman from New York will concede that it was done—I will not say in a vicious manner, because I will not reflect upon the gentleman from Massachusetts—will testify that it was done in a terrific manner. Where was our distinguished leader on that occasion? It was Democrat to Democrat.

Why did not he stop that deliberated and prepared attack? The gentleman from Massachusetts made no concealment of his purpose. He gave notice of arising to a question of personal privilege days in advance. It was in the air here the morning he made his arraignment in the House of the gentleman from New York that he would do it, and, if I am not mistaken, the gentleman from Massachusetts arose and with typewritten manuscript in his hands made a deliberate and prepared attack. He did it openly; he gave a blow and received a blow. On this occasion I will do nothing to disturb the harmony of this side of the House. I shall certainly not contribute, if I can help it, to any amusement on the part of the Republicans. A distinguished Republican Representative in this House was standing near me on this side of the House when the gentleman from Massachusetts made that arraignment of the gentleman from New York. I did not see him amused; he did not smile; he did not say a word. I think, sir, he felt a sense of sorrow to see men divided who in the natural order of things would be united. Certainly it would not please me to see an acrimonious debate between two Republicans of this House.

I do not want to do anything here that my party colleagues will charge, or my people in Florida might think, contributed to Democratic discord in the face of political opponents. But, Mr. Chairman, I desire very briefly to allude to certain occurrences in this House upon public legislation and certain matters that do not appertain thereto, except in a collateral manner. Mr. Chairman, one of the most important questions—the one which the President lays down in his message as the great and almost supreme question—is the subject of national transportation. This House deals only with national transportation. This House has the power under the Federal Constitution to regulate all public highways of national character. I speak more particularly of the interstate railroads. A railroad charge is as directly a tax upon the products and business earnings of a community and country as though it were laid directly by legislative authority in the form of a governmental support tax. Therefore, any charge that is too high is unreasonable. Any device of extorting money or extracting money out of the individual that should not exist is against public policy, and these devices, according to the President's message and the reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission, are many and varied. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, this question is a very great question.

It is to be presumed that every Member of this House will furnish to this House and to the country every single particle of information he may possess upon this great question. His party is entitled to it, the country is entitled to it. I care not whose bill comes before this House, whether it is a bill of a Republican or a Democrat, it is entitled to receive consideration from each Member of this House regardless of party. It is not a mere personal measure; it is a public measure. It is not here that one particular man shall be shelved or put aside. In this House a measure of legislation proposed by each Member is to go to the proper committee, to be properly considered, and reported upon to this House to be properly debated. In no other way, shape, or form can a public measure of proposed legislation come before the House. The House and the country are entitled and ought to have an intelligent knowledge of that measure. Now, Mr. Chairman, at the last session of the Fifty-eighth Congress this House passed the bill known as the Esch-Townsend bill to regulate interstate railroad rates. A substitute measure was proposed on this side of the House, called the Davey bill. That substitute was voted down. Immediately or shortly thereafter the vote was had upon the main question, the the majority report from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and the Esch-Townsend bill as reported was passed. The Democrats voted with the Republicans in its favor, except possibly half a dozen. Now, Mr. Chairman, there is a history behind the Davey bill, the Democratic caucus bill, which I propose to submit fairly and temperately to this House, and if I make an error I trust the distinguished leader of the minority on this side will correct me. I do not intend to do him the slightest injustice knowingly, and it will only be sufficient for him to point out my mistake for me to withdraw it. Mr. Chairman, the Republicans of this House, in reporting the Esch-Townsend bill to the House, proceeded in the ordinary regular course of legislation.

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce dealt with that measure, the Republican majority of it formulated a bill, submitted that bill to their caucus, it was duly approved under caucus regulations, and then was formally introduced into this House and passed as a piece of Republican legislation. But, Mr. Chairman, was that the history of the Davey bill? It can not be held that in my alluding to these matters that I am transgressing any bounds of propriety that might restrict me to silence. What was done in that caucus went to the press and the country. Mr. Chairman, the caucus upon that occasion adopted what was known as the "Davey bill." It comprehended but two sections. The first gave to the Interstate Commerce Commission the mere power, upon complaint made, to revise an unreasonable rate and to substitute in lieu thereof a reasonable rate; that that rate go into effect until upon review it was reversed by the courts.

The second section of the bill provided merely the machinery for taking an appeal from the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to the higher courts of the land. That was the sum total of the Davey bill. When that bill reached the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and after the Republican members of that committee had formulated the Esch-Townsend bill and had adjourned to give the Democrats on that committee a chance to formulate their bill and report it, what did the Democratic minority of that committee do? It added five sections to that Davey bill. What further happened? I voted for every one of those five sections added to that bill. I joined with the Democrats of that committee in formally reporting that bill to this House favorably. But, Mr. Chairman, I did something else besides that. I did that which I thought and knew that I had the liberty to do. I reported in a subsidiary manner, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] joining with me, what was known as the "Hearst bill," to this House, and that which I would have liked to substitute for the Davey bill, as practically my choice of bills, had I the power to enact it into law. Those were my views upon that bill then; they are my views now, and until I see some bill introduced by the leader of the minority, some Democrat on this side, or some Republican on the other side, which I believe to be a more comprehensive measure of legislative reform upon the present existing railway abuses, I shall continue to think was far and away the best bill introduced into this House upon the subject of railway-rate abuses and providing remedies for the same.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I submit it to the minority leader and to the House that whenever a caucus adopts a bill it can not be added to in the slightest particular. It would be a contradiction in terms, as we understand the caucus rules, to say that a caucus could adopt a bill and promulgate it, and bind the members of that caucus to it, and then that any committee or anybody else could add to it. Why, sir, the authority that made that caucus, the authority that limited the power of that committee or any Member of this House to touch this bill, was supreme and controlling, until the authority that made it had dissolved and annulled it. It needs no argument to establish that proposition. Now, what occurred when that bill, built up from two sections to seven, came before this House? The leader of the minority, upon the floor of this House, in the latter stages of the debate, was driven to the alternative of seeing that Democratic measure of proposed relief go out to the country patently imperfect, incomplete, unless he attempted to add to it and amend it; and on the floor of this House the minority leader asked, by grace of the Republicans, that which he might have placed in his bill in a Democratic caucus; that which the Republican President recommended in his message—that the private car lines and terminal fees iniquities be corrected by legislation, and that he be allowed to amend the already enlarged Davey bill by adding amendments to that effect. His request was for unanimous consent to add these amendments, and the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. ESCH] promptly turned him down by objecting.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I make this point, and I make it with the leader of the minority on this floor, before the Members of this House and in the eyes of the country, namely, if that caucus was binding, if the terms of that caucus limited every Democrat to that bill, and nothing else, then I challenge him as a lawyer, as a candid, frank debater, whether or not he could have asked for those amendments on the floor of the House, or whether on the committee we could have added to that caucus bill? I care not how men may argue or trim around that point; it is incontrovertible that in the matter of a caucus bill nobody could touch it until it was altered by another caucus. I submit it to the memory of my party colleagues as to whether or not I did not raise the question on the floor of the caucus, that that measure would not do for me, stating that I could not go back to my State upon so limited a series of remedies.

If I mistake not, the adequacy of the caucus bill was challenged by half a dozen members of that caucus, and it was the absolute understanding when the caucus adjourned that the provisions of the Davey bill were adopted to only signify to the country that the Democrats of this House were willing to put in a bill the great and important feature of rate revising and rate fixing, and that was all, and that any Democrat in this House or any member of that committee could contribute of his own knowledge and experience, whatever it might be, to the perfecting of a bill to come before this House eventually. If that is not correct, then I am the most mistaken man that ever attended a caucus. I state the matter correctly. I submit it to the memory of the Democrats of this House who attended the caucus. It came up for discussion. I rose in my place, with the few minutes of time allowed me, and stated to the caucus distinctly that with a Republican President pronouncing forcibly upon this great question it would not do for the Democrats to limit themselves to too brief a measure, and that so far as my State was concerned, it demanded far more extensive remedial legislation than was contained in the two-section Davey bill. I submit it to the memory of my colleagues.

Now, Mr. Chairman, so much for the public phase of this question. Now, sir, there is a personal phase to this matter which I will touch upon without any feeling. I do it in justice to myself. I do it in justice to my reputation. I do it in justice to my character. What Democrat can object to that? What Republican can object to that?

It is well known, Mr. Chairman, and is now a matter of record, that I am not and will not be in the future, a member of the Committee of Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I am not challenging upon this occasion the power of the minority leader to make that change. I do not challenge his right. In fact, Mr. Chairman, I think he should have that power; I think he should have that right. If the Speaker would concede to him the power of appointing and would not concede also the power of removal, it would be dividing his power. As a leader of this House he ought to have the power of reorganizing those committees. I do not make any question of that; I make no challenge of that.

There are limitations, however, not binding upon the minority leader in themselves. There are moral limitations upon him, there is an honorable limitation upon him, as binding as if nominated in the bond. And what is that? That he must take the power and responsibility which the Speaker gives him and exercise it with wisdom, justice, and moderation upon his followers on the floor of this House, his brother Democrats, his peers in everything that constitutes manhood or anything else. I say it is as binding upon him as though the Speaker had written it in the power conferred upon him.

Now, sir, I submit it to this House that my removal from that committee has been done by a man whom I have held as my friend, a man for whom three years ago I voted for as party leader against my distinguished friend from Missouri [Mr. CLARK]. And I voted for him upon a sentiment and upon a ground that touched me very closely. When I explained this to my friend from Missouri he very kindly released me, and I voted for the gentleman from Mississippi.

So, Mr. Chairman, there is nothing personal that I have against the minority leader. I have not the slightest feeling against him, with the exception that I feel a just sense of indignation, not of hate, anger, or revenge, at what I consider an injustice and indignity done against me upon the part of the minority leader. Mr. Chairman, I acknowledge that I was honored when I first came here in a larger manner than I deserved, but not altogether by our party leader. I owed my appointment to the resignation from the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of Hon. Robert W. Davis, of Florida, in my favor.

Mr. Chairman, had the minority leader given me that place of his own accord over men who had been here long years before me some one else would have suffered an injustice. I had some qualifications for a place upon that committee. I had been attorney-general of my State for fourteen years. I had been engaged in litigation against railroads in Florida, involving the fundamental question of just and reasonable rates. I had been associated for over ten years with special counsel of the Florida railroad commission. I will say without vanity or boast—for I do not think the House would credit me with that—that every suit instituted by me against the railroads on behalf of the people of Florida was won in the courts.

Mr. Chairman the minority leader has exercised the power which the Speaker [Mr. CANNON] conferred upon him, and removed me from that committee. He could have had it just for the asking if he had told me that it involved any principle. If he had told me that there was another man better qualified than I, I would have resigned it. I got it as a matter of grace from Mr. Davis, and through the courtesy of Mr. WILLIAMS, and he could have had it back for the asking. But, sir, the gentleman accompanied that removal with what I consider a statement of reasons harsh, unjust, and untrue. I hope yet that in our party caucus or in some formal manner the gentleman will recede from his position, because I say to him frankly, without the feeling against him that I had a few days ago—for I had it then, Mr. Chairman, I confess, and a very deep feeling—that perhaps he did me a service in checking my attempt to bring this matter to the attention of the House the other day, for in my feeling I might have said on the floor of this House, in my immediate indignation, things that possibly I might not have liked to read in the RECORD the next morning. It may be that the gentleman did me a service without intending it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I did intend it.

Mr. LAMAR. Now, I do not hesitate to say, and I will say it in moderation, that the minority leader in removing me from that committee placed it upon a ground that I consider absolutely untenable, absolutely unjust, without a word of truth in it, and which I regard as an aspersion upon my character. I confess in the presence of my Democratic colleagues, in the presence of this House, that I am surprised at it. I have no hesitancy in saying in the most moderate way that the gentleman can not substantiate his statement and that it is false.

Mr. Chairman, more completely to make this matter plain, I will submit and ask the Clerk to read this letter from Mr. WILLIAMS to me, written a day or two before the appointment of these committees.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the letter handed up by the gentleman.

The Clerk read as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES UNITED STATES,
Washington, D. C., December 8, 1905.

Hon. W. B. LAMAR,
The Connecticut, City.

MY DEAR SIR: I had contemplated recommending the Speaker to remove you and Mr. SHACKLEFORD from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce because you were not in accord with the majority of the Democrats upon that committee, and I considered it very important that the report made by the minority members of that committee, whatever it might be, should be unanimous and without any dissenting report on the minority side. I had also contemplated transferring you from that committee to Foreign Affairs, one of higher dignity, so that you and others might know that what I was doing was not actuated by the desire to reduce you and had nothing personal in it.

It has been intimated to me, however, that perhaps you would refuse to accept the Committee on Foreign Affairs, if placed upon it. I wish you would let me know whether that is the case or not, as, of course, I do not desire to place you upon a committee which you would decline to take. I want to put you there, thinking it would be a pleasant committee for you, that you would be in accord with your colleagues on it, and that your service on it would be beneficial to the party and to the country. Please call me up over the phone, either at my house, where the phone number is Main 5722, or if I should not happen to be there when you call me, then at the minority room, or else drop me a note as soon as possible after receiving this. Must hand Speaker list to-morrow night.

Very truly, yours, JOHN S. WILLIAMS.

Mr. LAMAR. Now, Mr. Chairman, I should like to submit this letter in reply and have it read for the information of the House.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the letter handed up by the gentleman.

The Clerk read as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, December 9, 1905.

Hon. JOHN S. WILLIAMS, City.

MY DEAR SIR: I received your letter rather late to-day. In it you offer me a place on Foreign Affairs Committee in the House of Representatives. My desire is to retain my position on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I neither accept nor decline the position you offer me on the Committee on Foreign Affairs. You have the power. You can do as you please. But in view of your letter to me that I had defied the Democratic caucus on railroad rate legislation and your verbal statement to others in this city of a like character, I assure you I will consider my removal by you from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce as an act of the highest personal indignity.

I will in such event be compelled in my own self-defense to properly repel that accusation. You can not find a Republican or Democrat in the House of Representatives, I think, who will indorse or justify your removal of me.

I was at perfect liberty at the last session to report the Hearst bill in the manner I did. I voted for the Davey bill in caucus. I voted for the amendments to the Davey bill in the committee. I voted for the Davey bill in the House of Representatives. And I joined in the report of the Davey bill, as amended, to the House of Representatives. How can you justly say I acted against the mandate of the Democratic caucus? Reporting the Hearst bill did not place it on the Calendar of the House. It gave it no official standing. I said on the floor of the House that I had no fight on the Davey bill. That I approved it as far as it went; but that I couldn't return to Florida without, at least, urging and advocating other legislation in that line and hope to sustain myself with my people.

The main features of the Hearst bill will, in part at least, be put in any bill to be returned by the Democrats or Republicans. I wrote you distinctly some weeks ago that if you or other Members had any better suggestions to offer I would drop this bill and advocate yours or any other Democrat's.

The people of Florida have been injured, in part, by the terminal matter, but very much so by the private car lines. These were two of the great features I desired to emphasize in reporting the Hearst bill, so far as it related to my people.

You have no just right to assume that I could not act either in harmony with you or my former associates in committee. You have not written to me in a proper spirit. I have borne your unjust accusation, because I wanted to see your real feelings toward me and to give you no cause to leave me off the committee on which I now serve, other than your alleged accusation—the want of party fealty. I assure you I will not let such a charge pass by if you put your determination to remove me into effect.

You wrote the most insulting letters to me about Mr. HEARST. Do you think this was right and just to me, when I had expressed on the floor of the House at least a personal regard for him, and had praised most of the features of his bill? Do you think it was just and right? I am sure it was not just and right.

Under no circumstances, Mr. WILLIAMS, would I make a threat against you; but if you do me this great wrong and personal indignity, I will feel at liberty to go over all this matter of our correspondence in whatever way I deem best for my defense. You are about to do an act which your party colleagues will condemn in you—if not to your face, at least in their hearts. And the country will condemn you.

I have nothing personal against you. I released myself from the support of Mr. CLARK, with his consent, to vote for you because you came from a State that had honored my uncle, Mr. Justice Lamar.

The matter is with you, and the consequences of a disruption of our personal friendship and association be with you if you so desire it. You can not maintain your charge against me. If there is want of harmony, if there is discord on our side, it will not be my fault. It is an unjust act you are about to do, and I rest it all there.

Very truly, yours,

W. B. LAMAR.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, it has gone out to the country through the press—I have a clipping here before me which I need not burden the RECORD with—that the leader of the minority will not tolerate any followers of HEARST on the floor of this House; that he reduced Mr. SHACKLEFORD and Mr. LAMAR to the ranks because they were Hearst men.

Mr. Chairman, so far as that is concerned, I have but to answer this: I made myself plain, I think, to every man on the floor of this House who cared to listen, so far as the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. HEARST] is concerned. I owe no more political allegiance to Mr. HEARST than I owe to Mr. WILLIAMS. They are both Democrats. They are both in the ranks. I will march shoulder to shoulder as quickly with the gentleman from New York as I will with the gentleman from Mississippi to accomplish Democratic victory. I feel perfectly free, if the gentleman from New York brings a bill in here, to champion that bill, to express myself in its behalf, to follow its wise provisions, to give him the credit for the masterly legal provisions shown in the bill. I feel at liberty to champion the Hearst bill on the floor of this House, as I would the Davey bill, or the Williams bill, or any other bill.

I will tell our minority leader, I will tell him in the presence of my Democratic colleagues, I will tell him in the presence of our Republican associates, that he has contributed more to Democratic inharmony in the brief space of one minute than I have in the long term of one year.

I do not hold this great power of naming the committees. To some extent I am a stranger in this House. The minority leader has served here, in many instances with much ability, for a long time. He is a party leader by the votes of my colleagues, together with my own. I voted for him three years ago, and had I been here at the first of this session I would have voted for him again. But I am free to say here that in the management of this great transportation question in the House of Representatives the minority leader blundered fearfully in one respect, if he called a Democratic caucus before the hearings were closed before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce to bind the hands of the Democrats to that minority caucus bill.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I could state with more truth than he has to charge me with party unfealty that that caucus was not right; that it was party treachery and party perfidy. I do not make that charge. His charge is more than an injustice, and unless Mr. WILLIAMS places himself before a caucus of Democrats——

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will call the attention of the gentleman from Florida to the fact that under the rules he should not mention by name any other Member of the House.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, I shall limit my remarks to the proprieties of debate. If I have transgressed them, it was an unintentional act on my part.

Mr. Chairman, the minority leader of this House will have to, in some just and proper way, submit his accusation to those who authoritatively can declare upon it, or I say on the floor of this House, as I wrote to him, that our personal friendship is dissolved, that our personal associations are dissolved, much as I regret it; and I shall maintain always that his charge is not founded upon the history of that caucus and has not a particle of truth in it. I shall maintain in the face of my Democratic colleagues here that it is wrong, that it is unjust, and that it is untrue. These gentlemen here are his triers and are mine. The House will hear both sides. I am willing, so far as I am concerned, if the minority leader's charge is true, to bear the odium of having made an agreement and broken it, but I say to him—and I have brought this matter up in order to let it fall upon him—that if the charge is not true then the odium of having preferred a false accusation against a brother Democrat must rest upon him.

Mr. Chairman, I shall quote but one Member on this side of the House in favor of the provisions of that Hearst bill. What Member on the floor of this House occupies any higher position than Judge DE ARMOND, a man of high character, a man of fine abilities, a man of spotless purity of life, a leader in the highest and purest and best sense? I shall ask the Clerk to read the paragraph that I have marked, which gives Judge DE ARMOND'S opinion of what is called the "Hearst bill."

The Clerk read as follows:

I am not going far into the discussion of the merits of this bill or that bill, but I say frankly, simply because I believe it, that of all the bills introduced upon this subject the bill most comprehensive in its treatment of it; the bill which, if enacted into law, would be productive of the most good; the bill susceptible of the least misconstruction and least misapplication; the bill which guards most effectively against tendencies to minimize, weaken, and destroy corrective measures, is the bill introduced last spring and long pending in that committee—the bill of the gentleman from New York [Mr. HEARST]. It is the fruit of study and experience, developed while its author as a private citizen, at his own expense, contended in the courts for the rights of the people against the coal barons and other oppressive monopolists.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, the people of my State, of the Third Congressional district—in fact, of the entire State of Florida—will want no better encomium upon a piece of proposed legislation in this House, although it was not upon the Calendar of the House, but which came informally before the House, than that pronounced by Judge DE ARMOND. There are a great series of remedies that should be carried into effect, and will eventually be carried into effect by the Congress, to restrain corporations in their pernicious activities. The Hearst bill, so far as I could judge—and I thought I had some qualifications to determine upon that matter—without being a perfect piece of legislation was far closer an approach to correcting the evils set out by the reports of the Industrial Commission, the evils set out by the recommendations of President Roosevelt, the evils set out by reports continued for ten or fifteen years by the Interstate Commerce Commissioners, than any measure then pending before this House. Under the limitations of that caucus, and within its limitations and with the latitude allowed me, I joined in the favorable report of the Davey bill to this House, two sections of it being the caucus bill plus the five sections added by the committee; and in a subsidiary manner reported that while I approved the Davey bill and joined in a favorable report upon it, it was done subject to the views that I also set upon the Hearst bill.

Now, there was not a word in the Esch-Townsend bill, the Republican bill—and it should have been there; there was not a word in the Davey bill, the Democratic caucus bill—and it should have been there—correcting the iniquities of terminal fees and private car lines. My State has suffered unjustly in the terminal-fees matter. The vegetable and melon and fruit industries of my State have been injured by the unjust exactions of the private cars. Mr. Chairman, from the little town in which I reside, Monticello, Fla., to Pittsburg, Pa., it has cost the large and extortionate price of $90 for icing charges on a car of cantaloupes, while according to the best testimony taken upon this subject, a charge of from $18 to $30 would be the maximum price these private car lines should justly charge—$60 taken at one fell swoop out of one small parcel of freight!

It has laid a crushing burden upon such industries and paralyzed them. Was it not my duty here to seek to bring before this House informally—and I did it only in an informal way under the committee rule—those features of legislation which I would gladly see enacted into law if I had absolute power to do it, and so I reported in that subsidiary manner the Hearst bill, in defense of the State of Florida and on behalf of public interests generally. I have arisen without that feeling of indignation which I had a day or two ago, with not that feeling of resentment toward the minority leader which I had a day or two ago. But I am amazed, and I confess it to my Democratic brethren, and I will express it to my Republican associates, at the charge made by the minority leader against a brother Democrat that is reckless and unjust and that is utterly untrue and not founded upon the facts.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I am about to perform a very unpleasant duty, and one about the wisdom of the performance of which I have serious doubts, but as this speech of the gentleman from Florida has been preceded by interviews in the newspapers, it might perhaps be well that I should say a few words. First and foremost it is well that I should give reasons for the conduct which I have pursued in reference to the appointment, not the removal of anybody from the Committee on Interstate Commerce, because there was no removal, for the simple reason with each Congress every committee is tabula rasa. The gentleman takes himself too seriously.

Mr. LAMAR. That is what I wrote you.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman takes himself too seriously. He takes his position too seriously. He thinks he can make of a committee appointment a national issue. He can not do it, Mr. Chairman. Now, I will give the reasons which prompted me. Here was the Fifty-ninth Congress about to meet. The first and foremost question presented for its consideration, and the one most immediately near the heart of the people for solution, was the question of the regulation of the rates of railroads engaged in interstate commerce. Six men had to be appointed on the Democratic side of that committee. I was titular Democratic leader. I had the power and the responsibility of naming those six men.

Now, I will leave it to anybody, I leave it to the Republicans, I leave it to school children, I will leave it to fools to answer this question: Would I not have been a fool, would I not have been unutterably assinine, would I not have been absolutely unworthy of the place which I held and void of all moral courage, too weak to hold it or any place of responsibility, if, knowing beforehand from my acquaintance with the personnel on the committee last Congress that four of them stood irrevocably one way and two of them stood irrevocably another way, I had reappointed every one of them again to present once more an absurd and ridiculous divided front upon this great question upon which the Democratic party is more nearly united than it ever has been upon any question since my service in the House [applause], except only the repeal of the Federal election laws in the Fifty-third Congress. Oh, I repeat, the gentleman takes himself too seriously. His illustrious uncle, L. Q. C. Lamar, a great statesman, a great orator, and a very good judge, possessed one trait which the gentleman possesses and another trait which he does not possess. The great L. Q. C. Lamar possessed a superb egotism, but it was justified, aye, it was consecrated, by his superb intellect. [Laughter.]

Now, Mr. Chairman, I had one of two things to do, either to appoint two men in place of the two who could agree with the four or to leave out the four and appoint four men who could agree with the two. I did not believe that the four men were so much the inferiors, intellectually or as statesmen, of either of the two gentlemen as to lead me to believe that it was well to take a course involving the most friction by removing the four, though I might perhaps have found four who would agree with the two by searching with a microscope. I was led all the more to this conclusion by the fact the Democratic caucus, whose action was defied by the gentleman, had voted upon the two bills and overwhelmingly adopted the bill advocated by the four. Every member of that caucus except seven, I believe—it may have been nine—indorsed the bill which the four members indorsed, and only nine indorsed the bill which the two members of the committee indorsed. I was led all the more to it by the fact that during the summer the gentleman from Florida himself was interviewed in the Washington Post, reiterating his position and going so far as to say that the bill he advocated had not received "a fair consideration," which I regarded as a reflection on his Democratic colleagues.

By the way, in that interview he uttered high praise of myself, higher than I deserve, and I thank him for it. I am glad to have any man's praise and want to have every man's friendship, but my brother would have gone off that committee under those circumstances. The gentleman knows as well as he knows his name that if the Hearst bill had been reported by the majority of the Democrats on that committee to the Democratic caucus it would have received my support upon the floor of the caucus and upon the floor of this House as warmly as the bill that was reported. The gentleman knows, and his admission stands on the RECORD of the last Congress, that during all the numerous conferences between the Democratic members of that committee—some of them when I was present and some when I was not present—the Hearst bill was never once advocated or so much as mentioned by him or the gentleman from Missouri. Let him explain that, if he can, amongst his numerous interviews.

He knows that during that entire time, and in all of those conferences, neither he nor any other minority member of that committee so much as mentioned the Hearst bill, much less advocated it. He knows that not until after the last conference of the minority members of that committee was held in Judge RICHARDSON'S room at the Riggs House, and after they had apparently agreed, as I thought, he expressing no dissent and being present, and he voting, as I remember, for the motion that two lawyers upon the committee put into bill shape the principles on which he had agreed, did one of us, his colleagues on the committee, or I know that he advocated our adoption of the Hearst bill. Not until after that conference, and sometime between that and the meeting of the Democratic caucus, did he ever so much as suggest that the Hearst bill was the proper expression of Democratic opinion upon that great question. That bill was never mentioned in our minority committee conference but once, and it was mentioned then by me, and that was in that last conference, and for reenforcement of all of these statements I refer to the other Democratic members of that committee. I said in that last conference, "Gentlemen, if you are going into the question of private car abuses and other railroad abuses, besides this keystone question of the power to substitute a rate, there are some excellent provisions in the Hearst bill upon the private car line question, and it may be well for us to take it up as a skeleton and consider it." Somebody tabooed the suggestion. I will not repeat the language. I forget which member it was; but nobody else enforced the suggestion. And that was the only time that the Hearst bill was ever mentioned in our conferences seeking agreement.

Oh, the conversion to that bill, uninspired, was as sudden as the inspired conversion of Paul on his way to Damascus, with this difference, that God needed Paul to do work for him and it was necessary that Paul should be converted. [Laughter.]

The gentleman now says that I have "slapped him in the face." He ought to know better. The gentleman tells me that I must do without his personal regard hereafter. He ought not to have said it. But if he persists in it I shall manage somehow or other to exist. I hope he will not withdraw his recognition, but if he does I shall get along.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I shall ignore all of the personal things that were said about me in this connection here or in the newspaper interviews. It is, perhaps, unworthy of me personally not to ignore them, but I know it would be unworthy of me as the leader of a great and dignified party upon this floor. [Applause on the Democratic side.] There has been a studious attempt to make it appear that I was actuated somehow by personal antagonism and animosity toward the gentleman from New York [Mr. HEARST]. The gentleman, in his letter there, says—I have forgotten his exact language—personal abuse, I think——

Mr. LAMAR. Stronger than that.

Mr. WILLIAMS (continuing). That I said "most insulting things about Mr. HEARST" in a letter to him. I deny it. All I have ever said there was not of a personal character in the slightest degree; and I have copies of the letters.

Mr. LAMAR. Does the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] object to an interruption?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I will put the letter in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] yield to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR]?

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR] can not claim to me that there are no personal relations between us and then ask the courtesy of interrupting me at the same time.

Mr. LAMAR. I meant purely in a parliamentary way.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I will not yield. Mr. Chairman, whatever may be my opinion of the statesmanship of Mr. HEARST, it had nothing to do with the report by the majority of the Democrats upon that committee on the bill which they did report, and the necessary consequent turning down, not only of the Hearst bill, but of thirteen or fourteen others that were pending before the committee. And nobody knows that better than the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR]. I pride myself, and I believe I have a right to pride myself, upon one thing, and all the more because I have so few things upon which to pride myself, and that one thing is that I never permit my personal likes or dislikes to interfere with me in the transaction of public business. I believe it is notorious that that is true. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

I have treated the gentleman from New York like any other Member of this House. Two years ago I put him upon the only committee that he asked to be put upon. I put him there after the committees had been filled up and the names of the men appointed had been published. I went to a gentleman on the committee and told him I wanted the place for him, and he gave it up so that the gentleman from New York might have it. This year he has been advanced to the senior Democratic place upon that committee, and will in due course of seniority be chairman, if the country goes Democratic and he remains in the House. Then the gentleman from New York, through his California papers, having shown great interest in the subject of irrigation, was put by me this Congress upon the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands as a former California man interested in that subject. It is true—perhaps I ought not to say it—I do not love the gentleman from New York. Why should I love a millionaire with a whole lot of papers that seem to be used solely for the purpose, so far as I am concerned, of breaking me down? I do not make the mistake of the gentleman from Florida; I do not regard myself as a national issue [laughter]; therefore, while I do not like the attitude of the gentleman from New York toward me, that does not control me in attending to my business upon this floor or my treatment of him as a legislator.

I do not know, Mr. Chairman, whether I ought to say anything more or not. I did what I did because it was right. It was right; it is right; it was wise, and it is wise. I am justified by the almost unanimous opinion of this side of the House. [Loud applause on the Democratic side.] The gentleman asked me to call a caucus for the purpose of having myself rebuked. Why, the gentleman knows—no Member of this House knows better than he—that there is a prescribed method of calling a caucus. I am not vain or anything of that sort; but at the same time I have too much self-love to want to call a caucus to rebuke myself. If the gentleman thinks the Members of the party are willing to do it, he can call a caucus for that purpose if he can get a sufficient number of signatures; and if he can not get enough to call a caucus I suppose he would admit in advance that he could not get enough to justify his position of rebuking me for my action.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I have done what I did "in malice to none and in charity to all." I promoted the gentleman who has just taken his seat—the gentleman from Florida—to Foreign Affairs, which is the fourth most important committee of this House. The Committee on Rules is first, Ways and Means, second; Appropriations, third, and Foreign Affairs, fourth, because it deals with all international questions and with the affairs of the State Department, whose Cabinet head is the American premier. Now, if the gentleman had gone along quietly it would have helped him in Florida; it would not have hurt him, and, if I may be excused for telling an anecdote on a grave and dignified occasion, I believe I will tell one. A man died in New York. His body was carried to the morgue. A description of the body was published in the papers. Finally two brothers out in Texas whose father had gone to New York at some time concluded it was their father. The corpse bore their father's name. They were ranchmen and wealthy; so they wired on and said "the body seems to be the body of so and so; if so, to have the undertaker dress the corpse in a proper manner and embalm it and they would be up there. They went on up and looked at the corpse, and it looked very much like what their father had been. Now, there was on it one of those undertaker's cloths to keep the lower jaw from dropping down. The cloth in some way became dislocated, and the jaw dropped down, and there fell out of the mouth of the corpse a set of false teeth. Then these boys who had come to New York said: "That is not our father. He never had false teeth; he did not have time to get false teeth, and we decline to pay the funeral expenses," nothing thus far having been done. Then the undertaker had a conversation with the corpse after the boys had left. Said he, "Oh, yes; if you had kept your blamed mouth shut you would have had a first-class funeral [great laughter], conducted in a first-class manner, with all sorts of plumes and feathers and four black horses and a great big metallic casket and a fine hearse and hired mourners, with all the latest embellishments so welcome to the feelings of corpses, but you could not keep it shut, and now you will be buried without any honors and nobody will attend the funeral. There will not even be any hired mourners."

Mr. Chairman, it is seldom, indeed, that intense national interest can be aroused in the exhibition of any man's sores, unless the sores are of a contagious character. Happily for mankind, the sores of injured vanity are never contagious.

I have not invited this. I have tried my best to prevent it. I have tried to save the gentleman from himself. Would to God that I could have done it! He belongs to a grand old southern family, who have contributed to the statesmanship and the prowess of this country not a little by their history in Georgia, in Mississippi, and in Florida.

I did all I could. The letter which the gentleman publishes there, from myself to him, shows how careful I was to try to spare his feelings, even after the first interview in the Star had appeared attacking me in a vicious manner, to say the least. I can not answer these personal attacks. I do not know how to answer them. I only remember this, Mr. Chairman, not to imitate them, and I am not going to imitate them. I am not going to imitate them because of my recollection of an incident in my own life.

My mother's father, while a self-made man and an uneducated one in a certain sense, but a broadly read one, was a man of magnificent sense of propriety as well as magnificent common sense. Soon after the time of the breaking out of the war, when I was a boy, some planters' sons were over at our house, on the long pavilion on the west side, and got to discussing the question of secession, which was then rife. Some ladies were present. One of the gentlemen, the son of a neighboring planter, became excited during the discussion and said things which he ought not to have said; nothing that could not have been said in the presence of ladies, but something that was rude. My old grandfather had a way of never mentioning any man's name angrily, and when he did not like anybody he would simply move out of the crowd. When this man had left, without mentioning his name at all, my grandfather put his hand on my head and said, "John, my boy, remember all your life never to insult anyone except when the insult can be immediately resented." I remembered that, and I have always tried to act in accordance with it. I am sorry, not even angry, though it may appear strange to the gentleman from Florida, that I could not prevent him from self-inflicted hurt; that I could not save him from himself. He has had his way finally, through the yielding of the floor manager of the Republican party, who, of course, wanted to see this linen washed.

The gentleman has had his way. He has not helped me, he has not helped himself, he has not helped the Democratic party, he has not helped the country; he has done but one thing that I can see, and that was to give me the opportunity to explain how it was that I had nothing under the sun to do with the fact that the Hearst bill was not the bill reported by that committee. I did not attend the meeting of the committee in order to mold legislation. I attended to harmonize differences, and I finally thought that I had harmonized them. The gentleman says if I do not withdraw a charge of some sort that personal relations will cease. We had better be frank now. I have made but one charge. That especial language in the newspaper I did not literally use. I have made but one charge. I used this language, and I repeat it now, that I had to have harmony and united action upon that committee in order to keep that committee from appearing ridiculously divided where the party was nearly united to a man. I removed the two rather than the four, for these reasons, and I repeat it for the further reason that the two had defied the action of a Democratic caucus, and that the two had totally failed to agree with their four Democratic colleagues, and that later on in the summer the gentleman from Florida had taken pains to be interviewed in order to tell the country that he would still not agree with the four. I could not expect the four to agree with the two. I cared not, and I stated it again and again and again last Congress, and I state now to the members of that committee, the House, and the country that I did not care what bill they brought out, provided only that these four things were in the bill, and they were in the Davey bill:

First. Give to the Commission the power to prescribe a substitute rate.

Second. Put that rate into operation immediately, or after reasonable notice.

Third. Allow it to go in the regular course by appeal or review to the courts, and not to be set aside except when set aside in that way by a final decision, the courts acting as an appellate court and not hearing the facts de novo.

Fourth. Not to be suspended in the course of litigation except where the Constitution gives judicial power to suspend, namely, where the decision is in the opinion of the court unconstitutional, as taking private property without due process of law—that is, confiscatory in its character, or where, in the opinion of the court, the decision of the Commission is unlawful. That is, that it transcended the power conferred upon the Commission by the Congress of the United States.

Now, I said then, I say now, if you put those four things in the bill, that is all I want. I said if you put those four things in the bill that will be satisfactory to me. I do not care whose bill it is. I had a bill pending before the committee, and I might as well get angry because they did not report the bill and call it the "Williams bill," but they did not.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD rose.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. The gentleman from Mississippi has stated the requirements which he wanted to put into the bill. I would like to ask him if there was anything in the bill reported by the gentleman from Florida and the gentleman from Missouri that in any manner conflicted with those things that he wanted in the bill?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Not at all; both bills contained it. Now, Mr. Chairman, one other word and I am done. I was of the opinion at that time that the keystone of the necessary legislation proper to regulate railways lay in those four propositions. I was of the opinion that with them all railroad abuses could be tolerably well handled, and that without them no conceivable legislation could do any good. I am glad to say that the President of the United States, in his message this year, takes that position almost in those words.

Now, the committee never contemplated going any further than that in that bill. They were going to leave for another bill the private car lines, the terminal abuses, the switch abuses, and the balance of it. After the bill was brought into the caucus, after it was introduced, it was understood there that we could add to it provisions upon those subjects—many Democrats wanted it done—and we did add to it provisions upon those subjects as far as the House would permit us. It was not understood, of course, that any man could go out and vote for a substitute for the bill adopted by the caucus, as these two gentlemen did. The gentleman says, and says truly, that he signed the report introducing the Davey bill. Aye, he did. But he also did an unprecedented thing by signing on the same day and putting into the box on the same day a report recommending another bill as a substitute for the bill which he had reported in favor of. He signed for both bills. So the Democratic side of the committee did not stand four to two exactly, but it stood four and a half to one and a half, as you might say. [Laughter.]

Now, Mr. Chairman, I started out by saying that I doubted the wisdom of saying anything. I believe I doubt it more after I am through than I did when I started, and I will now close. I thank the House for its attention. [Applause.]

(Mr. WILLIAMS here inserted in the RECORD, as supplementary to his remarks, the letter to Mr. LAMAR, to which the latter referred and which the former promised to insert, and submits that the perusal of it, while it will show political criticism, shows no personal abuse and nothing personally insulting toward Mr. HEARST or anybody else:

YAZOO CITY, MISS., October 12, 1905.

Hon. WILLIAM B. LAMAR,
Tallahassee, Fla.

MY DEAR SIR: I inclose you a squib which was cut out of a Washington paper and sent to me by some one. I have marked the part of it which attracted my attention. Of course you know that the Hearst bill was pending before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and therefore pending before the Democratic Members of it about a year, maybe more; I do not remember now just how long. I can not therefore understand how, as a member of that committee, you say that the bill "did not have a fair showing." You are, of course, cognizant of the fact that neither you nor any other Democratic member of the committee, at any of the very many general conferences of the Democratic members of the committee with the leader of the minority, ever at any time suggested the consideration or report of the Hearst bill as the Democratic policy on that question. If the Hearst bill had been proposed and agreed upon by the Democratic members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, it would have been pushed and advocated by me, notwithstanding my judgment was against it, as warmly as the bill which was agreed upon as an expression of our policy.

You will also remember that in all the conferences which we held upon the subject we proceeded upon the assumption that we were meeting the expression of Republican policy upon the single question of rate making with an expression of Democratic policy upon the same question. You and I are friends personally and politically, and I hope, therefore, you will excuse me for saying that I do not see how any good can come out of a Democrat being interviewed and charging his party with not having been "fair" toward any bill pending before a commitee, especially if he himself was a member of that committee, and still more especially if he himself never demanded of his Democratic colleagues or floor leader at any Democratic conference the consideration of the bill in question. I do not know whether you gave the Hearst bill what you consider a fair showing or not. You are the best judge of that. I know that I gave it what I considered a fair showing, and I regarded it as prolix and complex, containing too much new machinery to be a practical measure. I know that it aroused my suspicion that it was in some places too drastic, with the set purpose of procuring the defeat of proposed legislation by dividing the conservative and radical friends of reform. You and I have had sufficient legislative experience to know that there are two ways of defeating any legislation which is offered with a view of killing existing abuses. One way is frankly to oppose it. The other way is to overdo it, to try to make the proposed remedial legislation so drastic in some particulars as to secure the defeat of all legislation. In other words, by attempting to throw the hounds off of the scent by running ahead of them.

Right or wrong—and I may have been wrong, because I am wrong about as frequently as I am right—that was my view of the Hearst bill. I may not have been altogether unbiased in arriving at that conclusion, may have been somewhat prejudiced against the source of the bill, because the man who offered it had been deliberately and consciously unfair to me, but more than that because I have a habit of distrusting plutocrats when playing the rôle of Democrat.

HEARST, in his paper, said that the bill had not had a fair showing, and charged that I was the cause of it, and then proceeded, in his usual yellow-journal style, to "eat up and spew out" the gentleman from Mississippi. I never noticed him; but as the only man who has been charged publicly with having deprived the Hearst bill of a fair showing is your humble servant, I desire to say to you, whose opinion is worth consideration, that if, in your assertion that it did not have a fair showing, you mean that I did not give it what I considered a fair showing, you are absolutely mistaken and altogether unjust.

I have my personal likes and dislikes, as all men have. I am human, like other men, and when a millionaire with a lot of newspapers goes into the business of trying to break me down by false insinuations and unjust and unfair methods I do not love him—would probably hate him if I ever took the trouble to hate anybody for any length of time. But, notwithstanding all that, I am never led in my legislative capacity by my personal feelings toward men, and nothing is more notorious concerning public men in America than that fact.

If you will permit me, I will call your attention to another thing in your interview, not of a personal character at all, and a thing very natural and very excusable, because it is so prevalent—that is, a division of the Democratic party into two classes—conservative and radical. A true Democrat is neither a conservative nor a radical. He is both. He is conservative when it comes to conserving, or preserving or saving, right and Democratic and American things. He is radical when it comes to tearing up by the roots radical abuses. He is simply Democratic always, and meets each question upon its own merits from a Democratic standpoint and solves it with plain common sense. Common sense frequently suggests that a cause can best be carried to success by going slow. Common sense frequently also suggests that a battle can best be won by an impetuous charge. Everything depends upon the condition of the ground, the situation of the enemy, and your own forces.

There is no such thing in my dictionary as a conservative Democrat. There is no such thing in my dictionary as a radical Democrat. There is just one thing—a Democrat. Too many men who call themselves conservative Democrats are really at heart Republicans. Too many men who call themselves radical Democrats are really at heart Populists or Socialists, as the case may be—the two things being, by the way, by no means the same thing.

A party can not win ultimate success by having its differences emphasized. There are always differences, of course. The way to win ultimate success is to minimize differences, as far as possible without sacrifice of fundamental principle, and to emphasize agreed purposes.

If "the only bill that at all met the evils and provided a remedy was the Hearst bill," as you say, how can any member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee explain the fact that he never discovered it until within three or four days before all the proposed legislation was brought before the House for consideration. If you yourself had brought up the Hearst bill at any time in conference, had proposed to have it read and considered, you know that I, for one, would have agreed readily and would have entered upon its consideration. It seems to me that your interview, between the lines at any rate, did injustice to me. I am not in the habit of rushing into print. My habit is when I think injustice has been done me to write a frank and friendly letter to the man who, in my opinion, has done it, if I am on friendly terms with him, and to ask him to correct it.

Please give my regards to Mrs. Lamar, and believe me,

Very truly, yours,

JOHN S. WILLIAMS.)

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman——

Mr. SHACKLEFORD rose.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair has promised to recognize the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD]. The gentleman from Florida has had his time; he had an hour, and he used forty-five minutes and did not reserve the balance of his time.

Mr. LAMAR. That is what I intended to do, Mr. Chairman. If the gentleman from Missouri will yield to me a few minutes without prejudicing his rights——

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman have five minutes.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for fifteen minutes.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I want to submit to the gentleman from Florida that if we go on getting unanimous consent to answer one another all day, does he think it is helping himself or me or the Democratic party or anybody? If he does, I shall not object.

Mr. LAMAR. I hope the gentleman from Mississippi will not be so ungracious as to object.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I will not object if the gentleman thinks it will help either him or me.

Mr. LAMAR. I do.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Then go ahead.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida asks unanimous consent that he may have fifteen minutes. Is there objection?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas objects.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw the objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there further objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. LAMAR. Now, Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from Mississippi, the minority leader, has furnished to Republicans certainly more amusement than I have attempted to contribute to them. If the truth could fall out of the mouth of the minority leader as the false teeth fell out of the mouth of the corpse in the story which he told, he would have more to pride himself upon than he now possesses. The minority leader institutes a comparison between the great abilities of Justice L. Q. C. Lamar and my own. I never did an act on the floor of this House, I never have attempted to pose in any way that would draw me into disastrous contrast with Justice Lamar.

Mr. Chairman, I have said repeatedly that the weightiest limitation upon me in this House is the overshadowing fame of that distinguished man. Permit me to draw a comparison. Mississippi has had for three of her Senators, George, Walthall, and L. Q. C. Lamar. The minority leader aspires to that proud position, I believe. Should he win it and take his seat in the Senate Chamber and a Mississippian who had never seen him should come to this great temple of legislation to visit and see his Senator, I predict that he will find seated in that chair what the visitor finds in some of those great Indian temples, with their lofty pillars, with their magnificent arcades and far-reaching perspective. Hoping to find a form like an Olympian Jove, he will come face to face with the image of a shriveled ape. The minority leader would like to have quietude over here, and would like to be followed. Here is how he would like to be followed by the Democracy:

MINORITY LEADER. Do you see yonder cloud that's almost in shape of a camel?

Some Democratic MEMBER. By the mass, and 'tis like a camel indeed.

WILLIAMS. Methinks——

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida must obey the rules of the House.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, I lapsed again. I shall proceed.

The MINORITY LEADER. Methinks it is like a weasel.

Some DEMOCRAT (if he should be so blind). It is backed like a weasel.

The MINORITY LEADER. Or like a whale.

Some GENTLEMAN (who does not care to differ with his leader). Very like a whale.

Mr. Chairman, that is the kind of peace the gentleman from Mississippi wants on this side of the House—that which reigned at Warsaw. "He made a desert and called it peace." I decline to accept his definition of Democratic harmony here. I shall follow him as a leader as long as he holds that position, but I repudiate, with all the contempt that I have for him, the idea that he is fit to lead anybody anywhere. Now, I shall ask him—I say it on the floor of this House——

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I very much dislike to call attention to a rule of the House, but as it is apt by its enforcement to prevent unpleasant things from happening on the floor I do call attention to the fact that the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR] is not permitted by the rules of the House to use insulting language on the floor.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] is correct, and the Chair thanks him for calling the attention of the Chair to the rule.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I do not want to have to protect myself.

The CHAIRMAN. The language the gentleman from Florida used was not distinctly heard at the Speaker's desk.

Mr. LAMAR. What language was it?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will please proceed in order and not indulge in personalities.

Mr. LAMAR. Now, Mr. Chairman, but one moment. Before anything can be binding upon any man it must be founded in right, it must be founded in good faith, in bona fides. Fraud vitiates everything. It goes to the root of a contract, and annuls it, and I do not hesitate to say, if the information I have received about the calling of that caucus was true, that while it was not a fraud in intent, it was a fraud in effect, upon the national democracy—a caucus called for wounded vanity. He is talking about my wounded vanity. Because his own party turned him down upon the Miles amendment, under his own hand he called a caucus for one purpose and used it for another. He talks about Saul! I wish to Heaven he would imitate some of his virtues.

Mr. Chairman, I repeat it, and it is for the minority leader to deny this allegation if it be not true, and I assert that it is true that that caucus was called by the minority leader to tender his resignation as party leader. I said I would protest against his resignation, that he ought not to do it, that it would make him puerile, and make us all ridiculous. Between the time of the calling of the caucus and the meeting of it he converted it into a caucus to consult upon railroad-rate legislation, a great national question, and precipitated the national Democracy into a premature discussion of a great Federal question.

Why, sir, the Republican platform for the past fifty years has not a line in it about railroad-rate legislation. The platform of the Democracy for eight years has demanded it. It is a great public question, and because the minority leader does not understand it, because he has not the slightest conception of that great and far-reaching question which affects his party and the public so greatly, is no reason why he should get up here and indulge in some cheap-john wit.

I say that the caucus was called to salve over his wounded vanity. If the call was for that purpose, it should have been carried out; if it was called to consider the railroad question, it should have been stated in the call, which was not done. I stated on the floor of this House at the last session that a Republican President had gone further than the Democratic caucus bill, and it was true. I said a Republican President had gone beyond his own party action in this House, and it was true. I said I was sorry to see the one and delighted to see the other.

The President in his message to this Congress reviews his recommendations of last year, and reminds us of the need of regulation of private car lines, and terminal fee evils, and demands legislation. The distinguished gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] differed from me in my views at that time, and thought I had misread and misquoted the President. I did not seek to retort upon him. The gentleman from Iowa himself was embarrassed at that time with an assassinous backhanded blow upon his character and reputation in his own State, in which he had my sympathy, so that I did not use the time he gave me to attempt to retort upon him with vulgar witticism, and when I rose to speak I had consideration for his great ability and place in this House, and contented myself with stating my own position. I knew that in his great heart he did not intend to do me an injustice. His irritation was not against me. It was the anger in his heart at the outrageous and cowardly attack made upon him in the dark seeking to bring him into ridicule and contempt before his constituents.

The gentleman from Mississippi said he has but little to pride himself upon. Mr. Chairman, I will not indulge here in a vulgar controversy with the gentleman. He is more than a match for me when it comes to throwing mud. I confess my inability to match him. The minority leader amuses himself with a Heidelberg joke when he should be leading his party like Blaine led his party, like Crisp led his party, even like Lamar led his party; and I think I can say, without being egotistical, I could beat him at that business now. [Applause.] I would never call a caucus to resign a party leadership and then disingenuously divert it to a purpose which was not contemplated in the call.

Mr. Chairman, there is something higher in this body than mere anecdotes; there is something higher in this body than mere jokes. I repeat it, that the Democratic caucus was called for a personal purpose and diverted to a great national purpose. And while it was not a fraud in intent, it was a fraud in effect upon the interests of the country. And that very caucus to-day is made the medium for challenging my fealty to it. I say it was not a caucus; I say it was a "gold brick;" not a Democratic gold brick, but a gold brick of the minority leader. I say that the next time he calls a caucus upon this question, let him call us together, and let us debate the bill, not a bill that is a mere vermiform appendix to a Republican measure, but let it be a bill in response to the great Democratic national heart that will go to the very root of this great evil. I will give precedence, in that case, to the minority leader, and I will follow. I will do that.

It is not pleasant to me to say all of this to a man whom I once respected.

Mr. Chairman, I have not insulted the gentleman. He began a correspondence with me that was highly offensive. He went to the newspapers with his statement that I defied the Democratic caucus at the last session upon railroad-rate legislation. I have made my reply to him here, in the proper forum, that it may go upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR] has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMS rose.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman——

Mr. WILLIAMS. I want to correct the last statement made by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR]. I never in any letter arraigned Mr. HEARST as a "millionaire demagogue."

Mr. LAMAR. I will show the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] the letter. If I can not find the letter I will take it back. I report it on my recollection now.

Mr. WILLIAMS. And I did not use any other abuse.

Mr. LAMAR. If I can not find the letter I will make amends.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] is recognized.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, into this House at the last session I had the honor in part to report a bill which provided for the regulation of railroad rates and transportation facilities. I came here with a charge from my people to ignore all bosses, set aside all dictation and demand legislation which should, not by implication, not by construction, but by express terms regulate railroads, warehouses, terminal facilities, private car lines, and everything used in connection with the transportation of the products of the people. I came here with that commission from the people. What should I have done with it? Should I have gone to the Speaker and said: "Mr. Speaker, what do you wish me to do?"

Why, Mr. Chairman, I bore a commission from my people, who told me what to do. What was it? Sir, it was that I should seek not partial but complete legislation upon this important subject. It was that I should seek to have private cars regulated along with the other evils of which the people complained.

Mr. Chairman, I shall raise no question of veracity here between me and another Member as to what happened in a caucus. What is a caucus? It is a conference. Its determination could not come between me and my oath to my God. It did not then and, as God helps me, it never shall come between me and the voice of the people.

Who sent me here? Whose servant am I? That of the people of Mississippi? No, sir; I am the servant of the sovereign people of the Eighth district of Missouri. Their commands I shall obey at all times. The man who would set up a barrier between me and the desire of my people I would refer to the happy hunting ground where George Cox, the Cincinnati boss, has gone, and where other bosses must eventually go.

No man can say that I violated that caucus without uttering an unmitigated falsehood. The caucus simply declared that it indorsed the provisions of the Davey bill. The bill I reported contained every provision of the Davey bill and not one word in conflict with it.

I am condemned because I reported the Hearst bill. Who is Mr. HEARST? A tall, stalwart man, who sits over here, from one of the New York districts; a handsome man, who possesses youth and modesty of demeanor. I have very little acquaintance with him. I am told he has large fortune and I know he has ample ability, and I commend him that, unlike most sons of wealth, he is devoting the golden fortunes which have come to him and the splendid talents with which God has endowed him to enlightening and making better the world in which he lives.

The Hearst bill arrested my attention because it provided in express terms for the regulation of private cars and private car lines; the classification of freights; for the regulation of warehouses, terminals, and terminal facilities. I found it was the kind of a bill my people desired me to support. I found, also, that there was not a line, not a letter of it, that was in conflict with what was done at the caucus. I reported the bill. But suppose a midnight caucus had declared for one thing and my people demanded another. What should I have done? Back in Missouri that question needs no answer.

The Esch-Townsend bill contained no express provision for regulating private car lines, neither did the Davey bill. The President, who assumes to be leading the fight for rate regulation, approved the Esch-Townsend bill. But time has passed, and I find by referring to the message sent to this session of Congress that he has seen light. Last session the bill which did not regulate private car lines met his approval, but now public opinion has driven him around to the provisions of the Hearst bill on this subject. I quote his message:

> All private car lines, industrial roads, refrigerator charges, and the like should be expressly put under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mark the word "expressly."

The President has come around to the Hearst bill. I want to say for the edification of the gentleman from Mississippi that he has not appointed on the committee any man who will have the hardihood to report out a bill which shall omit these provisions in express terms. I challenge the gentleman to stand upon this floor now and say that he is not in favor of putting into the bill in express terms the regulation of private car lines. Yet if we are to believe what we read I am to be condemned for doing that thing. For doing that I am to have written across my brow by him who assumes to be leader the words: "Thou are weighed and found wanting" and sent back to my people to apologize to them for having offended greatness.

Mr. Chairman, we talk of leaders. God Almighty makes leaders. A Democratic caucus never undertook to make one, and whoever adorns his brow with a coronet and gets astride a stick horse and struts into this Chamber shouting, "I am leader!" does that which no Democratic caucus has ever yet commissioned anybody to do. I will tell you who is a leader. He is a man whose doctrines are so sound, whose declarations are so clear, and whose heart is so bold that all must follow him—not under the lash of a boss, but because their hearts and their consciences constrain them.

We all sit in this Chamber coordinate leaders, bound by nothing but the oath we take to our Maker and the voice of the people who sent us here. I want to say, Mr. Chairman, that the voice of the Eighth district of Missouri is not to be stifled by the voice of the Eighth district of Mississippi. As long as I am a Member of this House I shall boldly assert the dignity and the sovereignty of the district which I represent.

They say I have been transferred from a committee. Why? Because I insisted on putting into express terms provision for the regulation of private car lines.

Mr. Chairman, this is not the first time I have seen the gentleman lead. At the St. Louis convention I saw him "lead through a slaughterhouse into an open grave."

Now, Mr. Chairman, I have gotten away from what I intended to say. There is the Hearst bill, which I reported into this House at the last session. It was not voted upon, but nearly every Democrat who spoke expressed regret that it was not. Why was it not voted upon? Did not these stalwart Democrats desire to honestly represent their constituents? The voice of a leader—a boss—kept them from it. Is that the way business is to be transacted here? Am I to cringe before the man who has no other authority than that which he falsely assumes and ask favors at his hands? A leader!

> Our captain was as brave a lad as e'er commission bore;
> All brightly shone his new tin sword, a paper cap he wore.

He comes to ride me down for what? Because I refused to be dictated to by a boss and insisted on carrying out the will of the people who sent me here.

The gentleman will continue to come here from the Eighth district of Mississippi. Some other than I may come from the Eighth district of Missouri. The gentleman may sit in the cloakroom and boast of his conquests while I plow corn on some hillside farm back in Missouri. But the waters that leap from the top of the Ozarks into the Osage in my district are not freer now than I shall be free all the days of my public life from the dictation of any boss. Defy? I did not defy any caucus. Everything the caucus recommended was in absolute accord with my views, in absolute accord with the views of my people and with the terms of the bill I reported. But if you should hold a midnight caucus and pass a gag rule, get the recognition of the Chair, yield time to whom you will, stifle the voice of every man of your party except him whom you choose to hear, and in one short hour bring out of that midnight meeting that of which there is no report, no record, nothing but the veracity of gentlemen to be relied upon to state what there occurred, put that between me and my duty to my constituents and I will defy it. I will defy every boss who puts his will above the will of the people whose agent I am.

Mr. Chairman, why is it that we do not have legislation here? Why, sir, we all know how it is done. We report a bill and the Committee on Rules sees to it that we do not get a vote on it. [Laughter.]

They say to you Republicans: "Don't be scared. We will fix it so your record will be all right. So you can go back to your constituents and say you would have voted for the Hearst bill if you had had an opportunity." And our leader helps it along on the principles of:

> Tickle me, Joey, oh, tickle me—do;
> You tickle me and I'll tickle you.

Why is it that not a Member of this House is recorded as voting for or against the regulation of private car lines? Because the bosses would not permit it.

Mr. Chairman, what is there in the aspect of this young man HEARST that so excites the alarm of some here? I will tell you. He has advocated some things that the people are for, and there be those interests in this country which employ other than direct methods to prevent that which the people desire. One way to stifle rate legislation is to deflect it. The easiest method of doing it is for some leader to come in and say: "Gentlemen, it can not all be done at once, we must take one step at a time. We will leave private car lines for another bill."

The President now says that "all private car lines should be expressly put under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. That is what was said last session in the bill which Mr. LAMAR and I reported. A vote was not allowed upon it then. Everybody is for it now. The people have been heard from. And we shall find that the gentleman from Mississippi will not be bold enough to go back to his people and say that he opposed regulating private cars in express terms. [Applause.] The gentleman from Mississippi says he always was in favor of regulating private cars, but I am from Missouri and must be shown. It is not enough to tell me about it.

Leader! I will tell you of a leader. I saw him walk into the convention at Chicago in 1896 with his credentials questioned. I saw him come into that convention later with that platform into which was written the thoughts on rate regulation of that wise sage of Texas, Judge Reagan. That convention put into his hands the banner of Democracy, on which was inscribed the demand for rate regulation. Theodore Roosevelt opposed him; the bosses opposed him; the McCalls and the McCurdys opposed him; the corporations opposed him. But the people as one man arose and followed him, and William Jennings Bryan would have been carried into the Presidency if boodle had not controlled instead of ballots. [Applause.] That, sir, is a leader. Not one who goes down at midnight into the dark recesses of a chamber where the curtains are pulled down and reporters ejected, and evolves something which can be reported only from the memory of men and undertakes to use that to coerce others, but one who abides in the hearts of the people and is followed because they believe in him and love him.

Oh, the little triumphs that come to men! I submit to the gentleman from Mississippi two qualities which a leader should not possess—vanity and vindictiveness. Those are qualities which should inhabit the breast of no man who would lead his fellows.

Mr. Chairman, I would not inflict injury upon the railroads. The greatest instrument of advancement and civilization of the American people is its system of railroads. He who with reckless hand shall lay any improper burden upon the railroads will be placing that burden upon the shoulders of the people. The railroads can not be improperly subjected to the payment of a farthing that is not a tribute levied on the people themselves. They can not be harrassed with sinister legislation without injury to the country. All we ask is that the people shall have fair play. As the President puts it, give all an equal opportunity. I commend the President for the utterance of that sentiment, and all honor to him for drawing his inspiration from the utterances of the greatest living Democrat. In his speech accepting his first nomination Mr. Bryan said:

> Our campaign has not for its object the reconstruction of society. We can not insure to the vicious the fruits of a virtuous life. We would not invade the home of the provident to supply the wants of the spendthrift. We do not propose to transfer the rewards of industry to the lap of indolence. Property is and will remain the stimulus to endeavor and the compensation for toil. We believe, as asserted in the Declaration of Independence, that all men are created equal; but that does not mean that all men are or can be equal in possessions, in ability, or in merit. It simply means that all shall stand equal before the law. I assert that property rights are safe in the hands of the common people.

That is a fair statement of the principles upon which the people would act in the regulation of railroad rates. They would not destroy, but they will control.

Mr. Chairman, when we look back at the contests waged by Mr. Bryan for regulation of railroads, we find much to encourage us. There are those now leading the fight for regulation who opposed him in 1896, 1900, and 1904. Aye, Mr. Chairman, even the strenuous Roosevelt fought us and our policies in all of those campaigns. We on this side sometimes become despondent because we are in the minority. Let us take courage and be of good cheer; we may not get the post-offices, but by the grace of God we will get rate regulation. We have fought the Republicans on that issue for twelve years—or rather they have fought us. They have seemed to win and we to lose, but it is not so. The very declarations of our platforms in 1896, 1900, and 1904 will in this year of our Lord be written into a bill which shall pass this House. We shall win and the people get that for which we fought. We hear much of the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt in the matter of rate regulation. Yes, Mr. Chairman, he leads, but as a stag leads the hounds or as a ship leads the storm. He leads in flight for safety from the indignation of the people, aroused to a sense of their wrongs by the bold leadership of Mr. Bryan and his fellows. Let us take courage from the example of that great apostle of Democracy, that uncrowned king anointed with the benedictions of every man who loves human liberty. It is not necessary that we should be in the majority to triumph. Man is responsible only for effort; with God rests the responsibility for results. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Missouri has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, the only boss that I know on this side of the Chamber is a Democratic caucus and the membership on the Democratic side of a committee dealing with any particular question. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] may call them bosses if he chooses. I care not what he calls them. He may defy their voices if he chooses. I care nothing about that. For myself——

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, may I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. WILLIAMS. For myself I have never found the time when I thought I was wiser than the collected body of my colleagues. I have never found the time when I thought I was wiser than the committeemen who served with me dealing with a proposition from a Democratic standpoint. I would not myself surrender my judgment or conviction to a caucus or to the members of a committee upon any matter of material importance, certainly not any matter of difference about a constitutional question; but when things are nearly equal I think it is a different thing, because a man knows that the Government of this country is carried on by parties and that there is no other practicable way to carry it on. In a certain sense my party, therefore, is my boss, and I am not ashamed of it. [Applause on the Democratic side.] Now, Mr. Chairman, I will answer the gentleman's question, but I do not want to talk. I desire to finish at once.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Two questions in view of the last thing the gentleman said. The gentleman speaks of his party. Does he consider that the man who is named for Speaker must be my party?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Oh, Mr. Chairman, I did not yield for puerile questions.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. I will give the gentleman another. I will give him one that is not puerile.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Very well.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. The gentleman from Mississippi was in a caucus here on the night of the 3d day of December, 1905. I should like to know, if he thought the gentleman from Florida [Mr. LAMAR] and the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] had dealt in such a way as to be unworthy of the confidence of the caucus, as to demand a castigation for having defied the caucus, why did he not in fairness submit that to the caucus instead of assuming to determine it himself? Why didn't he let these gentlemen say whether I should be punished or whether I should not, when he had the opportunity?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I did not yield for a speech, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. That is a question; why didn't you do that?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I can yield no more. The gentleman can call a caucus if he wants to.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. No; I can not. These men would not sign it, because they would get thrown off the committees if they did.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I arose to say this, and this only: I have had enough of this and, so far as I am concerned, to close the incident I do not want to reply to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] at all. He has so far overshot the mark of the facts in connection with all this business he has been discussing that I leave it safely and forever, as far as I am concerned, in the memories of those who were at the caucus, in the memories of those who were on the floor, and in the RECORD as it stands.

Now, I desire to say a few words not concerning that. Let the dead past go. It is gone anyway.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. He can not hinder it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Look to the future. Now, we shall have this year, I hope, six Democrats who can agree about something on some committee of the House, and when they do agree, as they are going to agree, the old Democratic party is going to march on out of seeming dark disaster into the bright sunshine of victory. [Applause on the Democratic side.] I have not felt in a great long time so much as I do now that there is going to be a Democratic House of Representatives. I feel it now. I may be mistaken, of course. I have been more often mistaken in my life than I have been right, as far as that is concerned, and I am not one of those who pretend to the contrary. Let us then face the future—that is gone. I have assumed the responsibility for it. I thought I acted wisely; I think so yet. I was not called upon to question the gentleman's motives in answer to his last question. I have not questioned them and I do not now. I merely wanted a team that could and would pull together. I am tired of teams that pull in every direction in the world except together, and the Democratic party is tired of them, too. [Applause on the Democratic side.] Our party is represented in all the "funny papers" as a donkey. The truth is that the country is tired of you Republicans over there on that side of the Chamber and afraid of us on this side. [Great laughter and applause.] Just the sort of thing you have just listened to from the gentleman from Missouri this morning is what makes them afraid of us.

Now, Mr. Chairman, there will come before this House from the Committee on Interstate Commerce either a Democratic substitute containing all the provisions that I referred to this morning dealing with private car abuses that the gentleman himself did not suggest be dealt with last year until after the last conference between the minority members of the committee had been held, or if he did I do not remember it, and if he did I will correct that in the RECORD or withdraw it now——

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Better withdraw it now, because I will show you by documentary evidence you are wrong.

Mr. WILLIAMS. He says he did—my memory does not bear him out—but at any rate it was thought wiser on the whole to meet the Republican proposed proposition upon the single question of conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission a substitute rate-making power with a Democratic proposition upon that same question, and it was urged by members of the committee that the hearings had not been finished upon other questions, and they were not ready to legislate upon other questions. There never was in any man's mind at any time, and the gentleman from Missouri knows it, any opposition to dealing with terminal abuses, with switch abuses, or private car line abuses. The only question was one of expediency, as to whether they should be dealt with in that bill which was proposed as a substitute to the Republican bill dealing only with the one particular question, of power to substitute a rate. There was also a parliamentary question, too, as to whether the substitute was germane when it partook of other matters.

Now, the future is before us. We are going to have a bill from the minority members of that committee, as I trust and hope and know almost, or else the Republicans upon that committee are going to correct the Esch-Townsend bill and make it complete and perfect and satisfactory, and if they do it then the Democratic party can well afford to stand for that bill. We do not care whence legislation comes. We do not care who claims the credit of it. If you will confer the power that I mentioned upon the Interstate Commerce Commission of naming a substitute rate, to remain in operation without being affected by injunction, except in so far as the Constitution grants the right of injunction, and then add to that any language you please that is satisfactory and sufficiently drastic in regard to private car line abuses and other things, the Democratic party will vote for it. Ah, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman so solicitously referred to by the gentleman from Missouri, as riding his—broomstick horse, was it?

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Well, some kind of a stick.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Broomstick horse is rather an unusual name to call the position that was given by himself, I believe, amongst others, and which I am not so awfully fond of as the gentleman might imagine. But the gentleman to whom the gentleman referred, the gentleman from the Eighth district of Mississippi—in other words, I—last year took the position that the thing that would be the keystone of the arch to correct legislation to cure railway abuses—to prevent them in the future as well as to lop them off now—was this power of naming a substitute rate. I then predicted that the railroads of this country would consent to any other sort of legislation that you wanted, no matter what; that all the balance of it was subordinate to that—fulminations in the air without that—that with that you could get everything, and without that you could get nothing satisfactory. Since that time the railroads have virtually said, man after man of them, before the committee in the Senate: "Do what you please about private cars, do what you please about terminal facilities, do what you please about switches, but for God's sake do not confiscate our property (as they put it) by giving to the Interstate Commerce Commission the right to name a substitute rate when the rate complained of has been declared off because of its unreasonableness or because of its unjustness." I think I am justified by events, and I am justified by the President himself, who takes that same view in his last message, and I am still more justified by the fact that all the gentlemen upon the committee on the minority side seemed to take that view up to the last meeting held.

Now, Mr. Chairman, the incident is closed as far as I am concerned. I am sorry it has occurred. I hope it has left no rankling wounds or sores behind. These things must leave some, but I hope that hereafter we will go on, and when we come to fight we can fight the common enemy from now on all the time. [Loud applause on the Democratic side.]

Mr. RODENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I would like to inquire whether it would be in order at this stage to move that the committee devote the balance of to-day's session to a consideration of the public business?

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understood that public business was being attended to.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman state it?

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Would it be in order for me at this time to ask permission to revise and correct my remarks?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has that right.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman has a right to revise his remarks, but not the right to extend them.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. SHACKLEFORD] will understand that in revising his remarks he has not the right to extend them.

Mr. CUSHMAN. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. CUSHMAN. At this time, and at the close of this fearful scene of Democratic carnage on this floor, I would like to inquire if it would not now be in order "as a further mark of respect to the memory of all of the late deceased, that this House do now adjourn?" [Prolonged laughter and applause.]

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, we can reserve the consideration of this resolution. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] informs me that there are several Members of the House that desire to debate the real question at issue—that is, a question with reference to these insurance measures—and he thinks we can hardly conclude it at the usual time to-night. I am willing that the committee should now rise, and will make that motion in a moment, with the understanding with the gentleman from Iowa that we will agree in the House, if the House will concur, that all general debate shall be continued for one hour. I shall ask that in the House. I move that the committee do now rise.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, a moment before the gentleman makes that motion.

Mr. PAYNE. I withdraw that motion.

Mr. HEPBURN. I said a little while ago in conversation with the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] that I thought that would be sufficient time. But since then two or three gentlemen have spoken to me, saying they wanted to discuss this question, and I think an enlargement of the time ought to be thought of, at least. Suppose we make it two hours.

Mr. PAYNE. Can not we get along with an hour and a half?

Mr. HEPBURN. I think not. I think there are a number of gentlemen here that want to discuss the matter, and I think there is an importance in it.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman——

Mr. HEPBURN. Suppose we let the matter go over until to-morrow?

Mr. PAYNE. I think we had better fix the time in the House when we get there. We can not do it now. I want to suggest to the committee that the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KEIFER] tells me that the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] has offered him five minutes of time. If he has not, I will yield to him five minutes now.

Mr. HEPBURN. Very well. If I may be recognized in my own time, I will yield five minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KEIFER].

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, I do not seek the floor for the purpose of in any way disturbing the harmony that has just been reached on the other side of the House through the great travail we have witnessed.

I understand that we are in the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and that the special business is that of referring the various subjects of the President's message to appropriate committees. Some person who has taken time enough and has been patient enough to go through the President's message and digest it carefully has discovered that it deals with fifty-five distinct subjects, aside from the general introduction on the subject of prosperity and the congratulations that are extended to the people of this country on that account. But there is nothing in that great message, which is so erudite in learning, on the subject we have just heard discussed and debated here under the hearing of this resolution for the last three hours—nothing on the subject of Democratic harmony in the House of Representatives of the United States.

And there is one other subject that is not treated on, but it is as near in line with the fifty-five—if the gentleman was right—different subjects as the one we have just been considering. I note that the Committee on Ways and Means have undertaken to so segregate the different subjects that they are referred to twenty-five different committees only. That shows the great ability of that committee. But now to this other subject that is not mentioned in the message. I will ask the Clerk to read the resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of both Houses concurring), That the following article be proposed to the legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of said legislatures, shall become a part of said Constitution, namely:

ARTICLE XVI.

SECTION 1. Congress shall have no power to appropriate money for the payment of any claim against the United States, unless preferred by a State thereof, not created in pursuance of or previously authorized by law, international treaty, or award, except in payment of a final judgment rendered thereon by a court or tribunal having competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 2. A court of claims shall be established at the seat of government with original jurisdiction in cases involving claims for money against the United States and with such other jurisdiction as may be provided by law; and Congress may confer on any other court of the United States inferior to the Supreme Court original jurisdiction in such cases, and Congress shall provide by law rules and principles and a code of procedure to govern in such cases, also for appeals and error proceedings therein, and it may prescribe a statute of limitations for such claims.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I want to give notice that at the proper time I shall offer the following amendment, and I ask to have it read in my time for the information of the committee.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of line 11, page 4, insert:
"That so much as relates to the irrigation of arid lands shall be referred to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands."

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration House resolution 42, and had come to no resolution thereon.

REGENTS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. HITT, Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania, and Mr. HOWARD as Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

By unanimous consent, reference of the bill (H. R. 380) to authorize the sale of a portion of the Lower Brule Indian Reservation in South Dakota, and for other purposes, was changed from the Committee on Public Lands to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, by unanimous consent, obtained leave to withdraw from the files of the House papers in the case of House bill No. 13233, second session Fifty-eighth Congress, for the relief of John V. Mason, no adverse report having been made on the same.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. DRESSER, indefinitely, on account of important business.

PRINTING FOR RIVER AND HARBOR COMMITTEE.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I desire unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk to be read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Rivers and Harbors be authorized to have such printing and binding done as may be required in the transaction of its business during the Fifty-ninth Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The question was taken; and the resolution was agreed to.

LEAVE TO SIT DURING SESSIONS OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Also a second and third resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, or such subcommittee as may be designated by it, shall have leave to sit during the sessions of the House for the Fifty-ninth Congress and during the recess.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the resolution will be considered as agreed to.

There was no objection.

PRINTING ENGRAVINGS AND DRAWINGS.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Also the following.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That during the Fifty-ninth Congress the order of the House to print executive documents shall be held to authorize with such printing the engraving of drawings and maps, unless the Speaker shall, in the case of any document, otherwise direct.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. Reserving the right to object, I will ask the gentleman if this is usual, or ought it not to go to the Committee on Printing?

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. I really can not give definite information. Leave has been given, so far as the Committee on Rivers and Harbors is concerned, and it was thought best to make the resolution general. Numerous documents coming here have drawings and maps and would be incomplete unless they were engraved. It rests with the Speaker, however, to decide whether the maps or drawings shall be engraved or not.

Mr. MANN. Reserving the right to object, I would like to hear the resolution reported again.

Mr. PAYNE. So would I.

The resolution was again reported.

Mr. PAYNE. That is a pretty far-reaching resolution. I think it ought to go to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. I would like to ask the Chairman of the Committee on Printing, if he is present, what has been the previous course in reference to this matter?

Mr. MANN. If the gentleman will pardon me, I will state that in the Fifty-seventh Congress we put in a provision, which I was opposed to at the time, that no engraving should be printed unless contained in the order for printing. In the Fifty-eighth Congress these reports containing matter which should be engraved—pictures of various kinds—came in and it was found so burdensome to put upon the Speaker the investigation of all of the public documents which came in to see whether every picture or illustration should be printed, that by unanimous consent it was agreed that the engraving should be put in unless objection was made by the Speaker.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. That is what this resolution accomplishes.

Mr. PAYNE. It is subject to the approval of the Speaker.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. The presumption being that it should be done.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I still think it better to have a committee consider this resolution before it is passed. My suggestion is that it go to the Committee on Printing, as the delay will do no harm.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. I have no objection to the withdrawal of the resolution for the present.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. BURTON of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I desire unanimous consent for a change of reference of the bill H. R. 373, entitled "A bill for the erection of a public building in the Borough of the Bronx, New York." By some error this bill has been referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors. I ask unanimous consent that that reference be changed, and that it be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the reference of the bill will be changed as indicated by the gentleman from Ohio.

There was no objection.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 4 o'clock and 13 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Hans Peter Guttormsen against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Jackson County, Mo., against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for the military service—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of State, transmitting the report of the International Bureau of the American Republics—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Supervising Architect of the Treasury submitting an estimate of appropriation for the post-office and court-house building at Chicago—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Attorney-General, recommending legislation in reference to the requirement that a statement of expenditures be included in his annual report—to the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Lovely Lass, William Moore, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, with a copy of a communication from the governor of Alaska, papers relating to a claim of Bishop P. T. Rowe—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, transmitting a detailed report of expenditures from the fund for contingent expenses—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Kingston Harbor, Massachusetts—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Bennetts River at and above Gatesville, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting reports of allowances made by the accounting officers of the Treasury in favor of the States of New York and Pennsylvania for advances made in the war of 1812–1815—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Blackwater Creek, or River, Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Caloosahatchee River, Florida—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Mermentau River, Louisiana—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting the report of receipts and expenditures by the treasurer of Porto Rico from November, 1904, to October, 1905—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting the report of the auditor of Porto Rico of receipts and expenditures from November, 1904, to October, 1905—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the findings filed by the court in the case of Susan E. Joyner, Mary E. Roberson, Martha F. Luster, and Jane F. Crump, sole heirs of estate of Josiah Anthony, against The United States—to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the several Calendars therein named, as follows:

Mr. DAVEY of Louisiana, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 3061) to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct a bridge across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas, reported the same, accompanied by a report (No. 2); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CUSHMAN, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 299) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 3); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 7003) establishing an additional recording district in Indian Territory—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. OTJEN: A bill (H. R. 7004) to amend section 6, chapter 501, of an act approved April 12, 1902, entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Revenue-Cutter Service"—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. McGUIRE: A bill (H. R. 7005) making an appropriation of $250,000 for the purpose of improving the Arkansas River from the head of navigation, at Muscogee, Ind. T., to Fort Smith, Ark.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. MONDELL: A bill (H. R. 7006) to apply a portion of the proceeds of the sales of public lands to the endowment of schools or departments of mines and mining in connection with the colleges established in the several States under the provisions of an act approved July 2, 1862, entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," and for similar purposes, being a further supplement to said act—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. MAHON: A bill (H. R. 7007) for the opening of a street in Mount Pleasant, D. C.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: A bill (H. R. 7008) for the erection of a public building at Pittsburg, Kans.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 7009) to build a lodge at in Indian Territory, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 7010) to create a new division in the western judicial district of Missouri, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7011) providing for the order of trial in criminal cases in the circuit and district courts of the United States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7012) providing for public administrators in Indian Territory, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 7013) to confer jurisdiction upon the circuit court of the United States for the ninth circuit to determine in equity the rights of American citizens under the award of the Bering Sea arbitration of Paris, and to render judgment thereon—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. GOULDEN: A bill (H. R. 7014) to provide American registers for the steamers Marie and Success—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 7015) providing for a site for a public building at Wymore, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7016) providing for a site for a public building at Fairbury, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: A bill (H. R. 7017) providing for the transfer of certain national parks from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. DAVIDSON: A bill (H. R. 7018) for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 7019) for the protection of animals, birds, and fish in the forest reserves, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. BABCOCK: A bill (H. R. 7020) to acquire land for a park approach to Connecticut Avenue Bridge over Rock Creek, District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 7021) to extend Fifth street SE. from Congress Heights to Washington Highlands, D. C.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 7022) for the improvement of the harbor at Branford, Conn.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7023) for a survey of the harbor of New Haven, Conn.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. WOOD of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7024) for the enlargement of the post-office building at Trenton, N. J.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7025) in regard to a monumental column to commemorate the battle of Princeton, and appropriating $30,000 therefor—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 7026) providing for the erection of a public building at Trenton, Mo.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 7027) to provide for the government of the Canal Zone, the construction of the Panama Canal, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 7028) for the relief of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 7029) to authorize the extension and enlargement of the post-office and court-house building in the city of Rome, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 7030) providing for the erection of a keeper's dwelling at the Tibbetts Point light station, New York—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SAMUEL: A bill (H. R. 7031) to regulate the salaries of letter carriers in towns or cities of less than 75,000 population—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7032) to provide for a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Bloomsburg, in the State of Pennsylvania—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7033) to provide for thiry days' annual leave to clerks and employees of first and second class post-offices—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 7034) fixing the rate of pension for persons eligible under the act of June 27, 1890, and acts amendatory thereof, who require the frequent and periodical or regular and constant aid and attendance of another person—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7035) for universal transfers over the street railway lines in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: A bill (H. R. 7036) for a public building at the city of Johnstown, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. McCLEARY of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 7037) for the erection of a public building at New Ulm, Minn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. REEDER: A bill (H. R. 7038) for the retirement of Government employees who were soldiers in the war of the rebellion of 1861 to 1865 and are now in the classified civil service—to the Committee on Reform in the Civil Service.

By Mr. ALLEN of Maine: A bill (H. R. 7039) to authorize the extension of Prospect street NW.—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: A bill (H. R. 7040) to establish a fish-hatching and fish station in the State of Utah—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7041) to permit the State of Utah to select lands in the abandoned Fort Crittenden Military Reservation in Utah—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. ANDREWS: A bill (H. R. 7042) to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. PARKER: A bill (H. R. 7043) to restore the sale of fermented malt beverages and light wines to soldiers on Army transports and in post exchanges under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of War—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7044) to amend an act entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the militia and for other purposes," approved January —, 1903—to the Committee on Militia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7045) to authorize the President to confer brevet rank on certain officers of the United States Army for gallant services in the war with Spain and subsequent insurrection in the Philippines—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7046) to provide for a national military park commission—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 7047) to amend the pension laws relating to widows of deceased colored soldiers or sailors—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7048) changing names of Pierce place, Blake street, Swann street, and Cedar street or place, and Orgeon avenue to Samson street—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7049) to provide for the removal of snow, ice, grass, weeds, and other impediments from the sidewalks and gutters of the streets, avenues, and highways in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PEARRE: A bill (H. R. 7050) for an additional judge in the fourth judicial circuit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 7051) for the erection of a public building in the city of Middlesboro, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. PARKER: A bill (H. R. 7052) for the establishment of a naval volunteer force of seamen and for the government of the same—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. GARDNER of Michigan: A bill (H. R. 7053) to prevent robbing the mail, to provide a safer and easier method of sending money by mail, and to increase the postal revenues—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BRICK: A bill (H. R. 7054) to establish a fish-hatchery and biological station in the Thirteenth Congressional district of the State of Indiana—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts: A bill (H. R. 7055) to extend and regulate the liability of certain classes of employers to make compensation for personal injuries suffered by employees in their service—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 7056) for a public building at the city of Fayetteville, Ark.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. COCKRAN: A bill (H. R. 7057) to provide additional revenue for the Government and to encourage the agricultural and manufacturing industries of the United States—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 7058) for the erection of a national sanitarium for disabled volunteer soldiers at Eureka Springs, Ark.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 7059) to aid States in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. FIELD: A bill (H. R. 7060) to provide for the erection of a public building at Corsicana, Tex.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 7061) for the improvement of White Oak River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7062) to appropriate $25,000 to inclose and beautify the grounds and repair the monument on the Moores Creek battlefield, North Carolina—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 7063) providing for an additional appropriation for the public building at Owosso, Mich.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. KETCHAM: A bill (H. R. 7064) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Hudson, in the State of New York—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. PERKINS: A bill (H. R. 7065) to amend section 858 of the Revised Statutes of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7066) to place hides on the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 7067) to prohibit the use of Indian trust funds for the purpose of educating Indian children in sectarian schools—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7068) authorizing any legal trust company duly authorized to transact business in the Indian Territory to become bondsman in all probate matters in said Territory—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 7069) for the erection of a monument to the memory of Capt. James Butler and others for heroism during the Revolutionary war—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. HUGHES: A bill (H. R. 7070) to suppress bribery at Federal elections, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. McCARTHY: A bill (H. R. 7071) for the erection of a public building in the city of Columbus, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7072) for the purchase of a site and erection of a public building in the city of Wayne, Nebr.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7073) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of West Point, State of Nebraska—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. ESCH: A bill (H. R. 7074) to provide for the construction of an addition or extension to the post-office and court-house at La Crosse, Wis.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. GREENE: A bill (H. R. 7075) for the construction of an able seagoing tug for the Revenue-Cutter Service for New Bedford, Mass.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BURTON of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 7076) for a lighthouse and fog signal on Rock of Ages, Lake Superior—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas: A bill (H. R. 7077) to facilitate the shipments and furnishing of cars by railway companies for the shipment of carloads of live stock from points in one State or Territory of the United States into or through any other State or Territory of the United States, and to provide for such through shipments at reasonable rates of freight—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SPIGHT: A bill (H. R. 7078) to confer jurisdiction on the Court of Claims in certain cases—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 7079) to permit the industrial uses of alcohol and to enlarge the domestic market for farm products—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ALEXANDER: A bill (H. R. 7080) for the establishment of a subport of entry at Buffalo, N. Y.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee (by request): A bill (H. R. 7081) recognizing the military service of and giving pensionable status under all pension laws of the United States to persons serving under United States officers as home guards, militia, or other provisional troops during the civil war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTLE: A bill (H. R. 7082) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Arkansas River at or near Van Buren, Ark.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. WATKINS: A bill (H. R. 7083) to repeal section 5, chapter 1482, act of March 3, 1905—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 7084) giving powers to national banks in addition to the powers contained in section 5136 of the Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7085) authorizing the Pea River Power Company to erect a dam in Coffee County, Ala.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 7086) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Shelbyville, in the State of Tennessee—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7087) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Fayetteville, in the State of Tennessee—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7088) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Tullahoma, in the State of Tennessee—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 7089) to provide a site and erect a public building at Dothan, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7090) to provide a site and erect a public building at Eufaula, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7091) to provide a site and erect a public building at Opelika, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FINLEY: A bill (H. R. 7092) for the erection of a public building at Chester, S. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7093) relating to the removal of civil cases from the State courts to United States courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7094) providing for the erection of a monument at Kings Mountain battle ground commemorative of General Campbell, Colonel Shelby, and others who participated in said battle on October 7, A. D. 1780—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7095) providing for the erection of a monument at Cowpens battle ground, Cherokee County, S. C., commemorative of Gen. Daniel Morgan and those who participated in the battle of Cowpens on the 17th day of January, 1781—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7096) for the erection of a public building at Gaffney, S. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FLOOD: A bill (H. R. 7097) to amend the Code of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7098) to amend the Code of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 7099) to amend section 2871 of the Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 7100) for the erection of a public building in the city of London, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7101) for the erection of a public building in the city of Somerset, Ky.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7102) authorizing construction of a road from Mill Springs National Cemetery, in Pulaski County, Ky., to Somerset, in said county—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 7103) for the improvement of the St. Croix River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7104) to establish a subtreasury of the United States at St. Paul, Minn.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7105) to increase the limit of cost for the public building at St. Paul, Minn.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7106) to increase the efficiency of the militia, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Militia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7107) to provide for the free transportation of official mail matter of officers of the organized militia of the United States—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7108) to authorize the establishment of fish-cultural and biological stations in the United States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7109) to provide for a port of delivery at Stillwater, Minn.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7110) to provide for the distribution of the Federal Cases in the United States courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7111) to provide for the distribution of the reports of the United States circuit courts of appeals and of the circuit and district courts—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 7112) to amend sections 2959, 2960, 2962, and 2975 of the Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7113) to amend an act entitled "An act to simplify the laws in relation to the collection of the revenues," approved June 10, 1890, as amended by the act entitled "An act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States," approved July 24, 1897—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7114) to provide for the consolidation and reorganization of customs collection districts—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7115) providing for the licensing of custom-house brokers, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RANSDELL of Louisiana: A bill (H. R. 7116) for the erection of a public building at Ruston, La.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. CLARK of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 7117) reducing the import duty on certain articles of prime necessity—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7118) providing for the erection of a public building at St. Charles, Mo.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7119) appropriating money for the protection of property in Lincoln County, Mo.—to the Committee on Levees and Improvements of the Mississippi River.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7120) to further provide for the Presidential succession—to the Committee on the Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7121) declaring a certain portion of the Maramec River to be an unnavigable stream—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7122) making an appropriation to improve the harbor of Hermann, on the Missouri River, in Gasconade County, Mo.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7123) reducing the duty on agricultural implements—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7124) for the improvement of the Missouri River at or near the mouth of Smiths Creek, near Bernheimer, Warren County, Mo.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7125) to place binding twine and all materials used in making or manufacturing the same upon the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McLAIN: A bill (H. R. 7126) for a survey of the Homochitto River, in the State of Mississippi, from and including its mouth to the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BYRD: A bill (H. R. 7127) to increase the pensions of the surviving widows of the soldiers of the Mexican war—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. McLAIN: A bill (H. R. 7128) to authorize the governor of the State of Mississippi to select certain lands in part satisfaction of its grant for university purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7129) for improvement of the Homochitto River, in the State of Mississippi—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. COCKS: A bill (H. R. 7130) to amend an act entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Life-Saving Service and to encourage the saving of life from shipwreck"—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BYRD: A bill (H. R. 7131) for the relief of the farmers and planters of the United States by discontinuing the tariff duty on certain articles and placing the same upon the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SULZER: A bill (H. R. 7132) to increase the pay of letter carriers—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BEDE: A bill (H. R. 7133) to provide for the purchase of an additional site for the enlargement of the Federal building at Duluth, in the State of Minnesota—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SPARKMAN: A bill (H. R. 7134) granting the right of way, with terminal facilities, over the military and lighthouse reservations on Gasparilla Island, Florida, to the Florida West Shore Railway Company—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BOWIE: A bill (H. R. 7135) concerning a public building in Selma, Ala.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MORRELL: A bill (H. R. 7136) to increase the efficiency of the militia and promote rifle practice—to the Committee on Militia.

By Mr. MUDD: A bill (H. R. 7137) for the extension of Seventeenth street NW. from Florida avenue to Columbia road—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 7138) to provide for the erection of a public building at Connellsville, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 7139) legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Oklahoma Territory—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. MORRELL: A bill (H. R. 7140) to amend an act approved February 28, 1903, entitled "An act to provide for a union station in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes"—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. PERKINS: A bill (H. R. 7141) to place lumber, coal, and wood pulp on the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WOOD of Missouri: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 46) providing for the creation of a joint committee to investigate the combination of corporate interests controlling the bridges across the Mississippi River in the vicinity of the city of St. Louis, in restraint of free traffic and trade—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. KEIFER: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 47) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. CRUMPACKER: A resolution (H. Res. 71) authorizing the chairman of Committee on the Census to appoint a clerk to said committee—to the Committee on Accounts.

Also, a resolution (H. Res. 72) amending Rule X of the standing rules of the House—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. MONDELL: A resolution (H. Res. 73) calling upon the Secretary of the Interior for the report on the investigation of black sands—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. DAVIDSON: A resolution (H. Res. 74) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on Railways and Canals to appoint a janitor—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. SULZER: A resolution (H. Res. 75) requesting the Secretary of State to furnish all papers to the House in connection with the fine and imprisonment of Marcus Braun by the Hungarian Government—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, a resolution (H. Res. 76) requesting the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to send to the House all reports concerning Marcus Braun—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, a resolution (H. Res. 77) requesting the Secretary of the Treasury to send to the House information concerning the depositing of money in national banks—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A resolution (H. Res. 78) to appoint an assistant clerk to the Committee on Indian Affairs for the present Congress—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. BROWN: A resolution (H. Res. 79) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on Mines and Mining to appoint a janitor to said committee—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. HEPBURN: A resolution (H. Res. 80) providing for the appointment of an additional clerk to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A resolution (H. Res. 81) directing the Secretary of the Interior to make an examination of the financial and fiscal affairs of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations of Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. HUGHES: A resolution (H. Res. 82) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on Expenditures on Public Buildings to appoint a clerk to said committee—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. GAINES of West Virginia: A resolution (H. Res. 83) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress to appoint a clerk to said committee—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. SMITH of Illinois: A resolution (H. Res. 84) providing for the appointment of a clerk to the Committee on Private Land Claims—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. GARDNER of Massachusetts: A resolution (H. Res. 85) authorizing the chairmen of the Committee on Industrial Arts and Exopsitions and the Committee on Militia to appoint a janitor—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. HEFLIN: A resolution (H. Res. 86) urging the return of moneys collected under the cotton-tax act of 1866—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A resolution (H. Res. 87) for the relief of Sarah A. Hickling—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. WEEKS: A resolution (H. Res. 90) directing the Committee on Naval Affairs to investigate the present condition of the United States ship Constitution—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Memorial of the legislature of the State of Utah, asking Congress to enact such legislation as will better protect the people against adulterated, misbranded, and deleterious foods, drugs, and medicines—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of Utah, urging Congress to recognize the faithful services of Indian war veterans in service from 1850 to 1872, etc.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. TIRRELL: Memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to an amendment of the National Constitution, enabling Congress to enact laws regulating the hours of labor—to the Committee on Labor.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to rates of transportation on railroads—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the removal of the duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and Canada—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUNT: Memorial of the legislature of the State of Missouri, favoring the election of United States Senators by popular vote—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of Missouri, relative to the improvement of the Mississippi River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, memorial of the legislature of the State of Missouri, relative to the permanent improvement of the upper Mississippi River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. ROBERTS: Memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the removal of the duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to rates of transportation on railroads—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to the establishment of freer trade relations between the United States and Canada—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, memorial of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, relative to an amendment of the National Constitution enabling Congress to enact laws regulating the hours of labor—to the Committee on Labor.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 7142) granting an increase of pension to George Castor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 7143) to correct the military record of Christopher P. Rhodes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7144) for the relief of Aaron Everly—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ADAMSON: A bill (H. R. 7145) to compensate P. K. Leathers for services rendered the United States in the prosecution of William T. Head and others in the circuit court for the northern district of Georgia—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ALEXANDER: A bill (H. R. 7146) to remove the charge of desertion from the naval record of George W. Bone—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: A bill (H. R. 7147) granting an increase of pension to Bronson Rothrock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7148) granting a pension to Charles Rippin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7149) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Bernhard Romacker—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7150) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Charles Schmiederer—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BARTLETT: A bill (H. R. 7151) granting an increase of pension to Frank Z. Curry—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BEALL of Texas: A bill (H. R. 7152) granting a pension to Ellen Donning—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: A bill (H. R. 7153) for the relief of David McClelland for loss sustained at Chickamauga Park, Georgia, January 29, 1904—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7154) for the relief of Theodore F. Northrop—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7155) granting an increase of pension to William J. Fleming—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7156) for the relief of William H. Sloan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7157) for the relief of William H. Hugo, deceased—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky: A bill (H. R. 7158) for the relief of James H. Reeder—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7159) for the relief of Jeremiah Cracraft—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7160) for the relief of Joseph Segraves—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7161) for the relief of Lewis Tacket—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7162) granting a pension to Elizabeth Cordial—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7163) granting a pension to Marion McKenzie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7164) granting a pension to Lyman Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7165) granting a pension to Jacob R. Compton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7166) granting a pension to Patterson Moore, alias Andrew Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7167) granting a pension to Christian Lederer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7168) granting a pension to David T. Curnette—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7169) granting an increase of pension to Thomas K. Proctor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7170) granting an increase of pension to Henry Southgate—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7171) granting an increase of pension to James W. Jarrell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7172) granting an increase of pension to Harry Chaffin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7173) granting an increase of pension to James H. Reeder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7174) granting an increase of pension to Christian Bothman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7175) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Lock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7176) granting an increase of pension to Ferguson Logan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7177) granting an increase of pension to Diana G. Halley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7178) granting an increase of pension to Jefferson S. Keeton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7179) granting an increase of pension to James H. Milstead—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7180) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Barker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7181) granting an increase of pension to John A. Curry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7182) granting an increase of pension to J. J. Perry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7183) granting an increase of pension to William N. Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7184) granting an increase of pension to James F. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7185) granting an increase of pension to Timothy Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7186) granting an increase of pension to Israel T. Osborn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7187) granting an increase of pension to A. J. Jacobs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7188) granting an increase of pension to Maggie H. Campbell, widow of Henry G. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BINGHAM: A bill (H. R. 7189) granting a pension to Mary Williamson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7190) granting a pension to Frank Gillespie—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7191) granting an increase of pension to George W. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7192) granting a pension to Mary A. Johns—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7193) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BIRDSALL: A bill (H. R. 7194) granting an increase of pension to William Conway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7195) granting an increase of pension to Moses A. Kellum—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BONYNGE: A bill (H. R. 7196) granting an increase of pension to Henry Blake—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7197) granting an increase of pension to Thomas F. Weaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7198) granting an increase of pension to James Langdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7199) for the relief of David H. Moffat—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BROWN: A bill (H. R. 7200) granting a pension to Kate M. Dawson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7201) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus B. Dopp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 7202) for the relief of Jacob J. Shakelford—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7203) granting a pension to Jacob Owens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7204) granting a pension to Absalom L. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7205) granting a pension to Green G. F. Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7206) granting a pension to Nannie Frazier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: A bill (H. R. 7207) for the relief of Laura J. Dills—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7208) granting a pension to Thomas G. Massey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7209) granting a pension to Philip H. Louks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7210) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin J. Matleson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7211) granting a pension to James C. Southerland—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7212) granting an increase of pension to Romanti Hipp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 7213) granting an increase of pension to Loucette E. Glavis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7214) for the relief of J. D. Golden—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7215) removing the charge of desertion against the name of Joseph R. Moyer—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7216) applying the provisions of the act of June 27, 1890, to the men of the Mississippi River Ram Fleet and Marine Brigade, their widows, and minor children—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURKE of South Dakota: A bill (H. R. 7217) for the relief of the Redemeyer-Hollister Commission Company—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7218) granting an increase of pension to Laura Kohlhase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURTON of Delaware: A bill (H. R. 7219) for the relief of Samuel S. Weaver—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 7220) for the relief of Lieut. Jerome E. Morse, United States Navy, retired—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CALDERHEAD: A bill (H. R. 7221) granting an increase of pension to Marcus D. Tenney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7222) granting an increase of pension to Levi J. Walton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7223) granting an increase of pension to George Blair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7224) granting an increase of pension to Charles R. Ellis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7225) granting an increase of pension to Mary O. Arnold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: A bill (H. R. 7226) for the relief of Patrick Conlin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7227) for the relief of John F. M. Todd—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7228) for the relief of Benjamin Day—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7229) granting an increase of pension to Slater D. Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CANNON: A bill (H. R. 7230) granting a pension to John M. Wells—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7231) granting a pension to Samuel O'Toole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7232) granting a pension to Alba B. Bean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7233) granting an increase of pension to John H. McCain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7234) granting a pension to Ulysses G. Powell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7235) granting a pension to Abel W. Payne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7236) granting a pension to Richard Larrance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7237) granting a pension to Philip Bacon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7238) granting a pension to William J. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7239) granting a pension to Horatio M. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7240) granting a pension to Glawvina A. Pinnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7241) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Allhands—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7242) granting an increase of pension to Marcus Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7243) granting an increase of pension to Moses B. Page—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7244) granting an increase of pension to Christopher S. Guthrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 7245) granting a pension to Thomas Alsop—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7246) granting a pension to John H. Fox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7247) granting a pension to Lorenzo Sink—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7248) granting a pension to Thomas Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7249) granting a pension to John S. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7250) granting a pension to Solomon C. Payne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7251) granting a pension to James J. Kirkland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7252) granting a pension to Maximilla Hazel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7253) granting a pension to Emily Cambron—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7254) granting a pension to Isom Gwinn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7255) granting a pension to Christopher Horn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7256) for the relief of Mary A. Coulson, executrix of Sewell Coulson, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 7257) granting a pension to Margaret Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7258) granting a pension to Philene Burns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLARK of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 7259) placing upon a pensionable status Fagg's Fifth Regiment of Pike County (Mo.) Militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7260) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John Ziegler—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7261) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of William E. Talbert—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7262) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of David Gibson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7263) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Timothy O'Leary—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7264) removing the charge of desertion from the name of David L. Draper, alias David D. Draper—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7265) for the relief of Ralls Lodge, No. 33, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7266) for the relief of Elenor W. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7267) for the relief of F. H. Hunicke—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7268) for the relief of Mrs. Fannie Donnelly—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7269) for the relief of the heirs of the late William H. Finch—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7270) for the relief of Mrs. Catharine Bedell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7271) for the relief of the trustees of the Regular Baptist Church, at Mexico, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7272) for the relief of John Harper, Alexander Hammontree, and others, trustees of the Methodist Church at Warrenton, Mo.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7273) for the relief of the heirs of William H. Finch—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7274) for the relief of Benjamin F. Massie—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7275) for the relief of C. L. Reid, Shap. G. Wright, and others, trustees of the Methodist Church at Warrenton, Mo.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7276) for the relief of the heirs of the late Joseph M. Carrico—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7277) for the relief of the heirs of William S. Bryant—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7278) for the relief of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Mexico, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7279) for the relief of the heirs of Margaret P. Botts—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7280) for the relief of James Rhodus—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7281) for the relief of David Smith—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7282) for the relief of George Turner—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7283) for the relief of John Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7284) for the relief of William Faller—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7285) for the relief of Willis Arnaud—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7286) for the relief of John H. Frick—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7287) for the relief of Howard Munker—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7288) for the relief of Annie T. Jones, widow of Jonathan L. Jones, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7289) for the relief of George W. Payne—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7290) for the relief of the heirs of Capt. Henry L. Heckmann—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7291) for the relief of the estate of the late B. F. Richardson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7292) granting a pension to George W. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7293) granting a pension to John W. Hunter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7294) granting a pension to Alice Harrison—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7295) granting a pension to Lewis K. Gilbert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7296) granting a pension to Ignatz Bohnert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7297) granting a pension to Cicero Cluster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7298) granting a pension to James R. Gibson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7299) granting a pension to John A. Blackwell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7300) granting a pension to John D. Reeds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7301) granting a pension to James Griffith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7302) granting a pension to James G. Head—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7303) granting a pension to James W. Conaway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7304) granting a pension to Orison Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7305) granting a pension to Martha A. Myers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7306) granting a pension to Jeremiah Romans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7307) granting a pension to William Toedtmann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7308) granting a pension to Prudence E. Wyatt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7309) granting a pension to Maj. Louis Dieckgraefe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7310) granting a pension to George N. Warfield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7311) granting a pension to William H. Boulden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7312) granting a pension to William H. Holland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7313) granting a pension to James W. McCune—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7314) granting a pension to David Copenhaver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7315) granting a pension to Charles B. Stough—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7316) granting a pension to John Rohy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7317) granting a pension to James T. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7318) granting a pension to Josephine B. Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7319) granting a pension to Frank M. Hassler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7320) granting a pension to Conrad Klinge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7321) granting a pension to Emma A. Baxter—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7322) granting a pension to Peter Berg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7323) granting a pension to William Dillon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7324) granting a pension to Joseph Turnbaugh—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7325) granting a pension to Edward W. Nichols—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7326) granting a pension to James A. Terry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7327) granting a pension to Green H. Honeycutt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7328) granting a pension to William Callaway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7329) granting a pension to Charles B. Stough—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7330) granting a pension to James J. W. Clifton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7331) granting a pension to Henry Porter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7332) granting a pension to Spotwell E. Page—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7333) granting a pension to John W. Patterson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7334) granting a pension to Lizzie Hunter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7335) granting a pension to Marion Skinner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7336) granting a pension to Cordelia S. Rodgers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7337) granting a pension to Milligan Ewing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7338) granting a pension to Amos Strauser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7339) granting a pension to Jeremiah Milroy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7340) granting a pension to William W. Batterton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7341) granting a pension to Mary F. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7342) granting a pension to Mary Followill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7343) granting a pension to William Dixon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7344) granting a pension to John T. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7345) granting a pension to Benjamin Haggard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7346) granting a pension to Louvina Mays—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7347) granting a pension to John J. Adams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7348) granting a pension to Samuel Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7349) granting a pension to John McCann—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7350) granting a pension to Friedrich Schmied—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7351) granting a pension to Lydia Lollar—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7352) granting a pension to Samuel S. Grimmett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7353) granting a pension to Silas A. Elkins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7354) granting a pension to Jeptha Newman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7355) granting a pension to Mrs. S. M. Barker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7356) granting a pension to John H. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7357) granting a pension to George H. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7358) granting a pension to Martha Caroline Hammack—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7359) granting a pension to John B. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7360) granting a pension to Noah Hunter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7361) granting a pension to Thomas A. Burks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7362) granting a pension to Cyrus Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7363) granting a pension to Elizabeth Seifert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7364) granting a pension to Susan L. Brimer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7365) granting a pension to Absolom Howell Eggers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7366) granting a pension to Sophia A. Pollman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7367) granting a pension to Eliza Alexander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7368) granting an increase of pension to Uriah H. Owings—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7369) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7370) granting an increase of pension to Albertus Leovisin Paine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7371) granting an increase of pension to Garland Spencer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7372) granting an increase of pension to James M. Cartmill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7373) granting an increase of pension to Archibald F. Bottoms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7374) granting an increase of pension to E. C. Aydelotte—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7375) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Henderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7376) granting an increase of pension to Peter M. McNelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7377) granting an increase of pension to George W. Simon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7378) granting an increase of pension to John L. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7379) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Glanden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7380) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Randolph—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7381) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Hughlett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7382) granting an increase of pension to Patrick McGarry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7383) granting an increase of pension to John M. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7384) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Blankenship—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7385) granting an increase of pension to William H. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7386) granting an increase of pension to George W. King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7387) granting an increase of pension to James Leavy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7388) granting an increase of pension to Simon U. Branstetter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7389) granting an increase of pension to Christian P. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7390) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan W. Barber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7391) granting an increase of pension to John M. C. Rentfro—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7392) granting an increase of pension to Caroline M. Kirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7393) granting an increase of pension to Ferdinand David—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7394) granting an increase of pension to Thomas D. Hughlett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7395) granting an increase of pension to James H. Rector—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7396) granting an increase of pension to John E. Ball—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7397) granting an increase of pension to Ann Eliza Bradbury—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7398) granting an increase of pension to John Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7399) granting an increase of pension to George Whitehead—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7400) granting an increase of pension to John Snay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7401) granting an increase of pension to William C. Shattuck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7402) granting an increase of pension to Edwin M. Todd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7403) granting an increase of pension to John Alcorn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7404) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Gruenewald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7405) granting an increase of pension to George Ogden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7406) granting an increase of pension to Henry Porter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7407) granting an increase of pension to August Femmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7408) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Price—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 7409) granting a pension to Ross R. Sanner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7410) granting a pension to Elias Knupp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7411) granting an increase of pension to Tobias Fisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7412) granting an increase of pension to Isaiah L. Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7413) granting an increase of pension to Bazel Lemley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7414) granting an increase of pension to Elijah Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7415) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brawner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7416) granting an increase of pension to Joseph R. Boger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7417) granting an increase of pension to Gibson Helms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 7418) granting an increase of pension to Fritz Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7419) granting an increase of pension to James Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7420) granting an increase of pension to Michael Wren—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COUSINS: A bill (H. R. 7421) granting an increase of pension to Caroline McGimsey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CROMER: A bill (H. R. 7422) granting an increase of pension to Elijah R. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7423) granting an increase of pension to Rachel Dailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7424) granting an increase of pension to George W. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7425) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Funk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7426) granting an increase of pension to William C. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7427) granting an increase of pension to Samuel P. Hoeffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7428) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Hunt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7429) granting a pension to George W. Castor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7430) granting a pension to Eliza B. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7431) granting a pension to Emma Kessler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7432) granting a pension to Emily A. Cavender—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7433) granting a pension to Alfred Cunningham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7434) granting a pension to Georgia Tyler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7435) granting a pension to John Hammond—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7436) granting a pension to Prudence Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7437) granting a pension to Annie Coton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7438) granting a pension to Jacob Beckner—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7439) granting a pension to Eliza J. Petty—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7440) to remove charge of desertion against Harvey A. Hart—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7441) to remove charge of desertion against Joseph McFarland—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7442) to remove the charge of desertion against Nathen Mendenhall—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 7443) for the relief of Mrs. Catherine Ratchford—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7444) for the relief of William Hayes—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7445) for the relief of John W. Johnson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7446) for the relief of J. W. Phillips—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7447) for the relief of Catherine Greelish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7448) for the relief of Shadrick Sechrest—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7449) for the relief of Theophilus Fisk Mills—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7450) for the relief of Mrs. Catherine Ratchford—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7451) for the relief of W. L. Offutt—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7452) granting a pension to Isaac C. Hogue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7453) granting a pension to Ashbell G. F. Janes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7454) granting a pension to Emily C. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7455) granting a pension to A. H. Case—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7456) granting a pension to George Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7457) granting a pension to Hannah Vandenburg—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7458) granting a pension to Mary A. Wampler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7459) granting a pension to Sarah E. Hathaway—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7460) granting a pension to Charles W. Helvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7461) granting a pension to J. S. Henry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7462) granting a pension to Eliza P. Targert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7463) granting a pension to Edward Pape—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7464) granting a pension to John S. Mansfield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7465) granting a pension to Martha A. Hand—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7466) granting a pension to Elizabeth Crockett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7467) granting a pension to Catharine Shipley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7468) granting an increase of pension to John W. Spencer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7469) granting an increase of pension to Byron E. Sheffield—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7470) granting an increase of pension to George W. Sheldon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7471) granting an increase of pension to Jacob F. Deneller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7472) granting an increase of pension to J. M. Whitehead—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7473) granting an increase of pension to Jo Utt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7474) granting an increase of pension to James Burgess—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7475) granting an increase of pension to Austin G. Jacobs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7476) granting an increase of pension to George C. Dean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7477) granting an increase of pension to Julius Fox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7478) granting an increase of pension to George W. Jackson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7479) granting an increase of pension to Wesley J. Ralston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7480) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. S. K. Cross—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7481) granting an increase of pension to Cornelius E. Ostrander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7482) granting an increase of pension to George H. Morus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7483) granting an increase of pension to Lawrence V. Whitcraft—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7484) granting an increase of pension to Henry Mott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7485) granting an increase of pension to G. W. Linton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7486) granting an increase of pension to Parson W. Clifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7487) granting an increase of pension to Isaac W. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7488) granting an increase of pension to Jacob L. Hatton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7489) granting an increase of pension to B. B. Bacon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7490) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus W. Cook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7491) to authorize the proper accounting officers of the Treasury Department to examine and audit, according to equity, the claim of Grubb & Robinson, a firm consisting of Alfred B. Grubb and William H. Robinson, and of Alfred B. Grubb, for building material sold and delivered to members of the Prairie Band of Pottawatomie Indians in Kansas—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7492) to authorize the accounting officers of the Treasury Department to readjust the accounts of transportation companies for transportation of troops, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 7493) granting an increase of pension to Paul Groff—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7494) granting an increase of pension to Elijah L. Wade—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DAVIDSON: A bill (H. R. 7495) granting a pension to Susie M. Gerth—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7496) granting a pension to Amelia Koinke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7497) granting a pension to Ellen Carpenter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7498) granting an increase of pension to Mary Hanson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7499) granting an increase of pension to Lawrence Miracle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7500) granting an increase of pension to John McCandless—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7501) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Hercher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7502) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Lannen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7503) granting an increase of pension to Richard G. Cotton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7504) granting an increase of pension to Caroline Whitcomb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7505) granting an increase of pension to Charles Wilkinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7506) granting an increase of pension to Edwin V. Graves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7507) granting an increase of pension to Stephen A. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7508) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Andrews—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7509) granting an increase of pension to John N. Stone—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7510) to correct the military record of Claus Maxfield—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7511) to correct the military record of Clyde C. Fisher—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7512) to correct the military record of Daniel Edminister, jr.—to the Commtitee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: A bill (H. R. 7513) granting an increase of pension to Richard M. Ogle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7514) for the relief of Frank Keller—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DEEMER: A bill (H. R. 7515) granting an increase of pension to Firman F. Kirk—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7516) granting an increase of pension to Robert Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7517) granting an increase of pension to Peter B. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7518) granting an increase of pension to George Richter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7519) granting an increase of pension to Robert M. Wolf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DICKSON of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 7520) granting an increase of pension to Theodore R. Stearns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7521) granting an increase of pension to George A. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7522) granting an increase of pension to Phillip Meyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7523) granting an increase of pension to Christopher C. McCord—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7524) granting an increase of pension to William Knight—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7525) granting an increase of pension to William K. Spencer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7526) for the relief of Michael A. Dace—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. DIXON of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 7527) for the relief of Willard W. Howe, of Aurora, Ind.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7528) granting a pension to Martha J. Snider—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7529) for the relief of A. W. Abbott—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7530) granting a pension to James H. Sale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7531) granting an increase of pension to Nelson G. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7532) granting an increase of pension to Thomas H. Ballard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7533) granting an increase of pension to William H. Buchanan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7534) granting an increase of pension to Charles R. Korn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7535) granting an increase of pension to John S. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7536) granting an increase of pension to William Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7537) granting an increase of pension to Israel Warner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7538) granting an increase of pension to Thompson H. Hudson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7539) granting an increase of pension to David H. Hair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7540) granting an increase of pension to William F. Griffith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7541) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7542) granting an increase of pension to Omer E. Huffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7543) granting an increase of pension to Prior M. Pavy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7544) granting an increase of pension to Gustavus E. F. Raschig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7545) granting an increase of pension to Lee De Hart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7546) granting a pension to Edna Buchanan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7547) granting an increase of pension to George W. Allison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRESSER: A bill (H. R. 7548) for the relief of Mary V. Shaw—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7549) for the relief of J. M. Bloom—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7550) granting a pension to Samuel Dolby—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7551) granting a pension to Daniel Robb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7552) granting a pension to George A. Crooker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7553) granting a pension to Susannah Kelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7554) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Cramer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7555) granting an increase of pension to John S. Roseberry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7556) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo English—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7557) granting an increase of pension to John W. Detwiler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7558) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brink—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7559) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Pentz, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7560) granting an increase of pension to George Ulrich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRISCOLL: A bill (H. R. 7561) for the relief of Samuel E. St. Onge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7562) for the relief of Adelaide E. Grant and Alice Adelaide Grant—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7563) granting an increase of pension to Albert S. Sheldon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 7564) granting an increase of pension to Stephen N. Leach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7565) granting an increase of pension to Orville Dickinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7566) granting an increase of pension to Ezra B. Spoor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7567) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Hull—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7568) granting a pension to Eunice M. Stickle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7569) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan E. Havens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7570) to remove the charge of desertion against Nathaniel Howey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7571) granting an increase of pension to Robert Cannon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7572) granting an increase of pension to Gilbert F. Capron—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 7573) granting a pension to certain battalions of Kentucky State Militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7574) granting an increase of pension to Jonas F. Fortney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7575) granting an increase of pension to Governor H. Hood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7576) granting an increase of pension to George W. Brummett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7577) granting an increase of pension to James K. P. Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7578) granting an increase of pension to Levi Hoskins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7579) granting an increase of pension to Russel M. Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7580) granting an increase of pension to James W. Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7581) granting an increase of pension to Emile Cloe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7582) granting an increase of pension to Zachariah T. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7583) granting an increase of pension to Milton H. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7584) granting an increase of pension to James H. Kemp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7585) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Girdler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: A bill (H. R. 7586) granting an increase of pension to Franklin Webb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7587) granting an increase of pension to William J. Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7588) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Dowling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7589) granting an increase of pension to Robert A. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7590) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Nolan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7591) granting an increase of pension to Electa E. Brooks—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7592) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Henry G. McDougall—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7593) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of George W. Moore, alias George W. More—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FASSETT: A bill (H. R. 7594) granting an increase of pension to Ezra M. Northup—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7595) granting an increase of pension to Edward J. Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7596) to remove the charge of desertion against David T. Hayton, Company F, Fourteenth United States Infantry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7597) granting an increase of pension to Horatio Gilbert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FIELD: A bill (H. R. 7598) granting an increase of pension to George Stip—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7599) granting an increase of pension to William Holland—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7600) granting an increase of pension to John Welch—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FINLEY: A bill (H. R. 7601) granting a pension to Henry Langley—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7602) for the relief of the estate of John G. Brice—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7603) for the relief of Edward P. M. Robinson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7604) for the relief of Howell H. Shute—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7605) for the relief of David H. Cork—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7606) for the relief of St. John's Episcopal Church, at Winnsboro, S. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FLETCHER: A bill (H. R. 7607) granting an increase of pension to Anna M. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7608) granting an increase of pension to John Collins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7609) granting an increase of pension to Charles Henderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7610) granting a pension to Emma M. Rea—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7611) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Roswell W. Gould—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7612) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Richard Heys Taylor, alias Richard Heys—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7613) granting a pension to Anna F. Huber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FLOOD: A bill (H. R. 7614) for the relief of the estate of Peter Sheets, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 7615) granting an increase of pension to Joseph D. Tate—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7616) granting a pension to Lee Allen—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7617) for the relief of A. M. Webb—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FORDNEY: A bill (H. R. 7618) granting a pension to Seymour A. Judd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7619) granting a pension to Albert J. Webster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSS: A bill (H. R. 7620) granting an increase of pension to Mary Virginia Taylor—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7621) granting an increase of pension to Samantha Williams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7622) granting an increase of pension to Herman Lieb—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7623) granting an increase of pension to James J. Furlong—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7624) for the relief of Adolph Gichan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 7625) granting an increase of pension to Catharine Prosser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7626) granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. McKee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7627) granting an increase of pension to Peter Truckey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7628) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo D. Stoker—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7629) granting an increase of pension to William G. F. Schneider—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 7630) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Higley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7631) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7632) granting a pension to Ella T. Hapeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7633) granting a pension to Martha A. Remington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARDNER of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7634) granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Matlack—to the Committeee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7635) granting a pension to Delia Gibbs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARNER: A bill (H. R. 7636) granting a pension to John J. Meeler—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7637) for the relief of Floyd L. Frisbie—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By. Mr. GARRETT: A bill (H. R. 7638) for the relief of Mathew Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7639) for the relief of Dilly Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7640) for the relief of the estate of Wiley B. Brigance, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7641) for the relief of James N. Richards—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7642) for the relief of Peter Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7643) for the relief of H. H. Belew—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7644) for the relief of the estate of C. H. Medlin, deceased, late of Crockett County, Tenn.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7645) for the relief of the estate of John Williams, deceased—to tne Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GILLESPIE: A bill (H. R. 7646) for the relief of the estate of Johnson Miller, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A bill (H. R. 7647) for the relief of the Black Brigade—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7648) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Pavy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7649) granting an increase of pension to William Leipnitz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7650) granting a pension to Laura B. Carson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A bill (H. R. 7651) removing the charge of desertion against the name of E. J. Kolb, alias Edward Kolb—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: A bill (H. R. 7652) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Timms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 7653) granting an increase of pension to Henry McMahan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7654) granting a pension to Sarah Duncan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7655) to pension the National Guards of East Tennessee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7656) granting an increase of pension to Lemuel Main—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7657) granting an increase of pension to Robert B. Malone—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7658) to remove the charge of desertion standing against J. Gilbert Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7659) granting a pension to Elihu Wilburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7660) to remove the charge of desertion against Sampson Carroll—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7661) for the relief of Calvin L. Childress—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HARDWICK: A bill (H. R. 7662) granting an increase of pension to Barney Schultz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HASKINS: A bill (H. R. 7663) granting an increase of pension to Ira N. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HEFLIN: A bill (H. R. 7664) for the relief of Mrs. J. I. Cotney, widow of J. I. Cotney, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HEPBURN: A bill (H. R. 7665) granting an increase of pension to Wesley J. Banks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7666) granting an increase of pension to Joseph C. Mahaffey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7667) granting an increase of pension to Mabrey B. Snyder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 7668) for the relief of the estate of James F. Phillips, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7669) for the relief of the legal representatives of the estate of Lewis M. Maury, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7670) for the relief of the legal representatives of the estate of Benjamin Lillard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7671) for the relief of the legal representatives of the estate of Benjamin Lillard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7672) granting an increase of pension to Barzillar P. Irons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HIGGINS: A bill (H. R. 7673) granting an increase of pension to Homer A. Barrows—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7674) providing for reopening and adjustment of the accounts of Joseph A. Mower, deceased, late major-general of the United States Army, and for other purposes—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HILL of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 7675) for the relief of Samuel B. Horne—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7676) authorizing the appointment of Allen V. Reed, now a captain on the retired list of the Navy, as a rear-admiral on the retired list of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 7677) granting an increase of pension to Robert Marvel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7678) granting an increase of pension to John J. Stower—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUFF: A bill (H. R. 7679) for the relief of J. B. Orbison—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HUGHES: A bill (H. R. 7680) granting an increase of pension to William Shannon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7681) granting an increase of pension to James M. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7682) granting an increase of pension to Jennie Beare—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7683) granting an increase of pension to James Ross—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7684) for the relief of Louis F. Brooks—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7685) for the relief of Kaenhappauch Thomas—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7686) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Porter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUNT: A bill (H. R. 7687) granting an increase of pension to Charles Hammond—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7688) granting an increase of pension to William Hosea—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7689) granting an increase of pension to John B. Lee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7690) granting an increase of pension to August Hossenlopp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7691) granting a pension to Harriet E. Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7692) for the relief of Charles W. Howard—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7693) to correct the military record of Charles E. Fromman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7694) to correct the military record of Anthony W. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7695) to correct the military record of James H. Campbell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 7696) for the relief of Pope & Talbot, of San Francisco, Cal.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KETCHAM: A bill (H. R. 7697) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Mary D. Hoag, late of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7698) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Oscar H. Speedling, late of Coldspring, Putnam County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7699) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Kate W. Doty, late of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7700) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of James Roosevelt, late of Hydepark, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7701) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of James H. Brinkerhoff, late of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7702) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Edward D. Ferris, late of Milan, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7703) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of James Stead, late of Catskill, Greene County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7704) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of Ury Hicks, late of Pine Plains, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7705) to refund legacy taxes illegally collected from the estate of William B. Lent, late of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7706) granting an increase of pension to Berthold Fernow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7707) granting an increase of pension to George R. Thayer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7708) granting an increase of pension to Alice S. Shepard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Nebraska: A bill (H. R. 7709) for the relief of Joseph Crow—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 7710) granting an increase of pension to Ransom B. Howell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7711) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Dunnan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7712) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7713) granting an increase of pension to John J. Woolf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7714) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Todd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7715) granting an increase of pension to Rufus Betz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7716) granting an increase of pension to Hugh H. Poe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7717) granting an increase of pension to Isaiah J. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7718) granting an increase of pension to Jacob D. Peterson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7719) granting an increase of pension to George Fetterman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7720) granting an increase of pension to Stephen M. Sexton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7721) granting an increase of pension to Daniel V. Lowrey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7722) granting an increase of pension to Willis M. Hatch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7723) granting an increase of pension to George M. Roberts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7724) granting an increase of pension to John C. Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7725) granting an increase of pension to T. W. Quine—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7726) granting an increase of pension to Enoch Wickersham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7727) granting an increase of pension to Gideon Stanley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7728) granting an increase of pension to William H. Owen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7729) granting a pension to William Cannon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7730) granting a pension to Thomas Plunkett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7731) granting a pension to Charles Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7732) granting a pension to Henry Law—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KINKAID: A bill (H. R. 7733) granting an increase of pension to Esther Krier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7734) granting an increase of pension to S. H. Osborne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KLINE: A bill (H. R. 7735) granting an increase of pension to James Hartzel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7736) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Roth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7737) granting a pension to William H. Winters—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7738) granting an increase of pension to Franklin J. Keck—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNOWLAND: A bill (H. R. 7739) granting a pension to Carlotta E. Hooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7740) granting certain lands in Solano County, Cal., to the city of Vallejo for waterworks purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7741) waiving the age limit for admission to the Pay Corps of the United States Navy in the case of Pay Clerk Walter Delafield Bollard, United States Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 7742) for the relief of J. G. White, of Dade County, Ga.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7743) for the relief of the estate of Noah King, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7744) for the relief of the estate of J. W. W. Marshal, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LEGARE: A bill (H. R. 7745) granting an increase of pension to Wheeler Lindenbower—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 7746) for the relief of Columbia Hospital and Dr. A. E. Boozer—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7747) to correct the military record of James O'C. Cassidy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7748) for the relief of St. Stephen's Church—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 7749) granting a pension to Hezekiah Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDSAY: A bill (H. R. 7750) granting an increase of pension to Anton Riedmuller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7751) granting a pension to Albert Pearsall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTAUER: A bill (H. R. 7752) granting an increase of pension to Jerome B. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LITTLE: A bill (H. R. 7753) for the relief of the estate of Eliza A. Fielder, deceased, and Benjamin L. Fielder—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McCARTHY: A bill (H. R. 7754) granting an increase of pension to John L. St. Clair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7755) granting an increase of pension to Adam Wenzel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 7756) to provide that the consent of the United States of America be given to the taxation for State, county, or municipal purposes, of the property constituting the former site of the United States mint, situated at the northwest corner of Juniper and Chestnut streets, in the city of Philadelphia—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. McGUIRE: A bill (H. R. 7757) granting a pension to Thomas Corey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7758) granting an increase of pension to John L. Whitman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7759) granting an increase of pension to John Gemmill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7760) granting an increase of pension to William H. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7761) granting to the Colored Agricultural and Normal University of Oklahoma certain lands for the purposes of an experiment station and the teaching of agriculture to the negro race of Oklahoma—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7762) granting a site for a public library building in the city of Perry, Oklahoma Territory—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 7763) granting a pension to J. Stebbins King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7764) granting an increase of pension to G. W. Dewald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7765) granting an increase of pension to George Gaylord—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7766) granting a pension to Hannah Plummer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7767) to correct the military record of Wade H. Newman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7768) granting an increase of pension to William R. Rennels—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 7769) granting an increase of pension to William B. Geoghegan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7770) granting an increase of pension to Burgess Cole—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7771) for the relief of Judd O. Hartzell—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. McLAIN: A bill (H. R. 7772) for the relief of Milton S. Shirk—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7773) for the relief of the estate of Mrs. Sarah A. Gayle, deceased, late of Amite County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7774) for the relief of James M. Newman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7775) for the relief of the estate of Mrs. Sarah M. Dunbar, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7776) for the relief of Copiah County, Miss.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7777) for the relief of the estate of John Fleming, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7778) for the relief of Patrick J. Finley, of Adams County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7779) for the relief of the Protestant Orphan Asylum at Natchez, in the State of Mississippi—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7780) for the relief of the estates of Robert Bradley, deceased, and Mary C. Bradley, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7781) for the relief of Mrs. M. J. Baynard, of Natchez, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7782) for the relief of the heirs of James W. Felder, of Amite County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7783) for the relief of the estate of Lemuel R. Hanks, deceased, late of Amite County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7784) for the relief of Mrs. M. L. Holt, Mrs. Jane E. Cannon, and Mrs. I. B. Shipp—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7785) for the relief of the estate of John T. Rawlings, deceased, late of Adams County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7786) for the relief of the estate of John O'Ferrall, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7787) for the relief of the estate of John Rist, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7788) for the relief of Burks Fitzgerald—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7789) for the relief of Patrick Foley, of Adams County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7790) for the relief of Eliza L. Rivers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7791) for the relief of Mrs. Louisa M. Bennett, Miss Kate P. Bennett, Mrs. Mary Louisa Ogden, and Calvin S. Bennett—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7792) for the relief of Victoria O. Giun, heir of J. B. Lewis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7793) for the relief of James M. Newman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7794) for the relief of James A. G. Winston—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7795) for the relief of U. Lunenberger, of Natchez, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7796) for the relief of James A. G. Winston, of Adams County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7797) for the relief of the estate of Landon L. Lea, of Amite County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7798) granting a pension to Hannah Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7799) granting a pension to C. F. A. Kellogg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7800) granting a pension to Henry McGlodry—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7801) granting a pension to Bunyan H. Byrd—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7802) granting an increase of pension to John F. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7803) to correct the military record of Charles M. Gorden—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 7804) granting an increase of pension to John Frett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7805) for the relief of the Seaboard Air Line Railway—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MILLER: A bill (H. R. 7806) granting an increase of pension to Johanna Walquist—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MINOR: A bill (H. R. 7807) granting an increase of pension to John D. Atwater—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MUDD: A bill (H. R. 7808) granting a pension to Annie R. Shamel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MURDOCK: A bill (H. R. 7809) granting an increase of pension to E. F. Henderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7810) granting an increase of pension to William M. Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7811) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan W. Dix—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7812) granting an increase of pension to Seth Knight—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7813) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7814) granting an increase of pension to James M. White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7815) granting an increase of pension to Thomas G. Covell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7816) granting an increase of pension to William H. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TALBOTT: A bill (H. R. 7817) for the relief of the heirs and representatives of Thomas J. Benson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7818) for the relief of the heirs of Washington Dorney, of Maryland—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7819) for the relief of the heirs and representatives of William G. Burke, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7820) granting an increase of pension to John A. Orwig—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7821) granting an increase of pension to Mathias Brady—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7822) granting an increase of pension to Joshua Gill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7823) granting an increase of pension to Annie E. Peters, widow of John A. Peters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7824) granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Stacks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7825) granting an increase of pension to Haason Bottomstone—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7826) granting an increase of pension to John T. Riley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7827) granting an increase of pension to William H. Uhler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAWNEY: A bill (H. R. 7828) granting a pension to Catherine Weiss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7829) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of James O'Brien—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 7830) for the relief of Robert W. Caldwell, First Regiment Ohio Heavy Artillery Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7831) granting a pension to Samuel M. Griffith—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7832) granting a pension to Horace Park—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7833) granting a pension to A. C. Pindell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7834) granting a pension to Joseph Amos—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7835) granting a pension to John S. Gill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7836 granting a pension to Alexander G. Patton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7837) granting a pension to Mary Jane McKim—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7838) granting an increase of pension to S. Harriet Morris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7839) granting a pension to Ray E. Kline—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 7840) for the relief of George S. Curtis—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7841) granting a pension to Eli Conn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7842) granting an increase of pension to Fannie Ida Edgerton—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7843) granting a pension to Mrs. T. E. Tait—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VREELAND: A bill (H. R. 7844) granting a pension to Phoebe Keith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WALDO: A bill (H. R. 7845) for the relief of Eliza Percival—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEBBER: A bill (H. R. 7846) granting an increase of pension to Electa Hall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7847) granting an increase of pension to Marcus D. Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7848) granting an increase of pension to D. C. McMillen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7849) granting an increase of pension to W. N. Starr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7850) granting an increase of pension to Horace A. Durkee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7851) granting an increase of pension to Simon Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7852) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Swisher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7853) granting an increase of pension to Charlotte W. Boalt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7854) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Munnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7855) granting an increase of pension to Clarence E. Duane—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7856) granting an increase of pension to Norman C. Potter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7857) granting an increase of pension to George W. Culbertson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7858) granting an increase of pension to James L. Wing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7859) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 7860) granting a pension to Joseph H. Richardson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 7861) granting an increase of pension to C. William Rehfeld—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7862) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Wilkes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7863) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7864) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Pray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7865) granting an increase of pension to William G. Thorp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7866) granting an increase of pension to William Bennett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7867) granting an increase of pension to Edward Tucker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7868) granting an increase of pension to John Rohrver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7869) granting an increase of pension to George C. Powell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7870) granting an increase of pension to William E. McCready—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7871) granting an increase of pension to Jerome L. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7872) granting an increase of pension to Susan Burroughs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7873) granting an increase of pension to Winget Burgess—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7874) granting a pension to George Gould—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7875) to remove the charge of desertion against Jacob Goll, late a private in Company C, Twenty-fourth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7876) granting an increase of pension to Julius Beier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7877) granting an increase of pension to Leberecht Poetting—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7878) granting an increase of pension to Ann Betts—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7879) granting an increase of pension to Marie Louise Michie—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WILSON: A bill (H. R. 7880) granting an increase of pension to William W. Jordan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WOOD of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 7881) for the relief of Anna M. Camp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7882) granting an increase of pension to Lydia Ann Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7883) for the relief of Daniel Dilts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WOODYARD: A bill (H. R. 7884) granting a pension to John W. Alexander—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7885) granting an increase of pension to R. B. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7886) for the relief of the heirs of J. McH. Kelley and Allie V. Kelley—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: A bill (H. R. 7887) to remove the sentence of court-martial from the military record of Morgan Everts—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7888) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Sutherlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7889) granting an increase of pension to Aaron Noble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 7890) granting a pension to Mary G. Shaffer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7891) granting a pension to Israel Heffner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7892) granting a pension to John Pearson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7893) granting a pension to Harry L. Vance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7894) granting a pension to Thomas Cheek—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7895) granting an increase of pension to Lucas Hagar—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7896) granting a pension to George Stace—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7897) granting a pension to Albert Thibbadeau—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7898) granting a pension to John D. Acton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7899) granting a pension to Leonhart Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7900) granting a pension to Robert D. Bailey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7901) granting an increase of pension to James M. Dinwiddie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7902) granting an increase of pension to Eugene Orr, alias Charles Southard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7903) granting an increase of pension to Reuben H. Lynch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7904) granting an increase of pension to Andrew T. Bovard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7905) granting an increase of pension to Francis L. Strimple—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7906) granting an increase of pension to Cyrus Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7907) granting an increase of pension to George A. McSurely—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7908) granting an increase of pension to J. B. Raymond—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7909) granting an increase of pension to George W. Purcell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7910) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas Karns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7911) granting an increase of pension to John W. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7912) granting an increase of pension to James M. Lawder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7913) granting an increase of pension to John Devening—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7914) granting an increase of pension to Henry Adler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7915) granting an increase of pension to Thomas W. Gibbons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7916) granting an increase of pension to David Peters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7917) granting an increase of pension to D. M. Murray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7918) granting an increase of pension to John M. Buxton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7919) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bridgman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7920) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Bates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7921) granting an increase of pension to Patrick H. Bergen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7922) granting an increase of pension to John Gregan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7923) granting an increase of pension to Flavius K. Bowles—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7924) granting an increase of pension to Jackson Weathers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7925) granting an increase of pension to Richard McMahon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7926) granting an increase of pension to Levy L. Dysert—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7927) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Dister—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7928) granting an increase of pension to Israel S. Dear—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7929) granting an increase of pension to Joseph S. Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7930) granting an increase of pension to William Daily—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7931) granting an increase of pension to George H. Buehner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7932) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Backus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7933) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Cassity—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7934) granting an increase of pension to James W. Lawder—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7935) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Stannah—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7936) granting an increase of pension to William L. May—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7937) granting an increase of pension to John Clifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7938) granting an increase of pension to George B. Jackson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PARKER: A bill (H. R. 7939) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth T. Carpenter—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. PARSONS: A bill (H. R. 7940) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Andrew Govan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 7941) granting an increase of pension to Carlon B. Osborn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEARRE: A bill (H. R. 7942) for the relief of Polly Jackson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7943) for the relief of the estate of Jacob Richard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7944) granting a pension to Ann S. Trushour—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7945) granting a pension to William W. Isaacs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7946) granting an increase of pension to John H. Ullrich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7947) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Robinette—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7948) granting an increase of pension to James W. Reynolds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7949) to remove the charge of mutiny from the record of David Boyd—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PRINCE: A bill (H. R. 7950) granting an increase of pension to Emma M. Heath—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RAINEY: A bill (H. R. 7951) granting an increase of pension to William H. Pitchford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7952) granting an increase of pension to Detrick Nortrup—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. REEDER: A bill (H. R. 7953) for the relief of Elanson Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7954) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan R. Blair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7955) granting an increase of pension to Newton E. Terrell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7956) granting an increase of pension to Gottlob Schaubel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7957) granting an increase of pension to Lucinda A. Sellens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. REID: A bill (H. R. 7958) for the relief of William H. Roach, of Morrilton, Conway County, Ark.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7959) for the relief of John C. Ray, assignee of John Gafford, of Arkansas—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7960) for the relief of John C. Ray, assignee of John Gafford, of Arkansas—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. ROBERTS: A bill (H. R. 7961) for the relief of G. F. Tarbell—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana: A bill (H. R. 7962) for the relief of the estate of Frederick Arbour, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7963) for the relief of the heirs of Charles and Palmyra Barre, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RODENBERG: A bill (H. R. 7964) granting an increase of pension to Hardin R. Shanks—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7965) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. S. Harris—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7966) granting an increase of pension to John Young—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SAMUEL: A bill (H. R. 7967) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7968) granting an increase of pension to Palmetto Dodson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7969) granting an increase of pension to June Ada Ulmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7970) granting an increase of pension to Walter Lynn—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7971) for the relief of Charles Mummey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7972) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Sebastian Delsite—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7973) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Thomas Evans—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7974) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John W. Derrick—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: A bill (H. R. 7975) granting an increase of pension to Ephraim N. R. Ohl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERLEY: A bill (H. R. 7976) for the relief of Wilford Twyman—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SIMS: A bill (H. R. 7977) for the relief of Nicola Masino, of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SMITH of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 7978) granting an increase of pension to David N. Kennedy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7979) granting an increase of pension to John W. Purnell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SNAPP: A bill (H. R. 7980) for the relief of Jacob A. Henry—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 7981) to promote and retire Maj. John W. Dillenback, retired—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SPARKMAN: A bill (H. R. 7982) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Kellogg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7983) granting an increase of pension to Antoinette A. Darnall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7984) granting a pension to Henry R. Hill—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SPERRY: A bill (H. R. 7985) for the relief of Charles H. Waterhouse—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SPIGHT: A bill (H. R. 7986) for the relief of the heirs or legal representatives of A. M. Rayburn, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7987) for the relief of the estate of Alfred Swearingin, deceased, late of De Soto County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7988) for the relief of the estate of Joseph N. Moran, deceased, late of Benton County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7989) for the relief of J. J. Miller, of De Soto County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7990) for the relief of the estate of Andrew B. Conley, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7991) for the relief of Willis J. Moran—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7992) for the relief of Minor Saunders—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7993) for the relief of the heirs of W. T. Eason, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7994) for the relief of the estate of Mrs. E. J. Matlock, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7995) for the relief of the heirs of Mrs. Charity Clements, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7996) for the relief of the heirs of John Parham, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7997) for the relief of Margaret Raiford Loftin, administratrix of the estate of Robert Raiford, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7998) for the relief of the heirs of Samuel Scott, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 7999) for the relief of the heirs of William M. Kimmons, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8000) for the relief of Charles O. Spencer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8001) for the relief of the heirs of J. B. Fuller, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8002) for the relief of the heirs of Hardin P. Franklin, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8003) for the relief of the administratrix of John H. Record, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8004) for the relief of the heirs of Johnathan Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8005) for the relief of the heirs of John P. Caruthers—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8006) for the relief of the heirs of W. E. Tomlinson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8007) for the relief of the heirs of Mrs. Louisa Ragsdale—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8008) for the relief of the estate of William A. Jeffries, deceased— to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8009) for the relief of the estate of Eben N. Davis, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8010) for the relief of W. D. Aston—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8011) for the relief of William Moyers, of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8012) for the relief of George L. McGehee and John C. McGehee, heirs of Mary McGehee, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8013) for the relief of James H. Knox—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8014) for the relief of Mrs. A. T. Mason, of Benton County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8015) for the relief of the estate of Maria A. Reinhardt, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8016) for the relief of the heirs of Mrs. M. A. Allen—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R, 8017) for the relief of Mrs. G. W. Ross, Mrs. H. C. Cary, Mrs. Annie Brooks, L. C. Wilcoxon, and Willie Wilcoxon, heirs at law and representatives of Wiley Franks, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8018) for the relief of the heirs of Benjamin Hawes, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8019) for the relief of Mrs. Martha T. Davis—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8020) for the relief of the estate of Elizabeth Hull Wellford, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8021) for the relief of heirs of Mrs. Susan L. Bailey, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8022) for the relief of the estate of David A. Hamilton—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8023) for the relief of Henry C. McElroy—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8024) for the relief of the estate of Isham G. Bailey, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8025) for the relief of the heirs of H. G. Spencer—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8026) for the relief of Dr. J. N. McIntyre—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8027) for the relief of the heirs of John Carruth, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8028) for the relief of the estate of C. G. Boswell, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8029) for the relief of the estate of William Parker—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8030) for the relief of Martha A. Allen, administratrix of Wyatt M. Allen, deceased, late of De Soto County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8031) for the relief of the heirs of Mrs. Polly Callahan, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8032) for the relief of the heirs of Abraham Jones—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8033) for the relief of the Old School Presbyterian Church, at the town of Panola, in Panola County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8034) for the relief of D. W. Carpenter, of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8035) for the relief of the estate of A. M. Doak, deceased, late of Lafayette County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8036) for the relief of the heirs of John D. Martin, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8037) for the relief of the estate of Jacob Joiner, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8038) for the relief of the heirs of John C. McGehee, deceased, late of De Soto County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8039) for the relief of Jeremiah H. Morgan, of Benton County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8040) for the relief of the estate of W. F. Gaines, deceased, late of Marshall County, Miss.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. STEENERSON (by request): A bill (H. R. 8041) authorizing a patent to be issued to Stephen Teichner for certain lands therein described—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8042) granting an increase of pension to Bottol Larsen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8043) granting an increase of pension to Lafayette Dodds—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8044) granting an increase of pension to Angel Housker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8045) granting a pension to Wilmot Stevens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 8046) granting an increase of pension to James T. Brown—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8047) granting a pension to C. A. Brighton, alias Thomas Aufinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8048) granting a pension to W. F. Bottoms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8049) for the relief of Calvin T. Hazelwood—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8050) granting a pension to Felix Linsay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8051) granting a pension to B. F. Draper—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8052) for the relief of John C. Lynch—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8053) to allot 160 acres of land to Herman Lehman and Bianco L. Bell, of Clay County, Tex., out of the Comanche, Kiowa, and Apache reservations, in Oklahoma—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 8054) granting an increase of pension to John Jewell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8055) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Bremer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8056) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel N. Winslow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 8057) granting an increase of pension to Clara Eugenia Kramer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8058) granting an increase of pension to Stephen B. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8059) granting an increase of pension to Edwin E. Chase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8060) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Fallihee—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8061) granting an increase of pension to Hart Echard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8062) granting an increase of pension to John K. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8063) granting an increase of pension to Mary A. Coburn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8064) granting a pension to Sarah E. Tripp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8065) granting a pension to Patrick Dawson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8066) granting a pension to Auguste Albrecht—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8067) granting a pension to Louis Demarais—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8068) granting a pension to Annie B. Mosbrugger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8069) granting a pension to Sarah E. Tripp—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8070) granting a pension to Adam Fritz—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8071) granting a pension to Mary Mitchell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8072) granting a pension to Fanny M. Lowe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8073) granting a pension to Susan A. Harseim—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8074) for the relief of Mrs. M. E. West—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8075) for the relief of Mrs. Pamelia J. Getty—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8076) for the relief of A. M. Darling and Frank C. Darling—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8077) for the relief of John H. Davern—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8078) for the relief of Miss Bernice Farrell—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8079) for the relief of Harriet D. Newson—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8080) for the relief of S. Kate Fisher—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8081) for the relief of Lieut. Col. Edward Simonton—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8082) for the relief of Susanne P. Thorne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8083) for the relief of Dr. Rudolph Schiffman—to the Committee on Insular Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8084) to correct the military record of Hiram D. Gates—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8085) to correct the military record of Jacob M. Hames—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8086) to reimburse the State of Minnesota—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8087) to restore the name of Dominique Demars to the pension roll of the United States—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8088) to remove the charge of desertion standing against Reese Peoples—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8089) to remove the charge of desertion against Henry H. Martens—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SULLIVAN of New York: A bill (H. R. 8090) granting a pension to Emma H. Benham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULLOWAY: A bill (H. R. 8091) granting an increase of pension to John Coughlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8092) granting an increase of pension to Samuel F. Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Petition of Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New Bedford, Pa., for legislation against polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the St. Paul Board of Trade and the St. Paul Produce Exchange, to regulate railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the city council of Albuquerque, N. Mex., to admit Arizona and New Mexico as one State—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, petition of the Grain Dealers' National Association, relative to railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Ohio Shippers' Association, relative to railway rates, indorsing the President's views—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, for regulation by the Government of railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Denver Teachers' Club, for establishment of Colorado Cliff Dwellers' national park, to be known as the "Mesa Verde National Park"—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Emma Alexandria Defries, for adjudication of her claim to a portion of so-called Crown lands of Hawaii—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Minnesota Shippers and Receivers' Association, relative to railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the commissioners of the county of Santa Fe, N. Mex., for law to relieve them of certain indebtedness—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, petition of Liliuokalani, for settlement of damages suffered by action of United States minister and naval forces on January 7, 1893—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Walurba Council, No. 859, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pitcairn, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Illinois State Medical Society, for increased efficiency of Medical Department of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the American Baptist Missionary Union, for a new treaty with China—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of Thomas W. Scott, adjutant-general of Illinois, for increasing efficiency of militia—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Presbytery of Pittsburg, Pa., against use of intoxicants in the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ACHESON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Charles Funkhouser—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of S. A. Bone and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Joint Executive Commission on the Improvement of Philadelphia Harbor, favoring widening and deepening Delaware River—to the Committee on River and Harbors.

Also, petition of Roscoe Council, No. 711, of Roscoe, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for extending the provisions of the pension act of June 27, 1890—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg, Pa., for revision of tariff relative to certain European countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of George Castor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Modesto Irrigation Association against San Francisco obtaining reservoir sites in Yosemite Reservation—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, petition of Hopewell Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 504, of Claysville, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania: Petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg, Pa., relative to tariff revision—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ADAMSON: Petition of Newman Council, No. 22, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Georgia, favoring restriction of Immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: Petition of Smoky City Council, No. 119, of Pennsylvania, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of United Labor League of Western Pennsylvania, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petitions of Andrew G. Curtin Council, No. 67; Iron City Council, No. 171; Welcom Council, No. 134, and Purity Council, No. 554, Junior Order United American Mechanics, all of Pennsylvania, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BATES: Petitions of Waterford Lodge, No. 423, of Erie County, Pa., and Waterford Grange, No. 423, of Erie County, Pa., to strike word "knowingly" from oleomargarine law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Albion Lodge, No. 421, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, of Albion, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BEALL of Texas: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Ellen Downing—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: Paper to accompany bill for relief of David McClellan—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Sarah Milvaney—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Theodore F. Northrop—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BINGHAM: Resolution of the senate and assembly of the State of California, for a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Trades League of Philadelphia, for legislation relative to admission of Chinese—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BONYNGE: Petition to accompany bill H. R. 645—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. BOWERSOCK: Petition of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, of Osawatomie, Kans., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of citizens of Miami County, Kans., for restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the United States Sugar and Land Company, against removal of tariff on sugar from Philippines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BRICK: Petition favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of J. W. Peters, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Clarence E. Ott, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James C. Southland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Romanti Hipp—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURTON of Ohio: Petition of P. V. Thom and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Carpenters' Union No. 1231, of Cleveland, Ohio, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: Papers to accompany bill H. R. 4641—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: Petition of the executive committee on improvement of harbor of Philadelphia and Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, for improvement of the harbor facilities of Philadelphia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the legislature of California, for legislation establishing a parcels post at rates not to exceed those accorded by American express companies to foreigners, viz, 24 cents for packages up to 11 pounds—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. CALDER: Petition of Local Council No. 175, Brotherhood of Carpenters, of New York, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. CAMPBELL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Slater D. Lewis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAPRON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Parris J. Latham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the board of managers of the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, favoring passage of so-called Adams bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: Petition of Conference (Pa.) Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Ross R. Sanner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Joint Executive Committee of Philadelphia, for appropriations to deepen the Delaware—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: Petition of the Connecticut Valley Conference and readopted by Local Union No. 108, Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, for free admission of domestic grain alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CURTIS: Petition of citizens of Meriden, Kans., for a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. DAVEY of Louisiana: Petition of W. L. Alexander Division, No. 426, against railway-rate legislation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. DEEMER: Petitions of Daniel L. Eitel and others, and H. R. Hill and others, of Williamsport; J. W. Richie and others, of Mill Hall; B. F. Doud and others, of Covington, and Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, No. 626, of Covington, all in Pennsylvania, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petitions of Sprout, Waldron & Co., of Muncy, Pa.; E. Keller & Co., Keystone Paint and Filler Company, Clinton File Company, Burnes Fire Brick Company, and National Foundry Manufacturing Company, for two classes of mail matter only—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. DIXON of Montana: Petition of Union No. 1023, Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers, of Helena, Mont., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. DRAPER: Petition of S. D. Griffin, relative to the Chicago Canal—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the William Stillman Humane Society, against change of present law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DWIGHT: Petition of F. B. Phinney and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Indian Association of Cortland, N. Y., to purchase small land holdings for landess Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of Robert H. Barton and others, of Owego, N. Y., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ESCH: Petition of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, State of Wisconsin, asking legislation for preservation of Niagara Falls—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Dowling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William J. Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Henry G. McDougall—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FASSETT: Petition of citizens of Wayne County, N. Y., against use of Niagara Falls for manufacturing purposes—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. FIELD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George Stip—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Holland—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John Welch—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Resolution of the legislature of California, for a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Nome Chamber of Commerce, asking that Alaska be given an elective Delegate in Congress—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, petition of the board of trustees of the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home, for reestablishment of the canteen at the Home—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FLOOD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of J. E. Ewing—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FOSS: Petition of R. E. Allen and others, favoring a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. FOWLER: Petition of the Board of Trade of Elizabeth, N. J., for reform in the consular service—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of William H. Garrison and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of American Council, No. 25, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. FRENCH: Petition of the Woman's Columbia Club, of Boise, Idaho, for a law against adulterated foods and drugs—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. FULLER: Petition of Florsheim & Co., of Chicago, for removal of the tax on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Wells Briggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of James S. Kirk & Co., favoring revival of tax on tallow—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Martha A. Remington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Joseph W. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GILLESPIE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of I. J. L. Miller—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts: Petition of the Citizen Trades Association, for appropriation to improve Point Judith breakwater—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of Westfield Baptist Church, urging favorable action on Senate memorial on Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. GOEBEL: Petitions of Queen City Council, No. 130; Harmony Council, No. 50; Fairmount Council, No. 155; Price Hill Council, No. 210; Cumminsville Council, No. 75, and Bethlehem Council, No. 79, Junior Order United American Mechanics, all in Ohio, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Cincinnati Retail Grocers' Association, for equitable food law—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Leipnitz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Petition of M. M. Presley and others, relative to Indian affairs in California—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of the joint committee on improvement of Philadelphia Harbor, favoring deepening and widening Delaware River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Harry T. Fulmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Decatur (Pa.) Council, No. 613, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, resolution of the legislature of California, favoring a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. HALE: Petitions of John B. Gordon Council, No. 82; Halton Council, No. 39; Emekul Council, No. 3; Uncleson Council, No. 36, and Chilhown Council, No. 68, Junior Order United American Mechanics, all in Tennessee, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HASKINS: Petition of Passumpsic Division, No. 163, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Newport, Vt., against Esch-Townsend bill—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HARDWICK: Petition of Minnehaha Tribe, No. 16, Improved Order Redmen, of Augusta, Ga., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Barney Schultz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HIGGINS: Resolution of the State of Connecticut, for legislation forbidding sale of liquor in all Government buildings—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HILL of Connecticut: Petitions of Sedgwick Council, No. 21, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Terryville, Conn., and H. E. Jayways, and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Petition of G. M. Rhodes and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of citizens of Rochelle, Ill., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HOGG: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William U. Van Ostern—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOUSTON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of David Wise—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of the legal heirs of Benjamin Lillard—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Lewis Maney—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HUNT: Petition of S. D. Griffin, clerk of the sanitary district of Chicago, for appropriations for the sanitary canal—to the Committee on River and Harbors.

By Mr. LACEY: Petition of the Denver Teachers' Club, indorsing the Hogg bill for establishing Colorado Cliff Dwelling National Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. LAWRENCE: Resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for transfer of the Life-Saving Service to the Navy Department—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for an equitable adjustment of railroad rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. LEVER: Petition of Junior Order United American Mechanics, of South Carolina, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of Charles J. Kinter, of New York, protesting against condition of affairs now existing in the United States Pension Office—to the Committee on Patents.

Also, petition of the National German-American Alliance, favoring the Army canteen as it was—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the board of trustees of the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home, for the Army canteen as it was—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, resolution of the State assembly of California, for a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of William H. Wallace and others, for postal law for two classes of mail matter only—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Trades League of Philadelphia, for admission of Chinese visitors and travelers not of cooly class to America—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. LITTAUER: Petition of Division No. 99, Brotherhood of Railway Firemen and Brakemen, of Mechanicsville, N. Y., against railway rebate legislation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of Stilloway Division, No. 418, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Mechanicsville, N. Y., against railway rate legislation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of importers and wholesale tea dealers of San Francisco, Cal., against a duty on tea—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of importers and wholesale coffee dealers of San Francisco, Cal., against a duty on coffee—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Transportation Club of San Francisco, against granting Interstate Commerce Commission power to fix railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of Division No. 161, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, against granting Interstate Commerce Commission power to fix railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of San Francisco Division, No. 53, Order Railway Trainmen, against the Interstate Commerce Commission fixing railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Berthold Fernow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Robert Tillson and Maitland Boon—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McCALL: Petition of Citizens' Trade Association of Cambridge, Mass., favoring appropriation to complete breakwater at Point Judith, R. I.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the Citizens' Trade Association of Cambridge, Mass., favoring reciprocal trade treaties with European countries—to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. MILLER: Petitions of Penfield Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 274, of Olivet, Kans., and William R. Hottle and others, of Olivet, Kans., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. OTJEN: Petition of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers' Union No. 222, of Milwaukee, Wis., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Henry C. Canter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petitions of Washington Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, No. 410, of Indianapolis, and J. C. McCain, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. PADGETT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Phineas Hyde—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Eli Boynton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Dunn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Albert Riley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of T. J. O'Bar—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Andrew L. Grimes—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of A. A. Ezell, heir of Caroline Ezell—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. PAYNE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Carlton B. Osborne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PEARRE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Bridget Knott—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of William Loughridge to refer claim to Court of Claims under Bowman Act—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. POLLARD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William J. Morgan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Raymond Bros. & Clarke Co., of Lincoln, Nebr.—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Utterback Sargeant Rice Company, of Nebraska City, Nebr., against duty on tea—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RIXEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of I. C. France, of Fairfax, Va.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of Gilbert M. Bastable, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of John P. Wright, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of William C. Edwards, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petitions of Robert D. Embrey, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petition of Thornton Pollard, asking reference of war claim to Court of Claims—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUPPERT: Petition of Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, for appropriations for continued improvement of harbors on Gulf of Mexico and Pacific coast—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the American Humane Association, against change in present law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of board of trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago, for appropriations to enlarge the sanitary canal—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the senate and assembly of California, for a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post Roads.

By Mr. SAMUEL: Petition of the Humane Society, against amendment of present law regulating transit of live stock—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Berwick Council, No. 698, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petitions of Local Union No. 838, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and Alexander E. James, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of John A. Wert, for removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of Eastern Star Lodge, No. 143, Knights of Pythias, of Sunbury, Pa., and H. C. Smith and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the executive committee on improvements of harbor of Philadelphia, for deepening channel of Delaware River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of Watertown Council, No. 514, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pennsylvania, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Goodrich Post, No. 22, Grand Army of the Republic, of Danville, Pa., relative to relief of Kate Lovett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERLEY: Petition of the Louisville Charity Organization Society, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Paper to accompany bill for the relief of Dewitt W. Hall—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SIBLEY: Petition of residents of Ridgway, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SMITH of Arizona: Petition of the Territorial Baptist Convention, at Tucson, Ariz., against joint statehood of Arizona and New Mexico—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. SMITH of Illinois: Petition of citizens of Illinois, for restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of citizens of Illinois, relative to restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of citizens of Illinois, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SPERRY: Petition of Liberty Bell Council, No. 3, of New Haven, Conn., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of New Haven Printing Pressmen's Union, for establishing the position of foreman of presswork in the Government Printing Office—to the Committee on Printing.

By Mr. STERLING: Petition of P. H. Morrisey Lodge, No. 62, of Bloomington, Ill., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James Shaw—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of Illinois, against statue of any king on American soil—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, petition of citizens of Pontiac, Ill., for removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Meredith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Albert J. Sprinkle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: Petition of Modesto Irrigation Association, against San Francisco obtaining reservoir sites in Yosemite Reservation—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

By Mr. TAWNEY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of James O'Brien—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Katherine Weiss—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Petition of citizens of Coldwater, Bronson, and Quincy, Mich., for repeal of tax on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: Petition of citizens of the Nineteenth Congressional district, for fair trial of President E. G. Lewis, of the People's United States Bank, at St. Louis, and for amendment to law relative to fraud orders relative to the mails—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: Paper to accompany bill for relief of W. J. Craddock—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James W. Cox—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Max Mayers—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. WEISSE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Julius Beier—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Lebaucht Poetting—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WADSWORTH: Petition of citizens of Batavia, Genesee County, N. Y., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. WOOD of New Jersey: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Daniel Dilts—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Lydia Ann Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, December 14, 1905.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the Nineteenth Annual Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of John C. Spear v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Aitcheson Pollock, John G. Pollock, and Matthew B. Pollock, heirs at law of William Pollock, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

COLUMBIA INSTITUTION FOR DEAF AND DUMB.

The VICE-PRESIDENT appointed Mr. PERKINS to fill a vacancy on the part of the Senate in the board of directors of the Columbia Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, under the provisions of section 4863 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented the petition of E. Albertson, of Bridgeport, Ind., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

Mr. PENROSE presented petitions of the Cigar Makers' Union of Warren; Liberty Bell Lodge, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Philadelphia; Vanderbilt Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Vanderbilt; the United Labor League of Western Pennsylvania, of Pittsburg; York Typographical Union, of York; Labor Union No. 12, of Pittsburg; of Councils Nos. 116, 211, 926, 822, 292, 120, 635, 386, 1013, 201, 206, 54, 67, 310, 443, 465, 980, 992, 140, 29, 128, 317, 335, 367, 851, 243, 416, 20, 374, 1004, 346, 255, 18, 731, 136, 216, 618, 43, 161, 442, 107, 929, 287, 912, 150, 384, 282, 549, 171, 134, 1015, 249, 109, 906, 98, 472, 89, 72, 541, 78, 542, 406, 511, 235, 245, 962, 520, 157, 23, 732, 606, 570, 403, 514, 321, 605, 339, 108, 162, 973, 15, 698, 307, 153, 416, 441, 160, 954, 305, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Sharpsburg, New Stanton, Lewisburg, Scranton, Seven Valleys, Lancaster, Milroy, Conemaugh, Springgrove, Washington, Newcastle, Glenrock, McKees Rocks, Cokeville, Marion, Allegheny, Honesdale, Elizabethville, Royalton, Fayette, Pittsburg, Tower City, Elixir, Shenandoah, Mount Joy, Cherrysville, Wescosville, Philadelphia, Muir, Kutztown, Tyrone, Suterville, Philadelphia, Weissport, Monongahela, Blairsville, Pittsburg, Wilkesbarre, Pittsburg, Springtown, Allentown, Lancaster, Verona, Hoboken, Wilkesbarre, Wanamie, Pittsburg, Scranton, Pittsburg, McKeesport, Akron, Coal Valley, Altoona, Wrightsville, Johnstown, Washington, North Belle Vernon, Tidal Bethlehem, Berwyn, Hillsdale, Belle Vernon, Jonestown, Abington, Jermyn, Allegheny, Schuylkill Haven, Philipsburg, Tremont, Bolivar, Fogelsville, Watsontown, Connellsville, York, Marietta, Altoona, Steelton, Penns Park, Philadelphia, Berwick, Glenlyon, Mauch Chunk, Pottsville, Pricedale, Pittsburg, Annville, and Rices Landing, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. PROCTOR presented a petition of sundry citizens of St. Johnsbury, Vt., praying for the adoption of an amendemnt to the Constitution to prohibit polygamy; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a memorial of Passumpsic Division, No. 163, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Newport, Vt., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a petition of the board of managers of the New Hampshire Society, Sons of the American Revolution, of Manchester, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the repair of the old ship Constitution; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Oklahoma Territory, praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the new States to be formed; which were referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. FRYE presented a petition of Androscoggin Valley Council, No. 20, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Dexfield, Me., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration and for the reformation of the naturalization laws; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. NELSON presented a petition of the American Bar Association, the Commercial Law League of America, the Merchants' Association of New York, the National Board of Trade, and the National Association of Credit Men, praying for the enactment of a permanent bankruptcy law and remonstrating against the repeal of the present bankruptcy law; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of Local Union No. 951, Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Brainerd, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. TALIAFERRO presented a petition of Local Union, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of St. Augustine, Fla., and a petition of Local Union No. 1488, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Ormond, Fla., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. DUBOIS presented a petition of the Columbian Club, of Boise, Idaho, praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. TELLER presented a petition of the legislature of Colorado, praying for the enactment of legislation permitting the fencing of springs on certain unoccupied lands of the United States for the purpose of watering stock; which was read, and referred to the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation of Arid Lands, as follows:

House joint memorial No. 1 (by Mr. Baer).

To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the fifteenth general assembly of the State of Colorado, respectfully represent to your honorable body that:

Whereas the act approved January 13, 1897, relating to the construction of storage reservoirs for free stock water upon the unoccupied public lands of the United States and the withdrawal from entry of certain lands under the provision thereof, has been and will be in the future of great benefit in promoting the live-stock industry of the West; but we believe that the act should have provided for the privilege of allowing springs and water seeps to be cleaned out and fenced, and the waters conducted on the outside of said reservoirs or troughs, and in less quantities than now required by the regulation of Interior Department, and that the same be kept for the free use of range stock. This provision would lead to the preservation of much stock water, and in the opinion of your memorialists would in no way interfere with the disposal of agricultural areas, but would prevent in a great measure the utter destruction of many good springs and sources of water supply by preventing their being entirely destroyed by the tramping of range stock: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That Congress be urged to pass an amendment permitting the fencing of springs for the above purpose.

And be it further resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent at once by the secretary of state to the President of the Senate of the United States, and one copy to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and one copy to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

WILLIAM H. DICKSON, Speaker of the House.
E. R. HARPER, Chief Clerk of the House.
ARTHUR CORNFORTH, President of the Senate.
M. Z. FARWELL, Secretary of the Senate.

Mr. MONEY presented petitions of sundry citizens of Jones County, Miss., praying that Capt. Newton Knight and his company be reimbursed for services rendered the United States Government during the war of the rebellion; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SUTHERLAND presented a petition of the legislature of Utah, praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Memorializing Congress to enact such legislation as will better protect the people against adulterated, misbranded, and deleterious foods, drugs, and medicines.

To the President and Congress of the United States:

Your memorialists, the governor and legislature of the State of Utah, represent that the legislature of the State of Utah, having heretofore enacted laws for the protection of the people against adulterated, misbranded, and deleterious foods, drugs, and medicines, realizing the necessity for adequate legislation by Congress to protect the States against interstate commerce, which is beyond the control of the State, in such prohibited articles, hereby memorializes Congress to speedily enact efficient legislation prohibiting interstate commerce in adulterated, misbranded, and deleterious foods, drugs, and medicines, to the end that the laws of our State relative thereto may be more effective.

S. H. LOVE, President of the Senate.
THOMAS HULL, Speaker of the House.
JOHN C. CUTLER, Governor.

Attest:
[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

STATE OF UTAH,
Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I, Charles S. Tingey, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and correct copy of senate joint memorial No. 3, passed by the legislature of the State of Utah, and filed in my office March 9, 1905, as appears on file in my office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah this 9th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

Mr. SUTHERLAND presented a petition of the legislature of Utah, praying that that part of the Uintah Indian Reservation known as Strawberry Valley be granted to the United States for the purpose of a national park; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

A memorial to Congress praying for a grant of lands for a State park.

To the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the governor and legislature of the State of Utah, respectfully represent that the land included in the Uintah Indian Reservation is about to be opened to settlement; that that part of said reservation which is included in the Strawberry Valley, and is hereinafter more particularly described, is of such an altitude that it is valueless for agricultural purposes; that it is admirably situated for a public park and reservoir purposes; that this State has passed an act creating a board to manage and control any lands acquired for a State park and making an appropriation to carry the same into effect, contingent upon the granting of this petition.

Therefore, your memorialists pray that that part of the Uintah Indian Reservation known as the Strawberry Valley, and more particularly described as follows, to wit, townships 2 and 3 south and ranges 10 and 11 west, and fractional townships 4 south and ranges 10 and 11 west of the Uintah special meridian, be granted to the State of Utah to be used perpetually as a State park, the National Government reserving the right to construct a reservoir or reservoirs, with appropriate canals within the limits of the proposed grant, and your memorialists will ever pray.

THOMAS HULL, Speaker of the House.
S. H. LOVE, President of the Senate.
JOHN C. CUTLER, Governor.

Attest:
[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

STATE OF UTAH,
Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I, Charles S. Tingey, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true, and correct copy of a memorial to Congress praying for a grant of lands for a State park filed in my office March 6, 1905, as appears on file in my office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah this 7th day of March, A. D. 1905.

[SEAL.] C. S. TINGEY, Secretary of State.

MAINTENANCE OF COMMERCIAL CHANNELS.

Mr. MORGAN. The select committee appointed by the Senate under the resolution of March 2, 1905, to examine and report on the navigation of the Tennessee River and other matters, have discharged that duty, and I am directed by the select committee to submit the report; which I ask may be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report submitted by the Senator from Alabama will be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. DEPEW, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 280) to provide a life-saving station at or near Greenhill, on the coast of South Kingston, in the State of Rhode Island, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. STONE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1548) to amend an act entitled "An act to prevent the importation of impure and unwholesome tea," approved March 2, 1897, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HEYBURN. I am directed by the Committee on Manufactures, to whom was referred the bill (S. 88) for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated, or misbranded, or poisonous, or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes, to report it with amendments, and I submit a report thereon.

I desire to state in reporting the bill that it contains substantially the provisions of the McCumber bill of the last session of Congress, with such additions as the present committee have thought proper to add to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 410) to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct a bridge across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas.

The message also announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 299) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

TONNAGE TAXES ON STEAMER BANES.

Mr. FRYE. I report back favorably from the Committee on Commerce, without amendment, the bill (S. 1169) for the refund of certain tonnage duties. It is a very short bill. It is to rectify a piece of injustice. A similar bill was reported to the Senate at the last session and passed the Senate. I should like to ask unanimous consent that it may now be considered.

The Secretary read the bill, and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to refund additional tonnage taxes at the rate of $1 per ton, amounting to $908, levied before May 15, 1905, on the steamer Banes, under the flag of Panama.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COLUMBIA RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. FULTON. There has just been received from the House House bill 299, which is precisely similar to the bill that was passed yesterday morning by the Senate. It authorizes the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company. I wish consent at this time to call up the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a bill from the House of Representatives.

The bill (H. R. 299) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Portland and Seattle Railway Company, a corporation existing under the laws of the State of Washington, its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct and maintain a bridge across the Columbia River at a place suitable to commerce and not interfering with navigation, at a point at or near Vancouver, in the State of Washington, and to lay on or over said bridge a track or tracks for the more perfect connection of any railroad or railroads that are or shall be constructed to said river, on either or both sides thereof at or opposite said point, under the limitations and conditions hereinafter provided; that said bridge shall not interfere with the free navigation of said river, and in case of any litigation arising from any obstruction or alleged obstruction to the free navigation of said river by reason of the construction of said bridge, the cause may be tried before the circuit court of the United States in and for any district in whose jurisdiction any portion of said obstruction or bridge may be. Said bridge shall be constructed to provide for the passage of railroad trains, and, at the option of the said company or corporation, its successors and assigns, for the safe and convenient passage of wagons and vehicles of all kinds, animals, and foot passengers for such reasonable rates of toll as may be fixed from time to time by the Secretary of War.

SEC. 2. That said bridge shall be provided with two or more draw openings, each having not less than 200 feet clear channel way, and in addition to said draw openings one or more fixed channel spans, each having not less than 350 feet clear channel way; and every part of the superstructure of said bridge shall give a clear headroom of not less than 6 feet above extreme known high-water mark: Provided, That all spans shall be so located as to afford the greatest possible accommodation to the river traffic, and a draw opening shall, if practicable, be located next or near shore: Provided, also, That if the physical characteristics of the locality so require, and the interests of navigation be not injured thereby, the lengths of the fixed spans or the number of draw openings may be reduced: Provided also, That for any two adjacent draw openings of 200 feet each one draw opening of 300 feet may be substituted if, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, the interests of navigation be not injured thereby.

SEC. 3. That all draw spans authorized by this act shall be operated by steam or other reliable mechanical power, and shall be opened promptly upon reasonable signal for the passage of boats, except when trains are passing over said span or spans; but in no case shall unnecessary delay occur in opening said draw after the passage of trains, and also that in case the opening of a draw is delayed by reason of the passing of a train after the signal has been given from a boat ready to pass through, the draw shall be opened for the passage of such boat before another train is allowed to pass over the said span or spans; nor shall there be any unnecessary delay in the passage of trains over the bridge.

SEC. 4. That all piers shall be built parallel with the current of the river at that stage of water which is most important for navigation, and the bridge itself shall be built as nearly as may be at right angles thereto; and that riprapping or other protection for imperfect foundations which will lessen the required waterway shall not be permitted; and also that piers which will produce cross currents or bars dangerous to navigation shall not be constructed; and if, after construction, any piers or accessory works are found to produce the above-mentioned effects, or if any riprapping or other protection prohibited by this section is found to exist, the nuisance shall be abated or corrected under the direction of the Secretary of War, at the expense of the company or persons owning, controlling, or operating said bridge.

SEC. 5. That the approaches to said bridge shall be so designed and constructed as not to interfere with the free discharge of said river in seasons of flood; and any encroachment on the high-water cross section by piers, solid embankments, or otherwise, which will result in unduly accelerating the high-water current at the site of the bridge shall not be allowed.

SEC. 6. That any corporation, company, or persons owning, controlling, or operating the bridge built under the authority of this act shall build and maintain at all times, as accessory works to such bridge, such booms, piers, dikes, guard fences, and similar devices as may be necessary to insure at all times a permanent channel for a sufficient distance above and below the bridge site and for the guiding of rafts, steamboats, and other water craft safely under or through said bridge; and if at any time after the construction of the bridge and its accessory works the approaches to draw openings, channel spans, or raft passages in said bridge are found to be dangerous or difficult of access by any important class of river traffic, the Secretary of War may, upon the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, order the corporation, company, or persons owning, controlling, or operating said bridge to construct, under his directions, and to maintain such additional sheer booms, dikes, and other devices as will obviate the difficulty mentioned, which additional sheer booms, dikes, and other devices shall be built and maintained at their own expense by said company or persons; and that said company or persons shall maintain, at their own expense, from sunset to sunrise throughout the season of navigation such lights and other signals on said bridge as may be required by the Light-House Board for the security of navigation.

SEC. 7. That the bridge authorized to be constructed by this act shall be located and built under and subject to such regulations for the security of navigation on said river as the Secretary of War shall prescribe; and to secure that object said corporation shall submit for his examination a design and drawings of the bridge, piers, approaches, and accessory works, and a map of the location, giving for a space of at least 3 miles above and 1 mile below the proposed location the topography of the banks of the river and the shore lines at high and low water. This map shall be accompanied by others drawn on the scale of 1 inch to 200 feet, giving for a space of one-half mile above the line of the proposed bridge and one-fourth mile below an accurate representation of the bottom of the river, by contour lines 2 feet apart, determined by accurate soundings, and also showing over the whole width of this part of the river the force and directions of the currents at low water, at high water, and at least one intermediate stage by triangulated observations on suitable floats. The maps shall also show the location of other bridges in the vicinity, and shall give such information as the Secretary of War may require for a full and satisfactory understanding of the subject; and the construction of the proposed bridge shall not be commenced until the location and plans thereof are approved by the Secretary of War.

SEC. 8. That any bridge constructed under the authority of this act shall be built under the general supervision of the Secretary of War, and no changes or alterations in plans shall be made during construction of said bridge or after its completion unless said changes or alterations conform to the provisions of this act and are authorized by the Secretary of War; that such alterations and changes as may be required by the Secretary of War in said bridge so as to preserve free and convenient navigation shall be made under the direction of the Secretary of War, at their own expense, by the company or persons owning, controlling, or operating said bridge; that during original construction or in carrying out any authorized changes or repairs of said bridge a navigable channel shall be preserved at the site of the bridge at all times, and the waterway of the river shall not be obstructed to a greater extent than is absolutely necessary; and such lights and buoys shall be kept on all cofferdams, piles, etc., as may be necessary for the security of navigation.

SEC. 9. That all railroad companies desiring the use of the bridge authorized by this act shall have and be entitled to equal rights and privileges relative to the passage of railway trains or cars over the same and over the approaches thereto upon the payment of a reasonable compensation for such use; and in case the owner or owners of said bridge and the several railroad companies, or any one of them, desiring such use shall fail to agree upon the sum or sums to be paid, and upon rules and conditions to which each shall conform in using said bridge, all matters at issue between them shall be decided by the Secretary of War upon a hearing of the allegations and proofs of the parties; and equal privileges in the use of said bridge shall be granted to all telegraph and telephone companies.

SEC. 10. That the bridge constructed, maintained, and operated under this act and according to its limitations shall be a lawful structure, and shall be recognized and known as a post route, upon which also no higher charge shall be made for the transportation over the same of the mails, the troops, and the munitions of war of the United States than the rate per mile paid for the transportation of said mails, troops, and munitions over the railroads and public highways leading to said bridge; and the United States shall have the right of way for postal telegraph and telephone purposes over said bridge.

SEC. 11. That this act shall be null and void if actual construction of the bridge herein authorized be not commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date of approval thereof.

SEC. 12. That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

Mr. FULTON. Is it proper for me to move to reconsider the vote by which the Senate bill was passed yesterday?

Mr. HALE. Let this bill be first passed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. This bill can be passed, and after it is passed the Senator can ask for a reconsideration of the Senate bill. Is there objection to the present consideration of the House bill which has just been laid before the Senate?

Mr. FULTON. It is precisely the bill that passed the Senate with the amendments that were adopted by the Senate.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the bill (S. 260) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company, which passed the Senate yesterday. Without objection, the votes by which the bill was ordered to a third reading and passed will be reconsidered and the bill will be postponed indefinitely.

PANAMA CANAL BONDS.

Mr. ALDRICH. From the Committee on Finance I report back with an amendment the bill (S. 1475) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes. The amendment is in the nature of a substitute, and I ask that it may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Rhode Island asks that the bill be read for the information of the Senate.

Mr. ALDRICH. Let the substitute be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The substitute will be read.

The SECRETARY. The Committee on Finance report to strike out all of the bill after the enacting clause and to insert:

That the 2 per cent bonds of the United States authorized by section 8 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, shall have all the rights and privileges accorded by law to other 2 per cent bonds of the United States, and every national banking associataion having on deposit, as provided by law, such bonds issued under the provisions of said section 8 of said act approved June 28, 1902, to secure its circulating notes, shall pay to the Treasurer of the United States, in the months of January and July, a tax of one-fourth of 1 per cent each half year upon the average amount of such of its notes in circulation as are based upon the deposit of said 2 per cent bonds; and such taxes shall be in lieu of existing taxes on its notes in circulation imposed by section 5214 of the Revised Statutes.

Mr. ALDRICH. This simply gives——

Mr. PETTUS rose.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Rhode Island yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. PETTUS. I ask that the bill may go over.

Mr. ALDRICH. I ask the Senator from Alabama to allow me to make a statement.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama object to a statement?

Mr. ALDRICH. I decline to yield unless the Senator permits me to make a statement.

Mr. PETTUS. I do not know that I shall object when the bill comes up, but I wish to read it.

Mr. ALDRICH. Mr. President, this bill simply gives to the 2 per cent canal bonds the same rights and privileges which are accorded by the refunding act to other 2 per cent bonds of the United States. It has the unanimous approval of the Committee on Finance, who have carefully considered it. It is important that it should be acted on at an early day, and I therefore ask that it be now considered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Rhode Island asks that the bill just read be now considered. Is there objection?

Mr. PETTUS. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Alabama objects. The bill will go to the Calendar.

Mr. ALDRICH. I give notice, then, that as soon as the canal appropriation bill, so called, is disposed of I shall move to proceed to the consideration of this bill.

Mr. PETTUS subsequently said: Mr. President, I desire simply to withdraw the objection I made to the passage of the bill reported by the Senator from Rhode Island.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Alabama withdraws objection to present action upon the bill reported by the Senator from Rhode Island. Is there objection to its present consideration?

Mr. CULBERSON. Let the bill be read again.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be again read for the information of the Senate.

The Secretary read the substitute reported by the Committee on Finance.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Th VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment reported by the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I wish to say a few words about the bill and the subject-matter. Before I do that, as I have just come into the Chamber, I ask leave to present a memorial, and to have it read.

[The memorial presented by Mr. TELLER appears under its appropriate heading.]

Mr. TELLER. The present bill, as now reported by the committee is a pure appropriation. I suppose it is immaterial whether you call it a deficiency bill or an appropriation bill.

Mr. ALDRICH. I am not sure that the Senator from Colorado is aware of the particular bill which is before the Senate. It is the bond bill, which was taken up by unanimous consent.

Mr. TELLER. I understood that it was the other bill.

Mr. ALDRICH. I thought the Senator was probably mistaken.

Mr. TELLER. I do not care about saying anything on this bill except that I gave my assent to the bill very heartily.

Mr. ALDRICH. I ask that the vote be taken on it. Then the other bill can be taken up right away.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If no further amendment be proposed, the question is, Shall the bill be engrossed for a third reading?

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to provide that the 2 per cent bonds issued under section 8 of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans,' approved June 28, 1902, shall have the same rights and privileges that are accorded by law to other 2 per cent bonds of the United States."

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. LODGE on the 12th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Relations be, and is hereby, authorized to employ a stenographer from time to time, as may be necessary, to report such testimony as may be taken by the committee or its subcommittees in connection with matters before them, and have the same printed for its use, and such stenographer be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that said Committee on Foreign Relations be permitted to sit during the sessions of the Senate.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1570) granting an increase of pension to Lydia A. Johnson; and

A bill (S. 1571) granting an increase of pension to Miles T. Skinner (with accompanying paper).

Mr. FRYE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1572) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Lapham;

A bill (S. 1573) granting an increase of pension to Patrick A. Galvin; and

A bill (S. 1574) granting an increase of pension to Wellington W. Whitney.

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 1575) to correct the military record of Josiah T. Postelthwait;

A bill (S. 1576) to correct the military record of David P. Morrison;

A bill (S. 1577) to correct the military record of Engleberth Benzinger;

A bill (S. 1578) to correct the military record of John Frederick;

A bill (S. 1579) to correct the military record of Jacob Metzinger (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1580) to correct the military record of Bernhard Steuber (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1581) to correct the military record of George I. Spangler;

A bill (S. 1582) for the relief of Charles Seiser;

A bill (S. 1583) to correct the military record of William H. Blyler;

A bill (S. 1584) to correct the military record of Alexander Everhart;

A bill (S. 1585) to correct the military record of Samuel Bailey;

A bill (S. 1586) to correct the military record of L. L. Bedell, alias Latero Degroat;

A bill (S. 1587) to correct the military record of Patrick O'Connor, alias Patrick Kennedy;

A bill (S. 1588) authorizing the Secretary of War to bestow a medal of honor upon Maj. J. O. Skinner, surgeon, United States Army, retired; and

A bill (S. 1589) to correct the military record of William Harlan (with accompanying papers).

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1590) granting a pension to Jane E. Morris;

A bill (S. 1591) granting a pension to John S. Barr;

A bill (S. 1592) granting a pension to Isabella C. Swisher;

A bill (S. 1593) granting a pension to Mary J. Williams;

A bill (S. 1594) granting an increase of pension to Margaret E. Guthrie;

A bill (S. 1595) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Barr;

A bill (S. 1596) granting a pension to Fidelia C. Losch;

A bill (S. 1597) granting a pension to Ella B. Goy;

A bill (S. 1598) granting an increase of pension to David Keller;

A bill (S. 1599) granting a pension to Amos Caylor;

A bill (S. 1600) granting an increase of pension to William W. Fiscus;

A bill (S. 1601) granting a pension to Deborah E. Green-Childs;

A bill (S. 1602) granting an increase of pension to Albert Ivers (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1603) granting a pension to Mary H. Sirwell (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1604) to amend the act of March 2, 1903, increasing the pensions of those who have lost limbs or been totally disabled in them in the military or naval service of the United States;

A bill (S. 1605) granting an increase of pension to Richard H. Lee;

A bill (S. 1606) to amend "An act to amend the pension laws by increasing the pensions of soldiers and sailors who have lost an arm or leg in the service, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1883;

A bill (S. 1607) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Osborn;

A bill (S. 1608) granting a pension to Ira D. Coover;

A bill (S. 1609) granting an increase of pension to John Murray;

A bill (S. 1610) granting an increase of pension to Mary B. Keller;

A bill (S. 1611) granting a pension to Andrew Comrey;

A bill (S. 1612) granting an increase of pension to Richard P. Nishuals;

A bill (S. 1613) granting a pension to Rebecca L. Price;

A bill (S. 1614) granting a pension to Kate E. Young;

A bill (S. 1615) granting an increase of pension to John Armstrong (with accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1616) granting an increase of pension to Archibald K. Eddowes (with accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1617) granting an increase of pension to Charles Moyer;

A bill (S. 1618) granting a pension to Ely L. Jones;

A bill (S. 1619) granting an increase of pension to Vial A. Putnam;

A bill (S. 1620) granting an increase of pension to John P. Patterson;

A bill (S. 1621) granting a pension to Catherine Lenihan, now Hairsine;

A bill (S. 1622) granting a pension to Jane Agnew;

A bill (S. 1623) granting an increase of pension to Reid McFadden;

A bill (S. 1624) granting an increase of pension to Peter Betz;

A bill (S. 1625) granting an increase of pension to William Sherwood;

A bill (S. 1626) granting a pension to Simon Levi;

A bill (S. 1627) granting an increase of pension to Lewis C. Smith;

A bill (S. 1628) granting an increase of pension to Christian H. Goebel;

A bill (S. 1629) granting an increase of pension to William Stitzer;

A bill (S. 1630) granting an increase of pension to Nathan B. Fowler;

A bill (S. 1631) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Shoup (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1632) granting an increase of pension to William Harrington;

A bill (S. 1633) granting a pension to Sarah E. Burns;

A bill (S. 1634) granting an increase of pension to Solomon R. Ruch;

A bill (S. 1635) granting an increase of pension to Henry A. Sampson;

A bill (S. 1636) granting an increase of pension to Siotha Bennett;

A bill (S. 1637) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Gehr;

A bill (S. 1638) to restore to the pension roll the name of Henry M. Stiffler;

A bill (S. 1639) granting an increase of pension to Ephraim N. R. Ohl;

A bill (S. 1640) granting a pension to James A. Stine;

A bill (S. 1641) granting an increase of pension to John J. Gangwere;

A bill (S. 1642) granting an increase of pension to George W. Wertz;

A bill (S. 1643) granting a pension to Marion L. Wilson;

A bill (S. 1644) granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Keniston (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1645) granting an increase of pension to Jacob G. Orth (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 1646) granting an increase of pension to Sidney A. Asson (with accompanying paper).

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs:

A bill (S. 1647) to correct the naval record of Henry Borrowes;

A bill (S. 1648) for the relief of the Hoffman Engineering and Contracting Company;

A bill (S. 1649) providing for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the Navy;

A bill (S. 1650) to increase the efficiency of the United States Navy by building cruisers and torpedo boats after the design of Richard B. Painton; and

A bill (S. 1651) to correct the naval record of John Lindsay.

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads:

A bill (S. 1652) to provide for thirty days' annual leave to clerks and employees of first and second class post-offices;

A bill (S. 1653) to prevent Sunday banking in post-offices in the handling of money orders and registered letters; and

A bill (S. 1654) to amend section 3893 of the Revised Statutes.

Mr. PENROSE introduced a bill (S. 1655) for the relief of the owners of the steamship Newchwang; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1656) for the relief of Mary Von Kusserow; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1657) relating to liability of common carriers by railroads in the District of Columbia and Territories and common carriers by railroads engaged in commerce between the States and between the States and foreign nations to their employees; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1658) to provide for a site and public building at South Bethlehem, Pa.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. ALGER introduced a bill (S. 1659) granting a pension to Hattie E. Houston; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1660) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth C. Way; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HEYBURN. I introduce a bill to reimburse the States and Territories for sections 16 and 36 when taken for forest or other Government purposes, and ask that it be read at length and lie on the table.

The bill (S. 1661) to reimburse the States and Territories for sections 16 and 36 when taken for forest or other Government reserves, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That whenever any lands contained in sections 16 and 36 of the public lands of the United States which have been granted to a State or Territory for educational purposes shall be included in the withdrawal of public lands for the purpose of creating forest or other Government reserves, the said State or Territory shall be compensated by the payment out of the Treasury of the United States into the educational fund of the State or Territory in which said lands are situated a sum of money not less than the minimum price at which said lands are authorized to be sold by the State or Territory, whenever it is made to appear that there are not sufficient surveyed public lands of the United States subject to selection by the said State or Territory, in lieu of the lands so included within the reserve as aforesaid, of the cash value of at least the minimum price at which said lands so taken by the Government may be sold under the law.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will lie on the table.

Mr. LODGE introduced a bill (S. 1662) for the relief of the Atlantic Works, of Boston, Mass.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1663) for the relief of Catherine Grace; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. LODGE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1664) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth L. W. Bailey;

A bill (S. 1665) granting an increase of pension to John C. Estes (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1666) granting an increase of pension to George W. Beard (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1667) granting an increase of pension to John A. Stockwell (with an accompanying paper);

Mr. McCUMBER introduced a bill (S. 1668) for the relief of the estate of Gotlob Groezinger; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. LONG introduced a bill (S. 1669) for the establishment of an additional recording district in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1670) granting an increase of pension to William McNabb; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DICK introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 1671) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William Andrews;

A bill (S. 1672) for the relief of John W. Lewis;

A bill (S. 1673) for the relief of William H. W. Krebs;

A bill (S. 1674) for the relief of John A. Wanless;

A bill (S. 1675) for the relief of John F. Lewis;

A bill (S. 1676) for the relief of Harlow L. Street; and

A bill (S. 1677) for the relief of Edward Byrne.

Mr. DICK introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1678) granting an increase of pension to William A. Mullen;

A bill (S. 1679) granting an increase of pension to David Gough;

A bill (S. 1680) granting an increase of pension to Edward M. Duff;

A bill (S. 1681) granting an increase of pension to William F. Davisson; and

A bill (S. 1682) granting an increase of pension to Bertha Forbriger.

Mr. MILLARD introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

A bill (S. 1683) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Kearney, State of Nebraska;

A bill (S. 1684) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Wayne, State of Nebraska;

A bill (S. 1685) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of West Point, State of Nebraska;

A bill (S. 1686) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Columbus, State of Nebraska;

A bill (S. 1687) to provide for the erection of a public building at Grand Island, in the State of Nebraska; and

A bill (S. 1688) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of North Platte, State of Nebraska.

Mr. DEPEW introduced a bill (S. 1689) for the relief of Caleb W. Durham; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1690) for the relief of Theodore F. Northrop; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1691) granting an increase of pension to Alice S. Shepard; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1692) granting a pension to Ellen H. Swayne; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. KITTREDGE introduced a bill (S. 1693) to establish a court of patent appeals, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Patents.

Mr. WARNER introduced a bill (S. 1694) for the erection of a public building at Carthage, Mo.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also (by request) introduced a bill (S. 1695) legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Oklahoma Territory; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs:

A bill (S. 1696) to authorize the location of a Branch Home for disabled volunteer soldiers, sailors, and marines in the State of Florida;

A bill (S. 1697) confirming to certain claimants thereto portions of lands known as Fort Clinch Reservation, in State of Florida;

A bill (S. 1698) to authorize the appointment of Archer B. Hayes to the grade of captain and quartermaster in the United States Army;

A bill (S. 1699) to correct the military record of George Gwynn; and

A bill (S. 1700) to remove the charge of desertion appearing against the military record of David W. Trumpeller.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1701) granting a pension to M. Frances Von Balsan;

A bill (S. 1702) granting a pension to Adolphus N. Pacetty;

A bill (S. 1703) granting an increase of pension to Robert Gamble, jr.;

A bill (S. 1704) granting a pension to John G. Patton;

A bill (S. 1705) granting an increase of pension to Lewis S. George;

A bill (S. 1706) granting a pension to Elizabeth Wester;

A bill (S. 1707) granting an increase of pension to Milton A. Smith;

A bill (S. 1708) granting a pension to Mary P. Docker; and

A bill (S. 1709) granting a pension to Florence Greeley De Veaux.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1710) for the relief of the heirs of Andrew E. Hodges, deceased;

A bill (S. 1711) for the relief of Salvador Costa;

A bill (S. 1712) for the relief of the heirs of Thomas Ledwith;

A bill (S. 1713) for the relief of Louisa Avery;

A bill (S. 1714) for the relief of Mariah L. Trowell, administratrix of Benjamin F. Trowell, deceased;

A bill (S. 1715) for the relief of William Mickler;

A bill (S. 1716) for the relief of C. W. Moffatt;

A bill (S. 1717) for the relief of Rinaldo, Isadore, and Robert von Balsan, and the heirs of Caroline von Balsan, deceased;

A bill (S. 1718) for the relief of William S. Livingston;

A bill (S. 1719) for the relief of Thomas R. Webb;

A bill (S. 1720) for the relief of Emily Catherine Jones; and

A bill (S. 1721) for the relief of the estate of Cyprian T. Jenkins, deceased.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a bill (S. 1722) to construct and place a light-ship opposite the entrance of St. Johns River, Florida; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1723) for the survey of the harbor of St. Augustine, Fla.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1724) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Fernandina, Fla., and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1725) granting certain land to the Missionary Baptist Church, of Rock Sink, Fla.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1726) making provision for conveying in fee the piece or strip of ground in St. Augustine, Fla., known as the "Lines," for school purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1727) granting a pension to I. N. De Long;

A bill (S. 1728) granting an increase of pension to Joseph H. Allen;

A bill (S. 1729) granting a pension to George W. Lewton;

A bill (S. 1730) granting an increase of pension to Orville E. Campbell;

A bill (S. 1731) granting an increase of pension to William O. Colson;

A bill (S. 1732) granting an increase of pension to John A. Packard;

A bill (S. 1733) granting an increase of pension to George W. Trice (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1734) granting an increase of pension to John H. Gardner (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1735) granting an increase of pension to Washington Hogans (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1736) granting a pension to Lena S. Fenn (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1737) granting an increase of pension to Helen M. Blanchard (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1738) granting a pension to Mary E. Connor (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1739) granting a pension to Henry Sistrunk;

A bill (S. 1740) granting an increase of pension to Joseph D. Hazzard (with an accompanying paper);

A bill (S. 1741) granting an increase of pension to William M. Meacham;

A bill (S. 1742) granting an increase of pension to James F. P. Johnston;

A bill (S. 1743) granting a pension to Amon L. Charles;

A bill (S. 1744) granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. Papy; and

A bill (S. 1745) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Gill.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a bill (S. 1746) for the relief of C. B. McClenny; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine.

Mr. PETTUS introduced a bill (S. 1747) to authorize the Mobile Railway and Dock Company to construct and maintain a bridge or viaduct across the water between the end of Cedar Point and Dauphin Island; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1748) granting a pension to Rupert S. Rives;

A bill (S. 1749) granting a pension to John Hedrick; and

He also introduced a bill (S. 1750) to reduce the tariff of the United States by amending "An act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States," approved July 24, 1897; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MONEY introduced a bill (S. 1751) to revive and amend an act to provide for the collection of captured and abandoned property and the prevention of frauds in insurrectionary districts within the United States, and acts amendatory thereof; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MALLORY introduced a bill (S. 1752) granting the right of way, with terminal facilities, to the Florida West Shore Railway Company through the United States light-house and military reservations on Gasparilla Island, in the State of Florida; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. DUBOIS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1753) granting an increase of pension to Waldo W. Paine; and

A bill (S. 1754) granting a pension to Susan E. Potter.

Mr. SIMMONS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1755) for the relief of Homer W. Styron;

A bill (S. 1756) for the relief of Sidney T. Dupuy and George R. Dupuy, the only surviving heirs of George R. Dupuy, deceased;

A bill (S. 1757) for the relief of John Wilson;

A bill (S. 1758) for the relief of the estate of Samuel T. Carrow, deceased;

A bill (S. 1759) for the relief of John I. Rowland;

A bill (S. 1760) for the relief of James W. Adams and of the estate of Solomon N. Adams;

A bill (S. 1761) for the relief of the widow of R. D. Hay;

A bill (S. 1762) for the relief of C. G. Perkins;
A bill (S. 1763) for the relief of the heirs of C. H. Foy;
A bill (S. 1764) for the relief of the heirs of Cicero M. Davis;
A bill (S. 1765) for the relief of the estate of Rayford Brewington, deceased;
A bill (S. 1766) for the relief of the heirs of Joseph H. Etheridge and William D. Etheridge;
A bill (S. 1767) for the relief of the trustees of the diocese of East Carolina;
A bill (S. 1768) for the relief of the Seamen's Friend Society of Wilmington, N. C.;
A bill (S. 1769) for the relief of L. T. Oglesby;
A bill (S. 1770) for the relief of the heirs of John H. Richardson, deceased;
A bill (S. 1771) for the relief of the estate of D. L. Pritchard, deceased;
A bill (S. 1772) for the relief of Sylvester Dibble;
A bill (S. 1773) for the relief of Thomas Monteith;
A bill (S. 1774) for the relief of Sidney Maxwell;
A bill (S. 1775) for the relief of Calvin J. Cowles;
A bill (S. 1776) for the relief of the estate of Esau Berry, deceased;
A bill (S. 1777) for the relief of Walter T. Dough;
A bill (S. 1778) for the relief of the estate of Thomas A. Dough, deceased;
A bill (S. 1779) for the relief of the widow and heirs at law of Charles Wilkes, deceased, late a rear-admiral in the United States Navy;
A bill (S. 1780) for the relief of John L. Brown and the estates of A. T. Redditt and William G. Judkins;
A bill (S. 1781) for the relief of K. H. Lewis and W. F. Lewis;
A bill (S. 1782) for the relief of the heirs of Nancy Burfield, deceased;
A bill (S. 1783) for the relief of the vestry and wardens of St. James Church, of Wilmington, N. C.;
A bill (S. 1784) for the relief of George A. Russell, administrator of Stephen Chadwick, deceased;
A bill (S. 1785) for the relief of the estate of H. D. Coley, deceased;
A bill (S. 1786) for the relief of Henry R. Bryan;
A bill (S. 1787) for the relief of Mary N. Bryan;
A bill (S. 1788) for the relief of Thomas D. Meares, administrator of Armand D. Young, deceased;
A bill (S. 1789) for the relief of the estate of James A. Suydam, deceased;
A bill (S. 1790) for the relief of William C. Staples; and
A bill (S. 1791) for the relief of T. H. B. Myers, surviving partner of John Myers & Son.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 1792) to provide for the erection of a public building at Baker City, in the State of Oregon; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1793) to provide for building and completing the approaches to and improving the ground on which is erected the United States building at Salem, Oreg.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1794) to ratify an agreement with the Indians of the Klamath Indian Reservation, in Oregon, and making appropriations to carry same into effect; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 1795) for the relief of Louisa McCall, administratrix, and so forth; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1796) granting an increase of pension to Edith Burt Trout; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. SUTHERLAND introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1797) granting an increase of pension to John E. Henderson;
A bill (S. 1798) granting an increase of pension to Robert K. Smith; and
A bill (S. 1799) granting an increase of pension to Henry Logan.

Mr. KEAN introduced a bill (S. 1800) referring the claim of the legal representatives of William T. Duvall, deceased, against the United States to the Court of Claims; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. HEYBURN introduced a bill (S. 1801) regulating the creation of forest reserves; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 1802) to regulate the use by the public of reservoir sites located upon the public lands of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1803) granting a pension to Arthur Linn; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HALE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles and, with the accompanying papers (which were ordered to be printed), were referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs:

A bill (S. 1804) providing for the use of certified checks to secure compliance with proposals and contracts for naval supplies;
A bill (S. 1805) providing for the use by the United States of devices invented by its naval officers while engaged in its service and covered by letters patent; and
A bill (S. 1806) to provide for the deposit of the savings of enlisted men of the United States Marine Corps.

Mr. PENROSE introduced a bill (S. 1807) for the relief of Mary V. Shaw; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 1808) providing that the Federal Government shall not grant liquor-tax receipts to persons residing in prohibition territory, State or local; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. McLAURIN introduced a bill (S. 1809) to amend section 3244 of the Revised Statutes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CARTER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 9) to amend the Constitution of the United States to authorize uniform marriage and divorce laws and the enforcement thereof by adequate penalties; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 10) for the relief of P. J. McMahon; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES.

Mr. ELKINS. Mr. President, I ask permission out of order to make a verbal report from the Interstate Commerce Committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from West Virginia asks permission to make a verbal report from the Committee on Interstate Commerce. Is there objection to the request? The Chair hears none.

Mr. ELKINS. Mr. President, under the resolution adopted by the Senate March 2, 1905, authorizing the Committee on Interstate Commerce to hold sessions during the recess of the Senate, I am instructed to report that the committee proceeded, under the resolution, Monday, April 17, and continued its sessions until the early part of June. The committee gave hearings to all persons who manifested a desire to be heard on the subject. The result of the labors of the committee is contained in five volumes of testimony, which has been put in print, and I now place it, by direction of the committee, before the Senate for such disposition.

Under the terms of the resolution the committee was required to report in ten days after the beginning of the present session of the Senate by bill or otherwise. While the committee can not report a bill to-day, I am authorized to state to the Senate, on behalf of the committee, that it went into session on the 21st of November and has been holding meetings, not every day since, but as often as it suited the convenience of the members, to consider the various and difficult subjects raised in the resolution that was adopted by the Senate. The committee is giving careful consideration to the subject-matter of the questions which have been raised, and I am authorized to state that it is the belief of the members of the committee that later on it will be able to report a bill to the Senate for its consideration.

POSTAGE ON PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Mr. STONE. I desire to offer a resolution, for which I ask immediate consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution submitted by the Senator from Missouri will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be directed to inform the Senate whether under the construction placed by his Department upon existing law prescribing the postage for periodical publications, and under the rules and practice of his Department, periodicals published by colleges and universities, or by alumni associations or students of colleges and universities, are admitted to the mails as second-class matter; and also to inform the Senate whether any discrimination has been made or preference allowed any such publications over other similar publications in admitting them to the mails; and if so, to inform the Senate in detail, so far as practicable, to what extent and in what particular instances such discriminations have been made or preferences allowed, and how long the same have been continued, with the reasons therefor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Missouri asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution. Is there objection?

Mr. ALLISON. I shall not object, if the resolution does not consume time.

Mr. STONE. Mr. President, I will say to the Senator from Iowa that if he is especially anxious to go on with the bill in his charge, the resolution which I have offered may go over until to-morrow.

Mr. ALLISON. I hope that will be done. I am very anxious to have the Panama Canal bill taken up this morning.

Mr. STONE. I have no objection to letting the resolution go over until to-morrow.

Mr. ALLISON. Let it lie on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will lie on the table, subject to the call of the Senator from Missouri.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the bill (S. 410) to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct bridges across the Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas, and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

PANAMA CANAL APPROPRIATION.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask unanimous consent, if the morning business is concluded, that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill 480, being the deficiency appropriation bill for the Panama Canal.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business, that order is closed. The Senator from Iowa asks unanimous consent that the bill referred to by him may be now taken up for consideration.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 480) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

The first amendment was to strike out section 1, as follows:

That the bonds authorized by section 8 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, shall be subject to the provisions of section 13 of the act entitled "An act to define and fix the standard of value, to maintain the parity of all forms of money issued or coined by the United States, to refund the public debt, and for other purposes," approved March 14, 1900, the same as though said bonds were issued under the provisions of said act of March 14, 1900.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1 (2), page 2, line 8, before the word "act," to strike out "said;" so as to make the section read:

That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $11,000,000 to continue the construction of the isthmian canal, to be expended under the direction of the President in accordance with the act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, approved June 28, 1902, and for each and every purpose connected with the same, the said sum to continue available until expended: Provided, That all expenditures from the appropriation herein made shall be reimbursed to the Treasury of the United States out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds authorized in section 8 of the said act approved June 28, 1902.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 3 (2), page 2, line 22, before the words "Canal Zone," to strike out "said" and insert "the;" in line 23, before the word "Canal," to strike out "said Panama" and insert "the isthmian;" in line 24, before the word "Panama," to strike out "said" and insert "the;" on page 3, line 2, after the word "Congress," to strike out "And any of the persons appointed or employed by the President in connection with the said government or the said work of construction or operation shall give to Congress or to either House of Congress such information as may at any time be required either by act of Congress or by the order of either House of Congress in relation to their respective actings and doings and the receipt and expenditure of money;" in line 20, after the word "purposes," to strike out "named in this act" and insert "of constructing and maintaining said isthmian canal;" and in line 22, after the word "Congress," to strike out "except that the moneys received, in the ordinary course of business, from the operation of the Panama Railroad and the property and rights appertaining thereto may be expended, so far as necessary, in defraying the expenses of such operation, including maintenance, without being covered into the Treasury of the United States, and such moneys are hereby appropriated for such purpose, and monthly reports of such receipts and expenditures shall be made to the President by the person or persons in charge;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 2. That the President shall annually, and at such other periods as may be provided, either by law or by his order, require full and complete reports to be made to him by the persons appointed or employed by him in charge of the government of the Canal Zone, the construction of the isthmian canal, and the operation of the Panama Railroad, including an itemized account of all moneys received and expended, which said reports shall be by the President transmitted to Congress. The President shall annually cause to be made, by the persons appointed and employed by him in charge of the government of said Canal Zone and the construction of said canal, estimates of expenditures and appropriations, in detail as far as practicable, which estimates shall be submitted to Congress in the manner provided in section 5 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and for other purposes." And no money shall be expended for any of the purposes of constructing and maintaining said isthmian canal except in accordance with appropriations made by Congress.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is still before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment. If there be no further amendments, the bill will be reported to the Senate as amended.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, unless the chairman of the Committee an Appropriations desires to make some explanation of the bill, I should like to call the attention of the Senate to certain matters connected with it. I do not intend to discuss the canal question; that is to say, I am not going to discuss the question as to which is the best canal, neither do I care about discussing the question whether it is worth while or not to build the canal. We have settled that question. We have a law on the statute book to authorize the building of this canal. There may be some question as to how the canal is to be built and as to the character of the canal. Those, however, are matters which Congress must take up and must dispose of very soon.

I do not care to go into the history of the canal, nor do I care to go into the history of the efforts that have been made from time to time since the discovery of America to create a waterway across the Isthmus. From time to time commissions have presented information in reference to that subject to Congress and to the country, and such commissions on every occasion have discussed the same questions, and many of the members of the commissions have also presented their views as individuals.

I think it may be assumed that there has been a continued effort during the past two hundred years to get a canal. We perhaps approached closest and nearest to a systematic and organized effort to get a canal in 1850, when the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was made between the United States and Great Britain. Both Great Britain and the United States in that treaty declared that it was important the canal should be built, and should be built immediately. We know very well that no real effort was made in that direction for many years thereafter, and not until the French began to construct a canal along the present route of the so-called Panama Canal.

There have been a great number of surveys made, not only over the Isthmus of Panama, but over the Isthmus of Darien and over Nicaragua and also on some other routes, but it was generally understood that there were two lines which were preeminently adapted for canal purposes. Those were the Nicaragua and the Panama routes.

De Lesseps, who had charge of the construction of the Suez Canal, invited the engineers of the world to Paris to pass upon the question of a route for an isthmian canal. American engineers to some extent, at least, attended that conference. French engineers and European engineers generally attended in full force. It was claimed by the American engineers that there had been an effort made to forestall the opinion of that congress of engineers by the French engineers and to get an opinion in favor of a sea-level canal on the Panama route. I believe, with rare exceptions, the American engineers favored the Nicaraguan route for a canal with locks. Thereupon the French organized a canal company. I do not at this moment recall what was the amount of stock issued; but that is not a matter of any consequence to the world in this connection. It was the judgment of the European engineers that Panama was the best place to build the canal; that the best canal that could be built would be a sea-level canal, and that the entire work could be accomplished for about $130,000,000, or a little less.

Mr. President, it would be a reflection on the engineers of the world to say that they believed a canal could be constructed across that line in Panama for $130,000,000. It is quite apparent now that the capital of the world would be withheld from a canal that cost three or four times that amount, and this they knew; but they made that low estimate hoping to acquire sufficient funds to put the canal in such position that the capitalists who had invested would be ultimately compelled to complete the canal.

I do not think in making that statement that I do any injustice to any person. I believe a careful examination of the history of that transaction will show that not only De Lesseps knew the canal could not be built for that amount of money, but the engineering talent of the world also knew it, and the American engineers declared with one universal voice that the canal could not be built for that sum.

Mr. President, I am going to stop just a moment to say that in this country, at that time at least, there was a very strong feeling that our engineers did not possess the learning and ability possessed by the engineers of Europe. De Lesseps at that time seemed to overshadow all the engineers of the world. He had made a successful adventure; he had connected the waters of the Mediterranean and the Red Sea. He had selected a sandy desert route, without any engineering difficulties whatever, and had built with the money of Europe a canal which turned out to be a very profitable investment for those who had put their money into it and had gained great reputation.

But more than two thousand five hundred years ago a canal had been built on almost identically the same route that De Lesseps built his canal. It was not as big as the canal constructed by De Lesseps; it did not, of course, begin to carry the amount of commerce that is carried over the canal which he constructed; yet I believe its construction was quite as great a feat as that accomplished by De Lesseps. It is said by the historian Herodotus that the Pharaoh who built that canal sacrificed 127,000 lives in its construction. If you reflect, Mr. President, that at that time all the earth that was removed from that canal was taken out and carried on the shoulders of men and dumped somewhere—for, of course, in that day the steam shovel had never been heard of—you will readily understand that very likely that statement may have been true when such work had to be done with forced labor and not paid labor. This canal was filled up by the drifting sands and opened again and again, if history can be relied upon, and even as late as the year 1000 it was doing service between those two seas. When De Lesseps took hold of the Panama Canal he took hold of a different enterprise, and if he had had a sufficient amount of money he would undoubtedly have made a success of it, as he made a success of the Suez Canal, but failed to finish the work. Of his failure I will speak later.

For twenty years we in the Senate and House of Representatives have been laboring with this question. We have given to it a great deal of attention. We have determined at last that the canal shall be built, and yet we are undetermined as to what shall be the character of the canal to be built.

It is not in good form to refer to personal affairs. Yet I am moved to make this speech to-day somewhat from personal relations to this subject. I have listened in the last few months to the complaints that are being made by the Canal Commission, by the friends of the canal, as to the opposition in this body and everywhere else to the canal. My attitude on the subject has been such as to justify those who have not carefully considered what has been done and said here to believe that I have been an opponent of the canal. I do not believe now, notwithstanding the enthusiasm of the Commission, notwithstanding the enthusiasm of the various friends of this movement, that the canal will be the success predicted and hoped for. I have said on this floor, I think at least fifteen years ago, that there was not any question but that there would ultimately be a canal across the Isthmus. The commerce of the world has demanded it. It has been a question what kind of a canal we wanted, what kind of a canal the business of the world demanded and required; and no other canal will be a paying canal. The canal must secure the business of the world. An immense business must go through the canal in order to make it a paying proposition. Even governments want returns on their investments.

I know it is said that we have a canal on our Great Lakes doing a tremendous business, and as that pays this will pay. But that is a canal through which the business originating back of it and west of it is compelled to pass. It must either seek that outlet or it must take the railroad outlet; and heavy articles, such things as come from the extreme West, like agricultural products, must go through the canal and through the lock.

But there is a difference when you come to the Panama Canal. There is a waterway, long it may be and tedious, around the end of South America, over which the commerce of the world has been going for some hundreds of years, and where the cheapest possible transportation on the face of the earth can be had. Commerce has the choice of taking the Panama Canal when completed, or of going around the cape and coming up the South American coast and then across to Asia. The commerce of the world also has the canal from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea, a canal which has been greatly increased in its capacity since it was bulit; and from a great portion of the United States, if you want to reach the larger part of Asia, you will take the Suez Canal as an economic question. If you want to leave New York with a ship to go to our Philippine possessions, you would take the Suez Canal, if the Panama Canal were open and free and the other route made a charge.

In that attitude, with that matter presented, is it illogical to say that the canal which is to be built at Panama must be a first-class canal, a canal which will meet the demands of commerce, and which will draw to it not only the business which naturally belongs to it, but even business from the sections of the world not naturally tributary to it?

In addition to that, I may mention the fact that four or five hundred miles north of the proposed canal there has been constructed recently a first-class railroad from the Gulf of Mexico across to the Pacific Ocean, across the southern part of the territory of Mexico, called the Tehuantepec Railroad. It is 143 miles of railroad. It is a railroad which I am told is now in first-class order. It cuts across the country where Engineer Eads for years proposed to build a ship railway. The highest elevation is 800 feet above sea level. There is a good harbor on the Gulf side, and the Government of Mexico is building a good harbor on the Pacific side. That route will be many hundred miles nearer to all the Gulf commerce than the Panama Canal when built.

I have not mentioned these facts for the purpose of detracting from the merit and the necessity of the Panama Canal, but I have mentioned them to the Senate of the United States in order that the members thereof may take into consideration what shall be the character of the canal—shall it be a sea-level canal, shall it be a lock canal, shall it be a canal with 90-foot elevation, or a canal with 60-foot elevation, or a canal with 30-foot elevation?

The President of the United States has appointed a board of engineers—I do not remember how many. They have considered questions as to the character of the canal, but they have not reported. It is said, whether truthfully or not I do not know, that all the foreign engineers will report in favor of a sea-level canal, and that the American engineers will report in favor of a lock canal. They will report in favor of a lock canal because they say it is cheaper and can be built with less delay.

I am one of those who voted for what is called the "Spooner amendment." I have never voted for a bill touching this canal, or favorable to the canal, except the vote for the Spooner amendment to take the place of the Hepburn bill, which was for a canal across the Nicaragua route. But if now you are to build a lock canal across the Isthmus I shall be compelled to confess that if a lock canal is to be built it would have been better to have built it across the Nicaragua route than to build it across Panama. I voted with the hope, and I expressed it on the passage of the Spooner amendment, that if we built a canal at all we should build one that would meet the demands not only of to-day but for the time to come.

Mr. President, there is no reason why the Government of the United States should build this canal any more than why other nations should build it. We felt many years ago, and so declared officially, that we could not afford to unite with any other nation in the building of the canal; that if it was built at all it must be built under the auspices and under the control of the United States. Up to a few years since nobody pretended that the Government of the United States ought to build the canal, and nobody thought the Government of the United States would. In 1889, when we chartered by an act of Congress the Maritime Canal Company, composed of citizens of New York, we put in the bill an absolute prohibition of the Government of the United States having anything to do with the building of the canal. For that bill I voted. That provision was put in the bill upon an amendment offered by the then Senator from Vermont, Mr. Edmunds.

Two or three years afterwards we were met by a report from the Committee on Foreign Relations asking the Government of the United States to guarantee the bonds of that company to the extent of $70,000,000 and to take as security for such guaranty an equal amount of the company's stock. We had before us then the report of the engineer of the canal company saying the canal could be built and put in full operation for the sum of about $65,000,000. When that question was submitted to the engineers of this country they raised it to $87,000,000. Yet it was contended here and elsewhere that $65,000,000 was a fair estimate.

That canal scheme provided for locks 650 feet long and 28 feet deep, as I recollect. I wish to submit to the Senate for a moment, is there anybody here who will assert that that canal would to-day meet the requirements of the commerce of the world if it had been built? We now have ships being built that are more than 750 feet long, ships drawing 40 feet, and in a few years we will undoubtedly have ships that will require a lock at least a thousand feet long, if not longer.

Now, as I said, we were under no moral obligation to the world to build the canal. We are going to build the canal upon the assumption that it will be a benefit to us as a nation, and if we can not make that appear we have no right to build it. It will have some advantages to us when built. Whether they will be commercially such as will pay interest on the cost of the canal is another question. When the Spanish ships were threatening our coast, if they did threaten it—at least I know they created a spirit of terrorism in some sections—and the Oregon was longingly looked for on its way around South America from the Pacific coast, I suppose perhaps we then would have paid a good deal of money, without any reference to the income from it, if we had only had a canal across the Isthmus through which we could have brought that ship. But if the canal had been built on the theory which was advocated here for years, the Oregon would still have had to have gone around South America, because it could not have gone through the canal.

On the 28th of June, 1902, the President of the United States signed the bill which made the Panama Canal, I will not say a possibility, but a probability, because I believe the canal will be built. But the question I am anxious that the Senate should take hold of and consider is, What shall be its character? I would lose sight—because if you do not, I believe you will never build the canal—I would lose sight of the question whether there would be returns which, in a financial way, would remunerate the nation for the outlay. If you adhere to the view that the canal must be profitable, in my judgment it will never be built. We did not stop to inquire as to that. We said we wanted the canal, and the men who voted for it and the few who did not expressed the opinion on this floor, at least some of us did, that the die was cast; that the canal was to be built, and pledged ourselves to stand by the act of Congress and to vote on all occasions all the money necessary for its completion.

Why should we not? The whole world is looking at us. All mankind know that we have assumed the right to build the canal. We put $50,000,000 in it before we got possession of the route. We have put twenty-odd millions into it since we got possession of it. Seventy-odd millions of American money is in it. Nobody needs to predict that the canal is not going to be built; and, whether he be an engineer or whether he be a layman, the man who says it can not be built underrates the intelligence of this age as well as our financial ability.

But, Mr. President, notwithstanding all that, notwithstanding that we stand before the world in a way so that we can not afford to retire from the enterprise, it is still our duty to see that we do not put more money in the canal than is absolutely necessary, and that we do put enough in it to make it a commercial success, to the extent at least that it must meet the expectations and demands of the commercial world.

This is the greatest enterprise, in my judgment the most expensive enterprise, that any nation has ever undertaken. I suppose it might have been considered when the Egyptian, Pharaoh, undertook to and did build the canal across the Suez route that it was a great enterprise, and perhaps for the age of the world in which it was built it may have been considered even greater than this. It seems to me that the good name of the nation is involved in this question now. We willingly assumed the burden of this work. We must finish it.

I want to take but a few moments with respect to some details. I wish to ask whether we have approached this great subject as a nation of enterprising, intelligent, business people ought to have approached it. There came to the Senate a bill practically unanimous from the House to build the canal across the Nicaragua route. We changed it to the Panama route. I know it has been said again and again and repeated ad nauseam that we changed it here because we were opposed to the canal itself. That I deny. I have seen several bills pass the Senate for a canal. I have seen a bill pass the Senate for a canal of the lock system via the Nicaragua route with 5 dissenting votes. I have seen another bill passed here with 7 dissenting votes. I have seen another bill passed here with 3 dissenting votes. Every time I was one of that very small number, and on every occasion I have given as my reason for not voting for the bill that the proposed canal did not meet the requirements of the world.

I have often wondered, and some of these younger men will wonder, whether or not this is such a valuable enterprise as we thought it was when we undertook it. I think the very crux of the whole question is, Are you going to build a canal that will secure the commerce of the great sections—the Pacific coast and the Atlantic? Will the world's commerce go through it, leaving to the Suez Canal only such portions as logically belong to it? If you hope to make the canal a blessing to mankind, it must be a commercial way; it must take the commerce of the world, and it must take it at figures that will justify the shipper in sending his goods that way.

We have now several continental lines of railroads. We will have in the next ten years as many more, or at least I will put it in the next fifteen years. I venture to say that within fifteen years there will be as many new lines built as there are now old lines, and the old lines will be strengthened and improved. They are to be the competitors of the canal. They will take the goods from the interior of the country—the center of the country. Take the State which I in part represent here. What interest have we in the canal? The only interest we have in it is due to the fact that we have an interest in every single acre of American soil. The only interests we have in it are due to the fact that the interests of New England and New York and the Gulf States are our interests. We will never send any goods by that canal, nor will it, in my judgment, benefit us at all, except as it may benefit all mankind as well as all the people of certain sections of the United States.

We took possession of this canal route from the French. I was sorry to hear the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] say to-day that we had commenced the canal under conditions almost as disgraceful as those surrounding the French conduct of the proposed canal. I am not prepared myself to charge that there has been fraud or stealing in the operation of the canal since it came into our possession. I am prepared to say, and prepared to prove, I think, that no great enterprise ever was inaugurated or started with so little judgment and so little preparation and so little apprehension of what was to be done and what was necessary as this. There is not an engineer in the world who did not know this was the great enterprise, not of this age, but of all time. There was not an engineer who did not know that the French had made an absolute failure; that every step they had taken was marked by mismanagement or by fraud. The estimate was a hundred and thirty millions; two hundred and sixty millions were wasted, and they could only claim then that one-fifth of the canal excavation had taken place. No dams had been built. No harbors had been provided. There had not been one-twentieth of the canal built. Yet two hundred and sixty-two millions of French money had been spent—even more than that, it is said by some. It had been lost.

I know we paid forty millions. If we are to believe the many stories told, and I do believe them, one-half of that sum went into the hands of the men who exploited the enterprise and induced us to buy the canal. The men who put in the two hundred and sixty-two millions practically got nothing back. It was the scandal of the world. It sent that great French engineer to his grave in disgrace, a convicted felon. We may do the same thing and make the same mistakes, and not have any grafting or stealing, either.

What ought we to have done when we took possession of the canal route? There were upon the Isthmus, where the town of Colon is built, a great number of wooden houses full of disease of every kind and character, full of filth—the accumulation of years. What have we done with it? We have attempted the sanitation of the Zone. We have pulled down the houses in part and rebuilt them. In my judgment if we had torn down every building on the Isthmus built for the use of the canal and burned them and plowed the ground upon which they stood it would have been money in the pockets of the American people. You can not take those old polluted buildings and preserve the health of the employees of the canal who must inhabit them. We were supposed to have acquired twenty-five to twenty-nine million dollars of French supplies. I do not believe there is an engineer who has been down there who will not tell you to-day that it would have been better for us to have dumped them into the sea and bought good American supplies. For instance, we found there a shovel that would dump 25,000 yards of earth in a month, when an American shovel using the same power will dump 750,000 yards. The one means failure and the other means success. Every old shovel that we have rehabilitated has been an expense to the nation, and now we are perhaps growing wise enough to abandon them and buy new ones. But the knowledge of our mistake comes quite late.

Mr. President, I have repeatedly said on this floor that one difficulty we were to meet with the Panama business is the climate. On the Atlantic side it is comparatively healthy. On the Pacific side it is probably the most difficult and deadly climate of any part of the earth. It has been a passageway from California for some years. I have known personally of people crossing that passageway before the railroad was built. They came across there on the old Royal road, and in only two days on the Isthmus they found themselves sick with the Chagres fever. Why? The authorities will tell you, if they tell you the truth, that Panama is one of the most unhealthy places in the world, and it is unhealthy because of the fact that there are no proper breezes and winds to drive away the deadly poison arising from decaying vegetable matter.

We had the same difficult problem in Panama that we had in Colon. There is a lot of old polluted buildings there which we have been repairing.

Mr. President, it is not worth while to dwell upon mistakes that have already been made; but we have made some other mistakes besides attempting to make use of the old worn-out and antiquated tools of the French. We here, this body, and the American people at large have made a mistake. I do not intend to criticise the Commission. I do not know what they have done. I am not sufficiently familiar with their efforts. We were to blame. One of the most intelligent engineers of the age, now dead, a member of the Commission at one time, had declared publicly over and over again that it would take two years of preparation before we could properly go to work on the canal. The Secretary of War declared before the Committee on Appropriations the other day that that preparation is still going on—preparation of sanitation, preparation for housing and feeding the people, the 17,000 people down there, and with practically no work being done on the canal as canal work; doing, Mr. President, what ultimately must be done and should have been done before a single laborer except those engaged in the preparation were put to work upon the canal.

We have been told that unjust criticisms have been made of the Commission down there. That is possible, Mr. President, but not probable, in my opinion. There has been a condition there that, it seems to me, no business man would have had if he had had his way. They had a bureau here with a man in charge down there. The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] smiles. I am not referring now to the press agent. That I will leave later to some one else perhaps. The officer in charge telegraphing here for supplies could not get the supplies in several weeks, and when he got them down there they were locked up and by some system of Army regulations I do not understand it would take, as Mr. Wallace says, three weeks to get the supplies from the storehouse that the engineers and other men were waiting there to use.

Mr. President, if this canal is built on an economic plan it is necessary that the people who have charge of it should go down to the Isthmus and stay there. It can not be done here.

Mr. TILLMAN. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator remarked a moment ago that by some Army regulations supplies which had been shipped were held somewhere by some instrumentality so that they could not be obtained by the engineers. I thought it was brought out in the testimony before the Appropriations Committee that the organization is designed to obviate all the red tape of Army officers and all that sort of thing. I expressly asked the Secretary of War whether the control and direction of affairs down there—inspection and so on—could not be systematized and economy promoted and stealing prevented by the use of the machinery of the War Department, and he said he did not think so.

I am surprised that the Senator speaks so emphatically. Of course I know he has foundation in fact for what he says, but I have not run on it. Simply from overwork in other lines I have not had time to examine all the documents, the testimony, reports, etc. I am astonished to have the Senator say that with this efficient administration, which has been brought about by the employment of the high-priced officials, the expert railroad builders, etc., it takes three weeks to get material.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I am not going into all the details. The President appointed a man by the name of Wallace as chief engineer. I think there are some Senators here, perhaps, who know Mr. Wallace. At all events he had a good reputation; and Mr. Wallace is the authority for the statement that I made. I call the attention of the Senator from South Carolina, if he chooses, to several articles Mr. Wallace has written which have been published in the Engineering Magazine. He will find an article in the magazine of September, another article in the magazine of October, another of November, and another of December. It makes very interesting reading, but I am not going to stop to read it. He states one case where an officer was waiting for mosquito nets. They were in the warehouse, yet he could not get them; and finally he went in and in some way, without authority from the others, he got them. Then he was brought to book for it and charged with stealing them from the Government. However, I believe they did not prosecute that very far.

Mr. TILLMAN. I thought Mr. Wallace had full control on the Isthmus.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. Wallace was the engineer, but he did not control those regulations as to the delivery of supplies.

Mr. President, I am going to take just a moment to say a word about Mr. Wallace. I never met Mr. Wallace, and I have no predilections in his favor except those I have for a man who is recognized in circles that have knowledge of these things as a scientific, educated engineer—a class of men for whom I have always had great respect. I know a great many of them in this country and I have always been benefited by their acquaintance. Mr. Wallace complained of these regulations seriously. Mr. Wallace is under a cloud in the isthmian circles. He went down there and stayed some time. He was met then by one of the great enterprises of this northern country with an offer of $50,000 a year, and he was getting $25,000. He hesitated because he held this position. They raised it to $65,000, and then he appealed to the Secretary of War and asked that he might be allowed to take it. The Secretary objected. Mr. Wallace thought he ought to take it; he had taken his family down there and he thought he ought not to have them there. He came back and resigned his place on the Commission, and by invitation of the Secretary of War, who asked him to resign because Mr. Wallace said he could not, under the circumstances, afford to stay there and give his entire time to it, but he would remain on the Commission if desired and give such assistance as he could. Thereupon this man, who had been there, who had some knowledge of the subject he was sent there to investigate, who I believe has come nearest the solution of this difficulty than any engineer who has ever been there, French or American, went out and went into other employment and a new man was taken. I do not mean to say a word against the new man.

Mr. HOPKINS. Will the Senator allow me a word just there?

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. HOPKINS. Mr. Wallace, whom the Senator has mentioned, is a resident of Illinois, and has been a resident of that State for many years.

Mr. TELLER. That I knew.

Mr. HOPKINS. I think it is not doing him entire justice to say that he left the service because of a larger salary. He left the service in part because when he reached the Canal Zone he found he could not carry out what he believed was necessary in order to properly protect the interests of the Government and build the canal in accordance with the spirit of the law which was enacted by Congress, and his friends resent the idea that he left there simply because he was paid a larger salary.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for that suggestion. I did not seek to leave the impression that he left on account of the salary. He was restive under the conditions, and I have not the slightest doubt, from what I know of his character, that he would have left without any salary rather than to have stayed there under the conditions as they existed.

Mr. TILLMAN. If the Senator will permit me——

Mr. TELLER. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will read from the speech of William H. Taft, Secretary of War, at the St. Louis Commercial Club, St. Louis, November 18, 1905, the following:

> Under the regulations prescribed by the President the Commission organized and appointed an executive committee, consisting of Shonts, Wallace, and Magoon, and adopted regulations dividing the executive work between Mr. Shonts, who, as chairman, took charge of the Washington office, the making of contracts, and the purchase of material, and general executive control of the whole business of the Commission; Mr. Wallace, who was chief engineer, and had now become a member of the Commission and executive committeeman, who took immediate charge of the engineering and construction work upon the Isthmus.

Now, I do not understand what the Senator means when he says that Mr. Wallace, who, it appears from Mr. Taft's statement, had absolute control of the construction work, could not get mosquito nets and other material, and from what the Senator from Illinois says it appears that Mr. Wallace really left in disgust because of the obstruction to his work as an engineer. So it was something else which made him unwilling to be responsible for something he could not carry out because of these hampering conditions. I should like to have this matter ventilated somewhere, either on the floor here or by an investigation of the committee of which the Senator from Illinois is an honorable member. There is no doubt if we can produce the conditions (and I hope to show some additional reasons why such an investigation is imperative), Mr. Wallace can be vindicated, because we can have him come before that committee or some other committee and testify in his own behalf as to whether he was so avaricious that he accepted a few paltry thousand rather than to link his name for all time with the greatest engineering work of the century or of ages.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. Wallace does not need any vindication at all. The Senator from Illinois has stated the fact that every man who has kept in touch with this work knows to be true—that he was restive under the conditions. He was not, as he said, allowed a free hand. Mr. Wallace was there at the bidding of the President, to stay just as long as the President wanted. He had no contract to stay there during the entire work of the canal. He had to put himself in harmony with the element that represented the Canal Commission and the influences here, and if he failed to do it he was at any time, under the notice he received from the President when he got his appointment, obliged to quit whenever the President thought someone else could do the work better than he could, or when any difficulties arose between him and the members of the Commission who stood closer to the President.

Mr. President, I do not think that anyone ought to complain of Mr. Wallace, and if Senators will read his articles in the Engineering Magazine, written with good temper, written as a scientific gentleman should write them, dealing with the difficulties with great moderation, he will accept the statement made by the Senator from Illinois, that he left because things were not as he thought in the interest of the Government of the United States.

Mr. President, it is a great thing for a man to connect his name with one of these great enterprises, but it must be a successful enterprise and not a failure. I believe there are many engineers in this country who could take hold of this work and make a success of it. I believe there are a good many engineers who for no sum whatever would attempt to connect themselves with it unless they felt sure that they would be allowed to make a success of it.

I have been careful not to criticise anyone. I do not wish to appear as the opponent of any man on the Commission. I do not wish to appear as criticising the Executive of this nation. In the bill that we passed on the 28th of June, 1902, we gave him full authority to appoint all the people he saw fit to build the canal, and to fix their compensation, and the only thing we did not do was to appropriate the money, and some of the people connected with the canal insist that we did do that. Mr. Taft, the Secretary of War, said before the committee on Tuesday last he did not think we did, but that the President did not need any help from us to determine of what type the canal should be. The position of the War Department—and I suppose, if I may say so without any disrespect to the Executive, it is probably the Executive position—is that the President can build a lock canal 90 feet above sea level, 60 feet above sea level, or 30 feet if Congress appropriates the necesssary money. It may be that we agreed to let him do that. We have done some very foolish things in the last thirty or forty years, but I do not think we have ever done anything quite as foolish as to abandon our right to determine what character of canal shall be built. I am sure we did not intend to do that.

But, Mr. President, we ought to have determined more fully and in detail when we passed the bill what should be done. We ought to have taken Mr. Morrison's opinion, that it would require two years with a proper force to make the conditions there safe for commencing the work of this great enterprise. It was our fault if we allowed the President of the United States to build the canal. Of course he had to use human agencies to build it. We did not give him any assistance. The demand made by the Commission we had formed, the demand made by the public press, the demand made by public speakers that the dirt must fly on this canal and that the canal must be immediately commenced would justify the President of the United States under those conditions in going to work when the conditions were not suitable. If anyone ought to be criticised, we ought to be criticised here. Congress was to blame.

Now, Mr. President, I wish to say another word or two about the expense of it. I think the expense has been entirely too great. It is largely from lack of proper organization. There are 17,000 men down there, practically none of them engaged in constructing the canal, all of them engaged in doing what we ought to have done two years ago and ought to have done with one-third of that force. But if they did not have 17,000 men the anxiety on the part of the American people that the canal shall be built and built at once would have raised a great commotion. The President would have been blamed. This enterprise is big enough to take time. I myself have seen some of the great public works built. I know something of the history of nearly every great canal that has ever been built in the whole history of the world. The Erie Canal, completed in 1825 by the State of New York, was years and years in building. There were, as I said about the Suez Canal, no great engineering problems to be solved. There was a climate that enabled men to maintain their health and vigor the year round in their outdoor labor. They were not met by the pestilential malaria of the Tropics. They were not met with a tropical sun that burned into their brains and prevented them from working and destroyed their vigor. Yet, Mr. President, it took longer to build that canal, which in the end cost only $9,000,000, than the average American is willing to give to this canal.

Mr. President, I think perhaps I have said about all I care to say, except that I want to say a little about what shall be the character of the canal. What I am going to say is my judgment. I believe every Senator here will agree that we ought to have the best type of canal which can be built. We ought to have it because it will compensate us to have that kind of a canal, if any canal will. We ought to have it because we assume the right to build the canal and keep all mankind except ourselves from its building. We will not do ourselves any credit nor secure any glory if we build an unsuitable canal. I have said here over and over again that the only canal, in my judgment, that would in these days of haste, these days of celerity, these days of great ships, meet the demands of commerce and the approval of mankind is a canal that shall imitate nature, where ships that enter the waters of the sea may go through from one great ocean to the other. I would be proud of that. Almost anybody could build a lock canal, and you could get one that would take a forty-ton ship or a hundred-ton ship through it. It is only a great people like ours, with great resources, with great staying powers, that can build this great canal and distress the people with great burdens of taxation.

We will not build it for $275,000,000. We will not build it for $300,000,000. We will not build it, in my judgment, for $500,000,000. But we will build it, and if I am not mistaken in the temper of the American people they will demand that it shall be the best canal that was ever built or could be built by any people.

Mr. President, why do I say it will cost this great sum? I say it because there is not the man living to-day who has the data to tell you what it will cost. I have the right to say it because I have sat down at my desk and attempted from all the data that could be gotten to determine whether the canal could be built for the money these people say it can or not. Difficulties unforeseen are continually arising. We do not want to repeat the experience of the French. We do not want to start out to build a canal with $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 if it is going cost $500,000,000. We do not want so stop because it is going to cost $500,000,000. We want to face the question and prepare for it, and build the canal, now we have commenced, regardless of cost.

Mr. President, I do not know whether we should issue bonds for it or not. I should like the glory of building it with the money we collect, and give it to the commerce of the world and to the generations which are to come after us. But if we are not rich enough for that, let us issue the bonds. We can put out $500,000,000 or $800,000,000 if necessary, and the people will take them up, and we can pay them. We have expended since Dewey went into the harbor of Manila not less than $800,000,000 on the Philippine Islands. We have not gotten in return $800 worth of value, unless it be the glory he conferred upon the American flag and American shipping when he won that battle in that harbor. But, Mr. President, in the language of the West, at least, which we use sometimes, we have not "gone broke." We are as able to spend $800,000,000 on this work as if we had not already spent that amount at all.

Mr. President, I grow restive sometimes when I think of that great expense for nothing. This expense will not be for nothing. There is something that will come from it. If it is nothing in the way of finance, it will be some glory that shall solve the problem of the ages, and that we shall cut the waterway across the Isthmus that shall save 10,000 miles of seafaring from one American port to another.

The Committee on Interoceanic Canals will find themselves charged with great difficulties. There is criticism of the payment being made to individuals; there is criticism of the payment being made for supplies. All of these things must be put upon a business basis, and it is that committee's prerogative and function to arrange for those things and not the committee to which I belong, the Committee on Appropriations, which reports this bill.

I do not know, Mr. President, how long I shall remain a member of the Senate. If I live until the 4th of March, 1909, and have my seat here in the Senate, I wish to repeat the pledge I made when the Spooner bill was passed, that whether I thought it wise to build the canal now or wait, that is the law of the land. By my education and by my principles it is my duty as a member of the Senate to vote these supplies, even if I do not approve of what may have been done. Even if the plan of the canal shall not meet my approval, if the party that has the right to determine what shall be the character of the canal determines it against my judgment, that will not justify me in obstructing, hindering, or delaying the execution of the work.

I have here a very large amount of data on canals, but I am not going to present them to the Senate now. I have a great many statements here to show, I think, that we are overrating the income which will be derived from this canal. I wish to say, however, that the income will be much greater if it is made a sea-level canal. While the expense of maintaining a sea-level canal will be millions of dollars, it will be less than the amount required for the maintenance of a lock canal, whether such a canal be constructed on a high elevation, a medium elevation, or on the lowest elevation.

I think this canal should be wider than is proposed by this Commission. It should be more than 150 feet wide, and it should be more than 35 feet deep. There are ships to-day drawing 40 feet of water. It should be deep enough to take a ship drawing 40 feet of water. It should be in some places 300 feet wide; in the great cuts where we are removing this earth it ought to be at least 300 feet wide as the only safety for the canal in the future.

If, however, you build a lock canal, that will be the end of it. While that lock canal is in operation you can not enlarge it; you must do what the State of New York is now doing with her Erie Canal—practically build a new canal. You can not build a new line across that Isthmus, for there is no place for it. When you have built this canal as a lock canal it will remain a lock canal for all time. If it is once found to be an inefficient and valueless canal, it will always remain an inefficient and valueless canal.

A majority of the engineers—I had perhaps better refer to that subject for a moment—to whom the President submitted the question, I think, are likely to report in favor of a sea-level canal; and the American engineers, some of them at least, will report in favor of a lock canal. I want the Senate to understand that, so far as I am acquainted with the American engineers, I know some of them who have expressed themselves on this subject are in favor of a lock canal, and every one of them who has done so has done it upon the ground that we ought not to spend the money which would be required to build a sea-level canal.

I want to repeat what I have said again and again, what I want to keep before your attention—and I want to have the attention, not simply of the Senate, but I want the American people to understand it—that this enterprise is one in which they have more than a financial interest. If it is to be a success, it must be a canal, I again repeat, that will meet the demands of the world. We are not building it for ourselves alone; we are building it for the commerce of the world. Unless we shall increase our commerce, unless we shall gather up in some way more of the business of exporting and importing, we shall do a beggarly business through that canal. Of all the exports and imports of the United States, on an average about 10½ per cent is being carried in American vessels, and the remainder is carried under foreign flags.

The commerce we shall carry through that canal does not now address itself to us. It might have done so when we were considering whether or not to build the canal; but it does not to-day, after we have pledged ourselves before the world that we would build it and after we have already spent $70,000,000 in trying to build it.

Mr. President, the greatest obstruction to the building of this canal is a river. I am going to touch on that briefly, and then I shall relieve the Senate from further discussion. There are a great many other things I should like to say, but there will be opportunity to say them at some other time.

The Chagres River is the most important and difficult problem of all. The French, when they considered the plan of a sea-level canal, and at the time when they planned to build a lock canal, proposed to build a dam across the river at Bohio. I believe now that it has been demonstrated to be impracticable, and that a dam can not be built there. Mr. Wallace, however, has made an examination higher up the river and has found a place where I do not think there can be any question but what the canal can be built.

Mr. Ernst, one of the engineers who for a long time was connected with the investigations down there, has gone higher up the river and selected two tunnel sites, one to run a portion of the water into the Pacific Ocean and another to run a portion of it into the Atlantic Ocean. The dam proposed is at Gamboa. This dam and these tunnels will solve that problem, and the entire expense will be less, I think, than the engineers had heretofore expected. Whether that will be done or not I do not know, but I think, as the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] said the day before yesterday, there can be no dam built at Bohio, and there is no use talking about it. They have gone down a hundred and seventy feet, we know, in making the examination, and have found no rock yet. It is impossible, in my judgment, to maintain a dam of the character which the French company had planned and which for the time being we had accepted without much examination on the strength of their action.

These questions are all before the Commission; they will all come before us here; and I think it is the duty of every Senator to investigate them and be prepared to vote on them.

Now, I am going to leave this subject for the present. I have no doubt this appropriation bill will pass, and I suppose the chairman of the committee will repeat what was stated to the committee, that the amount it contains is sufficient to carry the work on without any hindrance until at least the 1st of April next.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President——

Mr. ALDRICH. Will the Senator from West Virginia allow me to offer an amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from West Virginia yield to the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. SCOTT. Certainly.

Mr. ALDRICH. I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Rhode Island offers an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 3, line 21, section (3) 2, after the word "Canal," it is proposed to insert "or for any expenses incident thereto."

Mr. ALDRICH. I think that is self-explanatory, and I think perhaps the committee will have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, the committee regard the language already in the bill as covering everything relating to the construction of the canal and the expenses incident thereto are of course a part of it.

Mr. ALDRICH. I am not sure as to that.

Mr. ALLISON. I am quite willing personally that the amendment shall be inserted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment submitted by the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CULBERSON. What is the amendment, Mr. President? Let the amendment be again read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment submitted by the Senator from Rhode Island will be again read for the information of the Senate.

The SECRETARY. On page 3, line 21, section (3) 2, after the word "Canal," insert "or for any expenses incident thereto;" so that as amended it reads:

> And no money shall be expended for any of the purposes of constructing and maintaining said isthmian canal or for any expenses incident thereto except in accordance with appropriations made by Congress.

Mr. MORGAN. That means, I take it, the salaries of officers?

Mr. ALDRICH. Anything. I understand there may be steamboat lines established.

Mr. MORGAN. I had hoped that the committee had purposely cut out the provision for salaries of officers, so that the money could be applied to the construction of the canal only, and not to the payment of such salaries.

Mr. SCOTT. I believe I have the floor, Mr. President.

Mr. ALDRICH. I think there is no objection to making it perfectly clear that no money can be expended for the canal, or any expenditures incident thereto, without an appropriation by Congress; and I suppose that is what we are all after.

Mr. MORGAN. That is your purpose?

Mr. ALDRICH. Yes, sir.

Mr. CULBERSON. I desire to ask a question with reference to the amendment.

Mr. SCOTT. If it does not lead to debate I shall not object, but if it is to cause a running debate I shall object.

Mr. CULBERSON. What I desire to ask the chairman of the committee is whether or not it is intended by the provision, which has just been made, to limit the operation of section 5 of what is known as the "Spooner Act?" There is some question as to whether the general provision against deficiencies applies to the Spooner Act. Now, this provision here seems to squint, at least, at a modification of section 5 of the Spooner law. I desire to know if that is the purpose of the amendment.

Mr. ALLISON. I do not know what the precise purpose of the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] may be; but, as I understand it, the amendment does not in the slightest degree affect section 5 of the Spooner law.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I am heartily in favor of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. So the remarks I am now going to make should not, and can not, be taken as an evidence of opposition to such a project on my part. It is in no spirit of opposition to the proposed appropriation that I desire to address the Senate. I will not, by my vote, in any way delay action on this measure to give to the Panama Canal Commission a sufficient amount of funds with which to proceed in its work. But I do desire to call the attention of the Senate and the country to the fact that I feel more certain than ever that a mistake has been made in selecting the Panama route for this canal.

In the Fifty-seventh Congress I took occasion, by the courtesy of the Senate, to address this honorable body on the merits of the San Blas, or Mandingo Bay, route across the Isthmus. At that time I had given the subject as careful study as it was possible for me to give; had examined the reports of engineers, the equals of any connected with the present Commission, and felt satisfied that this route was the best proposed to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. My plea was made at that time for an appropriation of only $15,000 to meet the expenses of a board of engineers in thoroughly examining and reporting on this route. In its wisdom the Senate saw fit to take no action on this resolution of mine.

We are now confronted with a situation which only proves, to my mind at least, what I have always held concerning the Panama route. Millions of dollars have been expended, and the canal itself is no nearer completion than it was when the United States took charge of its construction. A difference of opinion among engineers exists, some favoring a sea-level and others a lock canal. Ten years was set as the limit for the work. Two years have passed, and, as I said before, the canal itself is no nearer completion than it was at the beginning. I do not think that this canal, as projected, can be completed within ten years from the present time. If the plans are changed to make it a sea-level canal, our children may live to see the day when ships can pass through it from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The cost was estimated at nearly $200,000,000, and to the uninitiated it now looks as if it would take a half billion dollars at least to complete this stupendous work. Two years of experience seem to bear out the prediction made concerning the almost impossible conditions of completing this canal. The time of completion will be indefinitely extended, and the amount of money necessary has indefinitely increased. I have faith enough in American genius and American grit to believe that even this canal will be completed some day, but the cost will be beyond our most extravagant estimates.

It is because of these facts that I desire again to direct attention to the San Blas route across the Isthmus of Panama. As a business man I have studied this route as a business proposition, and in my previous address I gave the reasons in detail for the conclusions drawn. Let me state the conclusions again, comparing them with the Panama Canal.

The San Blas line is less than 30 miles long; the Panama line is 49 miles long.

The San Blas line has excellent and capacious harbors at each end not subject to calms or cyclones. The Panama line has very good harbors, but the harbor of Panama is subject to calms and Colon is visited by northers.

The San Blas line is at sea level, without locks, gates, or dams, excepting a tide lock; the Panama line—no one knows what it will be.

The San Blas route, after construction is commenced, could be completed within three, or at the most, five years. No one knows how long it will take to complete the Panama line.

The San Blas line will have no curve; the Panama Canal has several.

The San Blas Canal could pass a ship from sea to sea in five or six hours; the Panama would require fifteen.

The San Blas line would be located in a most healthful district. The expenditure of millions of dollars for sanitary purposes has already shown in what sort of a district the Panama Canal lies.

The San Blas Canal could be constructed all the way, with the exception of a short distance, through solid rock; the Panama Canal is to be constructed for a large part of the way through mud, sand, slippery clay, and shale rock.

Finally, the entrance to the San Blas line would be several miles nearer to New York than Panama.

It would seem, Mr. President, that a route that is the shortest, least expensive to complete, easiest to build and maintain, capable of construction within from three to five years, with a capacity for business ten times larger than any other route, would have appealed to the Isthmian Canal Commission, to the Senate, and to the people of the country. But, Mr. President, a tunnel was necessary on the San Blas route, and this proved to be the great "bugaboo" in the way. It made no difference that eminent engineers as early as 1864 surveyed this San Blas, or Darien, route and reported on its feasibility. It made no difference that eminent foreign engineers unhesitatingly gave their favorable consideration to this San Blas route. It made no difference that even eminent American naval officers and engineers gave it their sanction. The Ishmian Canal Commission simply ignored it. Naturally the Senate and the people also ignored it.

But why did the Isthmian Canal Commission ignore this project? Some one with knowledge greater than I possess must answer; I can not. A large sum of money was appropriated by Congress for the purpose of examining and reporting on the most practicable route across the Isthmus of Panama. It would seem reasonable that such a commission would examine into all the proposed routes. And this Commission did, in a way, at least so far as the San Blas route is concerned. On their ship, several miles out at sea, with the instruments at their command, they gazed upon the mountain range under which the canal must be dug, and at once unhesitatingly gave it as their opinion that such a proposition was an impossibility! The mountains, so their instruments told them, were of volcanic origin; the inside was composed of soft and decaying material, through which it would be impossible to bore. Having seen, and having satisfied their eyes, they sailed away and ignored this route! The Commission landed no parties, no borings were made in the mountains, and no route from ocean to ocean was followed. Satisfied with their distant telescopic view, they refused afterwards to place any importance upon the actual borings made by eminent engineers and the tests of the rock so found made by most eminent scientists. They paid no attention to the testimony of distinguished engineers as to the possibilities of the construction of such a canal. And yet one engineer of high standing and long experience, believing in the possibility of this canal, has since been called into the counsels of the Commission.

Mr. MORGAN. Who was that engineer?

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Randolph.

Mr. MORGAN. Oh, yes.

Mr. SCOTT. In addition, a company composed of reputable business men proposed to dig this canal, tunnel and all, within six years. All these gentlemen asked was the indorsement of the United States on one hundred and fifty millions of the company's bonds. Such indorsement was guarded in the most careful manner. In return, the United States was to have the use of this canal free for one hundred years. But such an offer was not deemed worthy of consideration, nor did it even cause a suspicion in the minds of the Commission that perhaps the San Blas Canal was a feasible route.

As I said at the outset, Mr. President, I do not intend to delay for a moment, if I could, the building of the Panama Canal. I shall vote for the money needed to complete this great project. I do not offer these remarks as a harsh criticism on the Commission or on the judgment of Congress. But I do desire to state, in my opinion, that if the appropriation for which I asked three years ago had been made, the Government to-day would not be standing sponsor for the Panama Canal and its ramifications of toil and expense. I believe it would have chosen the shorter, cheaper, and more easily constructed route.

Mr. MORGAN obtained the floor.

Mr. ALDRICH. Will the Senator from Alabama allow me to say just a word in relation to the amendment I offered a moment ago?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. MORGAN. Certainly.

Mr. ALDRICH. In answer to the question of the Senator from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON], I would say that my purpose is to make it certain that no money shall be expended for the construction and maintenance of the canal, or any expenses incident thereto, unless the money shall be appropriated by Congress for that purpose. If the last clause of the fifth section of the Spooner Act, so called, should be construed to authorize expenditures without definite appropriations, then the amendment certainly does modify and change the fifth section of the Spooner Act.

Mr. BACON. I understand the reason for offering the amendment by the Senator is that it is contended by some persons that under the fifth section, as it now stands in the existing law, an appropriation is not necessary.

Mr. ALDRICH. I have heard that contention made.

Mr. BACON. And the purpose of the Senator is to set that question at rest?

Mr. ALDRICH. To make it perfectly clear that no money can be expended unless it is appropriated.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, in frankness I ought to say that, in my judgment, the Senator from Georgia [Mr. BACON] does not state the case on the part of the Administration correctly. As I understand it, the idea of the Administration, as expressed by the Secretary of War, is that, under the Spooner Act, the President is authorized to enter into contracts; but that there must be appropriations to pay those contracts from time to time by the Congress. If it is the purpose of the Senator from Rhode Island by his amendment to cut off the payment of money except by a specific appropriation, whether the payment is made on the spot in cash or by contract, then his amendment ought to go further and use the term "contract," so that the language employed will unquestionably cover it.

Mr. ALDRICH. My amendment and the amendment of the committee were not intended to stop the power of contract, which is given by the fifth section of the Spooner Act. That question is not dealt with at all. The amendment is intended to provide that expenditures must cease whenever the amount of money appropriated by Congress is expended.

Mr. CULBERSON. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] has been agreed to.

Mr. BACON. In order that I may not be misunderstood, I will say that I did not undertake, as is suggested by the Senator from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON], to state the contention of the Administration. I would have no right to do that. I simply stated that it was a proposition contended for by some that, under the fifth section of the Spooner Act, expenditures could be made without specific appropriation, and that in recognition of the existence of that contention the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH], as I understood him, had introduced his amendment for the purpose of setting that question at rest by providing that expenditures can not hereafter be made, if this amendment shall be incorporated in the law, without a specific appropriation. That is as far as I intended to go.

Mr. ALLISON. The amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] only affects incidental expenditures, or expenditures incident to construction. The amendment proposed by the committee, which has been agreed to by the Senate, settles the question as respects the expenditure of money in advance of appropriation. Contracts can be made just as contracts are made in other branches of the Government service. For rivers and harbors, for instance, a contract is made that a certain work shall be undertaken and that the cost shall not exceed so many million dollars. A contract is made, but that contract must be made within whatever the limit may be. The fifth section of the Spooner Act authorizes the President to contract within the limit of $135,000,000, but I do not understand, though others may, that a contract can be made that will bind the Government for expenditures in the future without appropriations by Congress. If a contrary construction can be made of the Spooner Act, the amendment proposed by the committee and by the Senator from Rhode Island ought to be agreed to.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, does the Senator construe this law to limit the power of the President to contract?

Mr. ALLISON. I do not. We expressly allow him to contract, but certainly he is not to contract and expend money——

Mr. SPOONER. Ah!

Mr. ALLISON. That has not been appropriated by Congress.

Mr. SPOONER. Not to contract and expend?

Mr. ALLISON. Contract and expend. He can contract, if he chooses, for certain expenditures. If there is an appropriation for such expenditures they can be made, but if there is not, they can not be made and ought not to be made.

Mr. SPOONER. All the Senator means is that the President can not expend under contract money that has not theretofore been appropriated?

Mr. ALLISON. That is exactly true. In all river and harbor appropriation bills contracts are authorized by law, but expenditures under the contracts are estimated for and appropriated by Congress in advance of their being made.

Mr. SPOONER. My understanding of the law is in harmony with that of the Senator. The only limitation upon the President's power to contract was this:

> And the President is hereby authorized to cause to be entered into such contract or contracts as may be deemed necessary for the proper excavation, construction, completion, and defense of said canal, harbors, and defenses, by the route finally determined upon under the provisions of this act. Appropriations therefor shall from time to time be hereafter made, not to exceed in the aggregate the additional sum of $135,000,000 should the Panama route be adopted, or $180,000,000 should the Nicaragua route be adopted.

It was clearly contemplated that appropriations should be made from time to time to meet the expenditures.

Mr. ALLISON. That is my understanding, and this amendment does not change it. It only provides that the expenditure shall be appropriated for.

Mr. SPOONER. Let me ask the Senator——

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

Mr. SPOONER. If the Senator from Texas will permit me for one moment. At the last session of Congress section 3679 was enacted:

> No Department of the Government shall expend, in any one fiscal year, any sum in excess of appropriations made by Congress for that fiscal year, or involve the Government in any contract or obligation for the future payment of money in excess of such appropriations unless such contract or obligation is authorized by law.

The last clause of that section would apply to section 5, as I understand it.

Mr. ALLISON. Yes, sir.

Mr. SPOONER. Does the Senator think the prohibition of last winter—I mean against deficits—would apply to the Panama Canal?

Mr. ALLISON. If the Senator asks me for my view of that, I will say that I think it does not apply to the Panama Canal. That is a contract authorized by law.

Mr. SPOONER. Yes; but in addition to that, do you construe the prohibition of a deficit as applying to this matter?

Mr. ALLISON. I do not.

Mr. SPOONER. As I understand, the Senator from Rhode Island secured the adoption of an amendment to this clause.

Mr. ALDRICH. Yes; by the insertion of the words "or for any expenses incident thereto."

Mr. SPOONER. "Or for any expenses incident thereto." Was that adopted?

Mr. ALDRICH. Yes.

Mr. SPOONER. It is the purpose to bring the construction of the canal and the expenditures therefor within the purview of that prohibition?

Mr. ALLISON. Yes, sir.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, as I understand the Senator from Iowa, he takes the position that notwithstanding the general language of section 5 of the Spooner Act, authorizing the President to contract within the limit of a hundred and thirty-five million dollars, yet he can not contract beyond the limit of the specific appropriation that may be made from year to year. That is not the position of the Administration; it is not the construction placed upon that law by the Secretary of War. I call attention to his language at page 15 of the hearing:

> Secretary TAFT. No, sir. In other words, I do not think that the section, to which reference was made, in the last appropriation act——
> The CHAIRMAN. Applies?
> Secretary TAFT. Applies at all to this, because that applies to cases where there is no express authority to make contracts beyond appropriations, and the Spooner Act contains the express authority to make contracts for the construction of the canal.
> The CHAIRMAN. In other words, if you choose to do so you can contract now for the whole canal?
> Secretary TAFT. Yes, sir.
> The CHAIRMAN. If it does not exceed $130,000,000?
> Secretary TAFT. Yes, sir.

Mr. President, in view of this opposing opinion, it seems to me that those in charge of the bill making this appropriation should clear up the situation by explicit language that there may be no misunderstanding hereafter.

Mr. SPOONER. Who holds the opposite opinion to that of Secretary Taft on this question?

Mr. CULBERSON. I understood the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations did.

Mr. SPOONER. Not at all.

Mr. ALLISON. I have no doubt that under that clause a contract could be made for the construction of the canal within the limit stated, but that contract surely must be subject to appropriations made by Congress, because in connection with it there is the clause to which attention has been called.

But the intention of the committee in proposing these amendments was that in making these contracts there shall be provision that they shall be conducted in accordance with the appropriations made from time to time by Congress and subject to that limitation. It is just what we do with respect to our public buildings and as to rivers and harbors, etc., and it seems to me that this provision as respects the construction of the canal should be put exactly upon that basis and no other.

Mr. BACON. Will the Senator from Iowa permit me to ask him a question in order to secure an illustration of his view? In the case of a continuing contract for the improvement of a harbor, I understand that under the law a continuing contract can be made, contemplating a succession of appropriations thereafter each year as the work may develop; but is it not true that while those contracts are thus authorized under the law, no work can be done to the extent that a liability therefor shall be incurred for the payment of the money until the money is appropriated for the work?

Mr. ALLISON. That is true, and the contract so provides.

Mr. BACON. In other words, while the contract can be made, the work on account of which the money is to be paid is not to be done until the money is appropriated therefor. Am I correct in that respect?

Mr. ALLISON. The method as respects rivers and harbors and public improvements of every kind is that a contract can be made for the completion of the work. That enables the contractor, of course, to acquire sufficient plant, etc., to go on with the whole work. He knows he has that contract, but as to the rapidity with which the work is to be done or paid for it depends upon appropriations made by Congress. Now, it certainly would not be the part of wisdom for us to have a contract here covering many millions of dollars without knowing from time to time the appropriations that will be made for that purpose. That is all that is provided for here.

Mr. TILLMAN. It occurs to me to ask the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, in view of what has been said about making contracts and the power of the President, as claimed by the Secretary of War, to make a contract, whether or not any evidence has been brought to our attention that it is proposed to build this canal as one whole thing by some one contractor. Is not the work going on now, where there is any contract at all, by piecemeal, individual contracts being given out, without anyone knowing whether the aggregate of all the small contracts, when they come to be footed up, will far exceed $135,000,000?

Therefore if the contention which the Senator from Wisconsin has presented, rather than the Senator from Iowa, that the President is permitted to make contracts within the limit of $135,000,000 holds good, without the limitation which this amendment proposes, I want to know how we are to be sure that contracts will not be let which will absorb the whole $135,000,000 and yet the canal be not half completed? The necessity for the amendment limiting all expenditures to the specific amounts appropriated for specific purposes is more obvious by reason of the contention I have put out. Otherwise this project will cost us four or five or three times—I do not know how much, but an immense amount—more by reason of the fact that we will not know whether the contracts will carry the work along to the percentage of completion which the amount paid under them would require.

Mr. ALLISON. It is true, as the Senator says, that there is no general contract now.

Mr. TILLMAN. None is contemplated, either, that I have heard of.

Mr. ALLISON. It may possibly be. They have the right to contract.

Mr. TILLMAN. I say I have not heard of it.

Mr. ALLISON. The limitation is the total cost of the work when completed, as provided by statute, according to the plans of the engineers of the Government.

Mr. TILLMAN. But unless there is a contract covering the entire construction, so that when the contract is completed the canal will be completed, where are we at, except in the clouds or in the mud, and I do not know which?

Mr. ALLISON. We will be in the clouds or the air somewhere.

Mr. TILLMAN. We will be stuck in the mud, because there is a lot of rain down there.

Mr. ALLISON. There is a provision that the cost of the canal shall not exceed $135,000,000.

Mr. TILLMAN. Who is to be the judge as to whether a given contract will cover a percentage of the total cost equal relatively to the total amount stated—$135,000,000?

Mr. ALLISON. The President of the United States, of course.

Mr. TILLMAN. Suppose he makes a mistake, as even a President may sometimes do?

Mr. ALLISON. If that mistake shall be made in the great future, I think there will be some way of relieving ourselves.

Mr. TILLMAN. We will have to pay the expense.

Mr. ALLISON. Very likely we shall.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. President, I yielded the floor a while ago in order to have other gentlemen make some inquiries about the form in which this legislation should be perfected. Having gotten through that and an agreement, I believe, having been reached about it, I wish to make some suggestions of rather a general character about this business, which I think I ought to make, considering my relation to the subject heretofore.

As to the practicability or feasibility of the construction of a canal at Panama, and as to the conditions under which we have taken over the property from the French company, and as to the suspicious surroundings that belong to those conditions, and as to my personal opinion as a member of the Senate with reference to the possibility or impossibility of making a canal, either a lock canal or a sea-level canal, at Panama, I have already gone on record as far and as fully as I desire to do.

I am very much gratified to find that the statements which I laid before the country at that time—all statements of fact, not mere opinions—are being quoted with approval by Senators on this floor, and that they are resorting to those facts now as a basis of argument as to what we are about to try to do, instead of having appealed to them as a basis of action against any attempt to build a canal at Panama. I need not put quotation marks around those statements for identification. That question has all passed. Congress has decided that the canal is to be built at Panama, and in the recent message of the President we have an admonitory statement made by him, which shows, if it shows anything, that he would feel compelled to veto any bill the Congress might pass to take the canal to San Blas or to Nicaragua, in the following words:

> Active work in canal construction, mainly preparatory, has been in progress for less than a year and a half. During that period two points about the canal have ceased to be open to debate. First, the question of route; the canal will be built on the Isthmus of Panama. Second, the question of feasibility; there are no physical obstacles on this route that American engineering skill will not be able to overcome without serious difficulty, or that will prevent the completion of the canal within a reasonable time and at a reasonable cost. This is virtually the unanimous testimony of the engineers who have investigated the matter for the Government.

There we have a statement by the President, which he will be prepared to execute against any vote of the Congress of the United States, that he will veto any measure proposed at any time to change the route from Panama either to Nicaragua or San Blas. The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. SCOTT] has correctly stated that the Committee on Interoceanic Canals of the Senate gave no attention practically to the San Blas route for the reason that the Isthmian Canal Commission, under the circumstances and in the manner which he has properly stated, made their observations in regard to that route and reported against its practicability, reporting at the same time in favor of the Panama route, having three times before that, and once under oath, reported in favor of the Nicaragua route. Their change of front on the subject, which some gentleman has ventured to call a flop, was brought about by conditions which I do not find it necessary at this moment of time to inquire into, nor do I know that it would be of any interest to the country that they should ever be inquired into. The gentlemen who made that proposition and certified it in the manner I have stated have gone out of business, and most of them have gone out of observation, and I am disposed to let them stay right where they have planted themselves in public estimation.

The proposition brought forward this morning in the remarks of the Senator from West Virginia is a reasonable one, considering the fact that the Panama route and any other route that Congress has yet decided upon is exclusively for the benefit of steamships. A tunnel would have to be dug at San Blas, but it need not be of the altitude in its grand arch to admit sailing vessels to go through. Perhaps a height of 50 or 75 feet in the apex of the arch would be quite sufficient to admit the passage of the largest steamers which would ever attempt to pass through. It would depend mainly upon the length of their funnels.

As to its feasibility, the question is exactly the same that has been demonstrated completely in the railway tunnels through the Alps; that is to say, it is quite as feasible in the present state of the art of tunneling to make a tunnel large enough to admit the largest steamer in the world, as it is to construct the tunnel in Washington for the accommodation of railway trains, which is to pass almost under the Capitol. As to the cheapness, when we consider the question of its durability and the absence of the necessity for continued repairs, the tunnel is the cheapest, it is the most permanent, the least liable to difficulty.

The Senator referred to the objection that was made that the interior of the mountain between San Blas and the Gulf of Panama was said to be of soft material. If that is so, it is all the better for boring, because no constructor of any tunnel for a canal through that region of country or any region of country would think of letting the tunnel rest without a lining from bottom to top to make it absolutely secure. So if the material is really soft it is cheaper and better for boring.

That, Mr. President, is an ideal situation for a canal for many reasons; for one great reason that it has no Spanish and free negro population in towns and cities at each end of it. It passes through an uninhabited region. It passes under it. It gets rid, just as far as human skill can make plans to that end, of the interference which we are bound to expect—and it will come, often times in forms and with a rapidity that we little dream of—from the miserable population that happens to have congregated on the surface of the earth between Colon and Panama. We will be rid of all that. I believe to-day, in view of the situation now presented of a divided judgment between the American and foreign engineers, that it would be wise for the Congress of the United States to direct an immediate survey of the San Blas route, which could readily be made within the period of time that the present Congress will be in its first session.

No man could mention to me or give to me an assurance that would be more grateful to my mind than that of the practicability or the feasibility of building any kind of a canal at Panama. I would welcome it as a solution of the difficulties that very able and learned men have encountered and that the common sense of the people of the United States upon the facts which are perfectly known finds call for hesitation and doubt. We ought not really, if we can avoid it, to spend a dollar in building a canal anywhere across the Isthmus unless we are first satisfied that when the canal is built it will be a perfect and unfailing channel for the conveyance of the commerce of the world. We have not reached that conclusion by any means. We are as far away from it as we were three years ago—quite as far away—and there is a greater labyrinth of doubt than existed at the time of the dissension between the former commission d'étude of the Panama Canal and the American engineers who reported upon the De Lesseps project of a sea-level canal. I would very cheerfully vote any money that might be necessary to have an expedition sent at once to San Blas to see whether or not a canal could be made practicable at that point.

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. SCOTT] is a practical man, a man of business knowledge, who works out propositions of the kind with which we are dealing with as much certainty as anyone is able to do upon the facts that are furnished to him, and I have great respect for his judgment. I do not know that it is worth while for him or anyone else to offer such a bill and have this report made—and it can be made at least by May—for the reason that the President has determined, as he says in his message, that the canal shall be built at Panama, and shall not be built anywhere else. It seems to me, Mr. President, that is really taking time by the forelock and in a very strenuous way. However the balance of the Senate may feel under such circumstances, I do not feel comfortable when I am informed by the President of the United States that the canal shall be built at a certain location, and shall not be changed from that location, and that it shall be built. We have acquired by the payment of $40,000,000 certain canal franchises which did not belong to the company that sold them to us. They belonged to Colombia at the time we bought them from the Panama Canal Company. But we have bought them, and along with them we have taken over a railroad which is of very great value. It is indeed the very best piece of railroad property in the world. We have no accounts from it. We are not likely to get any very soon, because it is the interest of the men who are concerned most prominently in the management of that railroad that the Government and the country should know very little about it at the present time. It has a queer board of directors, some of them civilians and some of them officers of the Isthmian Canal Commission. It seems to be an independent affair there. It regulates itself according to its own will—buys ships, buys material, makes contracts and what not, and makes no accounting to the Government of the United States, but to the Commission in authority at Panama, for its income and I suppose for its expenses.

I did not say, as has been attempted to be quoted by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] in his speech this morning, that graft had found its way into the Government operations in Panama. I made no such accusation. I shall be very sorry if the occasion ever arises when it ought to be made, and it must be made if it is true. What I said was this:

> Already, Mr. President, the history of the Panama Canal is fully as bad as the first three years of the history of the old De Lesseps Panama Canal—not perhaps so deeply stained with fraud and graft, as it is called, but as to reckless expenditure, as to the wasteful use of the money of the people, as to the carelessness as to what the results are going to be, as to insufficiency and incompleteness of knowledge of what we are doing, and what we can do, we are as far in the woods to-day as the De Lesseps canal was three years after it was projected; and we have gone on with this job for three dreadful years.
>
> If any graft has occurred—I do not know the precise definition of that word; it has a very latitudinous meaning in the estimation of the people—if any graft has occurred it will be found most notably in the management of that railroad; and that is the point to which I hope the committee which took charge of this subject on Monday will address their attention particularly. I have not had time to read the report, and I do not know that the subject was then called up in the examination of Mr. Shonts and Secretary Taft, who appeared before the committee.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Colorado?

Mr. MORGAN. Certainly.

Mr. TELLER. I did not mean to misquote the Senator at all; and if I find that I did, I simply ask permission to correct my speech to conform to what the Senator did say.

Mr. MORGAN. I knew the Senator had no idea of misquoting me. I knew that very well.

Mr. TELLER. I spoke only from recollection, having heard what the Senator said, and I may not have remembered it accurately.

Mr. MORGAN. I am merely trying to exonerate myself from all unnecessary suspicion as to my attitude on this subject. When I was in an extremely low state of health I marshaled these facts before the Senate of the United States, frequently when only two or three Senators were present and there were no occupants of the galleries to listen, and when the newspapers got so tired of my statements about it that they would not report what was said.

Now, what I have said is of record, and I would not change one word of it for my right hand; and I have stated the facts, and it is all the truth.

In respect to my future relations to this subject, standing in an attitude where I am really suspected of a positive hostility to any canal at all because I opposed the transfer of the canal from Nicaragua to Panama, I want to be very careful about what I say and to say very little. I am going to have very little to say about this canal from this on, because I have said what I believe to be true, and it is being revealed as the truth every day wherever the subject is considered and by every Senator who considers it.

I wish to say just a word about the Spooner bill. The distinguished author of that bill never did his country a greater service than he did in the formulation of that measure. If its purposes had been executed this country would to-day have been in a degree of prosperity in canal construction that we would call glorious. It has been thwarted. It has been thwarted by the command and the determined resistance of the President of the United States. The records show the truth of what I say. When I speak of the record I mean his own messages. Recently, at Mobile, Ala., the President said that he had been in favor of the Nicaragua canal. Would anyone say that the Congress of the United States had compelled him to go to Panama? I leave the record to answer.

Now, realizing, perhaps because the subject was somewhat referred to in public prints, that he had overstepped the boundaries of discretion in that statement at Mobile, he comes out and he says in his message to the Congress of the United States, "The canal will be built at Panama; that is a settled question; it will not be built anywhere else." I yield to the preliminary veto and I say, "Yea and amen!" Build it at Panama if you can, but I do not think you can." And I have yet a right to say that much.

The bill before the Senate, as I understood it all the time, was to provide for a deficit. I notice here that the deficit is put by Mr. Pepperman at $16,500,000, and the House for some reason has cut that deficit down to $11,000,000, the sum appropriated in the bill on the report of the Committee on Appropriations. As to what becomes of the $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 that was stricken out here I have no knowledge. I have no knowledge as to what particular part of the list of estimates furnished by Mr. Pepperman the sum that is stricken out of the bill will be made applicable. But if it could be shown to me or stated by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that the sum which was reduced below the estimates of the Government was necessary and proper to be expended to make up the salaries or other contracts that have been entered into by the Canal Commissioners, I would cheerfully vote to put the amount back to $16,500,000.

Mr. ALLISON. Does the Senator ask the question?

Mr. MORGAN. Yes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. MORGAN. Certainly.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, the estimate of $16,500,000, called a deficiency estimate, is one which is intended to carry on the work as it is now being carried on, increasing perhaps the work from month to month. That would require $16,500,000;

but the Secretary of War in his statement before the committee stated that with $11,000,000, the amount found in the bill as passed by the House, all the work could be prosecuted as proposed until the 1st of April, and that between the 1st of April and the 30th of June the Commission would require the additional sum of $5,500,000.

Mr. MORGAN. Now, I suppose——

Mr. ALLISON. If the Senator will allow me to make just one further remark——

Mr. MORGAN. Certainly.

Mr. ALLISON. The Secretary of War stated to us in explanation that within the next two or three months he hoped the question of the character of the canal would be definitely settled—that is to say, whether it would be a sea-level canal or a lock canal, as contemplated in the act called the Spooner Act, and that he was content with $11,000,000 as proposed, because it might be that the decision as respects the character of the canal would require a greater sum, I think he stated, than the additional $5,500,000 estimated for in the original estimate sent to the House of Representatives. So the deficiency appropriation found in this bill as it came to us from the House will provide for all that is necessary up to the 1st day of April, and another deficiency bill will be required about that time.

Mr. MORGAN. Then we are expected to be in session here the 1st day of April, when another deficiency is to be voted; otherwise the canal must stop.

Mr. ALLISON. That would seem to be the expectation; and I think very likely we may be in session the 1st of April.

Mr. MORGAN. Well, by the 1st day of April, or at least by the 1st day of May, the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. SCOTT] could have his survey made at San Blas. We have got to be here, and I shall insist, whenever he calls up the measure, that he is entitled to be heard by the Senate very seriously and very effectively in solving and putting forever at rest the question whether the San Blas route is practicable, because if it is practicable, Mr. President, it is the best route that anybody has ever designed for a sea-level canal. There is no question of that. It is perfectly straight and very short, and terminates at each end in bays that need very little dredging or very little preparatory work to accommodate the largest vessels of commerce that are afloat to-day.

Now, as to the work that is to go on with the appropriation of $11,000,000, it will carry the canal forward according to the plan that they are working on now until the 1st of April. That includes, I suppose, the payment of all these so-called "extravagant salaries." The House and the Senate will not have been able, by the small reduction of the appropriation from sixteen and one-half million dollars to $11,000,000, to control in any wise, as I understand it, what these salaries are to be. There is more money spent upon salaries in Panama in proportion to the amount of work that is done than there is in any other part of that whole undertaking; and that is where the rub of extravagance comes in. That is where the Congress of the United States ought at once to prescribe to the President some limit upon his generosity in lavishing out the money of the people upon his favorites and his pets. That is where we ought to begin. But the committee has very handsomely glided around that proposition, and they have merely cut down the appropriation from sixteen and one-half million dollars to $11,000,000, without designating the particular objects to which this appropriation is to be applied in the future. As to the contracts for material, I can see very well that they ought to be provided for. As to the employment of a sufficient amount of labor to carry on the digging operations, the excavations in the Culebra heights, I can see that it ought to be provided for. As to the payment for the great shovels described by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER], I can see that that ought to go. But I can not see, Mr. President, that these very extravagant salaries ought to go on when we are cutting the President off from the full supply of money that he has said was necessary to enable him to complete the work.

I am not using the word offensively, but we are pretending to reduce the expenditures at the canal by cutting down salaries when in fact we are letting them run along. They will be paid just at the figures that have been prescribed by the liberality and generosity and extravagance of the President of the United States.

I had some other observations that I desired to make about this canal, and I think it would not be out of place if I should make them now.

Suppose that the canal at Panama is a success. Suppose that it is built within fifteen or twenty-five years, and that when built it will be permanent; that it will defy the earthquakes that have occurred and reoccurred there in a period of twenty years and mashed things to pieces in a terrific way. Suppose that that canal is built of such proportions that the largest steamship now in the world or the largest to be projected can pass through. Still no American sailing ship can go through it, and the men who are carrying on the great bulk of the coastwise trade, about which we are accused of being so remarkably selfish by the European powers, can be cut out of any possible opportunity of conducting that trade between the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts of the United States. They have got to double the Horn before they can get to San Francisco or anywhere near it. They can not go through the canal. It is from 400 to 600 miles of perfectly dead water, dead air, out in what is called the "doldrums" beyond the bay of Panama, through which a sailing ship can not pass except with the assistance of a steamer. You might take the finest packet ship in the United States and give it all the sailing power you could possibly put upon it and carry it out 200 miles into that dead sea and the ship would rot and the men would die and the provisions would give out. They would die of starvation, if they did not die otherwise, before that ship could ever get out of it. It could never get out unless through the agency of some accidental storm. So the sailing ships of the United States are absolutely cut off from any canal at Panama—sea-level or lock canal.

I can very well see, Mr. President, that the control which men have—labor unions and mine owners in railway transportation—over the supply of coal in the United States may put the commerce of the world at a terrible disadvantage in supplying coal to do all the work that a canal can possibly do on the plan that is projected at Panama, or either of the plans. Then we will be raising our hands and crying out for assistance from the winds to carry our commerce as it has been carried from the foundation of civilization, and the natural reply will be the same that we are making to-day—that we are barricaded and cut off from any such opportunity by an act of folly and national injustice.

I, therefore, irrespective even of the proper accommodation of the sailing fleets of the world, can very well understand, I think, without any stretch of imagination, basing my calculation exactly upon ascertained facts, that by the time you get your canal built at Panama and in full operation, with every prospect of permanence, to the delight of the country, there will be a demand for commercial transit through that canal that it can not possibly supply.

The Suez Canal, which was projected at the time of first construction for the largest ships—sailing ships or steamers—that were then in vogue, has proved to be quite insufficient for the accommodation of commerce, and they have enlarged it one time. They have added about 100 per cent to its carrying capacity and increased the expenditure upon the Suez Canal, which is 99 miles long, from $100,000,000 to about $200,000,000. They have done that, Mr. President, not for the accommodation of sailing craft, because no sailing ship ever goes through the Suez Canal—not even a fisherman passes through—but for the accommodation of steamers and only steamers. So to meet the increased demand of commerce carried by steam through the Suez Canal it has already been necessary to increase the capacity of that canal double and to increase the expenditures double. It now stands them at a cost of $200,000,000, whereas when it was completed the cost of construction was $100,000,000.

The Suez Canal on that basis—$200,000,000—if my information is entirely correct, for about fifteen years has been declaring an annual dividend of 15 per cent net upon the $200,000,000 invested, or thereabouts, and so valuable is the stock of the Suez Canal that you can not buy it on the Bourse or on the London Exchange to-day for less than 900 per cent.

Looking to the future of any canal across the isthmian country of America, I can well believe that when it presents a shorter and safer route between the Pacific Ocean and the Atlantic Ocean, without having to navigate the Red Sea at one end and the Mediterranean at the other, the increase of traffic through that canal will mount up so rapidly that by the time you get the canal completed you will be obliged to have another.

My contemplation of the American situation and the American policy in respect to the canalization of any part of the isthmian region of America is this: No canal can be dug through the isthmian part of America by any nation or any company or any power whatever that is not under the exclusive control of the United States of America. It makes no difference when it comes or who may undertake it or who may furnish the money, the American doctrine is a mere false pretense if it does not extend to the proposition that the control of that canal shall be exclusively American. If any other power, even the powers that own the land bordering upon both oceans—such as Nicaragua and Costa Rica—should undertake to build a canal through their own country, the American Government would be derelict if it did not take that matter in charge and control the canal. The great commercial, military, and political interests of the United States require that we should exercise that amount of authority over an isthmian canal, and that is, in truth, the whole meaning and merit of the American plea on that subject.

Now, looking to one of our own examples here, in about thirty-five years, I think it is, during which the canal at Sault Ste. Marie has been in operation, we commenced with a tonnage upon that canal of 600,000 tons a year, and it is now more than 36,000,000 tons a year. Just opposite to it, on the same water course and in sight, is a British canal, built by the Government of Great Britain, possibly by Canada, which is carrying on as heavy a trade as we conduct on our side of that river. So the annual transportation of commerce through these two canals is not less than 60,000,000 tons a year. And that canal is blocked for nearly half of the year with ice so that it can not be used. There are also two or three great trunk lines of railroad parallel to the lake connecting the great cities of the West with those of the East, and they have all the work they can do conveying the commerce of the country back and forth. Where does this commerce come from? From a comparatively small area of country, not taking into consideration, however, the transcontinental traffic that comes upon the great railways, but the local commerce which belongs to a comparatively small area, I might say even an insignificant area of country. Therefore the commerce that will pass through whatever canal or canals may be constructed in Central America or the isthmian country of America will have for its source of supply every open port in the world, and when that canal is completed the nearest way between any two ports that lie on opposite portions of the globe is through the canal.

So, as a matter of course, it is going to attract the commerce of the earth, and the increase of the world's commerce is progressing at a rate that we have no comprehension of. We have not even figures in which to state the commerce of the world. I therefore assert on the basis of these facts that by the time we get the Panama Canal built, if it shall be built, on the day of its opening a demand will exist for two canals. Hence it has been my purpose, Mr. President, all the time to endeavor to maintain our rights already acquired by Mr. McKinley in compact agreement with Costa Rica and Nicaragua, whereby we have the exclusive right to build a canal on that line.

It will not be settled in my lifetime. No more than a mere beginning of the Panama Canal will be settled in my lifetime, and I shall not be here to realize the happiness and the glory of this great consummation. But irrespective of that, I have felt it to be my duty on every occasion, and under all circumstances, and it has cost me nights and days of painful watchfulness in this Chamber and elsewhere, to preserve the principle and the vital legislation contained in the Spooner law, which will stand for the construction of the isthmian canal when some President wiser than the present incumbent and less determined to thwart the will of Congress shall rise who will be willing to hear the will of the people executed in the achievement of the proudest of all the works that they have in contemplation.

That is my attitude about this matter, and I believe firmly that the project of the canal at Nicaragua will never be willingly surrendered by the people and the Government of the United States whenever it is within our reach to build it, even if we had no other motive for it than to accommodate the sailing fleets of the United States.

I am very glad to observe also that in a recent edition of the Treaties of the United States, compiled at the instance of the Committee on Foreign Relations and reported to Congress, there have been printed these great compacts that Mr. McKinley arranged with those two Governments. That man's monument in the memory of mankind the world around will grow and grow, predicated upon the basis of those compacts, until they see revealed the full splendor of his great character. I am glad the Senate has already put those compacts amongst the existing treaties of the country by resolution, so that so far as the Senate at least is concerned—and I suppose the House of Representatives participated in it—those compacts have been classed amongst the published treaties of the United States, there to stand until we choose to give up our privileges under them, because under compacts, Mr. President, it takes two parties to make them, and it takes the consent of both parties to revoke them. You can not annul them as you can a treaty. They stand good between the parties so long as they exist, with the first consent that created them.

I am not trying, Mr. President, to make a prophecy; I would be foolish to attempt it, and I would forbear, so far as it is possible, to make an evil prophecy against the Panama Canal. I hope that it will be constructed. It will be needed, for, if it can not be built, we shall still have in Panama a property that is well worth all the $50,000,000 that we have paid for it to the Panama Canal Company and to the State of Panama—it is well worth it. It will pay an interest of 3 per cent net profit on $130,000,000. It is the best piece of railroad property in the world. But the least of its advantages is the revenue it will yield to the Government of the United States if it continues in our ownership. The greatest of those advantages is that it belongs, like the great water courses, to the people, and that every dollar that we put upon it opens up a highway that is free to all the people to carry their commerce; and that, after all, it is the most powerful lever that any human being can conceive of for the regulation and settlement of this vexed, furnace-like question that we are now confronted with, in regard to the regulation of railroad rates. There is no one instrumentality in the United States to-day, political or physical, that is of such advantage to the people of the United States as that 45 miles of railroad across the Isthmus of Panama, because by that means the people of the United States will have power, through the action of Congress, about which there will be no dispute at all, to compel the transcontinental railroads that exist—and the fifteen of them which the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] has been prophesying about—to compel all of them to come to reasonable rates for the transportation of the goods and commerce of the people. So if there was never a dollar of profit to be gained by the Government of the United States, if there was no return of revenue above the expense of maintaining the railroad at Panama, double track it to furnish proper facilities for commerce to pass through there, and it will continue to be the best-paying railroad property in the world.

For many years—I can not recall the number of years just now—information has been kept back in respect to that railroad, so that every man who speaks of it or thinks of it still goes in the dark, as has been the case heretofore—everything has been hidden; but during several consecutive years, I think as many as seven or eight, the net revenue from that railroad was 31 per cent on the $18,000,000 that it cost the Panama Canal Company.

Now, if there are two establishments there—one a railroad and the other a canal in process of being dug—one under the control directly of Congress, and the other under the control of Congress only through electing a board of directors, but controlled and regulated entirely according to the rights acquired by a law of New York, an independent corporation, although we own it—if under such conditions the Government of the United States can make it pay expenses and not set aside the 31 per cent per annum of net profits that company has realized out of it since they have had it in charge, we will have in that railroad the best bargain that was ever obtained in the purchase of a piece of property. I sponge from my memory all the circumstances of its acquisition, because the Senate has compelled me to do so. It is no longer an open and debatable question, and perhaps it is improper even to refer to the circumstances under which we acquired that property; but leaving them out of view entirely, measuring the value of the property according to its cost, and estimating that at $50,000,000 as covering the whole sum we expended in the purchase of the canal rights and the Canal Zone, there was never any agreement made by the United States, and never will be, equal to that in actual value to the country.

I expect, Mr. President, when the time comes that the failure of the isthmian canal shall unfortunately be demonstrated we shall find our satisfaction in the fact that we have instituted a vast commerce through that canal which will indemnify the United States and remunerate it for all the expenditures that we have made upon that entire effort to dig a canal in that region, including all the wild extravagance that is now alarming the country.

Mr. FRYE. You mean upon that railroad.

Mr. MORGAN. Upon that railroad and the canal administration.

Having thus stated my view upon this general topic, I will not proceed further, Mr. President, in discussing this bill, but will vote for it, regretting that the Committee on Appropriations and the House of Representatives have found it necessary, in justice to the country, to cut down the estimate of $16,500,000 to $11,000,000. I know they have done that for reasons which are unavoidable.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, I would not say anything but for the fact that the debate seems to be about coming to an end. I confess that I had hoped to hear something from the members of the Committee on Appropriations on the matter of the expenditure for salaries and of the scale of expenditure; but in view of the fact that the debate seems about to close with nothing said about that subject, I should like to know of the committee whether the failure on its part to report any amendment to this bill in reference to certain expenditures which have been brought to the attention of Congress touching salaries, and particularly to know whether the failure of the committee to report any amendment is due to the fact that it approves of these salaries or whether it was due to the fact that the committee deems it outside of the jurisdiction of Congress to correct the salaries if they are deemed to be upon an improper scale.

I can not question, Mr. President, that the committee has grave reasons for the attitude which it occupies. I can not myself see any other solution of the matter except in the suggestion of the two alternatives I have mentioned. One is that the committee, after looking into the question, thinks that these salaries are upon a proper scale; and the other is that, perhaps, while the committee does not think the salaries proper, it nevertheless comes to the conclusion that, the matter having been turned over to the executive department, the Congress no longer has any jurisdiction of it. I am very frank to confess for myself that I would not agree with the committee in either suggestion. I have no doubt in the world that these salaries have been fixed in good faith, and that whatever differences there are in regard to their propriety are differences in judgment. I do not myself think they are proper salaries. I think they are exorbitant; I think they are out of all proportion to the salaries for corresponding services rendered by others who serve the Government. I think they can only be compared to the expenditures by certain employees of corporations where very large—and there is no other word I can use without being offensive—and extravagant salaries are paid to employees. These exorbitant salaries paid by some corporations are, we have every reason to believe, largely matters of favoritism, and should be no guide in fixing the salaries of the officers on the canal work. There is certainly no precedent for it, no parallel for it, in any expenditure by the Government.

I do not desire to particularize, nor do I desire to go into any general discussion of the question. I only venture to call the attention of the committee to it and to make inquiry concerning it because it seems about to go by default.

When the matter was before the Senate in a preliminary discussion two days ago upon the question of reference, there was a suggestion made that these salaries should be scrutinized; that the committee in charge of the matter should scrutinize the question of whether or not these salaries were proper salaries; and I had expected either that the committee would give us some explanation or statement which would show the propriety of these expenditures or else that some effort would be made to correct them by amendments to the bill.

I suggested when that preliminary discussion was had a few days ago, that it was only upon appropriation bills, or upon the occasion of making appropriations, that these corrections could be made, from the fact that as to all, except as to the Commissioners, there are no officers specified in the law; and in the absence of officers specified in the law, there could be no general legislation regulating and controlling expenditures for salaries; and that in consequence the only legislation which could be had, the only corrective which could be applied, would be by Congress when it came to make appropriations for the payment of the salaries, recognizing, of course, that salaries which had already been earned, even though they had been put on an improper basis, must be paid; but when our attention should be called in the estimates submitted to the fact that extravagant salaries are provided for, it would be competent for Congress, when we came to appropriate money, to say that, while we pay these salaries already earned, in the future only such amounts as those specified shall be paid for such and such service.

Therefore, it occurs to me, Mr. President, that an appropriation bill is not only the proper place but the only place where Congress can deal with the subject. If we fail to deal with the subject, it must be either upon the grounds—at least these are the only grounds which suggest themselves to me—that the salaries are proper salaries, or that we do not recognize our right to supervise and direct the amount of salaries which shall be paid.

As I have said, Mr. President, I do not desire to discuss the question at length; but I think it is due to the Senate, and I think the country expects that there should be statements made which shall put this matter right before the public, and in which it shall be shown whether these are salaries which are approved by the Senate, or whether it be true that in the passage of what is known as the "Spooner law" we have abdicated the function of determining what expenditures shall be made and have remitted it exclusively to the determination of the executive department.

Mr. ALLISON. I think the inquiry made by the Senator from Georgia [Mr. BACON] is a very pertinent one in view of the discussion a few days ago and in view of the general situation of the subject of the compensation that is allowed for services rendered by the various employees of the Canal Commission.

By the original statute of 1902, the fixing of the compensation of all employees, including the Commissioners, was placed in the power of the President. That was done, I have no doubt, for excellent reasons at that time. It would have been impossible under the situation then existing and because of the consideration of time to properly adjust the matter by provision of law. Hence it was that the President was authorized to fix the compensation of the various employees, including the Commissioners.

There was another difficulty then, which I think prevails now, and that is that it is almost impossible for any committee within a brief period of time to carefully investigate the situation of these employees, in view of the place where their services are rendered, in order to fix a just and fair compensation. I would not know, and I do not believe any Senator would know, what ought to be a fair compensation for employees on the Isthmus of Panama at this time, having regard to the services that are rendered there.

Mr. MORGAN. May I interrupt the Senator?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. MORGAN. I suggest to the Senator that a fair basis of estimating the salaries would be to take those paid for services of a like character in the United States, that are fixed by law now, and add a life risk on each of, say, 20 per cent, for the purpose of saving the men from the dangers and horrors of going to Panama to do the work required.

Mr. ALLISON. One Senator, and a very wise Senator, has made a wise suggestion as respects a general provision that should apply to the persons employed on the Isthmus. A few years ago, I believe, when we began to send troops to the Philippine Islands we did allow the officers serving in those islands an increase of 20 per cent over the compensation allowed them for service in the United States.

Mr. MORGAN. The life-insurance companies have considered that question.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. CLAY. In connection with what the Senator was saying in regard to an increase of 20 per cent in salary allowed for services performed in the Philippine Islands, I should be glad to call the Senator's attention to a little statement which I have here and which I understand to be correct. I see that a United States naval officer who was drawing a salary of $2,400 a year as an officer of the Navy is now drawing a salary, while working on the Isthmus, of $6,000 a year—more than double. Going on down the list, I see a United States Army officer is drawing a salary of $10,000 a year as an employee of the Canal Commission, while as an army officer he was drawing $4,950. I see, also, that the director of hospitals, who was an officer of the Marine-Hospital Service was drawing $3,500 a year, is now drawing a salary of $8,000 a year. It will be seen, therefore, from this statement that instead of there being an increase of 20 per cent the increase in the case of several officers of the Army and Navy is more than 100 per cent.

Is it not true that if an officer's salary ought to be increased by 20 per cent for service in the Philippine Islands a like increase for officers serving on the Isthmus of Panama would be a sufficient amount to compensate for the difference in climate and extra expenses connected with that service?

I say to the Senator that I have not been able to get an accurate statement of account—a detailed statement of account would probably be the proper term—of the expenditures made under the appropriation of $10,000,000 that was granted at the last session of Congress—I believe we appropriated $10,000,000 at the last session, of which amount about $9,000,000 has been expended. The statement from which I have read simply applies to salaries ranging above $2,000 a year. If these increases be proper, we ought to be furnished with some reason why a salary is increased from $2,400 to $8,000.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator is quite correct; we ought to have some reason for such increases. I suppose the statement from which he has read is the statement made in the House of Representatives, and found in the RECORD, which I have no doubt is accurate.

It must be borne in mind, however, as respects the increase in the salaries of officers of the Army, that the officers of the Army of the United States are ordered to service wherever the general in command chooses to order them. Service on the Isthmus of Panama, I take it, is much more hazardous than is service in the Philippines, which, we are told in various ways and by various authors, have a reasonably healthful climate, and we are trying very hard, as I understand, to improve the situation at Panama as well. So that the question of salaries of persons employed on the Isthmus is not one that is very easily disposed of by fixing a range of salaries except in a very few cases.

I myself think that some of the salaries, as set out in the statement from which the Senator from Georgia has read, are higher than they ought to be. That is the way it looks to a casual observer, and yet I do not know but if I had all the facts, understood all the situations, and knew that these men were rendering a voluntary service, different from the service rendered in the Army, where an officer is obliged to go where he is sent—I do not know but that after a prudent and careful examination I might be willing to give some of these employees more than I now think they ought to have; but I probably would not be willing to give them as much compensation as has been provided for in the arrangements that have been made by the Commission or by the President.

I will say to the Senator from Georgia and to other Senators that I did not know it was expected of us on the Committee on Appropriations that we should enter upon the consideration of legislating for and regulating by law all the things that ought to be done and that are now omitted to be done on the Isthmus of Panama.

Here is an emergency appropriation, and not only an emergency appropriation, but a deficiency appropriation. It is an appropriation that the Senate in its discretion and under the necessities of the situation ought to pass before the Christmas holidays. I mention that incidentally, as I suppose we shall have Christmas holidays. [Laughter.] We usually have, but I have heard no suggestion as to the time fixed for the holidays. However, this appropriation bill ought to be passed, as we are told by the President, by the Secretary of War, and by all the people who are interested in this business, whether they be Jamaica negroes or whether they be hospital supervisors receiving $10,000 a year.

These expenditures are going on now, and ought to go on, if we intend to build this canal. The men employed on the Isthmus are engaged, in my judgment, in the most important work in connection with the preparations necessary for the construction of this canal. That being true, Mr. President, it does not seem to me that the Committee on Appropriations were required to enter at large upon this subject of the detailed compensation which should be paid to the various employees under the Canal Commission.

Mr. MORGAN. I will say, if the Senator will allow me, that if the bill had gone to the Committee on Interoceanic Canals we should have tried to enter upon the subject.

Mr. ALLISON. I have no doubt the Senator is correct in his statement that he would have tried it, as we are trying now to build the Panama Canal, which the Senator says we can not do. With due deference to the Senator from Alabama, allow me to say that no committee can arrange these salaries in four or five days in its committee room and do it as Senators ought to do it after investigation and examination. Of course, we can guess at it, as a certain distinguished railroad president says we are guessing at railroad rates. We can guess at those things very easily, and we can reduce the salaries to a minimum; but the question is, What is a reasonable compensation for the people who are performing service on the Isthmus of Panama?

Mr. HALE. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. ALLISON. I do, with pleasure.

Mr. HALE. Granting that the committee should not take up this subject and fix these salaries now, I think no one will dispute that if any Senator wants them fixed or reduced, it would be entirely in order for him to move as an amendment to this bill that hereafter all salaries under the Isthmian Canal Commission shall be estimated for in detail, as in all other Departments, and shall be submitted by the Secretary of the Treasury as a part of his annual estimates. Then we should get what Senators desire—a knowledge of what we are to pay these employees, what we ought to pay them, and what we shall only pay by law in the future. Is not that a practical way of getting at it?

Mr. ALLISON. That would seem to be practical. But I was about to say, in connection with this question of salaries, that in my opinion the compensation paid to officers or employees on the Isthmus requires a different treatment from what is required as respects salaries and compensation of people who are engaged in service here in Washington; and there are quite a number of people in the public service here connected with the Commission. I think the Senate and the other House of Congress ought to take up the question of salaries and compensation to employees who reside in Washington or in the United States, and who are not subject, as a rule, to the vicissitudes and the situations of people who are serving the Government on the Isthmus, and there should be brought in a bill which would provide for whatever administrative bureau is needed in the city of Washington and fix the number of employees and the compensation of each. That is what I think ought to be done; and manifestly the Committee on Appropriations could not do this during the few days that it had to look into the subject.

So, Mr. President, I would prefer that the whole question of salaries should be relegated to the proper committee of this body, which will have necessarily under consideration all the legislation that is needed respecting the canal subject; and much legislation is needed. There is practically no legislation now, as I understand, except that found in the Spooner Act, which is not legislation controlling the Canal Zone. Senators on the Interoceanic Canals Committee can correct me if I am mistaken. I understand there is no law or body of laws or system of laws that governs our possessions there. So this whole question must be taken up, and it must be considered by the proper committee; and while considering all these subjects, of course, they can take up the whole question of compensation.

I must say that I believe some of those salaries are large, although there may be reasons for them that are not known to the Senate or to myself. So the committee omitted any consideration of salaries on this bill. As I explained earlier in the day, another appropriation bill will of necessity come in April, or before that time, and some committee in the meantime will have full opportunity to investigate this subject and correct whatever may be wrong as respects the compensation of any of the persons connected with the work.

There is another difficulty that we found in the consideration of this bill—one that was alluded to a moment ago by the Senator from Alabama—and that is the situation as respects the Panama Railroad. There ought to be legislation on the subject, as I think after a cursory examination of the matter, but I might think differently if I had an opportunity to study the subject in the proper committee. The Panama Railroad is owned by the United States.

Mr. MORGAN. Not all of it.

Mr. ALLISON. All of it.

Mr. MORGAN. There are some private stockholders.

Mr. ALLISON. Am I mistaken?

Mr. GALLINGER. It was testified that the United States owns every share at the present time.

Mr. ALLISON. Yes; I recollect the Secretary of War stated that now the United States owns every share of this corporation.

Mr. MORGAN. Is not Mr. Cromwell, of New York, a director in the Panama Railroad Company?

Mr. ALLISON. He may be.

Mr. MORGAN. How did he get there if he does not own any stock? He is a private citizen.

Mr. ALLISON. He probably got there as some other people get into railroad directorships—by holding one share, which is loaned to him in order that he may have the honor of being a director.

Mr. KITTREDGE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from South Dakota?

Mr. ALLISON. I do.

Mr. KITTREDGE. I think I can advise the Senator in regard to the proposition concerning which he was just questioned.

The United States Government owns in its own name all the shares of stock in the Panama Railroad except thirteen. Thirteen shares are outstanding in the name—one each—of the directors of that company, and the United States has an ironclad contract of purchase with each one of those directors.

Mr. ALLISON. I thank the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. TILLMAN. Tell us at what rate. If the Senator from Iowa will permit me, I want to know whether it is at the rate of a million dollars or five. If there is an ironclad contract to buy, how did the stock get into the hands of the directors?

Mr. SPOONER. Does the Senator from South Carolina mean one million or five million?

Mr. TILLMAN. No. I want to find out at what price we are to purchase the one share from each director.

Mr. KITTREDGE. It has simply been transferred to them.

Mr. TILLMAN. In other words, they are holding it merely as an excuse to be directors.

Mr. KITTREDGE. They are holding it to act as directors under the law of New York, under which the corporation exists.

Mr. TILLMAN. I say to act as a director under the charter.

Mr. ALLISON. I think that is an unhappy situation as respects the Panama Railroad. It is so interlaced in its business and in its operations with the Panama Canal that it ought to be owned and controlled and managed by the Government. The road is now about to be reconstructed. They are building now a double-track railway. They are running spurs hither and thither and everywhere for the purpose of the construction of the canal; and the canal is the largest, or probably will be the largest, customer of the railroad. Therefore it is essential and proper that the Government of the United States should own it, and it does own the railroad in fact, although thirteen shares may be in the names of thirteen people.

The Secretary of War states that the Government of the United States owns every share, and controls every share, in fact, but the railroad company keeps up a separate and independent system. They have a president of the railroad company; they have a secretary of the railroad company; they have a large office, or a considerable office, in the city of New York, and officers, and so forth, at Panama and in various other places for commercial business.

Mr. BACON. Are the officers paid salaries out of the railroad's fund?

Mr. ALLISON. Undoubtedly.

Mr. BACON. Does the Senator know the character of those salaries, as to amount?

Mr. ALLISON. I do not. We did not go into that matter, and there was no reason why we should, because nothing appears here——

Mr. BACON. The Senator did not understand me as making any criticism on that point.

Mr. ALLISON. I think there should be a statutory regulation as respects the relations of the railroad company to the Canal Commission and to the canal construction. We have here in the testimony a statement by the Secretary of War showing that the Government has now a contract with the Panama Railroad Company, whereby the Commission agree to build an additional track for almost the whole length of the railway, and whereby also the Government is to be reimbursed from time to time by means of the receipts of the railway. In other words, they are making contracts with each other.

Mr. HALE. I call the Senator's attention also to another thing directly in the line of this sort of dual management. Not only has the Commission entered into contracts for the increase of the facilities of the road, doubling the track, but it has bought ships and leased them to this company, and the jurisdiction and business of the company to-day, instead of being confined to a railroad across the Isthmus, embraces a continuous line of transportation from New York to the Isthmus and across it.

I agree with the Senator from Iowa that there ought to be statutory provisions that will put an end to this needless arrangement of contracts between different organizations all of which are owned by the Government and are finally maintained by appropriations made by the Government. Some committee ought to take that up separately and arrange it.

Mr. CLAY. Will the Senator from Maine allow me to ask him a question? I notice in this report that the estimates call for $700,000 to pay the Panama Railroad Company for services, and so forth, and I noticed in the partial report which I have read that the past expenditures consist partly of money paid to the Panama Railroad Company for carrying freight across the Isthmus. Do I understand that we own the Panama Railroad Company, that it is our property, and that we are paying the company for performing services? If we do, what becomes of the money that the road earns? Does it come to the United States? I see we pay large items, and those items are set forth in the report which I read. They amount to six or eight hundred thousand dollars out of the $10,000,000 spent last year. I noticed that these estimates call for $700,000 for the purpose of paying for services to be performed by the road.

Mr. HALE. Some of us, it seemed to me, got considerable education by the long hearing we had about this matter, and a good deal of the development was new and strange, not involving corruption and fraud, but the exercise of very large powers. I should think it was needless to have this double arrangement. Regular books are kept. There are accounts of all transportation. Every item of freight is paid for to the railroad; every account is complete, just as if it were an outside foreign corporation, when it is really owned by the Government. It seems to me that that is needless.

Mr. CLAY. Do the profits come to the Government?

Mr. HALE. There are no profits.

Mr. KITTREDGE. Yes; there are.

Mr. CLAY. Is it all on one side?

Mr. HALE. It is one hand washing the other; that is all it is. It looks to me like it is needless, and so with the double bookkeeping.

Mr. TILLMAN. I was not present in the Committee on Appropriations yesterday morning when this investigation first began, and I have not had an opportunity to digest all of the testimony brought out at the hearing, but I have nowhere yet heard any allusion made to—and I confess I would be very glad to know whether there is any such document in existence anywhere—a report of the Panama Railroad Company.

Mr. ALLISON. There is.

Mr. TILLMAN. For instance, I have understood from an intelligent gentleman to-day that that road owes $6,000,000 debt; that their bonds are outstanding, and, of course, if we bought the road subject to the bonds issued by way of mortgage, the United States has to pay them or make provision for the interest on them; and it does seem to me that we ought to have somewhere in evidence very soon, if we can not get it, on this bill, a report of the transactions, the fiscal work, of the Panama Railway, so that those of us who are inquisitive in regard to fiscal matters upon the Isthmus and the construction of the canal may get some light as to whether this is really a swabbing betweeen hands or not, or whether some one else's hand is slyly slipping in and committing some legerdemain business by which a few odd dollars drop into a private hand. Is there anywhere a report of the Panama Railway Company?

Mr. ALLISON. I have it here.

Mr. TILLMAN. It is buried, then, in those things that it was not thought worthy to submit to us, except in a way that we could not get at them.

Mr. ALLISON. The committee yesterday—the Senator from South Carolina did not happen to be present at the moment——

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator knows why I was not.

Mr. ALLISON. I do.

Mr. TILLMAN. It was not any neglect of duty, but because of another matter I could not very well do otherwise.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator had a very good reason for not being there at the moment, although he was there most of the time. But the committee was in possession—I thought I had it here, but I believe I have not; I have it in the committee room—of a very full report. In fact, a set of reports of the receipts and expenditures of, and all the data respecting, the Panama Railroad, and that data is fully found also, I think, in one of the reports made some years ago by the Senator from Alabama or in some report of the Isthmian Canal Committee. So that there is no concealment about it.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not accusing anybody——

Mr. ALLISON. No; I understand.

Mr. TILLMAN. And least of all the Senator from Iowa, because I can assure the Senate, if it needs any assurance, that he is about the only pane of glass through which we get any light at all. The House gave us absolutely none. It sent over here a bill dealing with bonds and also with deficiencies, mixing the things up so that as a matter of self-respect the Appropriations Committee turned over to the Committee on Finance the question of bonds, and now we are trying to deal with the deficiency, which is a legitimate function of the Appropriations Committee. I am not trying to charge anybody with an effort at concealment—the Secretary of War or anybody else—but I say it is an unfortunate condition that oriental methods of dealing with a great public question have been imported into the United States and are being practiced right here upon the Congress.

Mr. ALLISON. I think it is due to the Secretary of War to state here that he proffered every document and every paper and all the details of the transactions of the Commission. We called for a large number of documents relating to various matters, which I have before me and which can be seen by any Senator.

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. CLAY] seems to think it is strange that there is a debt due to the Panama Railroad Company under the circumstances. The truth is that the Panama Canal Commission undertook the construction of this second track and found themselves short of means in respect to that work, and they borrowed some money from the Panama Railroad Company, which company raised the money to loan to the Panama Canal Commission temporarily, as I understand the testimony, there being in its vaults a certain number of bonds issued by the Panama Railroad Company. That accounts for part——

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. CULBERSON. I should like to ask the Senator if this debt of the railroad company, to which he has just alluded, is in addition to the $7,000,000 mortgage to which this testimony refers?

Mr. ALLISON. I understand it is not. I understand it is part of it. The Panama Railroad Company and the steamship company in connection with it do charge the Canal Commission for transportation not only on the Isthmus, but also for the transportation of supplies, materials, passengers, and so forth, from New York to the Isthmus.

Mr. MORGAN. The steamships belong to the railroad.

Mr. ALLISON. The steamships belong to the Government, and are leased to the railroad.

Mr. TILLMAN. They were bought with Government money. They are owned by the Government, but leased by the railway.

Mr. ALLISON. A certain number of those steamships were purchased when the transaction was made with the French company.

Mr. GALLINGER. Three of them.

Mr. ALLISON. Three of them. Those three are transport ships—that is, they carry passengers and freight. But the Canal Commission was so pressed for the transportation of material that it would have been required to go outside and lease ships. Instead of doing that, in their discretion, wisely, I suppose—we did not have time to look into it, although I have no doubt they thought they were doing the wise thing for the Government, and I presume they were—they bought two ships, at $650,000 each, to carry on their work; and then they leased those ships to the Panama Railway Company on the basis of 4 per cent—rent, insurance, and repairs added.

Mr. PERKINS. With 4 per cent written off annually.

Mr. GALLINGER. Four per cent deducted annually for depreciation.

Mr. ALLISON. Yes; 4 per cent for depreciation. In other words, they made with the Panama Railroad Company probably a fair and just contract as respects the matter of running these ships.

Mr. GALLINGER. If the Senator will permit me, I will read precisely what Secretary Taft said on that point.

Mr. FORAKER. What page?

Mr. GALLINGER. Page 26. He said:

> We leased the ships to the railroad company for 4 per cent on the thirteen hundred thousand dollars and charged them 4 per cent in addition for depreciation, and required them to keep the policies of insurance for the full value of the ships in favor of the Canal Commission; and that is the way they are being run now.

Mr. ALLISON. They are now being run in that way. So the railroad company and the Canal Commission have an account with each other as though they were under two separate ownerships. It seemed to the committee that this was a matter with which we could not very well deal, and yet we had to deal with it in the sense of knowing, as near as we could ascertain, how the ten millions had been expended.

If the Senator from Georgia [Mr. CLAY] will give me his attention for a moment, I will state that Secretary Taft delivered a lecture or address in Cincinnati, Ohio——

Mr. FORAKER. St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. ALLISON. He also delivered one in Ohio. [Laughter.]

Mr. TILLMAN. That was before and after taking.

Mr. ALLISON. In that speech he distinctly stated the amount and the details of the expenditure of the $10,000,000, which I think perhaps is the best statement that has been made on the subject. It includes the $1,300,000 that was paid for the transports.

Mr. CLAY. Will the Senator put those figures in the RECORD for us? I am frank to say I have not been able to find a detailed statement of how the $10,000,000 was expended which we appropriated at the last session of Congress.

Mr. ALLISON. Allow me to suggest to the Senator from Georgia that in the House of Representatives this entire address was ordered printed in the RECORD, and, I think, it was printed on Thursday. It contains most valuable and useful information, because it is wholly upon the subject of the isthmian canal. It was printed in the RECORD by unanimous consent and will be found there.

Mr. TILLMAN. On what day?

Mr. ALLISON. The RECORD of last Thursday.

Mr. CULBERSON. I desire, with the permission of the Senator from Iowa, to recur to the question I asked him a moment ago, whether or not this new indebtedness against the railroad company was included in the six or seven million-dollar bonded indebtedness? I understood the Senator to say it was not.

Mr. ALLISON. I meant to state that I understand it is a part of the seven million. It is a part of an old issue of bonds that was found in the treasury.

Mr. CULBERSON. Very well. It seems that the Government of the United States paid $6,800,000 for the shares of this stock which it purchased last year, that being the par value of a certain number of shares. Since then the Government has bought a hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars' worth of these shares. Notwithstanding we gave par value for the stock, I notice, on page 25 of the hearing, the statement introduced by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] that the total liabilities of the railroad are $2,490,918, not including the sinking fund subsidy bonds. On page 95 of the hearing we find that the sinking fund 6 per cent subsidy bonds amount to $3,000,000. That makes in the neighborhood of at least $6,000,000 outstanding against the railroad at the time we paid $6,800,000 par value for the stock, plus a hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars.

Mr. ALLISON. Where does the Senator get his information that we paid $6,800,000 for the stock?

Mr. CULBERSON. That is in the report of the Panama Canal Commission, and is included in the $40,000,000.

Mr. ALLISON. Yes, certainly. I understand now. I supposed the Senator had found that we had bought Panama Railroad shares and paid that sum for them. We bought the property of the Panama Company, as I understand, including their material, whatever it was, locomotives, etc., and their machinery for excavating on the canal route, and so on, and their railroad shares, except whatever was embraced in what cost us afterwards a hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars.

Now, it is said, and there may be great truth in it—we could not examine into it; some other committee, of course, will have to take up that question and deal with it—that there is an impediment in the way of the unification of the government of the Commission and the railroad, and that that impediment will remain as long as the bonds remain disposed of. It may be there is such an impediment, but if so, I think it might be removed, perhaps, by proper legislation if that were attempted, and for one I believe it ought to be.

So, going into this question as far as we could with the time we had, and unfolding it as far as we could, we found that the question of salaries and compensation was one in which, if we undertook to fix it, we might do very great injustice to very good people. We also discovered that if we undertook more in detail than is found here to analyze these expenditures we would occupy more time than we had at our disposal. Therefore we have undertaken in the hearing to elicit, and in the document we have presented to give, the best information we could upon the subject, and I hope it will turn out to be satisfactory to the Senate.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

Mr. MORGAN. I should like to ask the Senator from Iowa a question before he takes his seat.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. ALLISON. I yield to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. CULBERSON. On the same subject (and I am simply endeavoring to get this matter straight, apologizing to the Senator for interrupting him so much) he stated a while ago that the $6,886,300 which we paid for the Panama Canal Railroad was what we paid for the stock of that company.

Mr. ALLISON. That I understand.

Mr. CULBERSON. Now, I understand the Senator to disagree with that statement to the extent of saying that it was for the physical property of the company. I desire in this connection to read from Senate Document No. 123, Fifty-seventh Congress, first session, one paragraph only.

Mr. FORAKER. What is the document?

Mr. CULBERSON. It is the report of the Isthmian Canal Commission, with the President's message on the subject, Senate Document No. 123, Fifty-seventh Congress, first session, page 5:

> Of the existing 70,000 shares of the Panama Railroad the canal company will transfer to the United States all but about 1,100 shares. These latter are held by a few individuals residing in various parts of the United States and in Europe. As it will not be the policy of the United States to so manage the railroad as to secure a large revenue, it is probable that the holders of these shares will in time find it to their interest to dispose of them at the price fixed by the Commission for the other shares, viz, their par value. At par, the value of the 68,863 shares to be transferred to the United States by the canal company is $6,886,300.

Showing that we have paid (and it is included in the $40,000,000) $6,886,300 for the stock of this company, and in addition $150,000 for the 1,100 shares purchased subsequently, when there was a mortgage of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 on the property.

Mr. ALLISON. I so understood. If I stated otherwise I did not intend it.

Mr. MORGAN. I wish to ask the Senator from Iowa whether or not in the list of directors of the Panama Railroad Company Mr. William Nelson Cromwell appears as one of the directors?

Mr. ALLISON. I must confess we did not ask for the names of the gentlemen who are directors of the railroad company.

Mr. MORGAN. I am informed that he is a director while he is also attorney of the Panama Railroad Company.

Mr. ALLISON. Possibly he is. I think he signs some of these documents as attorney of the Panama Railroad Company.

Mr. MORGAN. Has the Senator any knowledge of the amount of money he gets in this double-barrel capacity of attorney and director?

Mr. ALLISON. I have not. I think that is something well worthy of inquiry, and I hope it will be entered upon. I think it ought to be inquired into. I have no doubt he gets an adequate salary.

Mr. FORAKER. If the Senator will allow me to interrupt him——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly.

Mr. FORAKER. On page 27 of the hearings before the Senate Committee on Appropriations occurs this statement by Secretary Taft:

> The railroad had a most inadequate equipment even for the work which was to be done as a common carrier. It was agreed—I say it was agreed, but as it was the same person making the arrangement it could hardly be called an agreement except formally—it was decided to be fair that the Commission should double track the railroad, etc.

That indicates, as I understand it, that the organizations were practically the same; I mean the organization of the Commission and the organization of the railroad. Was not that the case?

Mr. ALLISON. In point of fact I take it the Commission is in control of this railroad, but it is also a fact that they have a separate organization and a president who performs service either in New York or Panama, a superintendent, etc., and I have no doubt a salary list is carried by the railroad separate and distinct from the canal. That is in the nature of things so, because the railroad company transports passengers and freight across the Isthmus. As the Senator from Maine said a few moments ago, the railroad company contracts for through freight from New York to San Francisco and to other parts of our own country, and to Chile and the Asiatic countries.

Mr. FORAKER. The point I wished to call attention to was that the properties, although separately organized, are really under one and the same management.

Mr. ALLISON. They are really under the same management.

Mr. FORAKER. And all managed in the interest of the United States Government.

Mr. ALLISON. I am sure they are. Besides, it is absolutely essential that this railroad should be owned by the Government of the United States if we are to construct the canal, as we would be obliged to build another railroad, if there was room for another on the Isthmus, if we did not control this line of road.

Mr. STONE rose.

Mr. ALLISON. I shall be glad to explain any other matter.

Mr. STONE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Iowa yield to the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. ALLISON. I do, with pleasure.

Mr. STONE. The Senator adverted a short time ago to the fact that there had been purchased by the Canal Commission two transports to run between New York and the Isthmus, for which, I understand, $1,300,000 was paid. I saw not long since in reports made by the Secretary of War and the Canal Commission—the chairman of the Commission—that it was the determined policy of those having charge of the construction of the canal to purchase ships and supplies wherever they could be bought cheapest. That was stated by them in their reports to be considered as a part of their duty; that they were under a public obligation to observe and enforce that policy. There was a great deal said about it in the press during the past summer.

I have also seen where it was said, in a semiofficial way at least, that two ships of 6,000 tons each, suitable for this work had been offered to the Canal Commission for $750,000; that negotiations had been entered upon for that purpose. I desire to ask the Senator if, while the Secretary of War and the other executive officials were before the Appropriations Committee, anything was said relating to that subject, explaining why there was a change of this policy, and why they paid $1,300,000 for ships substantially of the same kind which were offered to them for $750,000 when officially they had declared that they considered it their duty under the law to buy where they could buy cheapest. Was anything said before the committee on that subject?

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, there was nothing said upon that subject, except the inquiry was made as to what proportion of the supplies and materials for the use of the canal construction was purchased in our country and what proportion was purchased abroad, and the answer was that about 2 per cent of the amount was purchased at Panama and at points elsewhere than in this country.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, if the Senator from Iowa will permit me, I will state that in reference to the purchase of two ships the Senator from Missouri is right in saying there was some discussion in the public prints when the Secretary of War announced last year that he was going into the open market to buy supplies for the Panama Canal, including ships. The Secretary of War did attempt to buy ships abroad, but I think if the Senator from Missouri will make careful inquiry of the Department he will find that the Secretary failed to find any foreign ships that met the requirements of the Department. After exploiting that matter abroad, in England particularly, he turned his attention to the United States, and he found the Ward Line had two ships that exactly suited the purposes, and he purchased them for $650,000 apiece, which, it has been stated by experts, was a very reasonable amount. There are now being built, I will say to the Senator, in the United States shipyards two ships to take the place of those the Ward Line sold to the Department.

Mr. STONE. What was the tonnage of the ships?

Mr. GALLINGER. Six thousand tons each.

Mr. STONE. Does the Senator know whether two foreign ships, English ships I believe they were, of 6,000 tons were offered to the Commission for $750,000?

Mr. GALLINGER. I will say to the Senator I have no knowledge of that. I can apprehend that there might be two ships somewhere of 6,000 tons which would be sold for that amount that might be practically worthless after they had been bought. The fact remains that foreign ships did not meet the requirements of the Department and they purchased these American ships.

Mr. ALLISON. I think the Secretary of War said incidentally that they could find no ships abroad which covered the kind of transportation that they had.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is a well-known fact.

Mr. ALLISON. It must cover locomotives and other material that they were sending from our country to the Isthmus.

Mr. STONE. Do I understand the Senator to say that no ships could be had in all Europe that would suit this purpose?

Mr. GALLINGER. I have understood that no proper ships, ships such as the Department wanted, could be purchased. Of course the Senator knows that there are a great many good ships, doubtless, in the service of foreign governments which can not be bought because they are earning more money, at least earning good money, and they would not sell them. I think if the Senator will investigate the matter carefully he will see that the Secretary of War acted very wisely in the purchase of those American ships.

Mr. ALLISON. I think I have made all the explanation that is needed now.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, I have but a word or two to say adverting to the matter of salaries. The Senator from Iowa responded to the inquiry which I made relative to that branch of the subject and then continued as to another branch, and for that reason I revert to it.

If nothing had been said on the subject, it might have been concluded that the Senate in passing by the matter of the salaries without offering an amendment, and without any suggestion of the reason why none had been offered, had in so doing practically indicated their approval of these salaries. The explanation which has been made and the discussion which has been had in response to the inquiry made by myself negatives any such conclusion, and while it may not be said that anything has been determined by the Senate adversely to the correctness and propriety of these salaries, certainly it can not be claimed that the Senate has approved of them. For that reason, Mr. President, I am glad that the matter has been brought up and that we have had the discussion on it which has taken place this afternoon. None of us desires to hinder or delay the construction of the canal. On the contrary we all desire to expedite it. But nevertheless it is our duty to see to it that the money for its construction shall be expended with reasonable economy and that extravagant and exorbitant salaries should not be paid.

I think the suggestion of the Senator from Maine is decidedly the most practical one which has been made, and I very much hope that the Senate will act upon it. If no other Senator does so I will myself to-morrow—as I understand this matter will go over until then—offer an amendment which will require that there shall be estimates of these salaries submitted to Congress for each period for which appropriations are to be made, so that in making appropriations for the money with which they are to be paid the question may be determined as to what is the will of Congress in regard to the amounts properly to be paid as salaries not only in the aggregate, but in detail, specifying each officer, or at least each class of officers, and the salaries for the same.

I desire to repeat, Mr. President, that in calling the attention of the Senate to this matter and in making the inquiry I have, I have not designed or intended any reflection upon any officer who has been instrumental or had any agency in the fixing of these salaries. It is a matter about which there may naturally be very great differences of judgment, and I accord to the officers who have thus fixed the salaries the utmost good faith, although I differ from them very radically as to the correctness of the conclusions which they have reached. I wish to say further that personally I do not object to the officers of the Army and of the Navy who are detailed on this work receiving as much compensation as civilians who are employed for similar work. This, I think, is clearly contemplated by the seventh section of the Spooner Act. But whether civilian or military, the compensation, while it should be liberal, ought not to be exorbitant.

I desire to say further in this connection that I think this debate illustrates another fact. That is, that the committee which has charge of the appropriations must necessarily have charge of the question of the consideration of the propriety of the amounts to be appropriated in these salaries. While I think that the rule at present gives the consideration of this bill to the general Appropriations Committee, I repeat that one of two things must be done, in my opinion. Either the general Appropriations Committee must make up its mind that it must go through with this detail work and scrutinize all the expenditures to be made in the construction of the canal or the appropriation bill for the canal must be turned over to a committee which will have the time thus to do.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I wish to inquire, after getting the floor, if the Senator from Iowa is willing to have an adjournment now? It is evident that this bill can not be completed to-night, and I want to submit a few remarks on it. I should like to have an adjournment so that I can begin in the morning, when Senators are fresh.

Mr. ALLISON. I hoped we would be able to finish the bill to-night. It is manifest that it can not be done; and therefore I will give way or myself make a motion to go into executive session or to adjourn, whichever is most agreeable to Senators.

Several SENATORS. Let us adjourn.

Mr. ALLISON. I move that the Senate adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 58 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, December 15, 1905, at 12 o'clock m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, December 14, 1905.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

DECEMBER SALARIES OF CAPITOL EMPLOYEES.

Mr. CASSELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer the joint resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania offers a resolution and asks unanimous consent for its immediate consideration. The Clerk will report the same.

The Clerk read as follows:

Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 48) to pay the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1905, on the 20th day of said month.

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives be, and they are hereby, authorized and instructed to pay the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives, including the Capitol police, their respective salaries for the month of December, 1905, on the 20th day of said month.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of resolution No. 42, relating to the distribution of the President's message.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, with Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania in the chair.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, to return to the subject of this resolution and the amendment offered to it referring this message, so far as it relates to matters of insurance, to the Committee on Ways and Means, I wish to discuss that question briefly.

There can be no doubt but that all bills raising a tax go to the Committee on Ways and Means, no matter what may be their nature. They go there under the rule.

The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] yesterday, in speaking of the matter, announced a rather novel and strange doctrine. He said:

Therefore the taxing power was resorted to. The taxation was made the pretext—

And from reading the context it would seem from the tenor of his remarks that in various laws passed by Congress taxation was made the pretext to give Congress the jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Now, of course, it is patent to every lawyer in the House that if the House should enact a law and put into the law itself the statement that the taxation was simply a pretext to get jurisdiction over the matter the Supreme Court would promptly declare the law unconstitutional; and where any of these laws which the gentleman characterizes in this manner have gone to the Supreme Court on their constitutionality the Supreme Court has examined the law, and when it found that the law imposed a tax they have promptly said that under the Constitution Congress had jurisdiction, but if the tax was a mere pretense Congress would have no jurisdiction. No committee would have any jurisdiction. Congress has no jurisdiction over the subject of insurance unless it can get it under the taxing power of the Government, as I shall proceed to show later on in numerous decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States where that subject was involved in the decision of the case.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, may I put a question to the gentleman?

Mr. PAYNE. I would rather the gentleman would not interrupt me now. If he will wait until I finish, then he can put his question.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Very well.

Mr. PAYNE. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] yesterday cited what he said was a precedent for this action, and that was the bill imposing a tax on oleomargarine. I have quite a vivid recollection of what occurred at that time, because it occurred during my early service in Congress, and I was curious to see how the House would get at a subject when it was bent on doing so, rule or no rule.

The bill came here first in 1882. That was before I broke into Congress, and it was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means under the rules. It was a bill to tax oleomargarine. There was a suspicion in the House, as well as in the country, that the object of that law was to tax oleomargarine out of existence. Nevertheless, the bill went to the Committee on Ways and Means. Why? Because it raised revenue; because by its terms it imposed a tax. No one doubted then but that that was the proper reference.

In 1886 the same bill was introduced in the House and the same bill was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. I think it was referred there in the first instance properly under the rules of the House. Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, had very pronounced views on the subject of the suppression of oleomargarine. I do not remember whether the bill was introduced by him or not, but he had a suspicion that the bill would go to sleep in the Committee on Ways and Means. They had not reported it. It was rumored that that committee was opposed to the bill and opposed to the proposed legislation, and in order to get the bill out of the Committee on Ways and Means and get it into more friendly atmosphere Mr. Hatch made the motion in the House to discharge the Committee on Ways and Means from the further consideration of that bill and to refer it to the Committee on Agriculture, of which he was chairman.

After some debate, from which it appeared that the House was overwhelmingly for the bill, a very large majority representing their farmer constituents here on the floor of the House having gotten the idea that this law if enacted was going to greatly improve the condition of agriculture, and especially the dairy farming in the United States, anxious as they were to have an immediate action upon this bill and get it before a committee that would report it to the House, by a vote of 67 to 40, as I am informed, the bill was taken from the Committee on Ways and Means and referred to the Committee on Agriculture, and the bill was reported and afterwards became a law. That is the origin of the oleomargarine law.

Since that time in various Congresses, since my friend from Iowa has become chairman of the great Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, various bills of like character—a bill taxing filled cheese, the bill taxing impure flour, and bills of that nature—have been introduced in the House and referred invariably to the Committee on Ways and Means and reported by that committee, and have become a part of the law of the country from such reference and reports.

No one ever doubted that the proper place for these bills was with the Committee on Ways and Means. I do not know whether the gentleman from Iowa claims that his committee has jurisdiction over the subject of insurance or not, but it seems to me that if any legislation is proposed on this subject the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has no more pretense to a right of jurisdiction than has the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Will the gentleman allow me an interruption?

Mr. PAYNE. What is it?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. How can the committee have jurisdiction over insurance when the Supreme Court has time and again said that insurance is not commerce?

Mr. PAYNE. If the gentleman from Tennessee will allow me to make my speech, then he can make his.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. The gentleman's speech could be improved upon if he puts that proposition into it.

Mr. PAYNE. Possibly some of these things have occurred to the rest of the Members as well as to my astute and learned friend from Tennessee. The gentleman from Tennessee saw, I suppose, that I was coming directly to this subject.

Now, the Supreme Court has made repeated decisions on this question. The first case arose in 1868, the case of Paul against Virginia, reported in 75 United States, page 183. Justice Field delivered the unanimous opinion of the court. That case arose in this way: An insurance corporation in the city of New York had issued a policy of insurance upon some property in the State of Virginia. It was fire insurance. Virginia had a law regulating the subject of insurance and making it a penal offense for a person to issue or deliver such a policy in the State of Virginia when the company had not complied with certain terms of the State law. Mr. Paul was indicted for this offense, and his defense was that the United States had jurisdiction of this question, that it was a question of interstate and foreign commerce, and that the State had not jurisdiction of the question. Upon that question alone the case turned.

The Virginia courts affirmed the conviction of Paul, and the case went up to the Supreme Court of the United States, and in deciding that question, which, I say, was by the unanimous opinion of the court, the following language appears in the opinion of the court:

> Issuing a policy of insurance is not a transaction of commerce. The policies are simple contracts of indemnity against loss by fire, entered into between the corporations and the assured, for a consideration paid by the latter. These contracts are not articles of commerce in any proper meaning of the word. They are not subjects of trade and barter offered in the market as something having an existence and value independent of the parties to them. They are not commodities to be shipped or forwarded from one State to another, and then put for sale. They are like other personal contracts between parties which are completed by their signature and the transfer of the consideration. Such contracts are not interstate transactions, though the parties may be domiciled in different States. The policies do not take effect—are not executed contracts—until delivered by the agent in Virginia. They are, then, local transactions, and are governed by the local law. They do not constitute a part of the commerce between the States any more than a contract for the purpose and sale of goods in Virginia by a citizen of New York whilst in Virginia would constitute a portion of such commerce.

The same question next came up in the case of Hooper v. California, reported in 155 United States, 653.

It came up in a similar manner, Mr. Chairman. In delivering the opinion of the court the court said:

> The business of insurance is not commerce. The contract of insurance is not an instrumentality of commerce. The making of such a contract is a mere incident of commercial intercourse, and in this respect there is no difference whatever between insurance against fire and insurance against "the perils of the sea."

This latter case was a marine insurance case and the first case was a fire insurance case.

In a more recent case, the case of the New York Life Insurance Company v. Cravens, 178 U. S., 401, Mr. Justice McKenna, in delivering the unanimous opinion of the Supreme Court, said:

> That the business of fire insurance is not interstate commerce is decided in Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wallace, 168; Liverpool Insurance Company v. Massachusetts, 10 Wallace, 566; Philadelphia Fire Association v. New York, 119 U. S, 110. That the business of marine insurance is not is decided in Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648. In the latter case it is said that the contention that it is "involves an erroneous conception of what constitutes interstate commerce."

I do not thing that the justice meant to be personal in respect to my friend the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] when he made that statement. He continues:

> We omit the reasoning by which that is demonstrated, and will only repeat, "The business of insurance is not commerce. The contract of insurance is not an instrumentality of commerce; the making of such contract is a mere incident of commercial intercourse, and in this respect there is no difference whatever between insurance against fire and insurance against 'the perils of the sea.'" And we add, or against the uncertainty of man's mortality.

There are other cases, Mr. Chairman, which I do not care to cite. The decisions of the Supreme Court seem to be uniform and unanimous, notwithstanding the opinion which my friend said he had from a noted lawyer, and in which he states that he still thinks that these contracts of insurance or the subject of insurance is a matter of interstate commerce. I prefer to stand on the decisions of the Supreme Court; I prefer to stand on the rules of this House. I do not believe there is any jurisdiction possible in this body of any matter relating to insurance unless it is through the taxing power given by the Constitution to the Congress. Most of the bills introduced are introduced by men who seem to agree with that view of the Constitution, because they tax the business of insurance. That seems to be the object of the bill. These bills have been referred by the Speaker, taking the same view of the subject, after examining the question, to the Committee on Ways and Means. The other bills which some gentlemen have introduced, without examining this question apparently, and which omit any reference to taxation, have also been referred to that committee for two reasons. One is that it has been the rule of the Speakers, whenever the committee had the jurisdiction of the general matter, to refer all bills relating to that matter, although there was nothing technically in the bill sending it to that committee, to the same committee, and for the further reason that Congress has no jurisdiction of this subject unless it is under the taxing power, and no matter what the form of the bill it can not have life and vitality. It would not be passed by this House, having proper regard for the constitutional limitations upon our powers, unless it involved the question of taxation. Therefore this amendment is put into this resolution referring this part of the message to the Committee on Ways and Means, the only committee which has jurisdiction in taxation.

It is important to preserve the jurisdiction of committees. We are not looking for business in the Committee on Ways and Means. We have enough of that, but we do not shirk our business. When it comes to us naturally under the rules of the House we do not propose to give up our prerogatives, unless the House amends the rules, and we propose to get jurisdiction of such matters as belong to us whenever they do belong to us. This is plainly such a matter, and I hope when the House comes to vote upon it it will not seek to overrule the line of decisions of the Supreme Court, unanimously given, in favor of the proposition that interstate and foreign commerce has no jurisdiction of this subject-matter. Congress can get no jurisdiction of it under the interstate and foreign commerce act, but Congress can get jurisdiction of the subject of taxing insurance companies. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Several MEMBERS rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York yield, and to whom?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN].

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman say whether there is anything in the President's message respecting insurance in reference to regulating insurance companies by taxing them?

Mr. PAYNE. I did not observe anything of that kind.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman give us some idea very briefly of how it is possible through the taxing power to regulate insurance companies?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, Mr. Chairman, I do not propose to formulate a bill on this subject now extemporaneously. All I contend is that the only jurisdiction we can have in regard to insurance companies must come under the taxing power, and if there is not sufficient of that to regulate these companies, then Congress will not be able to carry out the suggestions of the President's message in relation to insurance.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman will understand that I am asking only for information.

Mr. PAYNE. But I can not inform the gentleman.

Mr. MANN. Oh, the gentleman can give me information upon any subject.

Mr. PAYNE. I can not undertake to say now. I can not formulate a bill regulating insurance on the question of taxation on the spur of the moment, if I ever can.

Mr. MANN. What I was trying to get at was to find out whether it was on the spur of the moment the gentleman proposed to turn this over to the Committee on Ways and Means under the taxation theory. I say to the gentleman frankly this is the first time, although the gentleman spoke yesterday, that I ever heard suggested the idea that through the taxing powers you can regulate insurance companies; and for that reason, because the gentleman has evidently given some study to the subject or he would not make the motion, I asked the gentleman in what manner is it possible, not in detail, to regulate insurance companies through the taxing power.

Mr. PAYNE. Well, the gentleman will remember in his recollection here in Congress that Congress has regulated the business of filled cheese through the taxing power, and also regulating the matter of mixed flour—impure flour—through the taxing power.

Mr. MANN. I remember Congress has prohibited mixed flour except upon paying a certain tax.

Mr. PAYNE. Oh, they went further than that and provided rules and regulations under which taxes could be collected, and if the gentleman will read those provisions he will have a suspicion at least that it may be a stretch of the constitutional provision in regard to taxation that enables them to regulate the business as these acts regulate the business. It was done under the assumption that it is necessary to do that in order to levy and collect the tax. Whether that is an honest assumption or not I am not now discussing. I am only discussing the possibilities of the case——

Mr. MANN. Well, I think the gentleman, when he discusses it, if he ever gets to the point of discussing it, will very readily see it is not possible to regulate any national insurance company with the taxing power on the mere theory that they regulate the question of mixed flour, filled cheese, or oleomargarine, because they are entirely different propositions.

Mr. PAYNE. It is possible, when I come to study the subject, I will come to some conclusion other than what I arrive at now, but what I contended was that this is the only jurisdiction we have on the subject.

Mr. MANN. I do not care where the message goes to particularly, but if we can endeavor to regulate insurance through the interstate-commerce provision of the Constitution, as I believe we can, and I have studied the decisions to which the gentleman referred and others to which the gentleman has not referred, why should not the proper committee dealing with that subject have jurisdiction on that question?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, I have studied other decisions of the court, but these seemed to be so closely in point I did not think it necessary to multiply others from the same court, as they seemed to be in the same general direction.

Mr. CRUMPACKER and Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Minnesota?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota. Just a question, please. I understand the position you take is that the Congress has no jurisdiction whatever over the subject of insurance unless it is through the taxing power of the Constitution?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, I take that position, and especially that it has no jurisdiction under the interstate-commerce clause.

Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota. Well, I would like to ask the gentleman, in that connection, if the Congress has no jurisdiction except by means of taxation, would it be proper for the Congress by act or otherwise to prescribe certain rules and regulations which insurance companies must comply with or be debarred from mail facilities? I ask him if the Congress has not that power?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, I want to say to the gentleman, so far as I am advised now, I have failed to find any authority under the Constitution to do that thing. I may be enlightened on that subject, but I am only speaking now——

Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota. I wish I was able to enlighten the gentleman on the subject, but it has occurred to me that the power of Congress over all matters that pass through the mails is unlimited, and any act or regulation prescribed by the Congress in this regard must be obeyed.

Mr. PAYNE. I do not know any decision of the Supreme Court that has gone so far as to decide that legitimate business communications can not go through the mails. Of course, I am aware of the lottery cases, where they have regulated the carrying of lottery tickets, and as a matter of course that is a subject of excise, and they have sustained the idea that Congress may interfere with that, and properly interfere, but this is another matter.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] yield to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER]?

Mr. PAYNE. I do.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I desire to ask a question in relation to the necessity for this amendment of the resolution. It occurred to me that the gentleman had already argued himself entirely out of court when he stated, or his resolution states, that all matters pertaining to taxation should go to the Committee on Ways and Means and that the only way to handle insurance questions is through the taxing power, and that under the rules as they now stand all of these questions will go to the Committee on Ways and Means. I would like to know what is the necessity for this amendment of the resolution?

Mr. PAYNE. I will state it very frankly to the gentleman, and I do not think I am violating any committee secrets in making the statement. I drew the original resolution, as he will observe, without these words in it, but simply referring all matters relating to taxation to the Committee on Ways and Means, in general language. When the resolution came up before the committee some of my colleagues thought we ought to put the words "and insurance" in, in order that the matter might be met frankly and fully in the House; and so those words were put in there by way of amendment by direction of my colleagues in the committee. I think myself it is a new subject, a novel subject, one never having been presented to the Congress of the United States before, and in that my colleagues were right in suggesting that those words ought to go in. But in connection with that they referred me to the particular clause that gives jurisdiction to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce in terms "of the isthmian canal" and in terms "of the interoceanic cables," and so forth. It goes beyond the language of the rule in that respect.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Would it not be better to leave the whole subject upon the standing rules of the House, so that if a bill proposing to regulate insurance by taxation were introduced it would under the standing rules be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means? If an insurance bill were introduced in the House providing for regulation through the mails, or as a subject of interstate commerce, without involving the taxing power, I think the gentleman would concede if Congress had jurisdiction, it ought to go to some other committee. His committee is directed in its jurisdiction by the original rules of the House.

Mr. PAYNE. I am afraid my friend was not paying attention to the argument I tried to make. It has been the custom of the Speaker wherever a class of bills was referable to one committee, and that because of some particular feature of the bills, and those bills were so referred, to refer other bills upon the same general subject to that committee, so that there should be but one jurisdiction in the House. Now, I am informed that that is the custom of the Speaker. But I am also informed by the Speaker, and that is what I attempted to say to the committee a few moments ago, that, so far as he can see, the House has no jurisdiction of this subject unless the question of taxation is in every bill. So that a bill seeking to regulate this can have no life and vitality, even if enacted by the Congress of the United States, unless there is taxation in it, and the question of taxation appears. So I say that all those bills, whether taxation is in them or not, should be referred to the only committee that can report a bill involving taxation and bring it before the House.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Another question.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] or the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. CRUMPACKER]?

Mr. PAYNE. I will first yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. One more question. My colleague from Indiana, Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS, has a bill pending providing for the regulation of insurance in the District of Columbia and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States involving in no respect the question of taxation. The gentleman must admit that Congress has the power to enact that kind of legislation. Does he think his committee ought to have jurisdiction of that bill?

Mr. PAYNE. I will state to the gentleman frankly that if that bill does not involve taxation I do not think it will go to the Committee on Ways and Means, but it will go to another committee of the House.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Will it not, if this amendment is not adopted?

Mr. PAYNE. No; it is the President's message that goes to the committee on this subject.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. If you only want the message, I think you can have it all.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] permit another question?

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] yield to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN]?

Mr. PAYNE. I certainly will.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman stated it was the custom to refer all bills of the same character or relating to the same subject-matter to the same committee. Does not the gentleman remember when the oleomargarine question was before the House a bill was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means on the ground that it involved the taxing power; a bill was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce on the ground that it involved interstate commerce, and a bill was referred to the Committee on Agriculture on the ground that it involved agricultural interests, all introduced in the same session of Congress?

Mr. PAYNE. Well, the gentleman may be right.

Mr. MANN. Is not "the gentleman" right? Does not the gentleman himself know that was the case?

Mr. PAYNE. I do not recollect.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman knows that the bill acted upon came out of the Committee on Agriculture and that his committee did not act upon the bill referred to it.

Mr. PAYNE. I can not confirm the statement of the gentleman.

Mr. MANN. You can take my assurance of the facts.

Mr. PAYNE. Oh, certainly. I know a member of the Committee on Ways and Means introduced bills on the subject, and was probably the father of the legislation upon that subject.

Mr. MANN. And not being able to get action by his own committee, a bill was introduced and sent to another committee, and still another bill introduced and sent to another committee.

Mr. PAYNE. My recollection does not extend so far as the recollection of the gentleman from Illinois. I had not the interest in the bill that he had.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from New York knew what was being done by the three committees.

Mr. PAYNE. My constituents did not have the same interest as those of the gentleman. I reserve the balance of my time, if I may. How much time have I remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will answer the gentleman as soon as he ascertains.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I think that this is a much more important question than the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] seems to think it is. I think it is important because I believe that the action of this committee to-day will be taken as a guide to be followed by the officer of the House who makes reference of bills on various subjects to committees in the future; and I think that these references will cover within the near future a great many bills on subjects involving much of legislation. The annual message that is referred to in this resolution devotes much of time to the discussion of corporations, corporations that the writer of that message says are engaged in interstate commerce, and among these corporations is included the business of insurance.

Perhaps I was unfortunate in using the word "pretext." Of course, I did not mean to be disrespectful to the Committee on Ways and Means, that might report a bill looking to legislation for revenue when that was only the minor and inconsequential part of the bill and was simply used for the purpose of giving jurisdiction of the larger, major subject that really was important in the bill. I used that word because it happened to come at the moment, without thinking at the time that it might be a subject of criticism upon the part of the gentleman from New York. He will remember, the committee will remember, that at the outstart of my remarks the other day I did not hesitate to say that the Supreme Court had taken a different view on this subject from the one that I entertain and a great many other gentlemen in this House take; but I said at the same time that that opinion of the Supreme Court was not indorsed, as I understand, by the American Bar Association, and that the gentlemen composing that eminent body of men took a different view on the subject from that which has been quoted here by the gentleman. There is no question——

Mr. BARTLETT. May I interrupt the gentleman? I have the report of the committee of the American Bar Association in my hand on that subject, both the majority and the minority reports, and the American Bar Association adopted at its last meeting the majority report. Will the gentleman permit me to say just what that was?

Mr. HEPBURN. I yield for that purpose.

Mr. BARTLETT. The American Bar Association committee is composed of five gentlemen, four of whom signed the majority report, one of whom made the minority report on this subject, and this is what they recommend:

Legislation by Congress providing for the supervision of insurance.

That recommendation was adopted by the American Bar Association. Will the gentleman permit me to say that in furnishing this I do not mean to say that I agree altogether with the views of that committee or the majority report of the committee of the American Bar Association? I have my own views, which, at the proper time, I may express.

Mr. SHERLEY. Will the gentleman tell the House how many members of the American Bar Association voted on that resolution?

Mr. BARTLETT. I have not the minutes of the American Bar Association.

Mr. SHERLEY. Is it not a fact that only a very small minority voted on it at all?

Mr. BARTLETT. I do not know. I know of a committee of five appointed by the American Bar Association to investigate and report to it. Four reported in favor of regulation and one against.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I may say further that at least certain members of that committee and of the bar association have determined the form which this control that they recommend should take, and have furnished me with a bill that I shall have the honor in a day or two to introduce.

But I know, Mr. Chairman, that the decisions of the Supreme Court, respectable as they are, and entitled to our respect at all times as they are, are not infallible, and that they do not always remain the same. Every man who is familiar with the reports has been struck with the great number of overruled, doubted, and discredited cases that are contained as a list in every digest in this country. I remember, a little less than fifty years ago, when one of the most important decisions that ever was pronounced by the Supreme Court was rendered. More men, perhaps, were discussing that decision, were affected by it in their emotions and their convictions, than any other one decision that has ever been announced. I remember that as great a character as Mr. Lincoln said that "while that exposition of the law will be obeyed, yet we will never cease our efforts to secure a reversal of that decision." One decision does not fix for all time the law. It takes a long period, after full discussion and after the subject is thoroughly understood, to fix permanently the law as we have it in construction.

I remember when Congress first began the discussion of its right to control the great railway corporations that they all relied upon the Dartmouth College case. It was said that their rights were fixed by that decision and the series of decisions affirming the doctrines of that case. Their vested rights were recognized in the law as there interpreted. And yet I remember that when the cases were presented that was not regarded as a controlling precedent, and that the other view became the rule through construction.

I have no doubt that in cases of minor importance, where argument was not extended, where but little attention was given to the subject-matter, the Supreme Court has taken a particular view; but that was in the absence of legislation, in the absence of effort, and when those cases were first decided the conditions were infinitely different from those of to-day; and I am hopeful that when the case of to-day may be presented, as it will be presented, that a different view will be taken. At least I do not want, by our action here to-day, to abandon the position and the claim that under the commerce clause of the Constitution the Congress has the right to control these great corporations that are engaged in commerce. I do not want to abandon it, and after what has been said by the gentleman from the Committee on Ways and Means, if we adopt this resolution as he has amended it, we do abandon this ground; we surrender everything. We say that we have no power of control save that which comes from the taxing power, and I do not want to say that. That is what this resolution does say in effect, after the declaration of the gentleman from New York.

Besides, Mr. Chairman, I understand from the gentleman, and perhaps I may be justified in saying that I have been informed from other sources, that the majority of that committee agree with him, and therefore I do not want this legislation to go to a committee where it is condemned in advance.

Mr. PAYNE. I want to say to the gentleman that what I meant to say was, and what I think I did say, that the committee, I think unanimously, were for the amendment. Whether they all agree with me on the taxing power or not I can not say. I know some of them do.

Mr. HEPBURN. Well, I assume that they must, for this reason, that that is the only way, and it is because that view does obtain that the gentleman could claim jurisdiction at all.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I want to call attention to the rule under which the gentleman says this should go to his committee. And yet let me suggest that this resolution is an abandonment of all claim that there is a rule that would take this matter before that committee.

Why is this resolution here if, under the rules of this House, the subject should go to the Committee on Ways and Means? The very fact that there is no rule that determines this matter, that there is no claim of a precedent or rule, is the reason they introduced this resolution.

Mr. PAYNE. Of course, the rule provides that all proposed legislation shall go to the various committees; there is no doubt about that. All bills or resolutions introduced on that subject go to the various committees, and this resolution is brought in here to send the President's message to the various committees because the rules do not send it there.

Mr. HEPBURN. "All proposed legislation shall be referred to the committees named in the preceding rule, as follows, namely: Subjects relating to the revenue and the bonded debt of the United States." Is there a word in the President's message referring to the revenue? Is there any pretense that this portion of the President's message that is assigned to this committee proposes revenue, or can be considered as proposing legislation relating to revenue? I think that a strict construction of this rule perhaps would not justify the gentleman in his contention. "All proposed legislation." We legislate through bills, and while I am not clear that so limited a definition should be given, yet I suggest it to the gentleman for his consideration.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I do not want to take up the attention of the House longer, but I do think that this is an important matter. I do believe that this subject of the control of the great corporations is one that the people of the United States demand this Congress shall take hold of and shall consider, and that they shall exercise all of the powers, if necessary, conferred by the Constitution on the Congress in order to secure proper control over them, and that our constituents will not be content if, at the very beginning of this great contest, we abandon all our claim to authority except that we may have under the taxing power. I am not willing to surrender the power that we have through the control of the postal system. This does it. I am not willing to surrender the control that I believe we have through the commerce clause of the Constitution. This does it. Therefore I think the amendment to the resolution as proposed by the gentleman ought not to prevail, and, if this amendment is not sustained, I will, at the proper time, propose an amendment in the third line, on page 2, after the word "commerce," to insert "including Federal control over corporations;" so that it will read: "That so much as relates to commerce, including Federal control over corporations, shall be referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce." Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LACEY rose.

Mr. HEPBURN. How much time does the gentleman from Iowa want?

Mr. LACEY. Ten minutes.

Mr. HEPBURN. I yield ten minutes to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Chairman, I wish to call the attention of the committee and the Chair to the form of the President's message, and will here insert it in my remarks:

INSURANCE.

Recent events have emphasized the importance of an early and exhaustive consideration of this question, to see whether it is not possible to furnish better safeguards than the several States have been able to furnish against corruption of the flagrant kind which has been exposed. It has been only too clearly shown that certain of the men at the head of these large corporations take but small note of the ethical distinction between honesty and dishonesty; they draw the line only this side of what may be called "law honesty," the kind of honesty necessary in order to avoid falling into the clutches of the law. Of course the only complete remedy for this condition must be found in an aroused public conscience, a higher sense of ethical conduct in the community at large, and especially among business men and in the great profession of the law, and in the growth of a spirit which condemns all dishonesty, whether in rich man or in poor man, whether it takes the shape of bribery or of blackmail. But much can be done by legislation which is not only drastic but practical. There is need of a far stricter and more uniform regulation of the vast insurance interests of this country. The United States should in this respect follow the policy of other nations by providing adequate national supervision of commercial interests which are clearly national in character. My predecessors have repeatedly recognized that the foreign business of these companies is an important part of our foreign commercial relations. During the Administrations of Presidents Cleveland, Harrison, and McKinley the State Department exercised its influence, through diplomatic channels, to prevent unjust discrimination by foreign countries against American insurance companies. These negotiations illustrated the propriety of the Congress recognizing the national character of insurance, for in the absence of Federal legislation the State Department could only give expression to the wishes of the authorities of the several States, whose policy was ineffective through want of uniformity.

I repeat my previous recommendation that the Congress should also consider whether the Federal Government has any power or owes any duty with respect to domestic transactions in insurance of an interstate character. That State supervision has proved inadequate is generally conceded. The burden upon insurance companies, and therefore their policy holders, of conflicting regulations of many States, is unquestioned, while but little effective check is imposed upon any able and unscrupulous man who desires to exploit the company in his own interest at the expense of the policy holders and of the public. The inability of a State to regulate effectively insurance corporations created under the laws of other States and transacting the larger part of their business elsewhere is also clear. As a remedy for this evil of conflicting, ineffective, and yet burdensome regulations there has been for many years a widespread demand for Federal supervision. The Congress has already recognized that interstate insurance may be a proper subject for Federal legislation, for in creating the Bureau of Corporations it authorized it to publish and supply useful information concerning interstate corporations, "including corporations engaged in insurance." It is obvious that if the compilation of statistics be the limit of the Federal power, it is wholly ineffective to regulate this form of commercial intercourse between the States, and as the insurance business has outgrown in magnitude the possibility of adequate State supervision, the Congress should carefully consider whether further legislation can be had. What is said above applies with equal force to fraternal and benevolent organizations which contract for life insurance.

The matters discussed before the House and the committee this morning have involved entirely a different proposition from that proposed in the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE]. He has discussed the question as to where certain bills should be referred. The proposition before the House is as to where the message should go. If the President is mistaken in his message, that is another thing. He proposed in his message to Congress to amend the laws in relation to the Bureau of Corporations so that Bureau may have control over interstate insurance in the United States. He discusses that matter, and that subject is not suggested in any other form. He does say that there is a question as to the constitutionality of such legislation, and he submits the subject to Congress. If nothing but the constitutional question comes to Congress, it would go to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD rose.

Mr. LACEY. I will yield to the gentleman in a minute. If the other question, which is the real question presented in his message, as to whether the law in relation to the Bureau of Corporations should be amended so as to enlarge its jurisdiction, if it is a proper subject for consideration by this House, it goes to the committee having charge of the laws on that subject, and it is not for us to say in advance that we can not handle this question in any way except by the taxing power. That would be saying to the President of the United States that he is entirely mistaken in suggesting any amendment to the law in the Bureau of Corporations, and in advance saying that the law can not be constitutionally amended except through the taxing power. That ought not to be decided in this broad way in the Committee of the Whole. When the bills are prepared and when they are introduced they will go to the appropriate committees—to the Judiciary Committee, perhaps, if the bill involves only a constitutional question; to the Postal Committee if it is only a question of controlling the mails; or, if it is to enlarge the power of the Bureau of Corporations, to the committee that has control of that subject.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Do I get in with this inquiry at any time?

Mr. LACEY. Yes; right at this particular moment. I yield to the gentleman from Maine.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. What I would like to inquire about is this: I understand the gentleman to say that if a constitutional question is raised by the message it should go to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LACEY. If he submits to Congress the question of whether there is constitutional power, as he says here, then that portion of the message merely involving the question of constitutional power alone would naturally go to that eminent committee of lawyers whose duty it is to pass on questions of constitutionality, and it might be proper to refer that part of the proposition to that committee.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Does not the gentleman appreciate the fact that at the very foundation of this suggestion, this recommendation, and any legislation that may take place, is this important constitutional proposition? Is not that true?

Mr. LACEY. Not necessarily. It will be true when any bill is presented. If I should prepare a bill amending the corporation laws as to the Bureau of Corporations, that bill would go to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Now, there is still another proposition in this part of the message, that as to whether or not there should not be some arrangement with foreign powers. Possibly that might go to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. There is no suggestion of revenue in this part of the message.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. But I did not ask anything about revenue.

Mr. LACEY. That is what I am discussing.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. And the gentleman was apparently answering the question that I asked him, as I understand it. Does not the gentleman concede that at the foundation of all these suggestions in relation to the control of insurance companies by Congress lies the great constitutional question as to whether we have the constitutional power to control life-insurance companies? Is not that true?

Mr. LACEY. That is no more true than it is with any bill. The question of the constitutional power to enact a bill comes up with every bill that comes before this House. That is one of the questions, and every committee can deal with that.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Would not that be fundamental there?

Mr. LACEY. Not at all. We have already dealt with the Bureau of Corporations, and the President in his message asks us to enlarge the powers of that Bureau. Now, the question as to whether those powers should be enlarged or not goes to the committee having charge of the legislation that seeks to enlarge that power.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. And he suggests in his message that his own recommendation is of doubtful constitutionality, and raises the question of constitutionality.

Mr. LACEY. No, he does not suggest it in that way.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I understood the gentleman to so intimate.

Mr. LACEY. No. The question of constitutional power is of course a matter to which he calls the attention of Congress: "That Congress carefully consider whether the power of the Bureau of Corporations can not be constitutionally extended to cover interstate transactions in insurance."

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. "Can not constitutionally be extended"——

Mr. LACEY. Certainly, but the question raised by the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE], and which I was endeavoring to answer, is this, that this House in advance should determine that there is no way to act upon the insurance question except by taxation, and therefore every question connected with it must go to the Committee on Ways and Means. Now, that is not involved here. The President's message does not suggest taxation; consequently respecting his message on that subject, if he has made a mistake in asking a kind of relief, it is not for us to correct it, but to send the message to where it appropriately belongs.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I appreciate the suggestion of the gentleman.

Mr. LACEY. So that the question that the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] has been presenting here is not involved at all, and it evidently did not occur to him or to the Committee on Ways and Means at the start that this subject belonged to that committee, but now comes in the form of an amendment. If some one wants to reach the insurance question by taxation and a bill is introduced, then it would go to the Committee on Ways and Means. If some one wants to regulate this question through the Bureau of Corporations, the bill would go to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. So that, Mr. Chairman, the whole question is one not of the appropriate reference of bills when they come to be introduced, but the reference of the message as it is written, as it stands, and that clearly refers to commerce, because that is the question that the President submits to this House.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the gentleman's opinion as to what effect the reference of subjects in the President's message has upon the jurisdiction of the committees, as defined in the rules?

Mr. LACEY. None whatever. The rules state the question of jurisdiction and the reference of the President's message has no more to do with that subject than a reference of a bill to a wrong committee would have upon the reference of a similar bill to the right committee, so that this question does not bind the House as to future reference of bills which do not involve the question of raising revenue.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Now, Mr. Chairman, do I get the impression correctly from the gentleman that as a matter of fact it is immaterial as to what is done with this resolution if it does not bind anybody hereafter, that it is largely an immaterial proposition?

Mr. LACEY. No, I think not. I think it is very material in the form in which it is presented. It is presented with the statement of the leader of this side of the House that he presents this as a precedent, and this precedent will control the action of the Chair in future reference of bills, so that it becomes more material and important than ordinarily it would be.

Mr. DALZELL. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Iowa yield?

Mr. LACEY. I yield.

Mr. DALZELL. I would like to ask the gentleman what, in his judgment, is the significance of referring so much of the President's message as relates to insurance to any particular committee? What does it carry to the committee?

Mr. LACEY. It carries the consideration of the message, that is all. It does not carry the whole subject under the rules. That would not disturb the functions of the Committee on Rules, which I think still would have power upon the question, notwithstanding the fact the Committee of the Whole should have seen fit to refer this particular subject in the manner in which it is presented by the Committee on Ways and Means. But it seems to me there ought to be as many different methods devised as possible, so that this question could be presented to different committees in different ways in all of its lights, and we should not prejudge that.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I will ask unanimous consent that his time be extended five minutes.

Mr. PAYNE. I will yield the gentleman five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York yields five minutes of time to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. DALZELL. No committee of this House can originate any legislation. It must be founded upon a bill or resolution introduced in the House here or upon a message from the Executive Departments through the House, as, for instance, to the Committee on Appropriations. Now, is not the purpose of sending so much of the President's message as relates to taxation to the Committee on Ways and Means to give that committee jurisdiction to report to this House a bill without the introduction of any bill in the House? Is not that so?

Mr. LACEY. Possibly it may be. Then all the greater reason why we should not make a mistake now and give exclusive jurisdiction to the Ways and Means Committee of this subject.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. This does not give it. Does the gentleman claim that it does?

Mr. LACEY. I understand the gentleman claims it does.

Mr. DALZELL. If what the gentleman conceded is true, this resolution, or so much as relates to this subject, does give jurisdiction to the committee to legislate on the subject.

Mr. LACEY. If the Committee on Interstate Commerce should conclude that the only remedy in this matter is by taxation, I presume they would scarcely report a bill upon that question for fear of trespassing upon the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee. That is a question we will worry about when we get to it; but here is the President's message that only points out one way through commerce, and that would go to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, not the Committee on Ways and Means. There is not a single suggestion anywhere in the message that there is any thought in the mind of the Executive that the question can be handled through the taxing power. Possibly it could be legislated upon in that way, but the message does not consider anything of that kind or suggest anything of the kind to the Congress, and therefore it seems to me clear we ought not to adopt this amendment, but to leave revenue measures to go to the Committee on Ways and Means, and matters connected with commerce in the message go to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The CHAIRMAN. Before the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois, does the gentleman from Iowa desire to reserve the balance of his time?

Mr. HEPBURN. I desire to reserve the balance of my time, and if I can be recognized I would desire to yield five minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. STEVENS].

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. This subject is an important one, but the proposition to be immediately settled is not novel. It seems to me that similar subjects which should be precedents and a basis for our action here have been settled by the House in previous Congresses with the assent of the Committee on Ways and Means, and especially of its distinguished chairman. Now, he did relate somewhat the history of the oleomargarine legislation, but he omitted especially the significant course of legislation in the Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Congresses, which is of the greatest interest and bearing now. The history of that legislation in those two particular Congresses is that which is appropriate to the present settlement of this proposition. There were several bills introduced in the Fifty-sixth Congress to regulate and control the sale of oleomargarine by means of the taxing power. I have here the index to the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of the first session of the Fifty-sixth Congress. From it there appears to have been six bills introduced in the House, three of which were referred to the Committee on Ways and Means—H. R. 6, introduced by Mr. TAWNEY, of Minnesota; H. R. 43, introduced by Mr. DAVIDSON, of Wisconsin; H. R. 11140, introduced by Mr. UNDERWOOD, of Alabama—two to the Committee on Agriculture—H. R. 3717, introduced by

Mr. Grout, of Vermont, which was the only bill reported from any committee and upon which the House took any definite action, and H. R. 11542, by Mr. WADSWORTH, of New York—and one to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce—H. R. ——, introduced by Mr. Glynn, of New York. The RECORD shows that the Committee on Ways and Means took no action with the bills referred to them. The RECORD also shows that the Committee on Agriculture did take action on one of the bills—H. R. 3717—referred to it, and that the House received the report without objection by anybody as to jurisdiction, but no bill passed. The RECORD of the Fifty-seventh Congress shows that there were eight bills introduced in the first session of the Fifty-seventh Congress. Seven of them were referred to the Committee on Agriculture—H. R. 1, introduced by Mr. MCCLEARY, of Minnesota; H. R. 4, introduced by Mr. TAWNEY, of Minnesota; H. R. 10, introduced by Mr. DAVIDSON, of Wisconsin; H. R. 1948, introduced by Mr. HENRY, of Connecticut; H. R. 4613, introduced by Mr. Cooper, of Texas; H. R. 9206, introduced by Mr. HENRY, of Connecticut; H. R. 10060, introduced by Mr. WADSWORTH, of New York—and one, containing other provisions, was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means—H. R. 6534, by Mr. UNDERWOOD, of Alabama, which by its terms amended the revenue act of October 1, 1890. The especially noticeable fact which the House should know is this: There were two of the bills introduced in the Fifty-sixth Congress providing for the control and regulation of the subject of oleomargarine by means of the taxing power, one introduced by my colleague from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] and one by my friend from Wisconsin [Mr. DAVIDSON], which were referred to the Committee on Ways and Means in the Fifty-sixth Congress. In the Fifty-seventh Congress those almost identical bills, introduced by those same gentlemen, were referred to the Committee on Agriculture by the officials of the House without any objection from the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means or from the Committee on Ways and Means itself. And the bill which was considered in the Fifty-seventh Congress, the bill which actually passed, was a bill introduced by Mr. HENRY, of Connecticut—H. R. 9206—which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture, reported by that Committee to the House and considered on the floor from that reference, and no objection was made by the Committee on Ways and Means or by anyone else to the jurisdiction of the Committee on Agriculture, although the taxing power of the Government was invoked by the measure. So that the history of that legislation which bears the closest analogy to this proposition before this committee shows, although it contained provisions for the taxing powers, which were even the basis for its action and existence, yet the Committee on Ways and Means, although at first it assumed or received jurisdiction of the bills, afterwards yielded the control of them, for the very good reason that the main subject of those bills and the main purpose of that legislation was not the exercise of the taxing power, but the power to regulate and control a certain subject-matter which should be considered by another committee. Now, the House has considered and settled just this sort of matter. The Committee on Ways and Means has already considered them and yielded jurisdiction on a similar subject when the same question was involved, and that seems to me——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota has expired.

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I ask for three minutes more.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] yields three minutes of time to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. STEVENS].

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. May I ask the gentleman from Minnesota a question?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. Certainly.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I have listened with a great deal of interest to the analysis of what was or was not legislation. Now, what I would like to inquire is why these bills that went before the Committee on Agriculture and which are so parallel to this proposition did not go before the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, the committee that now wants to get possession of this subject?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. That is just the point I wanted to make. The House evidently considered—and the Committee on Ways and Means evidently considered, and it should be considered now—that the reference of any bill as to any subject should be to the committee which has general charge of the subject-matter which is the general main purpose of the bill. If the general purpose of the bill, if the general scope of the legislation, if the primary object for its enactment, is to raise revenue, even if it taxes insurance companies and insurance policies, or whatever it may do, and because of that regulate them in certain ways—if the main purpose of that legislation is to raise revenue, then it unquestionably should go to the Committee on Ways and Means. But if the main purpose of the legislation is to benefit the general or any particular agricultural interests of the country—is to vitally affect the agricultural interests of the country—and its incidental purpose is to use the taxing power, this House has decided that bill should go to the committee which had general charge of the agricultural interests of the country.

Now, if the main purpose of this bill be to regulate commerce, is to regulate the business which is incidental to or may be an integral part of commerce, regulate the general object which concerns commerce, it should go to the committee which has general charge of the subject of commerce, even though one of its incidental features concerns the subject of taxation, just exactly as did the question of control of oleomargarine in the Fifty-seventh Congress go to the committee which had charge of the interests which were most and vitally affected.

That has been the rule in the past. It seems to me to be a safe and salutary rule now and in the future, one that ought to be adopted in this House on all sorts of subjects. That kind of a rule is always safe and fair to all interests and all committees; and under that rule this subject should go to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Now let me suggest to the gentleman, if he pleases.

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. Certainly.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. That very reason you have given why this bill should go to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce applies with equal force to the oleomargarine proposition, as to which we could not legislate at all except under the interstate-commerce clause of the Constitution. Now, why did not your Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce at that time assert the jurisdiction that they are now undertaking to assert, when there were just exactly the same reasons for it. You had one bill referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and that committee quietly let that bill die in the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Minnesota has expired. The gentleman from Iowa has eight minutes remaining.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Minnesota may have five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. Unanimous consent is asked that the gentleman from Minnesota have five minutes in his own right. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. It seems to me that the very reason you have given why this bill should go to the Interstate Commerce Committee, and all the reason you have given why it should go to that committee, is that it is interstate commerce; all the reason why you say the oleomargarine proposition went to the Committee on Agriculture was because it related to agriculture. Now, this proposition relates not to interstate commerce, but to insurance. There was a Committee on Agriculture, and the oleomargarine proposition was one that related to agriculture, and it went to the Committee on Agriculture, and the only provision under which that committee could get jurisdiction of legislation of that kind was that it was interstate commerce, and that is exactly the same jurisdiction over that subject that you have over this. Why did you not assert that jurisdiction then?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. I do not think the gentleman from Maine quite apprehends the point I make. It seems to me that the true rule should be that the main purpose of the bill should be primarily considered in its reference. The object which is mainly and primarily sought to be accomplished by the measure should be the principal consideration which should determine the reference of the bill. Now, in the oleomargarine bill the main purpose of the bill was to assist the agricultural interests of the country. It was subsidiary and an incident that it related to the question of interstate commerce. The main purpose of that legislation was to assist the agricultural interests; but for that it would not have been passed or enacted. This House did exactly right in considering the main purpose and object of that legislation in making the reference to the committee which had charge of the principal subject-matter of agriculture. Now, in this case, insurance is incidental at least to commerce; it is part, an integral part, of a business which is concerned with the subject of commerce; if it exists at all it must be as a part of the great business interests of the country and of the great commercial interests of the country, and that subject-matter goes, by our rules, to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. PAYNE. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. Certainly.

Mr. PAYNE. I understood the gentleman to say that the Committee on Ways and Means yielded jurisdiction in the Fifty-sixth or Fifty-seventh Congress in those bills.

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. The RECORD shows that your committee obtained jurisdiction on the introduction of several bills and then did not exercise it, and that no protest was made by your committee.

Mr. PAYNE. Then all that the gentleman means is that the Speaker referred some of the bills to that committee, on which there was no report, and in a subsequent Congress he referred the same bills to another committee, and that it did report.

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. He referred various bills introduced in the Fifty-sixth Congress by several gentlemen to the Committee on Ways and Means. In the Fifty-seventh Congress those identical gentlemen introduced the identical bills, and these bills went to the Committee on Agriculture without any protest by the gentlemen on the Committee on Ways and Means, and that subject was then acted upon by the Committee on Agriculture without protest on the part of the Commitee on Ways and Means.

Mr. PAYNE. The gentleman means to say that the bills were referred to another committee. Now, who was that by; the Speaker?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. In the usual course of business.

Mr. PAYNE. Then how did the committee yield?

Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota. That is yielding.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

The committee informally rose; and Mr. CAPRON having taken the chair as Speaker pro tempore, a message from the Senate, by Mr. PARKINSON, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bill of the following title:

An act (H. R. 299) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River by the Portland and Seattle Railway Company.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The committee resumed its session.

Mr. FULLER. Mr. Chairman, the vote upon this question will be far-reaching, so far as this session of Congress is concerned. The adoption of the amendment proposed by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means would be equivalent to approval of his argument and his judgment, that this House has no power to legislate upon the subject of insurance except so far as concerns the taxing power. That is the proposition, and the question now is as to whether we want it to go out to the country that this House is of the opinion that we have no power over the subject of insurance or the regulating of insurance companies except to tax them under the Constitution. There is nothing in the message of the President referring to taxation of insurance companies. There is no demand on the part of the people from any part of this great country asking that we tax insurance companies, because the people know that that would be simply levying a tax upon themselves, and the policy holders, who have been robbed almost enough, are not asking for an additional tax upon themselves, making the cost of insurance higher. But recent developments, Mr. Chairman, have settled the question that the people of the country are asking Congress to give them some relief from the extortion of the great insurance companies of this country, especially those engaged in life insurance.

The question of life insurance is one that comes home to and interests more people than any other subject with which Congress has, or can have, to do. I am not one of those who believe that Congress is powerless in the face of a great demand such as comes to us now for legislation in regard to insurance companies, and for some kind of control over the great life insurance companies of the country. I do not think that we are limited to the taxing power under the Constitution. I do not believe that anybody is asking for such a tax, but I believe that, under the Constitution, Congress has power to legislate in certain respects, at least as to the transaction of the business of life insurance in the United States.

There can be no doubt, for instance, that we might pass bills regulating these companies in the District of Columbia and in the Territories. There is no doubt that we have the power to establish a bureau of insurance under the Department of Commerce and Labor, or in the Department of the Interior, or under some other Department. There is no doubt that we may give to that bureau of insurance the power of investigation, and of acquiring such information as it may be able to acquire, giving such publicity as it can to the transactions of these great companies. Then, Mr. Chairman, we might provide by a bill that any life insurance company doing business in more than one State could submit to the jurisdiction of the bureau of insurance of the United States Government, could submit to examination by officers sent out from that bureau, and could have the benefit of a showing made under the supervision of the Federal Government if their business was honestly and fairly conducted. What company, under such circumstances, would undertake to go before the people and ask for business unless it was willing to submit to the jurisdiction of the department of insurance organized by the Federal Government? There is no taxation about that. That would not need to go to the Committee on Ways and Means. It would not need to go to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, even. I am not sure what committee it might go to.

Mr. DUNWELL. The Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. FULLER. Perhaps the Committee on the Judiciary would be the appropriate committee under the rules as they now are. But, Mr. Chairman, there is an easy way out of that. I have this morning introduced a resolution providing for an amendment to the rules by adding a standing committee to be known as the "committee on insurance," and if the Committee on Rules will report out that resolution and give us such a committee then we will all know where these bills should go.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Will the gentleman yield?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Maine?

Mr. FULLER. Certainly.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I understand the gentleman to suggest that he thinks perhaps the proper place might be the Judiciary Committee. I know the gentleman is an extremely good lawyer, and whatever views any of us may entertain upon the question as to whether insurance per se is or is not interstate commerce, we all concede, I suppose, that it is certainly a grave question. Now, why, under the circumstances, would it not be wise to refer this provision of the message to the Judiciary Committee?

Mr. FULLER. I think it would.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Then I suppose the gentleman will support us on that proposition, and I will submit an amendment a little bit later that the matter be referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. FULLER. That would not commit us to any policy whatever as to where other bills should go.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FULLER. One moment. In the message the President himself does not seem to understand fully what jurisdiction Congress may have. If that part of the message were referred to the Judiciary Committee, they could tell the House as lawyers how far we might go in legislating upon this question. They might report under that provision of the message, by bill or otherwise, to this House, and that committee being composed of the greatest lawyers in the House we would then perhaps find out what our rights were and just how far we could go.

But, Mr. Chairman, I protest against its going out to the country here to-day that we believe Congress has no power over this great question except the power of taxation. I do not want to accede to that proposition. I do not believe it. I will suggest one other power under the Constitution of the United States by which we may control every great insurance company in the land, and that is under the provisions for the transmission of the United States mails. Congress has full power over the subject, and now when some little fraudulent concern undertakes to use the United States mails, when some of these get-rich-quick concerns or confidence games become known to the Post-Office Department, a fraud order is issued, and the company is forbidden the use of the United States mails for the transaction of its business. I submit, Mr. Chairman, that some of the developments that have become known in the last few months in regard to the transaction of the life-insurance business by some of the great companies of this country would justify the Post-Office Department, under existing law even, in the issuance of fraud orders, to prohibit their having the use of the United States mails.

Under that provision of the Constitution we may legislate as to any kind of a corporation in this broad land that does not do an honest and fair and safe business, and no insurance company and no other great corporation can do business for a single day in the different States without the use of the United States mails. Tell me that there is no power except the taxing power whereby we can control these corporations! There is more than one provision of the Constitution which allows this Congress to legislate upon that subject.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS rose.

Mr. FULLER. I will yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS. The gentleman states that he favors a reference of this to the Committee on the Judiciary?

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, it is impossible to hear the colloquy that is going on.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of the gentleman from New York is well taken.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS. The gentleman states that he favors a reference of this matter to the Committee on the Judiciary?

Mr. FULLER. Of this part of the message.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS. The gentleman favors reference to the Committee on the Judiciary of this part of the message. I would like to ask the gentleman if he would favor the reference to the Committee on the Judiciary of a bill which I introduced the other day, which involves no interstate proposition, but merely gives to Congress the power to impose restrictions on corporations doing business in the District of Columbia and Territories and insular possessions. That bill amends the law creating the Department of Commerce and Labor, the bill creating which Department was reported by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. In that event would the gentleman favor a reference to the Committee on the Judiciary?

Mr. FULLER. I hardly think that bill should go to the Committee on the Judiciary. I should say it would go to the Committee on the District of Columbia or the Committee on the Territories, or possibly to the Interstate Commerce Committee, which had jurisdiction of the subject originally. But that is a matter purely for the Speaker of the House to decide.

Mr. FREDERICK LANDIS. Does the gentleman think under any possible construction it should go to the Committee on Ways and Means?

Mr. FULLER. Not by any possible construction. I do not believe that where the question of revenue is not at stake the bill should go to the Ways and Means Committee. Any bill the purpose of which is to raise revenue, of course, should go to that committee. But I object more particularly to the adoption of this amendment to-day because under the discussion that has taken place it would commit us to the argument made by the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, that we were willing to tell the country that in this great demand for legislation concerning life-insurance companies we believe the House of Representatives and the Congress of the United States to be practically powerless; that our hands are tied, and that no matter how great the fraud, no matter how great the swindle perpetrated by these companies is, we can do nothing unless it is to tax them, which would be putting an additional tax on the policy holders of these companies.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I have no bill on this subject. I have introduced no bill and I do not know that I will; but unless some one else does so, unless some one else introduces a bill that meets my views, I perhaps shall introduce one, because I believe that in this session of Congress, and in the coming sessions of Congress, the question of control of insurance companies will be one of the great questions before the country. It towers up to-day as great as any other question, in my judgment, which we have to meet, and we must meet it. We must meet it fairly under the Constitution, and under the Constitution I believe we have the power. I do not care where this part of the message is referred, except that I would not like to have a precedent established that the Ways and Means Committee, under the taxing power, was the committee, and the only committee, to have jurisdiction of this subject. I do not believe it. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LITTLE. Mr. Chairman, at the beginning of my remarks I ask permission to extend them in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas asks permission to extend remarks which he proposes to make in the RECORD.

Mr. COCKRAN. What is that request, Mr. Chairman?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Arkansas proposes to make some remarks upon the resolution, and requests in advance that he may have the opportunity to extend them in the RECORD. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. LITTLE. Mr. Chairman, the question of the reference of that part of the President's message relating to insurance seems to be in such doubt in the minds of the Members of the House as to the constitutional power of Congress in the premises that I am inclined to think that that part of the President's message referring to the supervision or control of insurance companies should be referred to the Judiciary Committee, with instruction to investigate and report to the House upon the constitutional question involved.

But, Mr. Chairman, there has been much said, and much more will be said, in regard to the regulation of insurance companies by Congressional action, and I will only take this occasion to say that I believe and hope that the great State in which the recent crimes, embezzlements, and frauds have been developed will prove sufficient in its power in the execution of its laws to put stripes upon the thieves who have plundered their policy holders with a recklessness that has startled the country.

These great moneyed corporations have for the last dozen years contributed freely of the money they had gathered from the people to the Republican campaign fund.

The conduct of these companies demonstrates the evil that naturally flows from the participation in political contests by the great corporations of the country, and should warn the country that immediate action ought to be taken to forever prohibit all corporations from contributing or otherwise participating in national elections.

Mr. Chairman, during the last session of Congress, and in the month of January, I had the honor to introduce a resolution in this House, which was passed, directing an investigation into the conduct and course of business of the United States Steel Corporation. That resolution has been in the hands of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for practically twelve months, and yet no information has reached this House or the country as to what has been done respecting it. On the 6th day of this month I submitted an inquiry to that officer and I received a brief reply which I desire to give to the House. The inquiry I thought was in proper place, as I was the author of the resolution, and I desired to know what steps had been taken looking toward its execution. I received the following reply from Mr. Metcalf, the Secretary:

SIR: I have your letter of the 6th instant. House resolution 448, relating to the steel industry, was referred to the Commissioner of Corporations, under whom a thorough investigation is being conducted.

I do not know when he began it; I do not know when he intends to conclude it, and do not know what has been done. For twelve months this criminal, heartless, and defenseless monopoly has fed not only upon the industries of the country, but upon the people themselves, and yet when an investigation has been ordered we find that a thorough one is being conducted now twelve months after the passage of that resolution. Mr. Chairman, if the insurance companies are to undergo such an investigation through the Department of Commerce and Labor I am of the opinion that before it is concluded the officers of the great companies in New York will have ample opportunity to put all the money in their pockets and can continue their contributions to the Republican campaign fund.

Mr. Chairman, I desire to refer to another subject which will engage the early attention of this House, and as I may not have an opportunity of participating in that debate I desire to say in regard to the bill proposing to extend and enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission that I favor giving to the Commission the power, when a rate has been found upon complaint to be unreasonable, to declare what is a reasonable rate and enforce it. I believe also that that rate ought to stand as soon as notice can be had of the judgment of the Commission until reversed by a court of competent jurisdiction. I desire to say, further, that I hope the measure that will be given to the country by this Congress will not only control the general questions, but will give the Commission control over the private car service of the country. In my State and in the South and Southwest the great fruit industry, which is calling to its service the best efforts of the people in that section of the country, is suffering because of the blighting hand of the private car abuses, and if we can secure by legislation relief that will give our people fair treatment in the shipment of their fruits and berries we can feed the people of this Republic on the best fruits and berries the world ever saw or ever knew. But unless the outrageously high and almost prohibitory charges can be reduced to a just basis this great industry must be abandoned.

Mr. Chairman, the question of regulation of freight traffic upon railroads, in my opinion, will affect directly and largely the pampered existence of many of the trusts and monopolies of this country. Sir, it would have been impossible for the Standard Oil Company, the beef trust, the Steel Corporation, and many other monopolies that now infest and curse the country to have reached their mammoth proportions and their great power over the commerce of the country had it not been for securing the benefit of special rates, special rebates, and special privileges from the railroads. If in this country the independent shipper, the small shipper, and all competitors can have and secure the same rates and the same privileges from the railroad companies it will be a strong restraint upon the power of monopoly. Not only that, but another question arises. I refer to the tariff rates. As we all know, or ought to know, it has fed and fostered and built up many of these monopolies, and but for these twin trust breeders, and the great advantages secured through their instrumentality, their present existence would have been impossible. The Steel Corporation, selling by far cheaper in foreign countries than it does to its own home or domestic customers, has grown into great power.

One of the purposes of the resolution which I referred to a moment ago was directing the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to investigate the question of how it was and why it was that this corporation could and did sell the products of its factories more cheaply in foreign countries than it would to its own domestic customers. This corporation, with a capital of one and a half billion dollars, holding within its greedy grasp the control of the major part of the raw material and the finished products of iron and steel in the United States, defies the law, challenges Congress, stifles investigation, and continues to levy its lawless exactions upon every industry and upon every industrious hand in the country—pampered and fed by a tariff that is in many instances prohibitive, favored by railroad discrimination and rebates that give it mastery over its competitors; and yet the party in absolute control of this Congress, and which has been in control of the country for years, does not raise its hand or its voice in protest against this predatory combination. Not only this, Mr. Chairman, but I find that the greed of the day, the commercialism of the day, affects not only the insurance companies and the various business enterprises of the land; but it has gone further, and there has been organized a trust upon the schoolbooks of the country.

The American Book Company, capitalized at $5,000,000, it is authentically stated, controls to-day three-fourths of the schoolbook trade in the United States. It was organized under the laws of New Jersey, and absorbed the schoolbook business of five large competing compaines, and by trade agreements it controls the schoolbook trade of a large number of other concerns. So it may safely be said that it can dictate to a large degree the prices of all the schoolbooks used in the common schools of the country. It and its confederates control seven-eighths of the book sales in the primary and grammar grades of schoolbooks in the country. Not satisfied with the levying of tribute upon the industries of the country and the homes of the people, this monopoly seeks to levy tribute upon the hopes and the promises of the school children of the United States.

Mr. Chairman, I rejoice at the exposure not only of the post-office frauds, but also that the land frauds and the insurance frauds are being called to the attention of the people. We find that there is an alarming condition of commercial graft and official graft sweeping over the country from sea to sea. We need an aroused public conscience that will inspire the bold and honest citizenship of State and nation to demand and compel the enactment in State and nation of effective legislation that will secure to the country official integrity and official honesty as well as business integrity and business honesty when enforced by brave and honest men. [Applause.] While, Mr. Chairman, it is true that there are insurance companies in the State of New York which have fed and fattened and feasted upon the money of the people as it has been paid into their coffers, but this was a voluntary payment, this is but a voluntary assumption of the payment of money, yet we find that the great Steel Corporation under tariff laws collects its thousands where these insurance companies steal their pennies from the American people, and yet we find a struggle in this Congress as to which of the great committees in this House shall have jurisdiction of the subject of insurance. Important as that subject is, I think if the Ways and Means Committee would take hold of the glaring dishonesties, the glaring outrages of the present tariff system that protect this mammoth monopoly it will serve the country and do its duty.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I believe there ought to be something done to correct the evils of life insurance. But this can only be done by the sovereign States. Mr. Chairman, you may trace the history of these institutions from their beginning until this time and you will find behind them, championing them and misleading and putting to sleep the public, a subsidized press. Mr. Chairman, one thing needed in this country is not only publicity with reference to the dealings of these great corporations and companies, but there is need of a bold, aggressive, and honest press to expose their abuses and frauds. Mr. Chairman, a few such newspapers exist in this country, but you may go not only to the national press, you may go to your own States and find that the infamous transactions of your State governments, as well as the trusts and insurance companies, are often championed by the State press, which is owned or subsidized by those who would feast upon the spoils of crimes against the people. Why was it that you heard the shouts of victory the other day as it rolled from the throats of the reform forces in the city of Philadelphia? Why was it you heard the shouts of Democratic victory in the great State of Ohio? They tell me in one instance it was a protest against the liquor traffic. They tell me in another it was a protest against bossism. I tell you, Mr. Chairman, it was a protest of the honest people that means more than that. They realize and they know that in these days of prosperity and of our greatness that we are sowing the seeds that promise the overthrow of our institutions unless we destroy them.

You may run the threads of history from the earliest periods of free government down to this time and you will find that the evils that overthrew the great governments of the world have developed and grown up in the hours of greatest power and wealth in those nations. [Applause.] And to-day in this nation, boasting of our wealth and power, if we will but draw back the curtain, we will see the bloodhounds of corruption and greed gnawing at the very vitals of free government. As long as we can secure to the people honest public service by honest men there will still be security of our rights and our institutions, but when the public domain is swept away from the people by thieves, when the Post-Office Department is plundered, and when the insurance companies insuring the lives of the people openly, defiantly, and boldly plunder their policy holders and rob the widows and orphans whose funds they hold, it is time to remedy it by an enforcement of the criminal laws. I say to you that in the State of New York by her own power she has exposed these frauds, and I believe and hope that that great State will bring the officers of these insurance companies to justice and give to the country legislation correcting and controlling these evils that will secure the rights of the policy holders. I shall not enter upon a discussion of the power of Congress to control these insurance companies. I don't think that power exists, but I want to say we should control those corporations over which we have unquestioned jurisdiction. I can see, I think, in the immediate future a general movement to put all corporations under the power and under the control of the General Government, and when we do we will wipe away the jurisdiction and power of the States. Then the corporations will be bulwarked behind a Cabinet officer's department, and resolutions of inquiry into their conduct and into their crimes will not only sleep a year, but sleep the sleep that knows no awakening. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, the great question that confronts the country is how to restrain the greed and power of the great moneyed corporations of the country.

Take the three great insurance companies in New York, controlling a capital of $1,225,000,000—a sum sufficient to menace the State and challenge the virtue and power of local self-government in dealing with their abuses. If the State of New York will not correct the abuses of these companies, the other States can preclude them from doing business therein until such abuses have been corrected and honest administration of their affairs secured.

These great companies have been fed and enriched by the people of the South since their organization; and now grown to such power that they revel in the luxuriance of their crimes and embezzlements and lordly salaries taken and withdrawn from the funds belonging to the policy holders and their beneficiaries. Let the several States take the matter in hand and compel honest business methods and the preservation of the funds of said companies for the benefit of the beneficiaries or compel them to get out of the States in which they are carrying on their business under the present disreputable methods.

The Standard Oil trust, the steel trust, the trust on farming implements and machinery, and, in fact, all of the trusts that prey upon agriculture are located in the North and East. These institutions have managed for years and years to gather the earnings of our people into their coffers. They have held our people in their grasp with a power as inexorable as it was pitiless. Every year the rich earnings of our people take its journey East to add to the colossal holdings of these companies. This condition must be overthrown. This mortgage of greed must be canceled before the progress of the great and rich Southland can be established upon a firm and enduring basis.

It is time that the farmers and laboring people be recognized in national legislation. For forty years legislation has been enacted in the interest of the manufacturers and the money lenders—the shylocks, the usurers, and the protected plutocrats have prospered under the benefits of special legislation until their wealth and power is a menace to popular government, an embargo upon the healthful progress of the country, and an invasion of every just principle of trade and commerce. The time has come for a change. It must come and it will come. The farmers, the fruit growers, the laborers, the people are demanding that the yoke of greed and cunning be taken off their necks, and that the great Government which they have established, defended, and maintained shall, if it does nothing else, take the felonious hands of the beneficiaries of special legislation out of their pockets.

The railroads of the country have received from the Government enough donations of the public land to make five States as big as Pennsylvania—enough upon which to build an empire. And now the people are only demanding legislation that will secure to them fair and reasonable rates in the shipment of their products to the markets. Equal rates; fair treatment. The fruit growers demand that they shall no longer be the victims of the extortions of the private-car companies, not only in the freight charges, but in the iceing and other incidental charges. These interests are not asking for special privileges, only for simple justice—in the language of the President, a "square deal." Shall they have it full and complete or shall they be turned away empty-handed or with a makeshift—the railroad employees, the men who work, the men who move the commerce of the world, the men who stake their lives in a most dangerous occupation, men not only as faithful to their employers, but as faithful to the public as any band of patriots who ever marched under freedom's banner? [Applause.]

They only ask for legislation that will reduce their risks to the minimum, and that will give them protection against the barbarous fellow-servant doctrine.

I have had a fellow-servant bill pending in this Congress for six years, giving to the railroad boys and their families a right of action against the company when killed or injured by the negligence of the company or of its employees. I have also introduced and had pending in Congress for six years an eight-hour-day bill, which applies to all Government work, and also an anti-injunction bill to prevent the Federal courts from arresting and imprisoning laboring men without trial by jury.

These measures, only involving matters of plain, simple justice, have up to this time been denied them, and I see no promise of their passage in the near future. How much longer shall these brave, industrious, faithful men be denied these plain and simple rights? They have waited, waited and endured, until the time has come when their plain rights should be respected by the law-making power in this country.

The long denial of these just measures by Congress is arousing the vigilance and determination of the people. The laboring men are organized and organizing all over the country. The farmers of the South are aroused as they never were before, and the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union and the Society of Equity of America are purely farmers' organizations, not for political purposes, but for the purpose of demanding and securing fair prices for the products of their sweat and toil. They are numbered not by thousands, but by hundreds of thousands, and they are moved to this action by as lofty and sacred a patriotism as ever inspired our fathers in their struggle for liberty and free government. They are determined that they, themselves, shall enjoy the profits of their own labor. They are determined that the stock gamblers shall cease to manipulate the prices of their cotton, corn, and wheat. They are tired of being pack horses for every trust and corporate interest that enjoys the privileges of special legislation. They are tired of having their profits eaten up by extortionate freight charges.

They are bringing the battle on between the industrious, honest people and the selfish and predatory classes. I rejoice to see them moving. They have my sympathy and my help and should have the help and encouragement of all patriotic people everywhere.

Our farmers and laboring people have the power to save the Government from an impending oligarchy of wealth. They can at the ballot box, with the weapons of freedom and peace, compel legislation that will put the commercial pirates and trust freebooters out of business or in the penitentiary. The cotton growers and farmers of the South have borne their burdens with courage and hope. Looking back over the blackened monuments of social, political, and material ruin which rose up all over their fair land; struggling and working, paying tribute to the protected factories of the East, who but they would not have lost hope and courage and given up the battle? Not so with them. They struggled on until now, and to-day, looking forward, they see the dawn that will dispel the darkness of the long night of industrial and commercial injustice and wrong which has enveloped them in its despairing gloom for so long.

No one can rejoice more than I do at the approaching sunrise, when the farmers and laboring people of this country will enjoy fair play and justice at the hands of the lawmakers of this country. I am linked to them by the ties of a common lineage, by the memories of their struggles in the past. Their fate shall be my fate. No voice or power shall lure me from my duty and devotion to them. The honor of no position shall tempt me to betray or abandon them. In representing them upon this floor I need only plead for justice, for right, for they are the fairest, the best, and bravest people in the world, giving justice to others and demanding justice for themselves. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands that the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. LITTLE] did not reserve the balance of his time.

Mr. LITTLE. No, sir.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I desire to discuss this question of insurance a few moments for the purpose of helping so far as I can the leaders on the other side to find exactly where, in right and justice to the people and this House, the question of insurance should be referred. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] I believe in last Congress reported a bill establishing a bureau of corporations and labor, and included in that law an insurance provision; and he now wants this insurance proposition referred to his committee. The gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] desires that the mater be referred to the Ways and Means Committee, for the purpose, I presume, of regulating insurance by taxation, an unheard-of proposition as to insurance, in view of the fact that we have a very continuous and increasing deficit in the Treasury.

He is now looking out for something to tax. He would tax, Mr. Chairman, the insurance policies that belong to the poor widows and orphans of the United States, and yet for years and years he and his great party have stood here and defeated Democratic efforts to place an income-tax amendment in our Constitution, whereby we could make the thieves that have been robbing the widows and orphans of this country help to contribute toward running the Government. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

Again, Mr. Chairman, when the question of Federal regulation of insurance came before the last Congress, I stood in this House opposing it, and cited and read in this House the authorities of the Supreme Court of the United States that as far back as 1868 down to 1894 declared that "the insurance business is not commerce." Here is my speech, reported in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of January 15, 1903, at page 868, and in the course of that speech, Mr. Chairman, I read not only from the Paul v. Virginia case, to which the gentleman alluded and quoted from this morning, but I quoted from the Hooper case and cited the Philadelphia and Waters Pierce oil cases. I quoted the identical language from the Virginia case which the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] quoted this morning.

I approached to-day the distinguished gentleman, so learned in economics, in tariff making, in the laws of his country, and adjudications of the Supreme Court, and asked the gentleman to yield, which he did, and I asked him this question:

How can the committee have jurisdiction over insurance when the Supreme Court has time and again said that insurance is not commerce?

He replied:

Mr. PAYNE. If the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GAINES] will allow me to make my speech, then he can make his.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. The gentleman's speech could be improved upon if he puts that proposition into it.

Mr. PAYNE. Possibly some of these things have occurred to the rest of the Members as well as to my astute and learned friend from Tennessee.

Now here comes the remarkable statement of the distinguished gentleman:

The gentleman from Tennessee saw, I suppose, that I was coming directly to this subject.

Mr. Chairman, here is the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, in which I quote the identical language which the gentleman from New York [Mr. PAYNE] quoted, and from the cases to which he referred, in my speech of January 15, 1903. Evidently the gentleman was inspired to think of the proposition of law as I approached him, rather than myself being inspired to think of it when I approached and looked at him.

Mr. Chairman, in reference to the question, where this bill should be referred, it is a serious matter. As to what Congress should do, and what Congress can do, is more serious.

Here are the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, that not only say that "the business of insurance is not commerce," but that it is not "interstate" commerce, even when insurance is taken out between parties of different States, and a contract is made that the laws of one State—New York, for example—shall control the insured living in another State—Missouri.

I will read, now, for the edification of my distinguished friend from New York [Mr. PAYNE], a part of the officially reported statement of a case reported in 178 United States Reports, page 392, New York Life Insurance Company v. Cravens, which statement contains this so-called "interstate insurance contract," as follows:

That the contract contained in such policy and in this application shall be construed according to the laws of the State of New York, the place of said contract being agreed to be the home of the said company in the city of New York.

The agent of the company signed the application, sent it to the company in New York, whereupon the policy was issued and returned to the insured in Missouri.

In this suit they raised several questions. I will now read the main defense of the insurance company in a suit on this policy, from page 394 of this case, decided in 1900, as follows:

It is urged as error against the judgment of the supreme court of the State that it makes the law of Missouri and not the law of New York the law of the contract, as provided in the application for the policy, thereby denying to the plaintiff in error a contractual liberty without due process of law, in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

Now, then, listen, gentlemen:

And that the statute of Missouri is an attempted regulation of interstate commerce.

What does the whole court at the conclusion of the opinion say upon this subject? On page 401, United States Reports, 178, I will read from this same Craven's case, Mr. Justice McKenna speaking for the court:

Is the statute an attempted regulation of commerce between the States? In other words, is mutual life insurance commerce between the States?

That the business of fire insurance is not interstate commerce is decided in Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall., 168; Liverpool Insurance Company v. Massachusetts, 10 Wall., 566; Philadelphia Fire Association v. New York, 119 U. S., 110. That the business of marine insurance is not is decided in Hooper v. California, 155 U. S., 648. In the latter case it is said that the contention that it is "involves an erroneous conception of what constitutes interstate commerce."

We omit the reasoning by which that is demonstrated and will only repeat the business of insurance is not commerce. The contract of insurance is not an instrumentality of commerce. The making of such a contract is a mere incident of commercial intercourse, and in this respect there is no difference whatever between insurance against fire and insurance against the "perils of the sea." And, we add, or against the uncertainty of man's mortality. Judgment affirmed.

Thus giving judgment for the deceased of $8,000 or $10,000, the judgment of the supreme court of Missouri being affirmed.

So, gentlemen, we have now the naked question decided that "insurance," coupled with interstate contracts of that sort, though set out in the body of the insurance policy, the contract being signed in part in Missouri and partly in New York, is not "interstate" commerce.

Now, then, we have two distinct propositions settled. First, that "the business of insurance is not commerce," local or State commerce; second, we have it distinctly decided by this great court—in a Republican court, I may add, by a Republican judge, speaking for his Republican associates and three Democrats on that great bench—"the business of insurance is not interstate commerce," that there is no such thing as interstate insurance, and upholding the opinion of the supreme court of the great State of Missouri, from which my distinguished friend [Mr. CLARK] hails.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I would like to ask the gentleman if that was a unanimous opinion?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Yes, sir. The opinion concludes, "judgment affirmed," page 401.

Now, then, I will take up the Hooper case. That suit was about marine insurance and therefore interstate. The opinion was written by Mr. Justice White. In the Hooper case there was a dissenting opinion, but not on the question, "Is insurance interstate commerce?"

Now, then, on this point. It is a question of law. That is the point I am arguing; and being a question of law, this question should not be sent to the Committee on Ways and Means nor the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, but should be sent to the great law committee of this House—the Judiciary Committee. The men who are put on that committee are not put there because they know how to make a tariff or are learned in economics, but because they are distinguished and able, and supposed to be of the ablest lawyers in the House, and are trained in questions of law. When that committee holds and reports to the House, in the face of these decisions, that insurance is commerce; that there is such a thing as "interstate" insurance; that Congress may regulate under the commerce clause, then let the question of insurance go to that committee, if then desirable.

I am not speaking of the "wild-cat" insurance companies. I am the pioneer in trying to choke off those thieves and the railroad combinations, the industrial combinations, insurance combinations, and others, by excluding them from the mails. I introduced a bill several years ago and have one on my desk. I also introduced one excluding wild-cat insurance companies from the mails, but a Republican House buried it; and yet we hear something from the Republican side to-day about regulating insurance by excluding them from the mails, as though that was something new. Why, there is nothing new politically that is good that has not emanated from this side of the House at one time or another. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

The commerce law of 1887, which we have, emanated from a distinguished son of Tennessee, Judge Reagan, of Texas, who so long adorned a place in this House, and the people of the great State of Texas elevated him to the United States Senate, where he blazed the way for the making of our antitrust law of 1890, and he was the first man to introduce a bill in that body basing the law upon the commerce clause of the Constitution, where it rests to-day, and was the author of the criminal section of that act.

Now, gentlemen, if this great Judiciary Committee of the House comes back here and reports that insurance is commerce and that there is "interstate" commerce insurance, why then the distinguished gentleman, in whose ability I have great confidence and whose learning in affairs concerning that committee commands my respect, the chairman of the committee, Mr. HEPBURN, can then take charge of this question. You might send it to the Committee on Ways and Means; but the first question I make is, you must first find your power to act.

My distinguished friend from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] says the Supreme Court wabbles on questions, that the Supreme Court criticises its own decisions and reverses itself sometimes, and he quoted Abraham Lincoln as saying that he would reverse a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. My God! that decision has never been reversed, and it never will be reversed by the Supreme Court of the United States. The effect of it was reversed as the result of four years of bloody war. That was the only way it was reversed. As far as I am concerned, I do not want to talk about slavery. I am glad we have no more black slaves, and I am opposed to the making of any more white slaves, either men or women, widows or orphans, and hence I speak here to-day.

Now, suppose that the committee report that this insurance is commerce. It looks to me as though it is saying, practically, indirectly, to the Supreme Court of the United States, "Won't you please reverse yourselves? We have so many thieves in this country that they are about to run over us, and the Congress of the United States is the only power that is capable of legislating on this subject. Therefore, will you please reverse yourselves just as a matter of accommodation? You would favor us very much if you would." Now, I say, with all due respect to the gentleman who proposed to reach this question by Federal legislation based on the commerce clause, that is the way it looks to me. I have great respect for that court, and I have absolute respect for every member on the other side of the House and on this, but when the Supreme Court of the United States since 1868 has held, and the State courts from time immemorial have passed on this question and have held, that "the business of insurance is not commerce," how can we come along here and say it is commerce? Can we say black is white and make it so? How can we say that when we know it is not so? That would be a legislative falsehood. I submit it is nothing in the world but an indirect request to the Supreme Court to reverse its own holdings on this question.

But what is the effect of it? Suppose they pass a law and the Supreme Court should not reverse itself, but refuses absolutely to aid or abet, directly or indirectly, the proposition to regulate insurance by the commerce clause. We will then be in a worse fix than ever before. These corporations will say, "It stands confessed that the States can not grapple with this question; the Congress of the United States is bigger than the States, and the Supreme Court of the United States has decided, as Congress might have known at first, that it will not swallow its own decisions which it has been delivering for the last thirty-seven years." Then they would say, "We are unbridled. The States can not control us, the Federal Congress can not control us, and now we have everybody at our mercy," and instead of obeying the divine injunction, "Feed my lambs," their motto will be "Skin the lambs," whether they are widows or orphans.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Shear them.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. They do worse than that.

Now, Mr. Chairman, where are the reforms coming from in this country now? I ask the distinguished gentleman who has charge of this matter, Where are the reforms coming from? Are they coming from Congressional investigations or are they coming from investigations by State legislatures and local authorities? When has Pennsylvania ever undertaken to have a "laundry day?" We had one yesterday. The Democrats have laundry days, but the Republicans never do.

I know Mayor Weaver, and I am glad that the good people of the city of Philadelphia have awakened from their anæsthetic condition that immense wealth has caused. I talked with one of the splendid citizens of the glorious old historic city of Philadelphia and asked him why it was there was so much moral decay there. I will get to other cities in a moment, and if I omit any, just tell me. He replied, "Mr. GAINES, the thieves and the rascals have got charge of all the machinery, and we all have secure our corner lots and our money is locked up in vaults, and as long as they will not steal our vaults and our corner lots we are willing to let them have the balance, and we just go to sleep and wake up and live along in that way."

But, gentlemen, the people of Philadelphia awoke. I do not know exactly who started it. I hope, as a matter of party pride, that some good Republican started it. They awoke and turned the wretches out. Conditions were so decayed there that I am sorry as a lawyer to say that Mayor Weaver, that gallant little man, could not hire a lawyer in Philadelphia who had sense enough to conduct the investigation and had to cross over to the city of New York to get a lawyer to help him to turn those rascals out. The best lawyers, for a living, permitted themselves to be employed by unrighteous clients, professional grafters, who wrought this moral decay in that city. Honest lawyers, if you please, permitted themselves to be retained against pure government, pure governmental policies, to such an extent the mayor had to leave Philadelphia to get proper legal assistance. Shame upon the lawyers of Philadelphia, or any other place under the broad canopy of heaven, that would permit themselves, for the love of money, to sell their birthright, to hire out to defend the professional robbers of those people, or to fight gainst their own ideas of a righteous governmental policy.

But, gentlemen, the people of Philadelphia have cleaned out Philadelphia.

How did the State of Missouri stop her frauds and moral decay? Did they come and ask the Congress to do it? Why, not by a great long shot. It started from a little humble fellow, and he was born in the State of Tennessee [laughter]—little Joe Folk. And I want you to distinctly understand, gentlemen, you may not know it, but all the great men have not left Tennessee yet. [Laughter.] I will tell you, gentlemen, that I can pick out 200 lawyers in the city of Nasvhille that can put the thieves and robbers and plunderers of Philadelphia or any other city of this country in the penitentiary, if they will give them the sinews of war.

A MEMBER. And a jury. [Laughter.]

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Well, it may be that you couldn't easily get a jury, but I would keep on trying until I did do it.

Now, Mr. Chairman, let me get back to the proposition on which I was dwelling. Reforms begin down among the plain people, and not a thousand miles away from the evils in issue. That is where they start. You know we have been trying to clean out some of the Bureaus in this Government for years. Have we done it? We have cleaned them out all around Washington and left her a magnificent oasis. [Laughter.] Gentlemen, the Democrats will have the biggest "laundry" when we get in in a year or two from now that you ever heard about. And I tell you, gentlemen, we will show you then where the rascals are, and we will use lye soap. Oh, I have come in contact with some of them, and I have been after them with a pitchfork. I am not done with them. [Laughter.]

But, Mr. Chairman, if Congress can, let us outlaw insurance thieves, but do so within the limits of the Constitution, for God's sake and for the sake of the country let us at least take care of its dismembered parts. If Congress can help out, legally, the States who are trying to help themselves in this great struggle, let us not turn our backs upon the effort. Surely the people of this country are asking for it.

But, Mr. Chairman, what distresses me is the fact that because the President, a straightforward, honest, courageous man, has found a lot of frauds and rascals in the Departments and turned them out and is trying to punish the guilty, and because he is trying to enforce the law the people are reflecting upon themselves and upon us by saying that "it seems as if the President is the only honest man in office in the country." To tell the truth, they are sending to him and asking his advice, asking him to help clean out the Augean stables, as if he was the only officer in the whole country who is honest. Shame upon the morals of the people in the States! The law can make no man an honest man. It may prevent him from being a desperado, but God Almighty makes the honest man. [Applause.] The law helps the honest man to put the dishonest one where he ought to go. It is a sad commentary that the people are looking at this one man in the White House to lead them out of this horrible and terrible abyss of corruption, fraud, and oppression of all sorts done by Democrats and Republicans.

The President has his faults. I have told him of some of them to his face and on the floor of this House. [Laughter.] I have extolled his virtues on the floor of this House and on a hundred "stumps" this summer, on the ground, and in the train, and on horseback. [Laughter.] I hope and believe he will stand firm. I have done what I could to put that infernal outlaw—the head of Duke's Tobacco Company—in the penitentiary, where I believe he belongs and will at a near day go there. So long as the great God gives me a voice, so long as he gives me the little gray matter that is left in my head, the little spark of love I have for my mother and my country, I shall never let up on that vampire until I see him behind the bars. He has been robbing my people under the forms of law. He has been at the head of an international and Federal trust, and the tobacco farmers have been stirred up in Tennessee and Kentucky, in decency and in order, and within the limits of the law, thirty thousand strong, blacks and whites, old and young, rich and poor, have banded together to defend their homes and firesides, waiting until the Attorney-General can give them relief, by injunction, and indictments against this vampire.

Now, as I say, the people were stirred up, and when they were what did they do?

They said, "You have got to give us a living price for our tobacco; it cost us 6 cents to raise it, and you have been paying us 'a cent, a cussing, and nothing,'" as my friend John B. Allen says—in fact, paid them last year an average of 4 cents. And what did they have to do when they got our tobacco this year? They paid us about 8.89 cents for every pound they bought. That was not the result of my efforts nor the efforts of any other one man. Not at all. There was John B. Allen, of Clarksville, Tenn.; there was STANLEY, of Kentucky, and OLLIE JAMES, of Kentucky; Joel B. Fort, of Springfield, Tenn., and Felix G. Ewing, of the farmers' hearts, a plain, little, red-headed farmer down at Glenraven, Tenn., the chairman of the executive committee, and his five or six associates.

It was the stirring up of people's sensibilities to hate a law-breaker, that really did the work. It was arousing the people and telling them what their rights are. It was going home and stirring up the old-fashioned, genuine Americanism, which has brought this righteous result about.

Gentlemen, before we get rid of the insurance frauds in New York or in Philadelphia or in Missouri or in Ohio, or dear old Tennessee—where, so far as I know, there are none—we must stir the people up at home and make them enforce the laws at home, just as Mayor Weaver is enforcing the laws in the great city of Philadelphia, and Joe Folk enforced them in the State of Missouri; as they are fixing to do in Ohio.

Now, suppose you pass your insurance law based on this commerce clause, where are you going to get your juries to convict, if the people are too rotten at home to punish under their home laws? As somebody said here a while ago, where will you get honest juries to convict under the Federal law? The President has said a wise thing, which some of the gentlemen on the other side have unwisely overlooked, in his message on this subject. He says:

> Of course the only complete remedy for this condition must be found in an aroused public conscience, a higher sense of ethical conduct in the community at large, and especially among business men and in the great profession of the law—

I am glad to find that—"in the great profession of the law"—that is something he said I had overlooked. He continues:

> And in the great profession of the law, and in the growth of the spirit which condemns all dishonesty, whether in rich man or in poor man, in the shape of bribery or of blackmail.

The President says you may pass the law, and he does not say we can base it on the commerce clause either, and make it constitutional. He puts it, "if," He says the only way to exterminate fraud and blackmail and stealth is to stir up the morals of the people; stir up the people at home, in the States. Now, I have said a great deal more on this subject than I intended. I did not intend to speak when I came here to-day.

I just recall a point which I will discuss and then conclude.

Mr. Justice White, in the Hooper case, in 1894, and Mr. Justice McKenna, in 1900, in the Missouri case that I cited a while ago, reported in 178 United States, at page—let me get the page correctly, because I want my distinguished friend from New York [Mr. PAYNE] to read down to date; I do not want him to depend on himself exclusively in getting down to the kernel of the proposition which he did not discuss this morning—at page 389, New York Life Insurance Company v. Craven. Here Mr. Justice McKenna reviews the whole proposition, to wit, that a State can create and limit a corporation; that it can create and limit the rights of its own corporation, and that it can admit to or exclude from its borders a foreign corporation. Let us read what Mr. Justice White says:

The principle that the right of a foreign corporation to engage in business within a State other than that of its creation depends solely upon the will of such other State has been long settled, and many phases of its application have been illustrated by the decisions of this court. (Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet., 519; Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French, 18 How., 404; Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall., 594; Provident Institution v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall., 611; Hamilton Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall., 632; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall., 168; Ducat v. Chicago, 10 Wall., 410; State Tax on Railway Gross Receipts, 15 Wall., 284; Railroad Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall., 5; Delaware Railroad Tax Case, 18 Wall., 206; State Railroad Tax Cases, 92 U. S., 575; Philadelphia and Southern Steamship Co. v. Pennsylvania, 122 U. S., 326; California v. Central Pacific Railroad Co., 127 U. S., 1; Home Insurance Co. v. New York, 134 U. S., 594; Maine v. Grand Trunk Railway, 142 U. S., 217; Ashley v. Ryan, 153 U. S., 436, 445.)

Then the opinion goes on to state that if the corporation is engaged in interstate commerce the State can not stop it from operating in that State, and it is so held in the Crutcher case and in the Pierce Waters oil case.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Tennessee yield to the gentleman from Mississippi?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Certainly.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I desire to interrupt the gentleman to make a suggestion in an interrogative way. Does he not think it healthy, does he not think it a good thing, that insurance is not interstate commerce?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I do.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Because if it were interstate commerce they could protect themselves under the shield of the Constitution and prevent the people of the States escaping this evil.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. That is true. The distinguished gentleman has interrupted me on a matter I was coming to—at least I thought I was coming to—with the light that he always sheds on every question, which even Republicans must acknowledge. Well, now, the next proposition that Judge White discussed and Judge McKenna discussed is the vital one here, gentlemen. It seems to me to be the crux of the legal proposition as decided by Mr. Justice Field in the Pensacola Telegraph case, that when the Government creates a corporation to engage and it engages in interstate business the State can not interfere with it. Justice White in the Hooper case also said:

While there are exceptions to this rule, they embrace only cases where a corporation created by one State rests its right to enter another and engage in business therein upon the Federal nature of its business, as, for instance, where it has derived its being from an act of Congress, and has become a lawful agency for the performance of governmental or quasigovernmental functions or where it is necessarily an instrumentality of interstate commerce, or its business constitutes such commerce, and is therefore solely within the paramount authority of Congress. In these cases the exceptional business is protected against interference by State authority. The reasons upon which the exceptions to the general rule are based have been often explained. (Western Union Tel. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. R., 460; Gloucester v. Penn., 114 U. S. R., 122, U. S., 196, 205; 1 Interstate Com. Rep., 308; McCall v. California, 104, 110; 3 Interstate Com. Rep., 178; Pickard v. Pullman Southern Car Co., 117 U. S., 34; Robbins v. Shelby Co., 120 U. S., 489; 1 Interstate Com. Rep., 45; Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S., 640; 2 Interstate Com. Rep., 134; Asher v. Texas, 128 U. S., 129.)

In the case first cited the precedents were fully reviewed and the governing reasons of the law upon this subject were clearly elucidated.

The contention here is that, inasmuch as the contract was one for marine insurance, it was a matter of interstate commerce, and as such beyond the reach of State authority and included among the exceptions to the general rule. This proposition involves an erroneous conception of what constitutes interstate commerce. That the business of insurance does not generally appertain to such commerce has been settled since the case of Paul v. Virginia, supra. (See also Philadelphia Fire Asso. v. New York, 119 U. S., 110 (30:342), and authorities there cited.)

Whilst it is true that in Paul v. Virginia and in most of the cases in which it has been followed the particular contract under consideration was for insurance against fire, the principle upon which these cases were decided involved the question of whether a contract of insurance of any kind constituted interstate commerce. The court in reaching its conclusion upon this question was not concerned with any matter of distinction between marine and fire insurance, but proceeded upon a broad analysis of the nature of interstate commerce and of the relation which insurance contracts generally (654) bear thereto. Thus in Paul v. Virginia, the court, speaking through Mr. Justice Field, said:

"Issuing a policy of insurance is not a transaction of commerce. The policies are simply contracts of indemnity against loss by fire, entered into between the corporations and the assured, for a consideration paid by the latter. These contracts are not articles of commerce in any proper meaning of the word. They are not subjects of trade and barter, offered in the market as something having an existence and value independent of the parties to them. They are not commodities to be shipped or forwarded from one State to another and then put up for sale. They are like other personal contracts between parties which are completed by their signature and the transfer of the consideration. Such contracts are not interstate transactions, though the parties may be domiciled in different States. The policies do not take effect—are not executed contracts—until delivered by the agent in Virginia. They are, then, local transactions, and are governed by the local law. They do not constitute a part of the commerce between the States any more than a contract for the purchase and sale of goods in Virginia by a citizen of New York whilst in Virginia would constitute a portion of such commerce."

This language was reiterated in the case of Philadelphia Fire Association v. New York, supra. In Crutcher v. Kentucky, supra, the court, in applying the exception to the general rule, held that the State of Kentucky was without power to prevent a corporation engaged in interstate commerce from entering that State and carrying on its business therein, and also pointed out the distinction between the making of contracts of insurance and interstate commerce, or the necessary instrumentalities thereof, as follows:

"The case is entirely different from that of foreign corporations seeking to do a business which does not belong to the regulating power of Congress. The insurance business, for example, can not be carried on in a State by a foreign corporation without complying with all the conditions imposed by the legislation of that State. So with regard to manufacturing corporations, and all other corporations whose business is of a local and domestic nature, which would include express companies whose business is confined to points and places wholly within the State. The cases to this effect are numerous."

It is evident, then, as we have said above, that the attempt to so distinguish between policies of marine insurance and policies of fire insurance as to reach the deduction that there is a constitutional difference between the business of a corporation issuing policies of one kind and that of a corporation dealing in policies of the other kind, which affects the question of a State's authority to control the business of either, is based upon a fundamental misconception of the nature of the constitutional provision relied upon. It ignores the real distinction upon which the general rule and its exceptions are based and which consists in the difference between interstate commerce or an instrumentality thereof on the one side and the mere incidents which may attend the carrying on of such commerce on the other. This distinction has always been carefully observed and is clearly defined by the authorities cited. If the power to regulate interstate commerce applied to all the incidents to which such commerce might give rise and to all contracts which might be made in the course of its transaction that power would embrace the entire sphere of mercantile activity in any way connected with trade between the States, and would exclude State control over many contracts purely domestic in their nature.

The business of insurance is not commerce. The contract of insurance is not an instrumentality of commerce. The making of such a contract is a mere incident of commercial intercourse, and in this respect there is no difference whatever between insurance against fire and insurance against "the perils of the sea."

The State of California has the power to exclude foreign insurance companies altogether from her territory, whether they were formed for the purpose of doing a fire or a marine business. She has the power, if she allows any such companies to enter her confines, to determine the conditions on which the entry shall be made. And as a necessary consequence of her possession of these powers she has the right to enforce any conditions imposed by her laws as preliminary to the transaction of business within her confines by a foreign corporation, whether the business is to be carried on through officers or through ordinary agents of the company; and she has also the further right to prohibit a citizen from contracting, within her jurisdiction, with any foreign company which has not acquired the privilege of engaging in business therein, either in his own behalf or through an agent empowered to that end. The power to exclude embraces the power to regulate—to enact and enforce all legislation in regard to things done within the territory of the State which may be directly or incidentally requisite in order to render the enforcement of the conceded power efficacious to the fullest extent, subject always, of course, to the paramount authority of the Constitution of the United States.

In the argument at bar it was admitted that if the contract is to be considered as made in California, then this case is governed by the foregoing principles, unless the business of a foreign company writing marine insurance is protected by the interstate-commerce clause of the Constitution, which, as we have seen, is not the case.

Now, then, gentlemen, let us reason together. What I have said is without any ill feeling to anybody in this House. If anything is my strong suit it is love for my fellow-man, and the next is hate toward those who are rotten and evil doers. I despise rottenness; I despise oppression; I despise anything that oppresses my neighbor or the people. I may not be very religious, but I love my neighbor very nearly as much as I do myself—not quite as much, I will be fair to say, as myself—although I do not really know how much I do love myself—and I will tell you who my nearest neighbor is. He is a small independent tobacco manufacturer, I buy my cigars of him. Now, gentlemen, if the public morals of my State or the State of Missouri or any other State of this country become so corrupt that you can not enforce your State insurance laws, will you please tell me how you are going to get the Federal officers, who are always incorruptible enough, to enforce them?

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Tennessee yield?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Certainly, I yield.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. I would like to interrupt my friend long enough to suggest to him that the Hon. William D. Vandiver, long time a Member of this House, now insurance commissioner of the State of Missouri, is after these insurance companies hotfooted.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Exactly, as he was after every species of injustice when he was a Member of Congress.

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. And they have appealed to the Federal courts to try to choke him off.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Exactly, and if he gets a good chance before the Federal court he will do the choking, and I hope he will choke off every rotten insurance company in his State. He found out they had been invading the rights of widows and orphans. He found it out by their own admission, and he said to them, "You must come up here and show me clean hands or I will withdraw your licenses," and that "If you fail you shall not operate in this State."

We are no better than our people. Appointees are no better than the appointing power, and vice versa. If we represent a corrupt people, we are sure to be moral cowards. Then if we are so corrupt in the States that they can not enforce the laws, will you please tell me where are we to find angels to enforce the law? After all, we must get back to the very mud sills of society, to the homes and firesides of the country that are removed from the contaminating influences of city life. From there you will find most of our illustrious soldiers have come; from there you will find the most of our best citizens have come, according to population. There you will find people have not become corrupt or debased by hunting for filthy lucre and have not turned their fingers into tongs of graft and greed: their hearts are not ulcerated with commercialism. It is in the sweet little homes of dear old Tennessee, where the gourd vine hangs, that you will find true happiness; it is in the humble home that you will find deep, honest convictiosn, true virtue; there you will find the old man, with his wife, his daughter, his son, talking of "the good old days"—gone forever—deploring public and private depravity of these days, that his son may avoid riches if it costs his good name. [Applause.]

It is from the highways and byways of the country, in a large measure, that cities that become corrupt, receive new examples of strong, rugged manhood. Cities are revived and renewed by the country girl who comes to the town and makes a good mother, by the country boy who comes in and grows to be a great and good citizen. There, gentlemen, is the final hope of our country if present conditions continue.

You may make all the laws you please to correct all the evils you please; but after all, with diminishing exceptions, to enforce them you will have to go back to the place where you find men who hate graft and greed, who have shed their lifeblood, who have shouldered the musket in the past, and if necessary will do so again, to defend our liberty, to maintain the Constitution, to uphold the law, to refine home and protect wife and children. God save the country home, bless the city mansion, and save us all! [Loud applause on the Democratic side.]

Mr. SHERLEY rose.

Mr. PAYNE. I would like to ask the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY] how much time he desires?

Mr. SHERLEY. I would like to be recognized in my own right.

Mr. PAYNE. How much time?

Mr. SHERLEY. Probably ten or fifteen minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY].

Mr. PAYNE. Does the gentleman from Kentucky desire to go on now or to-morrow?

Mr. SHERLEY. It is immaterial.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration House resolution No. 42, and had come to no resolution thereon.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bill of the following title:

S. 410. An act to authorize the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad Company to construct a bridge across Ouachita River and other navigable rivers in the State of Arkansas.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. MCDERMOTT on account of illness.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of appropriation for the Western Branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of deficiency appropriation for transportation of the Army and its supplies—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of appropriation for encampment of militia, construction of cable ship and wharf at Fort Revere, Mass.—to the Committees on Appropriations and Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the commissioner of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company, submitting the annual report for December 1, 1905—to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of War submitting an estimate of appropriation for relief of persons who sustained damage by reason of accident at Rock Island Arsenal—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed, except the document of the Fifty-eighth Congress.

A letter from the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, transmitting the annual report of the Commission—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of survey of Anacostia River Flats, with opinion of the Attorney-General as to the ownership thereof—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed, with maps.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Cape Porpoise Harbor, Maine—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed, with maps.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of Deckers Creek, West Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination of harbor at Caseville, Mich.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Occoquan Creek, Virginia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed, with maps.

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of resurvey of Savannah Harbor, Georgia—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed, with illustrations.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, submitting an additional estimate for the maintenance of the assistant custodianship and janitor service during the present fiscal year—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the several Calendars therein named, as follows:

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin, from the Committee on Insular Affairs, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 5301) setting aside a portion of the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the Philippine Islands for school purposes, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 4); which said bill and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 8093) to extend the provisions of the pension act of June 27, 1890, to each and every company and organization organized for the defense of the Union in Missouri during the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUPPERT: A bill (H. R. 8094) to amend an act entitled "An act to adopt regulations for preventing collisions upon certain harbors, rivers, and inland waters of the United States"—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. CASSEL: A bill (H. R. 8095) to provide for the erection of a public building at Columbia, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HAY: A bill (H. R. 8096) to amend section 6 of an act entitled "An act prescribing regulations for the Soldiers'

Home located at Washington, D. C., and for other purposes"—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 8097) to provide an additional district judge for the district of Alaska, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8098) authorizing and directing the Secretary of War to construct a bridge across the Spokane River, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 8099) to provide for the construction of a bridge and approaches thereto across the Missouri River at or near Council Bluffs, Iowa—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8100) authorizing the examination as a witness of the husband or wife of the defendant in criminal cases—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. SCOTT: A bill (H. R. 8101) making an appropriation for the improvement and repair of the national cemetery near Fort Scott, Kans., and the improvement of the Government road leading thereto—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 8102) to amend sections 4886 and 4887 of the Revised Statutes, relating to patents—to the Committee on Patents.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: A bill (H. R. 8103) authorizing the construction of a bridge between Fort Snelling Reservation and St. Paul, Minn.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. CLARK of Florida: A bill (H. R. 8104) to require internal-revenue collectors to furnish clerks of State courts with lists of all persons, firms, and corporations within their respective districts who have paid special taxes as wholesale or retail dealers in spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8105) to prohibit internal-revenue officers from receiving special taxes from any person, firm, or corporation for the carrying on of the business of a brewer, manufacturer of stills, rectifier of distilled spirits, wholesale or retail dealer in spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors in communities where the carrying on of such business is prohibited by local laws, and to prescribe punishment for its violation—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 8106) to provide for the erection of a public building at Charleroi, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MONDELL: A bill (H. R. 8107) extending the public-land laws to certain lands in Wyoming—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8108) to extend the homestead laws to certain lands in the Yellowstone Forest Reserve—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. ANDRUS: A bill (H. R. 8109) to provide for the erection of a public building at the city of Yonkers, N. Y.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. SNAPP: A bill (H. R. 8110) to provide for enlarging and improving the United States building at Aurora, Ill.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 8111) authorizing the erection of a post-office building at Gainesville, Ga.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 8112) providing for rank and pay for certain retired officers of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 8113) to increase the limit of the appropriation for a public building at Deadwood, S. Dak.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8114) to set apart certain lands in the State of South Dakota as a public park, to be known as the Battle Mountain Sanitarium Park—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8115) to establish mining experiment stations, to aid in the development of the mineral resources of the United States, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. BURTON of Delaware: A bill (H. R. 8116) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a building thereon at the port of Lewes, in the State of Delaware—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. RANSDELL of Louisiana: A bill (H. R. 8117) to promote public education by giving free transmission through the mails to certain educational publications—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 8118) to grant grazing privileges to homestead settlers and holders of small farms in the arid and semiarid land region, and for other purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 8119) providing for the election of a Delegate to the House of Representatives from the district of Alaska—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 8120) to provide for the erection of a monument at the battlefield of Gettysburg to commemorate the services of the Signal Corps of the United States Army during the war of the rebellion—to the Committee on the Library.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8121) to amend an act to increase the pension of Mexican war survivors to $12, approved March 3, 1903—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 8122) to provide for the erection of a public building at Sumter, S. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LEWIS: A bill (H. R. 8123) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Americus, Ga., and appropriating money therefor—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8124) to amend section 5136 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, permitting national banking associations to make loans on real estate as security, and limiting the amount of such loans—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8125) to construct and build a road from Andersonville Station, on the Central Railroad of Georgia, to the Prison Park and national cemetery, and so forth—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8126) to provide for the payment of interest on all money now deposited, or hereafter deposited, in national banks of the United States—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8127) for the erection of a public building at the city of Hawkinsville, Ga., and appropriating money therefor—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8128) for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Cordele, in the State of Georgia, and appropriating money therefor—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8129) to improve road from Andersonville railroad station to Prison Park, and so forth—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. FLETCHER: A bill (H. R. 8130) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Minneapolis, in the State of Minnesota—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MORRELL: A bill (H. R. 8131) to prohibit the wearing of the uniform of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or revenue service of the United States, and so forth—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: A bill (H. R. 8132) to amend an act entitled "An act making an apportionment of Representatives in Congress among the several States under the Twelfth Census"—to the Committee on the Census.

By Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 8133) to provide for the infliction of corporal punishment upon all male persons convicted of willfully beating their wives, and the manner and place of inflicting the said punishment, and the officers by whom the same is to be inflicted—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. SULZER: A resolution (H. Res. 91) concerning the frigate Constitution—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. FULLER: A resolution (H. Res. 92) providing for the appointment of an additional standing committee, to be known as the Committee on Insurance—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. LOUD: A resolution (H. Res. 93) authorizing investigation of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis—to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. WACHTER: A resolution (H. Res. 94) authorizing the chairman of the Committee on Enrolled Bills to appoint a janitor of said committee—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. CASSEL: A resolution (H. Res. 95) authorizing the appointment of a janitor in the office of the file, journal, and printing clerks—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania: A resolution (H. Res. 96) authorizing the appointment of a stenographer to the Committee on Revision of the Laws—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. ESCH: A resolution (H. Res. 97) concerning the compensation of the chief pages of the House of Representatives—to the Committee on Accounts.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Memorial from the governor and legislature of the State of Utah, indorsing the Brownlow bill for improving the public highways and urging its passage by Congress—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, memorial from the governor and legislature of Utah, asking Congress for a grant of land for a State park—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: A bill (H. R. 8134) granting a pension to James F. Carr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8135) granting an increase of pension to Silas M. Kirken—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8136) granting an increase of pension to A. Scroggs—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ADAMS of Wisconsin: A bill (H. R. 8137) granting an increase of pension to Nina Holvenstot—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8138) granting an increase of pension to Similde E. Forbes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8139) granting a pension to John H. Wynne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8140) granting a pension to Lucy Thomas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8141) granting a pension to Catharine Leonard—to the Committee to Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8142) granting a pension to Edward G. Hansen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8143) granting a pension to Elizabeth Ann Vaux—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8144) granting a pension to Ada J. Lasswell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: A bill (H. R. 8145) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Rogers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8146) granting a pension to George J. Kraus—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8147) granting a pension to Louise Holz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8148) granting a pension to Lena Weinreich—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8149) to correct the military record of Arnold H. Gaffron—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8150) to correct the military record of Balsor Gudermuth—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 8151) for the relief of Sanford A. Pinyon—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8152) for the relief of William T. Edwards—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8153) for the relief of Soloman Taylor—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8154) granting a pension to Charles C. Howington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BEDE: A bill (H. R. 8155) granting an increase of pension to Henry E. Seelye—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Loren H. Howard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8157) granting an increase of pension to Milton H. Wayne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8158) granting an increase of pension to L. P. Storms—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8159) granting an increase of pension to Charles Leathers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8160) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Kelley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8161) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Douglas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BONYNGE: A bill (H. R. 8162) granting an increase of pension to William J. Renard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BOWERSOCK: A bill (H. R. 8163) for the relief of Daniel F. Ritchie—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8164) granting an increase of pension to Jackson Mays—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROOKS of Colorado: A bill (H. R. 8165) granting an increase of pension to John Keys—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURLEIGH (by request): A bill (H. R. 8166) granting a pension to Daniel Lane—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURTON of Delaware: A bill (H. R. 8167) granting an increase of pension to Robert A. Edwards, jr.—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8168) to fix the status of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments of Delaware Volunteers—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 8169) granting an increase of pension to Eliza C. Jones—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 8170) for the relief of James J. Bennett—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8171) granting a pension to Lucinda M. Hutchins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8172) granting an increase of pension to Henry H. Hollman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8173) granting an increase of pension to James L. Wiltsey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8174) granting an increase of pension to Eli Baldwin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 8175) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Dulieu—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 8176) granting an increase of pension to Thomas E. Bishop—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: A bill (H. R. 8177) for the relief of John Carr—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CROMER: A bill (H. R. 8178) for the relief of Lewis Mock—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8179) granting an increase of pension to Henry McLean—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CURRIER: A bill (H. R. 8180) granting an increase of pension to Edwin F. Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8181) granting an increase of pension to Martin B. Noyes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CUSHMAN: A bill (H. R. 8182) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Huson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DICKSON of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 8183) granting an increase of pension to Henry V. Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8184) granting a pension to William S. Foulke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRESSER: A bill (H. R. 8185) for the relief of Robert C. Daley—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8186) granting a pension to Samuel Hunter Knepley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8187) granting an increase of pension to Silas G. Elliott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8188) granting an increase of pension to Jackson Gearheart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8189) granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ELLIS: A bill (H. R. 8190) for the relief of Mrs. Abigail A. Stover—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8191) granting a pension to John Hobart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8192) granting an increase of pension to Mildred A. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8193) granting an increase of pension to Perry B. Sibley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8194) granting an increase of pension to Martha E. Read—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8195) granting an increase of pension to Myra Davis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8196) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Taylor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8197) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin W. Willson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8198) granting an increase of pension to John W. Richardson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8199) granting an increase of pension to Robert L. Lindsay—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8200) granting an increase of pension to Irene M. Bush—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8201) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Burns—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8202) granting an increase of pension to Henry Guy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8203) granting an increase of pension to Phoebe B. Colton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FASSETT: A bill (H. R. 8204) granting an increase of pension to Ephraim P. Golden—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOWLER: A bill (H. R. 8205) granting a pension to Leonora Ohl—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FULLER: A bill (H. R. 8206) granting an increase of pension to Carner C. Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8207) granting an increase of pension to Daniel A. Proctor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8208) granting an increase of pension to Eli Brainard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8209) granting an increase of pension to Sarah E. Yockey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8210) granting an increase of pension to Matilda E. Nattinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARRETT: A bill (H. R. 8211) for the relief of the estate of H. S. Simmons, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. GRANGER: A bill (H. R. 8212) to amend the act approved March 15, 1878, entitled "An act for the relief of William A. Hammond, late Surgeon-General of the Army"—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GRONNA: A bill (H. R. 8213) granting an increase of pension to William Monteith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8214) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Slagg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: A bill (H. R. 8215) granting an increase of pension to Ira Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAY: A bill (H. R. 8216) granting an increase of pension to Philipp Cline—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8217) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. J. Tayman—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8218) granting an increase of pension to Mary C. Spangler—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HEDGE: A bill (H. R. 8219) granting an increase of pension to James M. McKain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8220) granting a pension to Helen I. McCold—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8221) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Jackson Canife—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8222) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Jordan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HITT: A bill (H. R. 8223) granting a pension to George Hovy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 8224) granting an increase of pension to William Weddington—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8225) granting an increase of pension to Sylvester G. Hunter—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 8226) granting a pension to Laura B. Ihrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 8227) for the relief of the legal representatives of the estate of Lewis M. Maney—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8228) for the relief of the legal representatives of the estate of Benjamin Lillard, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HOLLIDAY: A bill (H. R. 8229) granting a pension to Amanda J. Alvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8230) granting a pension to Martha Rankin—to the Committee on Invalid ePnsions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8231) granting an increase of pension to Jasper N. Woods—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8232) granting an increase of pension to James M. Jared—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8233) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Power—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8234) granting an increase of pension to Peter Case—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8235) granting an increase of pension to John D. Tincher—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8236) granting an increase of pension to William E. Frith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8237) granting an increase of pension to Noah Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8238) granting an increase of pension to Elihu Wolf—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8239) granting an increase of pension to Isaac B. Dowdell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8240) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Abernath—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8241) granting an increase of pension to Mary Venard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: A bill (H. R. 8242) granting an increase of pension to John Alves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8243) granting an increase of pension to John W. Warner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUNT: A bill (H. R. 8244) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to restore and pay Mary Kilcullen for mutilated currency—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8245) granting a pension to Frank R. Boyer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUMPHREY of Washington: A bill (H. R. 8246) granting an Indian wars service pension to William Alexander—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HULL: A bill (H. R. 8247) granting an increase of pension to Sarah J. Littleton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8248) granting an increase of pension to Noah J. Crew—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 8249) granting a pension to Hannah Emerson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8250) granting a pension to John M. Turner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8251) granting an increase of pension to Abel S. Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 8252) for the relief of the administrator of the estate of Gotlob Groezinger—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KETCHAM: A bill (H. R. 8253) granting an increase of pension to John Dolan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: A bill (H. R. 8254) for the relief of Thomas Mundy, disabled by an accident at the life-saving station at Charlotte, N. Y.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KLEPPER: A bill (H. R. 8255) for the relief of the heirs of William W. Dougherty, late Indian agent at Warm Springs Agency, Oreg.—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LAMB: A bill (H. R. 8256) for the relief of Mrs. C. N. Graves—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LEGARE: A bill (H. R. 8257) granting an increase of pension to Eli Woodbury—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LEVER: A bill (H. R. 8258) for the relief of W. P. Dukes, postmaster at Rowesville, S. C.—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8259) for the relief of the trustees of the German Lutheran Church, of Orangeburg, S. C.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8260) for the relief of the legal representatives of J. H. Brantly, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8261) for the relief of the legal representatives of Naloti Biraghi—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8262) granting a pension to John N. Long—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8263) granting a pension to Margaret Hertel—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8264) granting an increase of pension to Simon P. Weed—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LEWIS: A bill (H. R. 8265) for the relief of the heirs of S. D. Fuller—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8266) for the relief of the legal representatives of C. M. Bozeman, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8267) for the relief of the legal representatives of Thomas W. Johnson, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8268) for the relief of the estate of Mrs. Tabitha W. Reese, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8269) for the relief of the heirs of William Wesley Turner, deceased—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8270) granting a pension to Cynthia Jones—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8271) granting a pension to Adaline Simons—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8272) granting a pension to Udariah English—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8273) granting an increase of pension to John M. Pearson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8274) granting an increase of pension to Matilda Burks—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LITTAUER: A bill (H. R. 8275) granting an increase of pension to Robert Aucock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARSHALL: A bill (H. R. 8276) granting an increase of pension to Maitland J. Freeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8277) granting an increase of pension to Samuel S. Garst—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 8278) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue patent to Keystone Camp, No. 2879, of the Modern Woodmen of America, to certain lands for cemetery purposes—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 8279) for the relief of E. J. Seeds—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8280) for the relief of the heirs of Thomas G. Wright—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8281) for the relief of Mrs. Sarah C. Jones and Mrs. Lucy F. Tyler—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 8282) granting a pension to Mary J. Pearson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8283) granting a pension to Tilman Giles, alias Robert Powell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 8284) for the relief of Aimee H. Keller—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 8285) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Sharpley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8286) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of George W. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. OTJEN: A bill (H. R. 8287) granting a pension to James Marshel—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 8288) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Carr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. POLLARD: A bill (H. R. 8289) granting an increase of pension to Isaac J. Holt—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8290) granting an increase of pension to Lloyd D. Bennett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. POWERS: A bill (H. R. 8291) granting an increase of pension to Daniel S. Chase—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8292) granting an increase of pension to Aaron W. Kelley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8293) granting an increase of pension to Don Carlos Sinclair—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8294) granting an increase of pension to Lyman Vose—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8295) granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Hodsdon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8296) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo Rockwood, alias George Rockwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8297) granting an increase of pension to Warren S. Rand—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8298) granting an increase of pension to Henry R. Cowan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8299) granting an increase of pension to William R. Ladd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8300) granting an increase of pension to Georgia D. Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8301) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Clifford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8302) granting an increase of pension to Maurice Hayes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8303) granting a pension to W. B. Grindle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RAINEY: A bill (H. R. 8304) for the relief of William B. Payne—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8305) granting a pension to Martha J. Kellogg—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8306) granting a pension to William H. Pritchard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8307) granting a pension to William C. Estill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8308) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8309) granting an increase of pension to William H. H. Westbrook—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8310) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo Dill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8311) granting an increase of pension to David Lemon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8312) granting an increase of pension to Abram Sours—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8313) granting an increase of pension to D. W. Howe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8314) granting an increase of pension to David M. French—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8315) granting an increase of pension to Martin V. Cannedy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUPPERT: A bill (H. R. 8316) granting an increase of pension to William Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RANSDELL of Louisiana: A bill (H. R. 8317) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Thompson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHERMAN: A bill (H. R. 8318) granting an increase of pension to William Plunkett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas: A bill (H. R. 8319) granting an increase of pension to John Gardner Stocks—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 8320) granting an increase of pension to Andrew H. Hazlett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8321) granting an increase of pension to Joseph A. Spaulding—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8322) granting an increase of pension to William H. Parsons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8323) granting an increase of pension to Mathias Stoffels—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8324) granting an increase of pension to James L. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8325) granting an increase of pension to William H. Berry—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8326) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Evans—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8327) granting an increase of pension to Jasper Reno—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8328) granting an increase of pension to Ira Grabill—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8329) granting an increase of pension to William P. McWilliams—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8330) granting an increase of pension to John Ashmore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8331) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8332) granting an increase of pension to William M. McCrary—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8333) granting an increase of pension to John G. Honeywell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8334) granting an increase of pension to Eli Roth—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8335) granting an increase of pension to John T. Harvey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8336) granting an increase of pension to William Savage—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8337) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Harlen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8338) granting an increase of pension to Isaac S. Doan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8339) granting a pension to Vienna Ward—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8340) granting an increase of pension to Thomas K. Virtue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8341) granting an increase of pension to Jefferson Kisling—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8342) granting an increase of pension to Henry Russell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8343) granting an increase of pension to James W. Foster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8344) granting an increase of pension to Amanda McConkey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8345) granting an increase of pension to L. Sherwood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8346) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Lake—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8347) granting an increase of pension to Rowlin T. Parkhurst—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8348) granting an increase of pension to L. A. Persons—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8349) granting an increase of pension to Adam F. Emge—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8350) granting an increase of pension to De Witt Nash—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8351) granting an increase of pension to William A. Clark—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8352) granting a pension to Emanuel Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8353) granting a pension to Ellen Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8354) granting a pension to Margaret Pendergast—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8355) granting a pension to Thomas Brown—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8356) granting a pension to M. E. Halderman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8357) granting a pension to Howard M. Stiles—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8358) granting a pension to William J. Warne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8359) granting a pension to Lora L. Warne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8360) for the relief of the personal representative of Jacob Bogert—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8361) for the relief of Daniel J. Ockerson—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8362) for the relief of Mrs. M. E. Halderman—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8363) for the relief of A. M. Ellis—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8364) for the relief of Charles H. Warren—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8365) for the relief of C. A. Berry—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8366) to correct the military record of William Vickory—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8367) to correct the military record of Stephen T. Campbell—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8368) to correct the military record of Henry Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8369) to correct the military record of James Owens—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8370) granting the Court of Claims jurisdiction to hear and determine the claim of widow, heirs, and personal representative of Thomas Page for Indian depredation—to the Committee on Claims.

By. Mr. SOUTHARD: A bill (H. R. 8371) granting an increase of pension to August L. Schultz—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LILLEY of Connecticut: A bill (H. R. 8372) granting an increase of pension to George Quien—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8373) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Weir—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8374) granting an increase of pension to Ellen R. Graham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 8375) for the relief of John B. Ford—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 8376) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McConnell—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. TALBOTT: A bill (H. R. 8377) authorizing the Secretary of War to issue an honorable discharge to Joseph Brenise, late of Company A, Fiftieth Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer Infantry—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8378) granting an increase of pension to John Parrish—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8379) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Wilhelm—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8380) granting an increase of pension to John Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8381) granting an increase of pension to Hugh E. Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8382) for the relief of Frederick Gray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8383) granting an increase of pension to Capt. Henry Wilhelm—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8384) granting an increase of pension to Henry Bostick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8385) granting an increase of pension to William W. Cooper—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8386) granting an increase of pension to William Zigman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8387) granting a pension to Joseph C. Boyd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8388) granting an increase of pension to William D. Kimble—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8389) granting an increase of pension to William H. Stiffler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8390) for the relief of William H. Bell, of Maryland—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8391) for the relief of Emanuel Mackley, of Carroll County, Md.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8392) for the relief of W. A. Bird, of Harford County, State of Maryland—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8393) for the relief of the heirs of Edmund Wolf—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8394) for the relief of Kate Kearney Henry, widow and executrix of James L. Henry, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8395) granting an increase of pension to Peter B. Hoffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8396) granting a pension to Worthington Fringer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8397) granting an increase of pension to Bernard Bowers—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 8398) granting an increase of pension to James Walters—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: A bill (H. R. 8399) granting an increase of pension to Calvin W. Osborn—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. TYNDALL: A bill (H. R. 8400) for the relief of George W. Ratcliff—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. DWIGHT: A bill (H. R. 8401) granting an increase of pension to William H. Ballard—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WATSON: A bill (H. R. 8402) granting an increase of pension to Fred Loeffler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEMS: A bill (H. R. 8403) granting an increase of pension to James L. Rector—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8404) granting an increase of pension to John H. Ferguson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILEY of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 8405) to correct the military record of John Sanspree—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 8406) granting an increase of pension to Susan W. Selfridge—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WOOD of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 8407) granting a pension to Patrick Howe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 8408) granting an increase of pension to Richard Prost—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi: A bill (H. R. 8409) granting an increase of pension to George H. Stowits—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, the Committee on the Public Lands was discharged from the consideration of the bill (H. R. 380) to authorize the sale of a portion of the Lower Brule Indian Reservation, in South Dakota, and for other purposes; and the same was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Petition of the Modesto Irrigation Association, of California, against San Francisco having reservoir site in Yosemite Park—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg, against revision of tariff—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Moses B. Page—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Mary J. Allhands—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Richard Larence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Abel W. Payne—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Ulisses C. Powell—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel O. Tod—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also paper to accompany bill for relief of Christopher S. Guthrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John M. Wells—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ACHESON: Petition of J. A. Sachler and others, of Princeton, Pa., and Princeton Council, No. 402, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Thomas Carney and Samuel E. McCleary, to get Penrose and Dalzell bills, relative to pensioning prisoners of war, out of committee and aid in passing same—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of James R. Todd—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ALLEN of New Jersey: Petition of the Humane Society, against change of present law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, resolution of the legislature of California, for a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of V. L. Mason, of Passaic, N. J., for single statehood for Arizona and New Mexico—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: Petition of the Humane Society, against any amendment to present law relative to live stock in transit—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Modesto Irrigation Association, against San Francisco having reservoir sites in Yosemite Park—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

By Mr. BARTHOLDT: Resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an appropriation for the Wisconsin River—to the Committtee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, for an appropriation for improvement of the Mississippi River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Missouri, favoring an amendment to the Constitution for election of United States Senators by the people—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Henry Heil Chemical Company, of St. Louis, against enactment of pure-food legislation—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Brown Shoe Company, for establishment of reciprocity relations with foreign countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Norwell-Shapleigh Hardware Company and others, of St. Louis, Mo., favoring change of postal laws—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BEDE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Kelley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Alonzo Douglas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BONYNGE: Petition of citizens of Colorado, for repeal of tariff on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: Petition of the American Humane Association, against any amendment to the present law relative to transit of live stock—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Triumph Lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen, No. 68, of Pittsburg, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Modesco Irrigation Association, against San Francisco having water reservoirs in Yosemite Reservation—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: Petition of George W. Patten and others, against change of Grout law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of F. E. Penny and others, favoring a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. CASSEL: Petitions of Washington Camp, No. 207, of Bowmansville, Pa., and Washington Camp, No. 557, of Lancaster, Pa., Patriotic Order Sons of America, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of the Duquesne Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, of Pittsburg, for a constitutional amendment prohibiting polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Mount Washington Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburg, Pa., for an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DE ARMOND: Petitions of heirs of W. S. Dudley, late of Cass County, Mo.; heirs of James W. Gregg, late of Cass County, Mo.; heirs of George W. Hockensmith, late of Cass County, Mo.; heirs of John Ament, late of Cass County, Mo.; Mrs. Susan Porter; heirs of Jesse Ragan, late of Cass County, Mo.; heirs of George W. Yancey, late of Cass County, Mo; W. H. Gibson, of Jackson County, Mo., and J. S. Torbert, requesting reference of war claims to the Court of Claims under the Bowman Act—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. DIXON of Montana: Petition of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers, of Anaconda, Mont., relating to wood alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DWIGHT: Petition of Painters Union No. 178, of Ithaca, N. Y., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ESCH: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Robert A. Scott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the American Bar Association and others, favoring present bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Petition of the public schools of Brooklyn, for legislation to preserve the frigate Constitution—to the Committee an Naval Affairs.

Also, petition of the board of trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago, for appropriations—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the American Bar Association, the Merchants' Association, and others, favoring present bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg, favoring tariff revision and reciprocity with certain European countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FULLER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel J. Jones—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Daniel A. Proctor—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of George Bruner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Ella T. Hopeman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Carrie C. Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARRETT: Paper to accompany bill for relief of estate of H. A. Simmons—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, petitions of G. F. Brooks, Araminta Goolsby, A. Enochs, William H. Landrum, and W. H. Stovall, all of Tennessee, asking reference of their respective claims to the Court of Claims under the provisions of the Bowman Act—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. GOEBEL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Martha Kates—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William Hand—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Harvey J. Fulmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Modesco Irrigation Association, against San Francisco having reservoir sites in Yosemite Reservation—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

Also, petitions of Hoboken Council, No. 384, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Pennsylvania; Robert Duthie, and others, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Irad Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HALE: Petitions of Council No. 42, of Fountain City; Council No. 35, of New River; Council No. 53, of London; Council, No. 38, of Wooldridge, and Council No. 43, of Knoxville, all in Tennessee, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. HAY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Philipp Cline—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: Petition of council of Hartford, Conn., for preservation of the New Hampshire forests—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John Alves—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John W. Warner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HUNT: Resolution of the senate and assembly of California, for a parcels post—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress, for improvement of harbors on the Gulf and Pacific coast—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Isaac Witherwax—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John Dolan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KNAPP: Papers to accompany bill for promotion and retirement of John W. Dillenback—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LAFEAN: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Joseph Glassic—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAWRENCE: Resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for free trade between United States and Canada—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for removal of duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the Massachusetts legislature, for a constitutional amendment regulating hours of labor—to the Committee on Labor.

Also, petition of the Indian Association of Stockbridge, Mass., for legislation in behalf of the Indians—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. LILLEY of Connecticut: Paper to accompany bill for relief of George Quien—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Hartford (Conn.) city council, for preservation of the New Hampshire forests—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of W. S. Fears—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. PAYNE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Jonathan Carr—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RUSSELL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Joshua Parnell—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of estate of H. West—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: Petition of the Bethlehem Indian Association, favoring legislation for Indians in California—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. SHERMAN: Petition of the National Council of the Osage Indians, for one county for Osage Reservation—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. SPERRY: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Patrick Weir—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Ellen R. Graham—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEVENS of Minnesota: Petitions of the David Foser Company, the Western Show Company, the Minnesota Mercantile Company, and the Worrell Company, of Stillwater; French, Finch & Henry, William Weiskopf, and Weyerhaeuser & Co., of St. Paul, Minn., for two kinds of mail matter only and 1-cent postage—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the retail grocers and business men of St. Paul, against a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis, for an amendment of the bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Ninth District Group of Minnesota Bankers, for repeal of the bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, resolution of the legislature of Minnesota, for opening to settlement certain lands in the Chippewa Reservation—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of the St. Paul Rod and Gun Club, for bill H. R. 9302, for untaxed denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the St. Paul Commercial Club, against amendment of the Morris bill—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, petition of the Ramsey County Medical Society, of St. Paul, Minn., favoring the pure food and drugs bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. SULZER: Petitions of the American Bar Association, the Commercial Law League of America, the Merchants' Association of New York, the National Board of Trade, and the National Association of Credit Men, favoring the bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John A. Layton—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Elijah D. Guthrie—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Henry Good—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Benjamin F. Heald—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

SENATE.

FRIDAY, December 15, 1905.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

The Journal of yesterday's proceedings was read and approved.

FRUTOS TOMAS PLAZA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting a letter addressed to the President of the United States, received from His Excellency the President of Ecuador, expressing thanks for the action of the Congress of the United States in authorizing Frutos Tomas Plaza, a citizen of Ecuador, to receive instruction at the Military Academy at West Point; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

PENALTY FOR EXTORTION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to amend section 5481 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relative to the punishment of officers of the United States guilty of extortion; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

SOLDIERS' ADDITIONAL HOMESTEADS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to repeal section 2306 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relative to the soldiers' additional homestead law; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

PUNISHMENT FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to amend section 5491 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relative to punishment of officers or agents of the United States guilty of embezzlement; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

PUNISHMENT FOR PERJURY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to amend section 5392 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relative to the punishment of persons guilty of perjury; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to amend an act entitled "An act providing for the compulsory attendance of witnesses before registers and receivers of the Land Office;" which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

RECEIVERS FOR LAND DISTRICTS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to abolish the office of receivers of public moneys for land districts, and for other purposes; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Public Lands, and ordered to be printed.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to empower officers, clerks, inspectors, agents, and employees of the United States to administer oaths, and for other purposes; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

TITLE TO PUBLIC LANDS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the draft of a bill to punish persons who fraudulently obtain, or attempt to obtain, title to public lands, and for other purposes; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a joint resolution (H. J. Res. 48) to pay the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1905, on the 20th day of said month; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the board of directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Milwaukee, Wis., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a petition of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the operation of street railways in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also presented a petition of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the establishment of building lines in the District of Columbia on streets less than 90 feet in width; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. McCUMBER. I present a petition of divers temperance associations, relative to the sale of intoxicating liquors. The petition is very brief. I ask unanimous consent that it may be printed in the RECORD, together with the five signatures showing what associations are represented.

There being no objection, the petition, with the signatures, was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, and referred to the Committee on Territories, as follows:

To the honorable United States Senate:

The undersigned, in behalf of large organized constituencies, and representing, as we believe, the sentiments of 20,000,000 of church members as made known by resolutions and otherwise, respectfully petition your honorable body to enact the following moderate and conservative measures in defense of law and temperance:

First. To fulfill the nation's treaty covenants with Indian Territory to protect it against saloons by attaching to any statehood bill that shall include Indian Territory the Gallinger twenty-one year prohibition which was voted by the Senate in the last Congress.

Second. To provide in any civil government or licensing bill for Alaska that no saloon shall be licensed where a majority of the people within 2 miles are not white men.

Third. To forbid the sale of intoxicants in old soldiers' homes (which was voted by the Senate in the last Congress), and also to forbid such sales in all other Government buildings and in ships, parks, and premises owned or used by the United States Government.

Fourth. To protect State liquor laws of all kinds against nullification by outside liquor dealers selling to "speak easies" under the plea of interstate commerce, as was voted by the House in the Fifty-sixth Congress.

FRED'K D. POWER,
Secretary Congressional Temperance Society and International Reform Bureau, Vice-President of Anti-Saloon League.
MARGARET DYE ELLIS,
National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Superintendent of Legislation.
WILBUR F. CRAFTS,
Superintendent of International Reform Bureau.
CHARLES SCANLAN,
Field Secretary Presbyterian Assembly's Permanent Committee on Temperance.
O. R. MILLER,
Field Secretary National Temperance Society.
JOSHUA LEVERING,
Of Prohibition Party.

Mr. SCOTT presented the memorial of A. F. Southworth, of Huntington, W. Va., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. BURNHAM presented the petition of Rev. S. E. Quinty, of Derry, N. H., praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a petition of Mount Prospect Council, No. 16, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Plymouth, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented the petition of Jessica Randolph Smith, of Henderson, N. H., praying for the enactment of legislation granting an increase of pension in certain cases to soldiers of the Mexican war; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented the petition of Augustus Saint-Gaudens, of Windsor, Vt., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a memorial of Mount Lafayette Division, No. 572, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Woodsville, N. H., and a memorial of Local Division No. 45, Order of Railway Telegraphers, of Littleton, N. H., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad-rate bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PILES presented petitions of Local Union No. 131, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Seattle; of Local Union No. 98, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Spokane; of Local Council No. 3, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Bellingham; of the Seattle-Ballard Shingle Weavers' Local Union, No. 12, American Federation of Labor, of Ballard; of Local Council No. 2, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of Seattle, and of Local Union No. 162, International Union of Steam Engineers, of Everett, all in the State of Washington, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. CLAPP presented a petition of Local Union No. 951, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of Brainerd, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Merchants' Association of Aitkin County, Minn., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the construction of a drainage canal from Waldeck to Pine Knoll in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. FRYE presented a petition of the Board of Trade of Portland, Me., praying for the enactment of legislation providing 1-cent letter postage on all mail matter; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

THE SHIPPING BILL.

Mr. FRYE. I present a communication from the Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, War Department, transmitting a copy of a report submitted by the United Chambers of Commerce of Manila, the Shipowners' Association of the Philippines, and others, together with an excerpt from a special report submitted to the secretary of finance and justice on October 8, 1903, by the collector of customs for the Philippine Islands, relative to the so-called "shipping bill" and the effect of its enforcement in the Philippine Islands, etc. I move that the communication and accompanying papers be printed as a document, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The motion was agreed to.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Mr. HEYBURN. I have just noticed that the bill (S. 1801) regulating the creation of forest reserves appears to have been referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game. It was actually referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, which is the proper committee to consider the bill. I ask that the bill go to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. I requested this reference yesterday.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Idaho asks that Senate bill 1801 be recalled from the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game and that it be referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 529) to promote the national defense, to create a force of naval volunteers, to establish American ocean mail lines to foreign markets, to promote commerce, and to provide revenue from tonnage, to report it with an amendment, and I submit a report thereon.

It is proper I should say, in connection with this report, that the Senator from Florida [Mr. MALLORY] will probably file a minority report at a later day.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will go to the Calendar.

IMPROVEMENT OF ANACOSTIA RIVER FLATS.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 71) requiring the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to prepare a report upon the improvement of the Anacostia River, to report it favorably without amendment. The bill relates to the health of this District and I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration. There is no appropriation in the bill.

The Secretary read the bill, and, there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It directs the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to submit to Congress a report upon the improvement of the so-called flats of the Anacostia River from its mouth to the District line, with recommendations and estimates of cost.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FISH-CULTURAL STATION IN ILLINOIS.

Mr. HOPKINS, from the Committee on Fisheries, to whom was referred the bill (S. 653) to establish a fish-cultural station in the State of Illinois, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

INVESTIGATION OF BLACK SANDS OF PACIFIC SLOPE.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, by mistake a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Director of the Geological Survey, forwarding a report on the progress of the investigation of the black sands of the Pacific slope, etc., was referred to the Committee on the Geological Survey. I should like to have it referred to the Committee on Mines and Mining. The investigation is as to whether the sands contain gold or not. I will say for the information of the Senate that I care nothing about it, but the gentleman who made the report asked me to have the communication transferred from the Committee on the Geological Survey to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. HALE. Is it the report of a committee under a resolution?

Mr. SCOTT. It is a paper.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is a communication.

Mr. HALE. It is a pretty wild and vague proposition, anyway. We have had it up in some of the other committees, and they never considered that it had substance enough to entitle it to much consideration. I do not think it is very important to which of these committees it goes. If it is only a paper I shall interpose no objection.

Mr. SCOTT. I shall withdraw the request. I was requested by the gentleman who made the report to make it. He suggested that it had gone to the wrong committee and he wanted to appear before the committee. As I have made a request to be relieved of further service upon the Committee on Mines and Mining, the question of reference is nothing to me.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The request of the Senator from West Virginia is withdrawn.

Mr. HALE. The difficulty in the matter is that all these new schemes for extending governmental authority and investigation involve not simply an initial appropriation but a constantly increasing appropriation, and when you grant the first lodgment the bureaus having charge of the subject invariably increase their estimates and demands, and before you know it there will be a division or bureau in the Department devoted to the examination of sands, to see if there is any gold in the sands; and the Government is doing it. There is no reason why the Government should exploit this matter. If the sands are rich or auriferous, private enterprise will do it.

I have seen so much of this disposition to extend the governmental intrusion into all branches of business life that I perhaps am much prejudiced against it. I hope nothing will come out of this matter to whatever committee it goes. I hope it will be allowed to die, and that we shall not be called upon for appropriations to build up a bureau to find if there is gold in the sands.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, just one moment, if the Senate will indulge me. I think the Senator from Maine has forgotten that he probably voted for an appropriation for this purpose some time ago, and that this investigation has been going on. The machinery, as I understand it, is now on the coast and the work is under way at the present time.

I do not know what this report is. I have not read it. The request came to me from a departmental officer to have the reference changed from the Committee on the Geological Survey to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. HALE. I do not know of any appropriation in this direction having been made, but it may have gone through in some way, and it appears that silently and in the fugitive way I have indicated this matter has been growing. They will get the machinery and be ready to come to Congress for a large amount of money. Well, we will meet that, Mr. President, when it comes up.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. President, I do not know what this report is, but I understand it has some relation to a prior appropriation, and that it is proposed to continue an investigation of the black sands of the Pacific coast. Is that the report, I will ask the Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. SCOTT. That is my understanding.

Mr. FULTON. I do not intend at the present time to discuss the question, but I can not consent to allow the matter to go by on the suggestion of the Senator from Maine that no appropriation ought to be made for this purpose.

There was appropriated at the last session of the last Congress, as I recall, $25,000 to prosecute these investigations. The result which has been accomplished by the Geological Survey in carrying on those investigations is most remarkable. They have demonstrated throughout the mining States the possibility of saving immense quantities of gold, the exact percentage I can not now recall, but immense quantities that they were losing before by the processes that were in vogue.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, if the Senator will permit me——

Mr. FULTON. Certainly.

Mr. GALLINGER. I think that the investigations conducted in Portland during the recent exposition developed the fact that they extracted platinum, which is a very valuable and a very rare metal, and I have in my possession, not here, a beautiful piece of steel that was made from those black sands in a State where there is not any iron. It seems to me that it is an industry which ought to be developed in some way.

Mr. FULTON. I was just coming to that. They have discovered in one locality on the Pacific coast sand that carried platinum in such quantities that Doctor Day, who is in charge of the investigation, is of the opinion that that field alone will supply sufficient platinum for the commerce of the United States. They have also demonstrated that the black sands carry iron ore in sufficient quantities to supply, I think, something like 600 pounds of iron ore to the ton of sand.

I only refer to this to show the wonderful success that has met all their investigations so far. When this matter comes up again I shall probably ask the attention of the Senate while I make some observations upon it, but I simply make this statement at the present time in response to what the Senator from Maine said.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator from Oregon a question for information only. How does this investigation differ from the other investigations conducted by the Geological Survey except in name?

Mr. FULTON. They have gone out to the field near where the sands are and they have invited people who had experimental machines to come there and set them up, and under the superintendence of the Survey they have given the machines practical tests.

Mr. SPOONER. I am not speaking of the methods employed by the Geological Survey, but the substance. How does the investigation of the black sands of the Pacific coast, with reference to ascertaining whether they are auriferous or not, differ from any other subject investigated by the Geological Survey?

Mr. FULTON. They are simply being investigated on a larger scale; larger machines are being handled to show that their use is practicable, and also, as I have said, different machines have been given an opportunity to make tests. The great difficulty heretofore has been to secure the proper machinery for separating the mineral from the black sand.

Mr. GALLINGER. If the Senator will permit me, in answer to the Senator from Wisconsin, I will ask the Senator from Oregon if it is not a fact that these investigations have been conducted under the direction of the Geological Survey by Doctor Day?

Mr. FULTON. Yes; they have.

Mr. SPOONER. But my question, going to the subject-matter, was this: How does this investigation differ from a great many other investigations which are regularly conducted by the Geological Survey under the appropriations by Congress?

Mr. GALLINGER. I have had an impression, I may be wrong, that this is the first time this particular investigation has been conducted.

Mr. HALE. I will say this in answer to the Senator. The discussion is very illuminating. It is an extension——

Mr. SPOONER. I want some illumination; that is all. Like the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN] I want light.

Mr. HALE. It is an extension of what the Geological Survey is doing in a great many branches of private industry, in promoting information to be taken advantage of by private industries. Nobody ever thought of this investigation until lately the Senator from Nevada [Mr. NEWLANDS] thought about it. This is the first opportunity. It adds to the jurisdiction of the Geological Survey. I had forgotten that $25,000 had already gone into it. It will soon be $50,000. There is no doubt but that the investigation has shown that this machinery can be improved. It is not governmental machinery; it is private machinery.

I should like to have the Government investigate and show to the lumbermen of the State, which my colleague and I represent here, processes by which they can utilize sawdust. It would be a very valuable thing for that great industry, and if the Government should do it, it would prevent expense being incurred, which is done constantly by my constituents who are spending money in finding out how machinery can be improved in mills by which the waste material can be utilized.

Now, that is just one of the things that this does. The Geological Survey asks to take not governmental machinery, but private machinery, and, after its investigations, which are paid for by Congress, to report how these machines can be improved so that they will save in this way, not save to the Government, but save to individuals.

The Senator is a lawyer, a better lawyer than I am, and he knows something about constitutional limitations and the proper limitations. If we are going on and the Government is to take in hand all of these things, I want the industries in my State to have the fostering care of the Government, and I want them to be able to cluster under the wings of the Government. I want the Government to help pay, so that their business can be more profitable than it is now. But I have never asked that that shall be done.

Mr. FULTON. I suggest that so long as the distinguished Senator from Maine occupies a seat in this body there is no doubt that the citizens of Maine will cluster under the wings of the Government all right. They have been clustering there for a good many years; and I observe that whenever some people from the western portion of the country like to get in and do a little clustering the constitutional limitation steps in and prevents them.

Now, I do not know of anything in particular that this Government does in the way of developing industries that it is not for the individual, and when it is for the individual if it is a sufficiently large number of individuals it becomes for the benefit of the public. This is for the benefit of the miners throughout the entire West, I may say throughout the entire country, for the mining regions are located in the West. It is not for the benefit of any particular locality. It is for the benefit of one of the greatest industries of this nation.

It is proposed by a great many and advocated very earnestly, and I believe very properly, that there should be established a department of Government under which should be placed the mining industries and interests of this nation, so great are those industries. Then is it improper or is it a waste of the money of this country to spend, if we do spend, $50,000 or $100,000 in developing better processes by which the minerals of the country can be collected and saved?

I do not wish to take up the time of the Senate this morning in discussing the matter, but, Mr. President, I could not consent that it be passed by and sneered at as if it were without merit.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there are no further reports of standing and select committees, the introduction of bills and joint resolutions is next in order.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. MARTIN introduced a bill (S. 1810) for the erection of a memorial on the grounds of William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., in honor of Hon. Peyton Randolph, first President of the Continental Congress: which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1811) to establish the Fredericksburg and Adjacent National Battlefields Memorial Park, in the State of Virginia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1812) for the relief of Lieut. James M. Pickrell, United States Navy, retired; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. CLARK of Montana introduced a bill (S. 1813) to remove the charge of desertion standing against the name of John Murphy, alias John Martin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1814) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Weller; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FOSTER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1815) for the relief of the heirs of Joseph L. Bernard and Anna Holmes Bernard, both deceased; and

A bill (S. 1816) for the relief of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana.

Mr. ALLISON introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1817) granting an increase of pension to Nellie Gray;

A bill (S. 1818) granting a pension to Edward T. White; and

A bill (S. 1819) granting a pension to Minerva Kenney.

Mr. McENERY introduced a bill (S. 1820) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," approved March 3, 1887; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BURKETT introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1821) granting an increase of pension to Samuel L. Andrews (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1822) granting an increase of pension to L. C. Sheppard;

A bill (S. 1823) granting an increase of pension to Ira G. Foster; and

A bill (S. 1824) granting an increase of pension to James P. Robey.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 1825) for the extension and improvement of Massachusetts avenue to Western avenue NW., District of Columbia; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1826) granting an increase of pension to Rufus H. Paine;

A bill (S. 1827) granting an increase of pension to George C. Chase; and

A bill (S. 1828) granting an increase of pension to Alvin Abbott.

Mr. SIMMONS introduced a bill (S. 1829) granting a pension to Rebecca Pritchard; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FLINT introduced a bill (S. 1830) making appropriation for the removal of the quarantine station at San Diego, Cal., and to acquire a new site, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds:

A bill (S. 1831) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building at Eureka, Cal.; and

A bill (S. 1832) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at San Diego, Cal.

Mr. FLINT introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1833) granting an increase of pension to Henry Tobin;

A bill (S. 1834) granting an increase of pension to Frederick W. Partridge;

A bill (S. 1835) granting an increase of pension to James G. Doane;

A bill (S. 1836) granting an increase of pension to Abel Fleming;

A bill (S. 1837) granting an increase of pension to Philip Gavin;

A bill (S. 1838) granting an increase of pension to Harvey S. Harriman;

A bill (S. 1839) granting an increase of pension to Jennie Long Overton; and

A bill (S. 1840) granting an increase of pension to James Prettyman.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1841) granting a pension to Robert Catlin; and

A bill (S. 1842) granting an increase of pension to Ransom O. Thayer.

Mr. BURNHAM introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1843) to extend the provisions of the act of June 27, 1902, entitled "An act to extend the provisions, limitations, and benefits of an act entitled 'An act granting pensions to the survivors of the Indian wars of 1832 to 1842, inclusive, known as the Black Hawk war, Creek war, Cherokee disturbances, and the Seminole war,' approved July 27, 1892;" and

A bill (S. 1844) granting a pension to all surviving officers and enlisted men of the United States Army and Navy, both Regular and Volunteer, who were serving on board the sloop of war Cumberland on March 8, 1862.

Mr. BURNHAM introduced a bill (S. 1845) to authorize the paving of Twenty-third street NW. between S and U streets; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. WARNER introduced a bill (S. 1846) for the relief of Louis Benecke; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CLAPP introduced a bill (S. 1847) granting a pension to Nelson J. March; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. STONE introduced a bill (S. 1848) for the relief of Joseph Hemmerback; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. NELSON introduced a bill (S. 1849) granting an increase of pension to David T. Pettie; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 1850) for the relief of W. D. B. Dodson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1851) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Broadman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. FORAKER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1852) granting an increase of pension to Milton Marsh;

A bill (S. 1853) granting an increase of pension to Sarah L. Ghrist;

A bill (S. 1854) granting an increase of pension to David M. Taylor;

A bill (S. 1855) granting an increase of pension to J. J. Brown;

A bill (S. 1856) granting a pension to Wilson Zurmehly (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1857) granting an increase of pension to William Van Tilburgh (with an accompanying paper); and

A bill (S. 1858) granting a pension to Lina V. Dietz (with accompanying papers).

Mr. FORAKER introduced a bill (S. 1859) for the relief of O. P. Cobb's heirs and others; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 1860) to provide for the establishment of an annex to all National Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1861) for the relief of George Schild; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. TELLER introduced a bill (S. 1862) for the relief of Joshua T. Reynolds; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1863) for the relief of the heirs of Capt. James Holland; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. CLAY introduced a bill (S. 1864) for the relief of James H. Oliver, a commander on the retired list of the United States Navy; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. BRANDEGEE introduced a bill (S. 1865) granting an increase of pension to Solomon H. Baker; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BACON introduced a bill (S. 1866) granting a pension to Jefferson Wilcox; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 1867) for the relief of the estate of Henry Banks, deceased;

A bill (S. 1868) for the relief of Honora Ryan;

A bill (S. 1869) for the relief of the estate of John W. Anderson, deceased;

A bill (S. 1870) for the relief of Sarah Jane Bellah, administratrix of the estate of James W. Bellah, deceased; and

A bill (S. 1871) for the relief of the trustees of Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, of Ringgold, Ga.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 1872) granting an increase of pension to Rebecca A. White (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 1873) granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Carey; and

A bill (S. 1874) granting an increase of pension to John W. Faulkner (with accompanying papers).

Mr. CARMACK introduced a bill (S. 1875) to fix the liabilities of common carriers, railroad and transportation companies, for negligence in certain cases; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1876) for the relief of the estate of Alexander F. Beckham, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1877) for the relief of J. C. Brooks; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SMOOT introduced a bill (S. 1878) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in the city of Provo, State of Utah; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also introduced a bill (S. 1879) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo F. Harmon; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. McLAURIN introduced a bill (S. 1880) for the relief of John H. Myers; which was read twice by its title, and with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

INTRODUCTION OF REINDEER INTO ALASKA.

Mr. TELLER submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized to return to the Commissioner of Education the original photographs which were sent to the Senate for publication in the following documents: Senate Executive Document No. 70, Fifty-third Congress, second session; Senate Executive Document No. 92, Fifty-third, third; Senate Document No. 111, Fifty-fourth, first; Senate Document No. 49, Fifty-fourth, second (being Sixth Annual Report of Introduction of Domestic Reindeer into Alaska); Senate Document No. 30, Fifty-fifth, second; Senate Document No. 34, Fifty-fifth, third; Senate Document No. 245, Fifty-sixth, first; Senate Document No. 206, Fifty-sixth, second; Senate Document No. 98, Fifty-seventh, first; Senate Document No. 70, Fifty-seventh, second; Senate Document No. 210, Fifty-eighth, second; Senate Document No. 61, Fifty-eighth, third, the same being the annual reports on the introduction of reindeer in Alaska.

INVESTIGATION OF HAZING AT NAVAL ACADEMY.

Mr. CARMACK. I submit a resolution, which I send to the desk, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs of the Senate be authorized and instructed to inquire into reports of recent brutalities practiced by students of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, and to report the result of such investigation with such recommendations as may be deemed necessary to put an end to such practices.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. HALE. I did not hear the first part of it. Does the resolution direct the Naval Committee to make an investigation?

Mr. CARMACK. Yes.

Mr. HALE. I think that is very proper.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION REFERRED.

The joint resolution (H. J. Res. 48) to pay the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1905, on the 20th day of said month was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

CANADIAN ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

The Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the consideration of Congress a report by the Secretary of State submitting a claim of the Canadian Electric Light Company, of Levis, Quebec, on account of damages caused by the U. S. S. Essex to the company's cable on July 17, 1904.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 15, 1905.

SETTLEMENT OF SAMOAN CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report by the Secretary of State concerning this Government's obligation to pay to that of Germany the sum of $20,000, under the convention between the United States, Germany, and Great Britain for the settlement of Samoan claims, signed at Washington on November 7, 1899.

Prompt action should be taken to discharge this conventional obligation.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 15, 1905.

CLAIM OF FRENCH CABLE COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith for the consideration of Congress a report by the Secretary of State resubmitting a claim of the Campagnie Francais des Cables Télégraphiques for damages done to their cables by United States military and naval authorities during the Spanish-American war.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 15, 1905.

POSTAGE ON PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Mr. STONE. I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate at this time the resolution which I submitted yesterday.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further resolutions, concurrent or other, the Chair lays before the Senate a resolution yesterday submitted by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. STONE]; which will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be directed to inform the Senate whether under the construction placed by his Department upon existing law prescribing the postage for periodical publications, and under the rules and practice of his Department, periodicals published by colleges and universities, or by alumni associations or students of colleges and universities, are admitted to the mails as second-class matter; and also to inform the Senate whether any discrimination has been made or preference allowed any such publications over other similar publications in admitting them to the mails; and if so, to inform the Senate in detail, so far as practicable, to what extent and in what particular instances such discriminations have been made or preferences allowed, and how long the same have been continued, with the reasons therefor.

Mr. STONE. Mr. President, I wish to detain the Senate a few moments in an effort to explain the occasion for this resolution and its object.

I desire to say at this point that there is no purpose in submitting the resolution to criticise the Post-office Department, but I think, on the information I have, that a condition has grown up in the Department concerning matters such as I am proposing to inquire about, which ought not to exist, which is wrong, and my purpose is to bring the facts before the Senate as a basis for some action, if it can be had, to correct that condition.

If there be no objection, Mr. President, I will ask the Secretary to read a letter which I received from the editor of a publication known as "The Missouri Alumni Quarterly," issued at Columbia, Mo. This letter I received some weeks ago, shortly before I came to Washington to attend this session of this Congress, and it quite fully explains the matter in hand.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Missouri sends to the Secretary's desk and asks to have read a certain letter. Without objection, it will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI,
Columbia, Mo., November 16, 1905.

Hon. WILLIAM J. STONE,
Senate Chamber, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: You will, we trust, pardon this intrusion upon your valuable time, but we must call your attention to a recent ruling of the Post-Office Department, which involves us in serious financial loss and those authorities in a grave injustice.

The Alumni Association of the University of Missouri has recently begun the publication of an "Alumni Quarterly," a magazine of from 60 to 70 pages, published four times a year at stated intervals, price $1.50 per annum, and devoted to any and all things of interest to former students and graduates of the university. It is, in all respects, similar to magazines such as the "Harvard Graduate Magazine," the "Michigan Alumnus," the "Brown Alumni Monthly," the "Yale Alumni Weekly," and scores of other publications which are freely allowed entry to the mails as second-class matter. The "Vanderbilt University Quarterly," published, not independently like our magazine, but by the authorities of that university, frankly as a kind of bulletin of news and at the purely nominal subscription price of 50 cents per year, receives those rates. Even the "Independent," a purely student publication at this very University of Missouri, secures them. But—and this is our point—when we recently, in September, when our first number appeared, made application for such rates, our application was turned down. Now, we feel keenly that this action is a very grave injustice to us, to the interests of our great and growing university, and therefore to our entire State, and we wish to protest against it. And we protest all the more vigorously because the money loss involved, besides the petty annoyances to which we will be subjected by this ruling, may mean the failure of our publication. All we want is "a square deal," a fair field, and no favors. If we are to be excluded from the benefits of the second-class rates, we demand that similar publications be treated in the same way. If the others are to enjoy them, we demand them also as our right. And we speak in behalf of 25,000 former students and graduates of the University of Missouri.

We trust that amid your many more important duties you will find time to have this wrong righted.

Very sincerely,

W. W. ELWANG, Editor.

Mr. STONE. Mr. President, on arriving in Washington I visited the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General and discussed this matter with him and his chief clerk. The Third Assistant Postmaster-General said he would have it examined and would write me concerning it at an early date, which he did. I will ask the Secretary to read his letter.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the Secretary will read as requested.

The Secretary read as follows:

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL,
Washington, December 7, 1905.

Hon. W. J. STONE,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

SIR: Referring to your personal call yesterday, relative to the recent denial of admission of The Missouri Alumni Quarterly to the second-class of mail matter at Columbia, Mo., I have the honor to inform you that, judged by the copy of the September, 1905, issue submitted with the application, this publication clearly comes within the class referred to in the inclosed marked copies of Circulars II and XIII as inadmissible to the second class of mail matter.

The law (act of March 3, 1879) does not prohibit the admission of publications published by or for colleges, schools, etc., as a class, but only those whose scope is restricted to such an extent that they are merely local bulletins of personal information and not information of a public character in the particular sense contemplated by the law.

The claim made by the publisher that other publications apparently similar in character are passing in the mails at the second-class rates of postage is undoubtedly well founded, but this is one of the abuses of the second-class mailing privileges which this office is endeavoring to correct as speedily as the circumstances in each particular case warrant.

The letter addressed to you by the editor of The Missouri Alumni Quarterly is returned herewith as requested.

Respectfully,

EDWIN C. MADDEN,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Mr. STONE. Mr. President, I might have let the matter rest at that point and left the correction of the whole matter to the Department except for what follows. In one of the circulars referred to in the letter just read, inclosed to me, is what I hold in my hand—the one referred to as Circular No. XIII. It is a reply made by the Postmaster-General of date February 26, 1902, to a resolution of the Senate, and from this I desire to read. The resolution was passed by the Senate February 4, 1902, and is as follows:

Resolved, That the Postmaster-General be directed to inform the Senate what is the construction placed by his Department upon the existing law prescribing the postage for periodical publications like those published by churches, parishes, missionary and other associations, containing in part advertisements, in part general intelligence or miscellaneous articles, and in part items of news of special interest to the members of the particular organizations under whose authority they are published, giving either, as may be found convenient, a list of such publications in regard to which special rules have been made by the Department, or such examples as will illustrate the position of the Department.

It will be observed that this resolution is similar in form to the one I have offered and covers substantially the same ground. in reply to that resolution, amongst other things, the Postmaster-General said:

Directly answering the inquiry in the resolution, I have to say that the present position of the Post-Office Department toward publications issued by the institutions named in the resolution is that when their contents consist wholly or mainly of matter relating to those institutions, and not of matter of a general public character, that they do not come within the scope of the law; that is to say, they have not the inherent qualities of genuine newspapers or periodical publications "originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character" in the sense contemplated by law. Hence they may not be admitted to the second class.

Mr. President, I have no wish to question at this time the accuracy of this construction of the postal law. It may be correct; for my present purposes, I am willing to consent that it is correct.

Mr. SPOONER. Is it a college monthly?

Mr. STONE. In response to the Senator, I will say that I hold in my hand the issue of September last of the publication I am speaking of, and concerning which this correspondence was had. It is called the "Missouri Alumni Quarterly." It is printed at Columbia, Mo., at which place our State university is located. It is printed under the auspices of the alumni association of the university. There are some 25,000 former students of that university, not all graduates, and therefore not members of its alumni association, but men and women who have gone out from the university and who are scattered broadcast over the country and are engaged in all the multitudinous activities represented in the industrial and professional life of the country.

It would seem to me, Mr. President, that a publication of this character, having some 70 pages of reading matter, original and selected, and a great deal of which is of general interest, should have the privilege of the mails as second-class matter. Even if true that the larger part of the contents of this publication be of special interest to the students, former students, and officers of the university—even if that were the entire character of its contents—it clientele is so large, embracing some 25,000 people, that it is, in my opinion, of such importance and dignity as to entitle it to the mailing privileges it seeks.

Mr. SPOONER. It is not printed for the purpose of making money?

Mr. STONE. It is not printed, as the Senator says, to make money.

But the particular point I desire to present and emphasize is this: I hold in my hand the other circular referred to in the letter of Assistant Postmaster-General Madden—Circular II—inclosed to me with his communication, from which I wish to read. This is a circular letter bearing date December 18, 1902—three years ago. It is directed to the postmaster at Chicago, Ill., and is a letter written in reply to an inquiry made of the Department by that postmaster. The inquiry evidently concerned publications of the very character of the one printed by the Alumni Association of the Missouri University. I read as follows:

The Department has uniformly held that publications like—

The one which is being considered, the name of which is not given—published by students and whose columns are composed almost entirely of purely local items concerning the students themselves, or the university, college, or school to which they are attached—no different, indeed, from newspapers or periodicals published by the employees of any mercantile establishment by themselves and for the dissemination among themselves of items of interest solely to them—are not published "for the dissemination of information of a public character" within the meaning of the law; nor are they "devoted to literature, the sciences, arts, or some special industry;" and, inasmuch as their purpose and object are not such as the provisions of the law prescribe to entitle them to the subsidized second-class rates of postage, they are, therefore, not admissible to the second-class of mail matter.

Now, I call special attention to this clause in that circular:

The claim that publications similar in character to this publication are passing in the mails as second-class matter is no doubt well founded; but the mailing thereof at the subsidized second-class rate of postage is one of the many abuses of the second-class mailing privilege which the Department is endeavoring to eradicate as speedily as possible and as the circumstances in each individual case will warrant.

The language I have just quoted from this letter of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Edwin C. Madden, of date December 18, 1902, is almost identical with the language used by the same officer in one paragraph of his letter to me, read by the Secretary.

Now, Mr. President, assuming that the construction of the law as made by the Department is correct and should stand, I have a right to protest, not in a spirit of resentment, but as a matter of justice and equality, that if publications like this Missouri Alumni Quarterly and identical with it are admitted to the mails as second-class matter, and are to-day enjoying that privilege, then it is a privilege that ought to be extended to all such publications. It ought to be extended to all or denied to all.

The statement in the letter of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General to me that an effort is being made by the Department to correct the abuse complained of as rapidly and speedily as possible loses its force when I find that exactly the same question was submitted to the Department nearly four years ago by a Senate resolution, and that three years ago the same Assistant Postmaster-General, in a letter to the Chicago postmaster, stated, as he does in his letter to me, that such publications were being admitted to the mails; that it was an abuse of the law; that they were improperly and unlawfully admitted, and that the Department was striving to correct the evil as speedily as it could be done. It seems to me that three or four years ought to be ample time to correct this abuse, if it be an abuse, and if there is a real purpose to correct it. It ought not to require much time to make the correction and the process for doing it simple.

Now, we are told by Mr. Elwang, the editor of this Missouri periodical, that several publications—the names of which he gives, and of identically the same character as the one with which he is connected—are admitted to the mails as second-class matter; and I have a letter from him this morning stating that a similar publication issued from the University of Wisconsin has been enjoying this privilege for more than seven years. That is the thing I protest against; not that I object to the privileges enjoyed by other college publications, but to the fact that like privileges are denied to similar publications. I want to know, and I think the Senate ought to know, Mr. President, whether this condition exists and the reason for permitting it, and to find that out I have offered this resolution.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution submitted by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. STONE].

The resolution was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, returned to the Senate the bill (S. 1475) to provide that the 2 per cent bonds issued under section 8 of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans,' approved June 28, 1902, shall have the same rights and privileges that are accorded by law to other 2 per cent bonds of the United States," being, in the opinion of the House, as respects the first clause of the seventh section of the first article of the Constitution, an infringement on the privileges of the House.

PANAMA CANAL BONDS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following resolution from the House of Representatives; which was read:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
December 15, 1905.

Resolved, That the bill (S. 1475) to provide that the 2 per cent bonds issued under section 8 of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans,' approved June 28, 1902, shall have the same rights and privileges that are accorded by law to other 2 per cent bonds of the United States," in the opinion of this House, as respects the first clause of the seventh section of the first article of the Constitution, is an infringement on the privileges of this House, and that the said bill be taken from the Speaker's table and be respectfully returned to the Senate with a message communicating this resolution.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask that the resolution may lie on the table for the present.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It will be so ordered.

PANAMA CANAL APPROPRIATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further morning business that order is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill 480, being the deficiency appropriation bill for the Panama Canal.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 480) supplemental to an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans," approved June 28, 1902, and making appropriation for isthmian canal construction, and for other purposes.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

Mr. BACON. Will the Senator from South Carolina yield to me?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. TILLMAN. I do.

Mr. BACON. I wish to offer an amendment to the bill. I offer it as an amendment to come in as a separate section at the close of the last section of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment submitted by the Senator from Georgia will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to add at the end of the bill the following as a new section:

SEC. 3. The Secretary of the Treasury, within ninety days from the passage of this act, and thereafter at the beginning of each regular session, shall submit to Congress estimates in detail covering all salaries and compensation for all persons, except laborers, employed in the construction of the Panama Canal, or in connection with the same, by the Isthmian Canal Commission, including all officers and officials of said Commission.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, the bill we have under consideration deals with a very important matter, and the more we discuss it the greater its importance grows, because we find that it involves other serious and grave questions.

The Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] yesterday, in discussing this bill, declared that the annexation of the Philippines and their government since the war, with all its consequences, had cost us $800,000,000. He expressed his opinion that the benefits were nothing. I do not know whether his estimate is correct—I presume it is approximately so—but it seems to me that the annexation of the Philippine Islands has involved this Government in far more serious trouble than the mere expenditure of hundreds of millions, though that were done wantonly, uselessly.

We have lost our simplicity as a republic; we have thrown away the ideals of the fathers; we have abandoned all the fundamental principles of self-government and of free government to enter upon—I will not say the downward road, but certainly, unless something is done to check it, it will prove to be a downward road that will grow very steep the farther we travel that way. Virgil tells us that the descent to hell is very easy—facilis descensus averni—but it is the retracing of one's steps, the returning, the getting back, that involves labor and work; and it appears to me that it is opportune for the Congress to consider gravely whether there is not here in this bill and the policy involved cause for serious and careful study. It opens up an issue that must be met some time. The sooner it is met the better for all concerned.

In his maiden speech, as it was called, the brilliant Senator from Indiana [Mr. BEVERIDGE] gave the Senate an exhibition of his marvelous powers as a rhetorician and the faculty which he possesses of coining fine phrases and words, probably licking them into shape after considerable time and labor, and then reproducing them as an orator. I have no criticism to make of the Senator. I do not possess that happy faculty. I am sorry for it. I only envy him the ability to prepare a speech and then deliver it after he has been able by time and labor to perfect it, to polish it, to make it glitter in all its parts, and have it joined together logically and neatly in the very best literary style.

I wish to quote a brief paragraph which I recollect. It struck me very forcibly at the time, so I got the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and looked it up. I will read it as illustrating something of the new faith that not only obtains but is being put into practice, and as I am an old fogy I want to take issue with this new doctrine of government.

I repeat that our Government and our administrators must be examples. You can not teach the Filipino by precept. An object lesson is the only lesson he comprehends. He has no conception of pure, orderly, equal, impartial government under equal laws justly administered, because he has never seen such a government. He must be shown the simplest results of good government by actual example in order that he may begin to understand its most elementary principles.

Such a government will have its effect upon us here in America, too. Model administration there will be an example created by ourselves for model administration here; and our own example is the only one Americans ever heed. It is not true that charity begins at home. Selfishness begins there, but charity begins abroad and ends in its full glory in the home. It is not true that perfect government must be achieved at home before administering it abroad; its exercise abroad is a suggestion, an example, and a stimulus for the best government at home.

Mr. LODGE. When was that, let me ask the Senator?

Mr. TILLMAN. January 9, 1900.

Here we have the new evangel of imperialism—Cæsarism—the doctrine that the Constitution of our fathers and the laws of Congress are not altogether essential to the best government. I am interpreting liberally, because I shall give examples to show that I have foundation for my interpretation.

Now, to get a little nearer home, or to come back home after this excursion into the East, I wish to call attention briefly to two or three things which have struck me as illustrating the idea of the Senator from Indiana in regard to the improvement on our past methods of governing ourselves, which our experience in the Philippines has brought to us.

The President of the United States, as every man recognizes, is a brilliant man, an able man, and a hard worker. I will go further than that, and say that I believe he is a patriotic man, and that he has at heart nothing but the best interests of his country, as he sees them. Now, in saying this I am very liberal. But I want to direct your attention to two or three actions of his which, in my judgment, prove beyond dispute that he is, when his heart is set on anything, absolutely oblivious of the law, indifferent to the Constitution, and in the determination to have his own sweet way he tramples under foot ruthlessly the Constitution of his country, or else, which would be almost an impossible supposition, he does these things without knowing. He is ignorant.

I will illustrate by reference to his action in the Panama Republic business, when, without any authority of law or of Congress, he sent an armed vessel of the United States to a harbor belonging to the Republic of Colombia, which Government was preparing to reduce to subjection her rebellious province—Panama—and gave notice, after he had recognized the Panama Republic, that any attempt on the part of Colombia to bring troops to the Isthmus or to come within 50 miles of it, as I recollect the order, would be prevented by arms. If that was not an act of war, I do not understand the meaning of the term.

Mind you, those of us who were anxious for the Panama Canal—and I was among the number—did desire to get it in some decent and honorable way. There were some of us who wanted it so badly we did not care whether or not there was any decency or honor in the transaction. Therefore we ruthlessly pressed forward, or the President did, the Government backing him up by a large majority, and set up this Panama Republic which possessed the jewel we wanted, as Senator Hoar phrased it—that is, the Isthmus across which we proposed to cut the canal. The result has been that we have got what we claim to be a good title to the Isthmus and the right to cut the canal through it or across it, and that is all.

I merely cite that to illustrate my opinion that the President had no authority or right as Chief Executive of this Republic to do what he did. But we indorsed his action. We approved it—I mean a majority of the Senate and of Congress did—we appropriated money to purchase the title of the French company, and we are at work under their franchise cutting through the Isthmus.

To come down a little further—to illustrate my contention that the Chief Executive ignores the Constitution, tramples the law under his heel, exercising in his own person both executive and legislative functions, ignoring the Senate—he sent to this body the past winter a treaty with the Republic of Santo Domingo. That treaty was not ratified by the Senate. The Senate refused to give its approval to the proposal that this Government should enter upon the untried path of being policeman for the Western Hemisphere and debt collector for all Christendom.

But as soon as the Senate adjourned and "Congress was no longer on his hands," to use a phrase which I believe was originated by Mr. Cleveland, the Chief Executive goes forward along the lines laid down in his treaty, taking the ports of Santo Domingo under control, through American officers, and puts a fleet there to protect the Morales Government and to protect the Americans in collecting the duties on imports into that island; and that condition is in full force and effect now. The treaty, if it had been ratified, would have authorized this, but the Senate refused to ratify the treaty, and yet the treaty is being carried out just as though it had been ratified.

This is an illustration of what I have said is a new departure in controlling our destinies and having the Executive become the one factor in Government, while the Senate sits here to servilely submit and the House is gagged. Even if it wanted to speak it could not. I do not think it wants to very much. So we have an exhibition of the rapidity with which we are traveling toward one-man power and centralized government and the abolition of any law but executive authority wherever the Chief Executive chooses to usurp power. Give a man an inch, I have always heard, and he will take an ell.

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator from South Carolina allow me to ask him a question for information?

Mr. TILLMAN. I am glad to have the Senator from Wisconsin ask me a question.

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator be good enough to say what power he understands the President to have usurped in any arrangement which has been made with Santo Domingo or in respect of Santo Domingo since the adjournment of Congress?

Mr. TILLMAN. I assert that practically the President is carrying out the treaty with that so-called "Republic."

Mr. SPOONER. In what respect, may I ask the Senator?

Mr. TILLMAN. He has a fleet there protecting the Morales Government in control of the island and protecting the American officers who are collecting the revenues from imports in the exercise of unlawful authority.

Mr. SPOONER. Does the Senator think under the Constitution the President is to ask the Senate where he shall send ships of the Navy?

Mr. TILLMAN. No.

Mr. SPOONER. Then wherein, because our ships are in or about the harbors of Santo Domingo, by order of the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, has he usurped any power in that respect?

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, it is not the fleet being there that I am speaking about. I am speaking about carrying out the treaty which has not been ratified.

Mr. SPOONER. And I ask the Senator to be kind enough to indicate, in order that the Senate and I may fully understand him, in what respect the President has carried out the treaty or any part of it since the Congress adjourned?

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator from Wisconsin is a very adroit antagonist in a law court, and he is a supple acrobat in playing with words, if that is not an Irish bull of a simile.

Mr. SPOONER. It is a bull all right.

Mr. TILLMAN. I want to ask the Senator a question. Is not the present condition of affairs in respect to Santo Domingo the very relation which the treaty would have produced?

Mr. SPOONER. Not at all.

Mr. TILLMAN. What would it have been?

Mr. SPOONER. The President states in his message. If the treaty had been ratified the custom-houses of Santo Domingo would be in the custody of officers of the United States, serving under the designation or appointment of the President. The Senator so understands it, does he not?

Mr. TILLMAN. Yes.

Mr. SPOONER. The President states in his message, which I understand to be the fact, that the officials now acting in Santo Domingo who are Americans are acting under appointment of President Morales.

Mr. TILLMAN. By what authority?

Mr. SPOONER. By authority of President Morales.

Mr. TILLMAN. Who suggested their names?

Mr. SPOONER. The President probably recommended them as honest and efficient men.

Mr. TILLMAN. Ah! It is all beating about the bush. It is accomplishing indirectly and by trickery, if I may use such a phrase, what the Executive proposed to do if the treaty had been ratified, and when the Senate would not give him the legal authority, he took the authority in his own hands to go forward and do what he wanted to do; and now the whole programme is to play on words and to deny that he has usurped authority, although in effect and in fact he has done it.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator asked me a question. I was endeavoring to answer it. There is no trickery about it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, no. It is bold, brazen.

Mr. SPOONER. It is not a nice thing to impute in the Senate to the President of the United States, to whatever party he may belong, trickery.

Mr. TILLMAN. When a man accomplishes something by indirect methods, by unlawful methods, that he can not get at by direct methods, I call it trickery. I may be wrong; I sometimes say things rather bluntly and maybe my words are too blunt, but I still have that impression; and I can not get rid of it unless the Senator can convince me that I have misunderstood the situation.

Mr. SPOONER. First, while I do not want to take the Senator's time, that is a nasty and undignified word to be applied——

Mr. TILLMAN. Just suggest something that is not nasty and undignified, because I do not like to use nasty and undignified phrases.

Mr. SPOONER. To be applied in one of the coordinate, independent branches of this Government to the head of another.

Mr. TILLMAN. Suggest something better.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator's idea is so utterly wrong that I do not think it can be repaired and made right.

I want to say this to the Senator: If the President of the United States had appointed Americans to go there and the Americans under his appointment had taken the custom-houses of Santo Domingo and administered them, distributing the funds received as provided by the treaty, the President would be carrying out the treaty and it would be an utterly indefensible thing—a thing that could hardly be imputed to any President we have ever had. He has not done that, he says.

Mr. TILLMAN. Yet the Senator acknowledges that these men are there doing this thing. The money is being distributed; as the treaty provides, it is being put in bank.

Mr. SPOONER. The President has not done that.

Mr. TILLMAN. The 45 per cent which was to go to the Dominican Government is being delivered to the Dominican Government, and the 55 per cent which was to go to the creditors pro rata, or something like that, is being held.

Mr. SPOONER. He has not done that.

Mr. TILLMAN. Tell us what he has done.

Mr. SPOONER. As I understand his message, he says what he has done. As I understand the fact to be, he has done this: In order to maintain the status until the Senate could act upon the treaty——

Mr. TILLMAN. When the Senate had adjourned, having the whole summer to sit here and deal with the treaty and had refused peremptorily to take it up or consider or ratify it, what excuse did he have for not withdrawing and coming away and leaving the Senate to deal with the subject this winter? It was just his own idea; the necessity of the situation.

Mr. SPOONER. I will not attempt to answer any further the Senator's question, if he will not permit me——

Mr. TILLMAN. I beg the Senator's pardon. But I insist that he shall answer it. Tell us what he has done.

Mr. SPOONER. If the Senator will permit me I will proceed.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will be quiet and sit down until the Senator gets through answering.

Mr. SPOONER. That encourages me to proceed.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator does not need very much encouragement to proceed.

Mr. SPOONER. I will say this and very briefly, for I do not wish to interrupt the Senator.

The Senate adjourned without action upon the treaty. I do not mind saying in the open, Mr. President, although perhaps its propriety may be challenged, that, in my opinion, the Senate ought not to have adjourned without acting upon the treaty in the circumstances, either by ratifying it or rejecting it, for it left the President of necessity in a position of embarrassment. It is well settled, and it has always been, and in the nature of things must be, that it is the duty of a government which has entered into a treaty with another government to do nothing, or to permit nothing to be done, pending its ratification which would change the status so as to render ratification unavailing or rob either of the parties to it, if ratified, of the advantages contemplated in its negotiation.

The Senate adjourned without acting upon the treaty. It was the duty of Santo Domingo under international law to maintain that status, to keep all foreign governments, creditors of Santo Domingo or representing creditors of Santo Domingo, from seizure of the custom-houses or sequestration of its revenues. It was easy for us to maintain on our part the status quo, for we had nothing to do, and the President could fold his arms and wait. But Santo Domingo could not as against foreign ships. In the Venezuela matter the tribunal at The Hague had made a decision which put upon every foreign government the motive, a premium upon making haste with its war ships to levy forcible execution—if I may use that word—upon the governmental revenues of the debtor Government.

Mr. TILLMAN. When they were weak.

Mr. SPOONER. That has nothing to do with what I am saying. That tribunal decided that the Government which first sent its ship and the second and third were entitled to preference in the peaceful collection of their debts later.

Mr. TELLER. May I ask the Senator a question?

Mr. SPOONER. Yes, sir; although I am speaking in the time of the Senator from South Carolina, and I do not want to take it.

Mr. TELLER. I have just come into the Chamber and I did not know that.

Mr. TILLMAN. Go ahead. I have no objection to having the Senator from Colorado interrupt the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. TELLER. Does that decision of The Hague Court apply to cases where there was a controversy between governments as to the validity of the debt? Was it not to apply where the debt was acknowledged?

Mr. SPOONER. It was a controversy between foreign governments and Venezuela as to the debt. It was a controversy between Santo Domingo——

Mr. TELLER. Wait a moment. Do I understand that the court at The Hague decided that where a government made a claim against another government which that government denied they were then justified to take possession with their ships?

Mr. SPOONER. The Venezuelan claims were, a part of them, private claims. Germany sent her ships there, England sent ships there, France did it—or the third government was Italy, perhaps.

Mr. TELLER. Did they not decide that the debt was owing and Venezuela declared it was not owing?

Mr. SPOONER. Certainly they decided that the debt was owing——

Mr. TELLER. They rendered judgment.

Mr. SPOONER. As debts were owing to other governments, which did not send any ships there. Debts were owing our citizens, and we did not send ships there. What they decided was that governments which moved first and sent ships first were entitled to preference—to priority of payment over those governments which did not employ military force by way of menace.

Now, when the Senate adjourned, under that doctrine it left every motive to foreign governments to send their ships to Santo Domingo, and one ship was sent there to seize the custom-house. If the President of the United States had folded his arms, if he had waited until this day, does the Senator think that other ships of creditor nations would not have been in the harbor of Santo Domingo?

Mr. TILLMAN. I do not want to interrupt at this stage.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator can answer that in a moment now. President Morales, out of his helplessness, knowing, as I understand it, for I am stating it as I understand it, that the treaty could not be carried into effect, as the President knew, as everyone knew, asked the President to recommend to him honest, capable American citizens whom he might appoint as the agents, not of the United States, but of Santo Domingo, to collect these revenues, and dispose of them, not as the United States should say, not as the proposed treaty provides, but as Morales, by decree, might declare, hoping thereby, with the presence of American ships, which had been there more or less for some years, and which the President does not have to ask permission of the Congress to send anywhere, provided it be not as an act of war, that the status would be maintained. The President recommended officials competent, so far as ability goes, honest men, men who had proved themselves in our own service worthy of confidence. Those men were appointed by Morales. Those men can be dismissed by Morales. Those men are paid by Santo Domingo. They are the agents of Santo Domingo. They are disposing of the funds as decreed by President Morales; and undoubtedly the fact that they are American citizens, although acting as the agents of a foreign government, with the moral effect of the presence of American ships in that vicinity, have operated to maintain the status and send away the Italian war ship, and probably to keep others away.

The President states that it is an arrangement temporary in its character. If it shall be the pleasure of the Senate when it acts upon the treaty to reject it, the arrangement is at an end. These agents are paying over to Santo Domingo the proportion of collections which Morales decrees. If the treaty were being carried into effect there would be some distribution being made of the surplus over the 45 per cent.

Mr. TELLER. Where does it go now?

Mr. SPOONER. It is deposited to abide the result.

Mr. TELLER. The result of what?

Mr. SPOONER. The result of our action on the treaty. If the treaty is not ratified it belongs to Santo Domingo, and each government will pursue its own course toward the seizure of it and the collection of its indebtedness.

So, Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina may call it trickery——

Mr. TILLMAN. That is what it looks like to me.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator may call it trickery, he may call it usurpation. In fact there is neither trickery in it nor usurpation in it, in my opinion. The President has done what, being left as he was left by the nonaction of the Senate, it was his duty to do, and that is all.

Mr. TILLMAN. Has the Senator answered the question to his satisfaction?

Mr. SPOONER. I have answered it to my satisfaction in this respect: I have attempted to state to the Senator the facts as I understand them.

Mr. MONEY. Is the Senator through?

Mr. SPOONER. I am through. I beg the pardon of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. MONEY. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Mississippi?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. MONEY. I do not care to interrupt this debate, except that the distinguished Senator from Wisconsin has evidently impressed on his mind a situation different from what I have of Santo Domingo. As a matter of fact, the relations which exist between the United States and that Republic are of a unique character and unprecedented in the history of this country. There are, I understand, six war ships there. I do not know that they are needed anywhere else, and they must cruise; their crews are to be paid and their expenses are to be paid. So I see no objection to that. I have heard it said that there were eleven there. Whether it is to impress upon them the authority of the President of the United States and the power of the United States to take absolute charge of that country, as the President has proposed to do, I do not know, and I am indifferent about it.

As a matter of fact, we are proceeding there now, as I understand it, not on account of any proposed treaty yet pending before the Senate, and which, if the Senate has considered it has at least declined to ratify, but we are proceeding at Bahia under a decree made by the President there and two or three of his friends and not by the Congress.

Mr. SPOONER. When the Senator says the President, he means the President of Santo Domingo.

Mr. MONEY. Oh, I mean President Morales. I said "there." I mean the colored gentleman who presides over the destiny of that mixed little Republic. That decree is called in itself a modus vivendi—a diplomatic phrase that Senators are perfectly familiar with, and a phrase that can only be used when there are two parties to a contract.

Mr. SPOONER rose.

Mr. MONEY. If the Senator will excuse me a moment, a modus vivendi means an agreement between two sovereigns for a tentative or temporary relation pending negotiations between them that it is supposed will lead to a treaty ultimately.

Mr. SPOONER. Let me say to the Senator from Mississippi that he is undeniably correct, in my opinion, in saying that it is not a modus vivendi, and that the application of that phrase to it is absurd.

Mr. MONEY. Of course I am glad to accept the affirmation of the distinguished Senator in this matter, but I am speakiug of the character of the arrangement by which the fiscal matters are being managed there in that Republic. As a matter of fact, this modus vivendi is nothing of the sort. It is a decree of this President Morales, assisted in its make-up by two or three of his friends, I presume members of his cabinet. And then he appoints whom? A man recommended as very competent and worthy for the place by the President of the United States, and that man assisted by whom? By a man whom he appoints without anybody's recommendation. And those two Americans are there to-day, dispensing the business of that country, collecting its revenues and making a deposit, after the 45 per cent allowed for the current expenses of the Government of Dominica, in a bank in New York, which the Senator says will be the property of the Republic of Santo Domingo. As a matter of fact, it is there subject to drafts drawn by Morales, every one of which must be countersigned by Colonel Colton, of the port of Bahia.

Then these two American citizens who have been selected, one by the President and the other by the first, to administer these affairs are both borne upon the rolls as civil officers of the United States. They are absent indefinitely with leave and without pay. They are lost to the service of this country for the time being, but carried on its rolls to enable this black republic to struggle out of the maze that has been caused by twenty-eight revolutions in about the same number of years, having had in that brief space of time twenty-four Presidents, only one of whom was elected, the others coming in as this one did—by assassination.

Now, this is a pretty mess into which the United States chooses to enter itself—I will not say the United States, but its Executive Chief—without the consent of Congress, upon a treaty based upon an instrument that was two years old before it was brought to the attention of the Senate and which, in my opinion, would never have been brought here if it had not been discovered that such a treaty was in existence; a treaty that, in the first place, is signed by an American minister who signs himself as representing the Republic of the United States of North America—as if there was such a republic on the face of the globe—who did not even know the name of the government he represented there.

Now, by this treaty, which is not under discussion, and it would be out of place to mention it if it were, except in executive session, we are called upon to subscribe to a modus vivendi, a decree by this President and two of his friends, and submit to him for his use two officers of the United States, and to have at the command of those officers a fleet of six men-of-war of differing sizes and classes, of course, and according to another report eleven vessels of war. In other words, we are about to embark upon the business of taking care of other people and attending to other business than our own, departing from the time-honored custom of Washington and Jefferson to stay at home and enter into no alliances except those of a strictly commercial character, and it is expected that this Senate and the people of the United States are to approve of this proceeding.

Then Venezuela comes in with her eighty revolutions in eighty-one years. In fact, as a traveler once said in the Revue des Deux Mondes, from Patagonia to Panama it was one series of unvarying despotism tempered by assassination.

And now where will we end? Because the President has said to us that if these several republics lying south will behave themselves, pay their debts, abstain from disorders and riotous conduct, and not loosen the bonds of civilization, we will be very helpful to them, as he is being now in Santo Domingo; but if they do not pay their debts and should become in any manner in his judgment unseemly, then we have the "big stick," that we have heard so much about, come into play. Walk softly with the "big stick" and you will go far with the President, which by recent light I interpret to mean that the "big stick" is to be displayed upon weaker republics and we are to walk softly among the greater nations of the world.

Now, Mr. President, whatever may be the fate of the measure pending, whenever you introduce here a discussion of the act of the President in that regard it seems to me almost indefensible. I do not wish to say anything that would detract from the power and privilege and prerogative and the constitutional duty of the President to do what in his mind seems best for the interest of this country, but there is such a thing as constitutional limitations upon his power; there is such a thing as limitation by the President; there is such a thing as respect due to the opinion of the world; but when it is believed, as he says he does, that he can better promote the interests of the country by interference without a constitutional warrant for it, it is time for this Senate at least to cry a halt.

The President admitted in the message sent to this honorable body that he had violated international law. Why? Because in his judgment it was better that he should do as he did. According to the decision of the Supreme Court international law is the law of this country. The Constitution does not say so. It says that the laws and treaties passed agreeably to it shall be the law of the land. But the Supreme Court has said in a hundred cases perhaps that international law is a part of the law of the land. So the President sets aside not only international law, but the law of the land, and substitutes his own judgment. I ask you, Senators, what are laws for, whether organic or statutory, but to prohibit and limit the Executive from substituting his will for law; in other words, in this country his will for the will of the whole people of the United States expressed in their statutes, in their treaties, and in the decsions of her courts?

So, Mr. President, I decline to entertain the view expressed by my distinguished and able friend from Wisconsin. I know his mind is clear enough, but we have always to view things from different standpoints. The learned judges upon the bench will differ with the same facts and the same arguments presented by the same distinguished counsel. So I beg leave to differ yet antipodally with him on this question. I do not believe we have any business there. I do not believe the President has any authority to make business there. I think our business is to attend to our own business and let other people alone. This imaginary obligation imposed by the Monroe doctrine is a pure fiction, a mere figment of his brain. It has no lodging place in any conduct of any administration that I am aware of or any doctrine taught by any man that spoke upon the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Wisconsin?

Mr. MONEY. I yield so far as I am concerned.

Mr. TILLMAN. This debate has gone entirely away from the question.

Mr. MONEY. I beg pardon. I took the floor.

Mr. TILLMAN. I brought this question in as an illustration of something else, and I do not want to cut it off. It is very interesting and instructive, and I am obliged to my brethren on this side of the Chamber for coming to my assistance with their greater familiarity with our foreign relations and international law than I claim to possess. I am dealing with a concrete proposition, and I want to call the Senator's attention to it before I leave. I will give him a chance, but I do not shut him off like he has done me on several occasions. The President, in this message which the Senator has quoted, says:

> This treaty is pending before the Senate. In the meantime a temporary arrangement has been made——

Mr. SPOONER. In what part of the message?

Mr. TILLMAN. On page 28, near the middle.

> In the meantime a temporary arrangement has been made which will last until the Senate has had time to take action upon the treaty.

Mind you, the Senate had time, and the Senate did not want to take action. The Senate adjourned, as it had a right to do. It is a temporary arrangement he made to carry out in effect just what the treaty provided for and that the Senate would not agree to. The Executive steps forward by what I called a trick, accomplishes his own purposes and puts the treaty in operation; and the Senator from Wisconsin, with his magnificent ability as a special pleader—not that he has not got ability that is very magnificent along logical and forceful lines, but with his magnificent ability as a special pleader comes here and undertakes to brush me aside as an ignoramus who knows nothing about the question, and all that kind of thing.

Now, having called his attention to the fact that this thing is being done by arrangement of the President, after the Senate would not do what he asked them to do or wanted them to do, if the Senator wants to pursue it I am willing to give way further.

Mr. SPOONER. I did not rise for the purpose of participating further in debate with the Senator from South Carolina. I will have abundant opportunity to do that later on. I have a fairly good memory, and I am not aware that I have ever shut the Senator from South Carolina off much in the matter of debate with me.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will say in explanation that the Senator was so enthused with the pursuit of his own thought that when I saw a chance to stick, as I imagined, a little bit of a stiletto into his argument and knock it into smithereens or put a quietus on it, I think he must have had a suspicion that there was danger and he could not see me. [Laughter.] I have stood here and said, Mr. President, at least three times, as the RECORD will show, when he was in one of these high flights of oratory, of his pursuing his theme, and he did not hear me, and of course I could not get the ear of the Senator—not that he was not fair or wanted to be unfair, because he fears no man in debate and has no occasion for anything of that sort, but I just simply remarked it in passing. I want to give him every chance in the world, and I want him to pursue this subject, because we have now the time. This is not any short session. We have from now until next December to discuss the question as to whether the Chief Executive has not trenched upon the prerogatives of the Senate and is not pursuing in this and a whole lot of other things, some of which I propose to discuss later if my time does not give out, where he ignores the law and does as he pleases, so to speak; and his brethren on the other side seem to be unwilling to stop him.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, only a moment. Now and then when I have a little time on my hands to waste I look at one of my speeches in the Senate and I find the time pretty evenly divided between the Senator and myself. I never objected to his interrupting me but once, as I recollect it. I find another thing, too, that invariably whenever the Senator has been hard pushed, not by anything, of course, except facts or a sound proposition that was put at him, he has immediately delivered a eulogium on my magnificent ability as a special pleader. [Laughter.]

Mr. TILLMAN. What is the fact in this case? [Laughter.]

Mr. SPOONER. It is the same old fact.

Mr. TILLMAN. It is not a fact, all the same.

Mr. SPOONER. I undertook simply to relate to the Senator what I understood to be the difference between the situation as it is to-day and the situation as it would have been——

Mr. TELLER rose.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to remind Senators that the rule requires that before they can take the floor they must be recognized by the Chair.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin is in order.

Mr. SPOONER. I am not discussing in any way the treaty. That is not permitted under our rules. I have only intended to narrate, as I understand them, the facts, to show the Senator from South Carolina the difference between the situation as it exists and the situation as it would exist had the treaty been ratified and put into operation.

Now, I do not want the Senator from Mississippi to leave the inference, unchallenged by me, that I announced in the observations I was permitted by the Senator from South Carolina to address to the Senate any adhesion to the theory that it is part of the Monroe doctrine or a corollary thereof that the Government of the United States shall attempt to appoint itself receiver of all defaulting South American republics. I have not understood that that is involved in this question at all. That is all I wish to say.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin will not go away.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator need have no alarm.

Mr. TILLMAN. I just wanted to get through this and dismiss it and go on to something else.

Mr. SPOONER. I will be here.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I will resume before I dismiss the phase of this debate, which has been emphasized by the Senator from Wisconsin, by reading a brief extract from the President's message relating to the present situation in Santo Domingo:

> Under this arrangement the Dominican Government has—

That temporary arrangement which I mentioned a little while ago—

> Under this arrangement the Dominican Government has appointed Americans to all the important positions in the customs service—

An arrangement made between Morales and President Roosevelt, mind you, and it takes two to make such an arrangement—> and they are seeing to the honest collection of the revenues, turning over 45 per cent to the Government for running expenses and putting the other 55 per cent into a safe depository for equitable division, in case the treaty shall be ratified, among the various creditors, whether European or American.

This question, I presume, will be debated at great length later on, and I want to say here and now I had not the slightest idea or purpose of precipitating any discussion of it in open Senate, or even to participate in it in executive session when we shall come to consider the treaty. But before dismissing the subject I want to emphasize the point that practically the situation is the same as though the treaty had been ratified.

I was trying to speak to the point, when this side issue was raised, that we have since we entered upon the imperial policy discovered that we are a great nation, governing the Philippines, having conquered them with the bayonet, governing them arbitrarily, without any regard to the rights of the governed or anything of that sort, ignoring and abandoning all of our time-honored principles of government, turning our backs on the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution and all that kind of thing—I was pointing out that we have progressed very far in these seven or eight years along the line of Executive usurpation and of apparent, if not actual, servility and cowardice on the part of both branches of Congress in dealing with the Executive in his encroachments upon the prerogatives of the legislative branch of the Government. I had got to that point, and was illustrating, simply as one of the things which had been done, the action in regard to Santo Domingo. I have some others that will relate more particularly to this appropriation bill which we are discussing, and I want to illustrate the trend of Executive thought and the conditions.

The Secretary of War, in a speech which he delivered in St. Louis on November 18 last, speaks about the Panama Canal Commission. I will read from his speech. He said:

> The President had submitted to Congress during the winter of 1904–5 a recommendation for amendment to the law by which he should be given a freer hand in the number of agents to be selected by him for the work which the act of Congress made it mandatory upon him to perform. He informed Congress that the method of construction by a commission of seven was clumsy and ineffective. The House of Representatives gave the requested power to the President in a bill which it sent to the Senate.
>
> There the bill met determined opposition, and in the short session it was entirely possible for its enemies to defeat it.

With the result that is mentioned by Mr. Taft. And in order to accomplish his purpose again, ostensibly obeying the law, but really not obeying it at all, he secured the resignation of those seven commissioners. Then Secretary Taft proceeded to say:

> And appointed a new Commission under certain regulations as to their procedure, by which he hoped to secure in practice greater centralization of power in the hands of a chairman and an executive committee less than the whole Commission, with its acts subject to confirmation by the Commission.

Finally, here is the accusation, baldy and boldy made, that the enemies of this proposed change in the character or the composition of the Canal Commission had been able to defeat it in the Senate, an indication that there are probably malign influences here or that the Executive will was not obeyed here absolutely and implicitly, and therefore it was necessary, in the judgment of the man at the White House, to go along anyhow under the responsibility imposed on him to build this canal.

Now, it is to deal with this new Commission—some of its personnel—that I want to talk a little. Under the general authority given to the President to construct the canal, without limitations as to the number of his agents, the amount of their compensation, or anything like that—spending $135,000,000 at least, probably $335,000,000, nobody knows how much before we get through with it—instead of Congress taking the time and trouble to provide for some machinery that would have limitations and restrictions upon it, and legal bars to climb over before certain things could be done, everything is in the hands of the President. The President appoints a Commission, puts it under the control of the Secretary of War, and the Commission thus constituted, under the general suprevision of the Secretary, and finally under the presonal direction and control of the President—the Secretary being his intermediary and agent—has done certain things. The first is the appointment of that Commission. I will read their names, though Senators are familiar with them, and I will state their compensation.

Name.	Position.	Salary.
T. P. Shonts	Chairman of Commission	$30,000
C. E. Magoon	Commissioner and governor of Zone	17,500
M. T. Endicott, U. S. N.	Commissioner	7,500
O. H. Ernst, U. S. A	do	7,500
P. C. Hains, U. S. A	do	7,500
B. M. Harrod	do	7,500

Here I note something that I want light on. Mr. Endicott, as we all know, is Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks in the Navy Department. "Admiral" is his official title. He gets as admiral $6,220 a year, while his compensation as canal Commissioner is $7,500, an addition of nearly $1,300. Mr. Ernst, who is in the Army as a colonel of engineers, gets $5,220 a year as such Army officer, and $7,500 as a Commissioner—an increase of $2,300. P. C. Hains, United States Army, who is a retired brigadier-general, gets $4,125 a year as an Army officer, and his salary as Commissioner is $7,500.

I read section 1763 of the Revised Statutes. It may not apply to this matter, but I want some of the lawyers on both sides to listen to this, and tell me whether it does not apply; and if not, why not.

SEC. 1763. No person who holds an office the salary or annual compensation attached to which amounts to the sum of $2,500 shall receive compensation for discharging the duties of any other office, unless expressly authorized by law.

Now, these three men whom I have mentioned as Commissioners are only three of many, but I should like to have it settled, at least in the minds of Senators, whether or not it is a lawful exercise of Executive authority to make appointments that appear to be absolutely prohibited by the statute.

Mr. BACON. Will the Senator from South Carolina permit me to interrupt him?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Georgia?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. BACON. Has the Senator the Spooner Act before him?

Mr. TILLMAN. No; I have not.

Mr. BACON. I want to use it in reply to the question the Senator has asked.

Mr. ALLISON. Section 7 of the Spooner Act.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina has asked for an explanation of the matter. I can probably give it to him. With his permission, I will endeavor to do so.

I think that the criticism made by the Senator is eminently proper to be made in all cases where the law does not authorize a departure from the restriction in the section read by him—that is, where there is not some other statute. I have had occasion formerly to remark that in the Senate, in instances where officers of the Army were on duty in Cuba, and where very large sums of money were allowed to them, as I thought then and still think, in absolute contravention and violation of the provision of law which the Senator from South Carolina has read. I think, however, in this case the seventh section of what is known as the Spooner Act does authorize the appointment of Army and Navy officers to these positions and does contemplate that they shall be paid sums other than the amounts specified by the law as their salaries as such military and naval officers.

Mr. TILLMAN. Will the Senator please read it?

Mr. BACON. I will; and I will state to the Senator that if he will mark the language and give it a reasonable construction I do not see how any other conclusion can be reached. Of course the mind of the framer of a law as to the construction of its provisions is not the legislative mind, and his decision is not a decision that is conclusive by any means as to the proper construction of a law, but his intention in framing it may assist in such construction. As I stated a few days ago, when this statute was under consideration it so happens that that particular provision of this law was drafted by myself. If it does not plainly express the intention I have indicated it is my fault in not having used sufficiently plain language. But that was the intention I had in drafting it. I will read the entire section in order that it may appear in the RECORD, since the question has been raised. Section 7 of what is known as the Spooner Act is in these words:

SEC. 7. That to enable the President to construct the canal and works appurtenant thereto as provided in this act, there is hereby created the Isthmian Canal Commission, the same to be composed of seven members, who shall be nominated and appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall serve until the completion of said canal unless sooner removed by the President, and one of whom shall be named as the chairman of said Commission. Of the seven members of said Commission at least four of them shall be persons learned and skilled in the science of engineering, and of the four at least one shall be an officer of the United States Army, and at least one other shall be an officer of the United States Navy, the said officers respectively being either upon the active or the retired list of the Army or of the Navy. Said Commissioners shall each receive such compensation as the President shall prescribe until the same shall have been otherwise fixed by the Congress. In addition to the members of said Isthmian Canal Commission the President is hereby authorized through said Commission to employ in said service any of the engineers of the United States Army at his discretion, and likewise to employ any engineers in civil life, at his discretion, and any other persons necessary for the proper and expeditious prosecution of said work. The compensation of all such engineers and other persons employed under this act shall be fixed by said Commission, subject to the approval of the President. The official salary of any officer appointed or employed under this act shall be deducted from the amount of salary or compensation provided by or which shall be fixed under the terms of this act.

I do not know that it is necessary for me to read the remaining part of the section, for I think the part I have read covers the ground and answers the question of the Senator from South Carolina.

If the Senator will pardon me a moment further, I will simply call his attention to the provisions which were attempted to be expressed there as the intention of the law.

In the first place, there is an express authorization for the appointment of Army officers and Navy officers, not only those who should be nominated or named as Commissioners, but also Army officers who should be appointed as engineers. There is also express authority to the President as to the Commissioners, and to the Commissioners as to the other officers, to fix the salaries—speaking generally—and including Army and Navy officers, without limitation or exception.

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator pardon me a moment?

Mr. BACON. Just one second. In the same connection there is the distinct statement that an officer of the Army or of the Navy who should be thus appointed should have the amount of his official salary as an Army or Navy officer deducted from his salary as an employee in the construction of the canal. This clearly indicates that the Army and Navy officers who should be selected for this work should have the same salaries as civilian officers selected for similar work. The provision that their salaries as military or naval officers should be deducted from the salaries thus fixed for them in connection with their canal work leaves no possible escape from that conclusion.

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, I am entirely satisfied now. I had not run on that fact. Of course I knew about the statute prohibiting a man holding two offices and getting paid for them, but I had not run on that particular provision in what is called the "Spooner Act," is it?

Mr. BACON. Yes. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] will not misconstrue my not having stopped at the moment he asked.

Mr. SPOONER. I only wanted to call the Senator's attention to the fact that the act referred to not only conferred upon the President the authority to appoint an Army officer or a Navy officer, but absolutely required him to do it.

Mr. BACON. Yes; it does.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not complaining of that at all, because I think the Army and Navy of the United States have as fine engineers as the world can produce, and I am a little surprised that we did not find one of those officers who was competent to take charge of this canal as chief and build it upon the same lines of thoroughness and efficiency and economy as the Congressional Library building over here was constructed. I think the work of constructing that building was performed under an Army engineer, was it not?

Mr. ALLISON. Yes.

Mr. TILLMAN. As I said, I merely wanted to get light. I do not know whether I give any light, but I break a hole through the glass so that somebody else can get some sometimes. [Laughter.]

Having disposed of the question as to the legality of the action of putting the Army and Navy officers under the Canal Commission at an increased compensation, the next query that presents itself to my mind is—well, I will say the advisability of taking a man, as Admiral Endicott, who, while he is a very eminent engineer and a man of very high attainments, is about the hardest-worked man I know of in the Navy Department or in any other Department, for he has charge of the construction of all the great docks and other improvements at our various navy-yards, and I know that he is up to the eyes, if not buried, in work, with no opportunity to do more than possibly consult when any question of great engineering moment might be before the Commission. Then the inquiry is, If he can not in the very nature of things, without neglecting his present duties, attend to the duties of a Commissioner, why should they increase his salary at all? He certainly can not go to the Isthmus. He certainly is not going to run any danger of getting malaria or swamp fever or yellow fever or any of the other troubles which might warrant an increase of compensation; and I am willing to acknowledge that an Army officer or Navy officer or civilian who goes to the Isthmus and runs the risks there ought to get better compensation than an employee in this country. That is all right. I do not object to that at all. I myself would not be willing to go there without getting increased compensation; and I always like to treat the other fellow as I should like to be treated myself.

So I am not objecting to that. But the question now is to get back to Mr. Shonts. He receives $30,000 a year. The justification for it, as set forth by Mr. Taft, who is the President's mouthpiece in a measure in this matter, besides what the President said in his message, is that Mr. Shonts has had the experience of a railroad man. He is not or was not president of a great railroad system, because, examining the Railway Guide yesterday, I found out that the Clover Leaf Railroad, of which he was president, only runs from Toledo to St. Louis, and has no forks or branches. It is a straight shoot of 500 or 600 or may be 800 miles; I do not know exactly. Anyhow, I should not consider it as a very great railroad, as railroads go. He may have been president of other railroads; I do not know. He may be the very best man for this place that can be found in the United States; I do not know. Having his road, though, run through prairie, most of the way on a perfectly level country, there are very few engineering problems that anybody connected with it has had to solve; and if his presidency of that railroad did not have something behind it in the way of experience elsewhere, or at least of qualifications that had been shown to exist in other work, I should not consider that as being any very strong proof of his fitness.

But I have got nothing to say about that one way or the other. I propose to deal with Mr. Shonts as the chief executive of this Commission in the light of certain things that have come to my knowledge and have been suggested to me in the hearing we had. In the first place, I have understood that when Mr. Shonts was appointed—sometime last April, I believe it was—he was given to understand, or at least it was the common expectation and so announced, that just so soon as he could wind up his connection with the railroad he would resign and devote his whole time to canal work. Does anybody know whether he has resigned or not? I ask the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON].

Mr. ALLISON. I do not know. I think he has resigned; but I am not certain.

Mr. TILLMAN. I have looked in the Railway Guide for November, in the big book that we are all in the habit of looking into when we want to hunt up our schedules when we desire to roam around—and I roam around a little occasionally—and I saw that he was put down as president of the Clover Leaf Railroad.

Mr. ALLISON. He may be.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure; always.

Mr. HALE. From my information on this subject, I think the Government was very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Shonts. I know something about him. He is a man of great executive ability. He had displayed that not only in reference to the railroad of which he was president, but in other railroad enterprises. He is a man after the Senator's order of mind; he is courageous; he takes responsibility; he knows how to say "no," and, from my acquaintance with him, I believe he has the discrimination to settle the proper time when to say "no;" and he has great force and executive ability. I think if he is given pretty free rein he will advance that work down there faster than anybody else ever has advanced it or is likely to.

I did not mean, in rising, to interrupt the Senator to go generally into this matter, but as special attention has been called to it I thought perhaps the Senator might not be unwilling for me to give my views about Mr. Shonts and his relation to the enterprise.

Now, as to whether technically there has been a resignation of his presidency of that railroad, I do not know. I supposed that he had resigned. I know that when he took up the canal work it was upon the agreement that he should give his entire time and ability to it and that he should in great degree have control and not be hampered in the work. He is that kind of man that he does not desire any kind of work unless he can carry out his views to their ultimate result. I think I may say that, while I do not know whether technically he has presented his resignation or not, he has given himself faithfully and his entire time to this work.

Later in the discussion I may have something more to say about this, but just at this time I wanted to say that in relation to Mr. Shonts.

Mr. TILLMAN. I want the Senate clearly to understand that I am not after any particular man. I had never heard of Mr. Shonts, except through the newspapers, until his appointment. I saw him the other day and was favorably impressed with him. I have no malice against him. I am not gunning for him at all, as the phrase might be. He may be the right man in the right place; I hope he is; but I am merely dealing with the general management as we find it and trying to get at the true inwardness of the situation.

The Senator says he thinks Mr. Shonts has resigned. How many times has he been to the Isthmus in the seven or eight months that he has held office? Twice, I understand, and then for a week only.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, with pleasure. If I am misstating or misunderstanding conditions, I should like to be corrected.

Mr. HALE. My understanding is that the fundamental act requires that there be—I may be wrong—sessions held on the Isthmus four times a year.

Mr. TILLMAN. A session might be an hour or it might be a month.

Mr. ALLISON. The requirement in regard to sessions on the Isthmus is in the President's order.

Mr. HALE. It is in the President's order, based upon the Spooner Act, but I do not think it is contemplated that the chairman of the Commission shall spend most of his time on the Isthmus. The engineer necessarily has to do so, as has Governor Magoon.

Mr. TILLMAN. Governor Magoon has really very little or no connection with the canal. It is Mr. Stevens at present, and it was formerly Mr. Wallace.

Mr. HALE. Mr. Stevens is engineer and does necessarily have to reside on the Isthmus, and Governor Magoon is part of the machinery of the whole thing.

Mr. TILLMAN. He is running the civil branch down there, and he is at Panama.

Mr. HALE. He is at Panama. But if the civil machinery runs badly it would interfere with the canal. He stays on the Isthmus. How much time Mr. Shonts has spent there I do not know, but, knowing him as I do, I do not believe he has in any way shirked any responsibilities and come away from the Isthmus when he was needed there.

Mr. TILLMAN. I do not charge that he has. I am merely trying to find out how he is discharging the great and important duty that has been imposed upon him, for which he is being so well paid. I understand he has only been there twice—one week in July and one week in October; and I see in the New York Herald of this morning an article from a special correspondent, in which he says that all those from Washington connected with the Canal Commission, including Mr. Shonts, who go down there, act as though they were expecting to catch yellow fever as soon as they get off the ship and they hustle at a double-quick to get away. I presume I would like to get away, too, if I was running that risk, but still a man ought not to be paid for something he does not do, and at least as the important head of a great work it would appear necessary for Mr. Shonts thoroughly to familiarize himself with all the conditions there of any moment and to be able intelligently to direct from here the campaign in building the canal. That is the only contention I am trying to make.

Mr. HALE. The Senator has expressed that very well. He has expressed in words better than I could what Mr. Shonts's duty is—so to inform himself of conditions there that he is able to manage and supervise and see that the right thing is done. I have no doubt Mr. Shonts has done just that.

Mr. TILLMAN. I would a heap rather have a committee go down there, run the risk of getting yellow fever, and have a fight with the mosquitoes, and not carry along a bucket of whitewash prepared to smear it on anything they found wrong, and come away and say so. There are some reasons why I have that opinion, and I will give them before I get through.

I wish now to ask another question. Mr. W. Leon Pepperman, who is chief clerk of the Commission, or rather he is assistant chief, as they call it, is also, I am informed, or was, an employee or official of the Clover Leaf road, and is still an employee of the Clover Leaf road, and is doing work for it. Is that true or not?

Mr. HALE. I can only say that I do not know the least thing about it.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am sorry we did not go a little more fully into this investigation when we had Mr. Shonts and those other gentlemen in the Appropriations Committee room the other day. The thing was so hurried there and there seemed to be such intense pressure to get this money available that we did not really probe as deeply and as thoroughly into the various phases of this business as I think we ought to have done. This phase of it will illustrate the absolute necessity, as I take it, for the Interoceanic Canals Committee to begin, at the very earliest date after it has been organized and the vacancies have been filled, to perform its legitimate functions as the intermediary between the Senate and the canal and its control and direction, and give us light whenever we ask for it and be able intelligently to discuss these matters.

Mr. HALE. I agree entirely with the Senator that that committee ought to do that.

Mr. TILLMAN. I do not see how they are going to do it unless they go down there. I do not want the Senate to order them off on a kind of a risky expedition that might involve some of them being hauled home on ice, but the duty should be imposed on somebody, and I confess I want to see it performed.

Mr. HALE. Now, will the Senator allow me for a moment? This reference to Mr. Pepperman——

Mr. TILLMAN. I simply ask for information whether or not he is still an employee or an officer of the Clover Leaf road and is not engaged a good part of his time in transacting railroad business?

Mr. HALE. If the Senator has investigated——

Mr. TILLMAN. I am asking. I want to know. I want somebody else to investigate. I can not investigate.

Mr. HALE. Nobody has any absolute knowledge or is infallible about this matter. I do not believe it is true. I doubt if the Senator has, although he may have, information, any more than a statement or rumor, that this man Pepperman, who is employed on the canal work, employed by the Isthmian Canal Commission, employed by Mr. Shonts as its chairman, with whom he had been associated in railroad work before, who certainly has duties enough to absorb all his time and all his ability, is at the same time employed by a railroad corporation and is giving them a part of his time and is being paid therefor.

I shall be very much surprised, Mr. President, if investigation by whomsoever it is made discloses that fact. Should it disclose that fact, I should say that that is a grievance and a wrong which ought to be righted at once. We hear a great many things; we hear a great many rumors, and statements are made in reference to this and that which investigation does not disclose as being well founded.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am only sorry, as I said, that we did not have more time, or were not able in the brief time at our disposal, to make examination of the gentlemen before the committee. If they swear or say on their honor that they are no longer connected with the road and have received no compensation for work done for the road, that will satisfy me.

Mr. HALE. If we had thought of it——

Mr. TILLMAN. I say it illustrates the miserable policy we are pursuing, if the Senator will permit me. As long as the House of Representatives, under its present organization—and I have no right possibly to mention it even, because I want to be entirely respectful to the coordinate legislative body—continues the policy of making bond provisions and emergency appropriations parts of the same bill and will not allow examination, and the committee report it under the rule and gag everybody and double-quick it through and send it over here, and then we in less degree imitate their drastic processes and double-quick it through, so long the intelligent performance of our duties is impossible; and having no hope that the House is going to change its procedure, at least in the near future, it impresses upon me the greater responsibility of the Senate to legislate intelligently and to be able to inform the country just what is going on, and be able to justify any appropriations of public money and be able also in a measure to certify to its honest expenditure.

Mr. HALE. Undoubtedly.

Mr. TILLMAN. That is all I am trying to bring about.

Mr. HALE. But the Senator will recognize the situation. We were confronted with an undoubted and an undisputed necessity for making this appropriation early. It did not come within our province to go into all of the investigation with reference to the situation. But I think the Senator will bear me out that as a result of the day, the long day, which we spent in faithful examination, in bringing these officials before us and searching them with such questioning as brought out the facts, and important facts, the committee obtained a very valuable education.

Now, I do not say that it did all that it could have done if it had been a committee to which was intrusted the whole subject-matter. If it had been that kind of a committee and we had gone into it to that extent, it would have taken weeks, and the other committee of the Senate that will take it up, whenever it reaches it, will find its work very laborious and very extended and most important.

But I think the Senator, who has been long a member, and an active and important member, of the Committee on Appropriations, will see that, confronted as we were with the necessity of making this appropriation, we could not spend more time on it. The holidays were impending. It is well known you can not keep Senators here. It will be all that the veteran chairman of the committee, who has charge of this bill, can do to get the bill in conference before the House and Senate practically dissolve, and the Members hie away to their respective homes. We had that in view, and the committee is a practical kind of a committee, dealing with all those questions, and I do not think the Senator himself, with his experience in the Senate and on that committee, will say seriously that he thinks we have slighted the public interest in not going into all these questions.

It did not occur to me that there was any question—I never heard it raised—that either Mr. Shonts, whom I do know a good deal about, and Mr. Pepperman, about whom I know little or nothing, was still connected in any way with any railroad enterprise, and not giving his entire time to the canal business. I hope an investigation will show to the Senator that while this has been stated to him, or a memorandum given to him, he will find he is mistaken in that regard.

Mr. ALLISON. I wish to say in addition to what has been said, and so well said, by the Senator from Maine, that the inquiry by the Senator now in respect to these two gentlemen is the first intimation I have ever had that either or both of them were not giving their whole time to this work in which they are engaged. I had not for a moment supposed that in the examination we had the other day it was necessary to ask Mr. Shonts if he was giving his attention to this business, nor did I for a moment suppose that Mr. Pepperman was not doing it.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. CULBERSON. I wish to say to the Senator from South Carolina that I have no personal acquaintance with Mr. Pepperman, but as a member of the Philippines Committee I know he has been connected for some time with the War Department. He was connected with the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department before he had any connection with the Panama Canal, as I understand. While I am unable to state positively that he no longer has any connection with any railroad company, I think it altogether improbable that he has any such connection.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not going to be satisfied, I will state right here, with anybody's belief, because beliefs do not answer in this case. I will take the words of these gentlemen that they have severed their connection and the dates when they did it. That is all; and there is no need for this quasi or indirect defense. The best evidence, according to my knowledge of evidence, is to get it direct; and these gentlemen are available, and let us get it direct.

Mr. HALE. Indeed we will.

Mr. TILLMAN. Well——

Mr. HALE. I have just had this statement given me:

Pepperman was never with the Clover Leaf or any other road. He has been in the Government service for ten years or more—in the civil government of the Philippine Islands and chief clerk of the Insular Bureau before being transferred to the canal work.

That is in correspondence with the impression of the Senator from Texas [Mr. CULBERSON].

Mr. TILLMAN. By whom is that signed?

Mr. HALE. I do not know who it is.

Mr. TILLMAN. I would rather the Senator would not read it. We do not want any anonymous communications sent in here.

Mr. HALE. I venture to say it is better authority and will be better borne out by the facts on investigation than the so-called authority that the Senator has launched upon the Senate and charged this man with what has never taken place.

Mr. TILLMAN. I have not charged it. I have made an inquiry.

Mr. HALE. No; but the Senator has stated——

Mr. TILLMAN. No; I did not state. I said it was what I have heard.

Mr. HALE. That is it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Very well.

Mr. HALE. This is what I have heard.

Mr. TILLMAN. No; you did not hear that. You got that in writing. You can not even tell who wrote it.

Mr. HALE. Neither has the Senator stated how he heard that this man is still employed by the railroad company. The Senator can take this memorandum. Nobody would send me a memorandum unless he knew what he was talking about.

Mr. TILLMAN. It is very easy to write a thing. I want the Canal Committee, for which I wanted to get a job the other day, given some work. I am afraid they will grow rusty unless somebody puts them to work.

Mr. HALE. The Senator is wrong about this man.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope I am. I would be the last one to accuse a man of something that might be offcolor or dishonest. I make an inquiry that is very necessary to be made. If you get the Railway Guide of the United States, you will find Mr. Shonts's name in it. Take the Railway Guide for November, the month just gone, and he is still noted as president of the Clover Leaf road, and is published as such. It may be that the printer had the type stereotyped and did not take the trouble to change it, but I think that the Clover Leaf Railroad keeps up with the changes in administration as well as with the changes in schedules.

Mr. HALE. I can say to the Senator that this memorandum was handed to me while on my feet by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. KITTREDGE], who is on the Committee on Interoceanic Canals. It was given to him by a well-known correspondent here in Washington, who signs his name, and the Senator can read it. I think it is Ohl.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not sufficiently interested in that to care to read it.

Mr. HALE. I see the Senator is not. I am.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not, for this reason: If these men should state that they are not still connected with the railroad and are not getting paid by it for work done for it while they are getting pay from the Government as canal commissioners and officers, I want to know it. There is so much in the shape of smoke—stench, I had almost said—that I should like to have the thing ventilated fully.

Mr. HALE. I hope the Senator will not make any more charges as serious as this one——

Mr. TILLMAN. I have not made any charges.

Mr. HALE. Unless he has some testimony.

Mr. TILLMAN. I have not made a charge. I have asked a question. I thought you gentlemen on the other side would probably be able to answer it authoritatively, but you are not.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. TILLMAN. Always.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator from South Carolina says he has information on the subject or has learned that Mr. Shonts, for example, is still president of the Clover Leaf Railroad Company.

Mr. TILLMAN. I have given the Railway Guide, which can be found in the Sergeant-at-Arms's office, as authority for it.

Mr. ALLISON. I was about to ask the Senator if he had knowledge of this on yesterday.

Mr. TILLMAN. No; I did not. I went in and looked myself as soon as I heard he was connected with the Clover Leaf road.

Mr. ALLISON. I merely wanted to call attention to the fact that this information was in the possession of the Senator from South Carolina yesterday, and therefore he could have asked the question.

Mr. TILLMAN. I did not know yesterday, but if I had known it yesterday it would have availed nothing, as it was day before yesterday when we had our hearing in the Appropriations Committee room. I certainly would not have gone out without asking the question if I had known about it then.

So much for that. Now, let us come to another phase. In the hearing we had before the committee the other day it was brought out that among the appointees or employees of the Canal Commission is one gentleman by the name of Bishop, whose duties were pretty clearly set forth in that hearing—I will read them directly—but about the necessity for whose employment we were not entirely satisfied. I find in the minutes of the Isthmian Canal Commission of October 30 this resolution:

Upon motion of Commissioner Ernst, seconded by Commissioner Hains, it was

Resolved, That to facilitate the dispatch of current business at Washington office of the Commission, the chairman be, and he hereby is, empowered to authorize and direct in writing the secretary of the Commission or other employee of the Commission to approve for payment, under the caption "By direction of the chairman," vouchers for any payments by the Commission, and to make requisition for supplies for the maintenance of said Washington office.

Mr. Bishop is Mr. Shonts's appointee, and it appears that there are occasions when both Shonts and Pepperman are absent from the main office here, and that it was necessary, in order to have the business go on, for somebody else to be authorized to sign. So Mr. Bishop was empowered in that resolution. I will deal a little more fully with Mr. Bishop by reading from the testimony of Secretary Taft at the hearing:

Senator TILLMAN. I notice that the secretary of the Commission gets $10,000.

Secretary TAFT. Yes, sir.

Senator TILLMAN. Does the Commission sit here?

Secretary TAFT. It does, part of the time.

Senator TILLMAN. Practically all the time?

Secretary TAFT. Practically; it sat here most of the time.

Senator TILLMAN. I say, practically all the time?

Secretary TAFT. Well, its minutes are kept here. The records are kept here, and a very large part of the clerical work is done here, though by direction it has to meet four times a year on the Isthmus.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Massachusetts?

Mr. TILLMAN. Certainly.

Mr. LODGE. I know the Senator has got away from Mr. Pepperman, but perhaps he will allow me, as I have the official record from the Bureau of Insular Affairs, to state that Mr. Pepperman went to the Philippines, in our civil service, in 1900, but for many years previous to that he had been an examiner under the Civil Service Commission in Washington; that after he returned from the Philippines, in 1901, he entered the Bureau of Insular Affairs, where he has remained until the present time; and, so far as the Bureau of Insular Affairs knows, he has had no connection whatever with any railroad at all, but has been in the service of the Government for the last ten or fifteen years.

Mr. TILLMAN. That is all right, but I want Mr. Pepperman himself to say. I am not going to take any secondary evidence when I can get the original man; that is all.

Mr. LODGE. That is the report of the bureau in which he has been employed.

Mr. TILLMAN. I do not want to appear to doubt the integrity of purpose and the perfect honesty and honorable dealing of any of these gentlemen. I do not want——

Mr. LODGE. But, Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina, with no authority that I have heard him cite except that of rumor, has been casting very serious reflections on this gentleman. I never heard of Mr. Pepperman in my life until the other day, but I think any man is entitled to be taken on the official record furnished by the War Department rather than on the rumors of newspapers until at least he can be heard from.

Mr. TILLMAN. I only want to have him heard from instead of having Senators get up here and give us secondary evidence. That is all there is to it.

I have received a communication, and I will see what it says. [After a pause, reading:]

I have just talked over the 'phone with Mr. Pepperman, whom I know very well. He was never and is not now connected with the Clover Leaf Railroad. He has been in Government service twelve years, and I am sorry that somebody apparently has misinformed you.

All right. I apologize to Mr. Pepperman.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator's correspondent may have been talking to some other man over the 'phone.

Mr. TILLMAN. Hardly. We almost always recognize the voice. I could tell the voice of the Senator from Wisconsin, even from Milwaukee, at my house over the long-distance telephone. I will gamble on it. That is a little too thin. That is some more special pleading.

I come back to Mr. Bishop, since Mr. Pepperman has disappeared and is not a person who is a little off on drawing two salaries.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator from South Carolina was a little off.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will say I was a little off. I am willing to acknowledge it, and when that is the case will straighten up things any time and anywhere. I hope Mr. Shonts will come out of the situation with equal credit to himself—honestly I do. I was reading from the testimony of Secretary Taft.

Mr. FORAKER. What page?

Mr. TILLMAN. Page 53.

Senator TILLMAN. I notice that particular officer [Mr. Bishop] because I can not see why the mere keeping of the records of the work of the Commission requires so much skill or so much brains.

Secretary TAFT. He is the historian of the Commission. He was employed at a time when it was thought necessary to have a man of very considerable journalistic experience, for the reason that the attacks on the canal, its construction, and the preposterous misrepresentations concerning everything, both on the Isthmus and here, had gotten to such a point that it seemed necessary for the Commission to protect itself in some way.

Senator TILLMAN. So he is the press agent, then, of whom we have heard in the debate?

Secretary TAFT. You can call him a press agent if you choose to.

Senator TILLMAN. I would not call him that, except from your description of him.

Secretary TAFT. Well, that was added to his duties as the secretary of the Commission, the recorder of the Commission, and its historian.

Senator TILLMAN. Is it the duty of this Commission to run a political campaign to defend itself?

Secretary TAFT. No, sir; but it is the duty of the Commission to correct impressions that are circulated maliciously for the purpose of interfering with its work.

Senator TILLMAN. But ought not those to come through you, through official reports and data, rather than through communications to the press?

Secretary TAFT. No; it is not a question of communications to the press. I can communicate matters to the press; but the question is of running down every misrepresentation over this country. He has a record there that would startle people—the stories that have been started with a view simply of impeding the work of the canal?

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him for a moment?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure, always.

Mr. SPOONER. Is the Senator reading from page 53?

Mr. TILLMAN. I am reading from page 53 of the first edition. I think they have added to it two or three pages, and you will find it on page 54 or 55 in the edition you have.

Mr. SPOONER. That is what I wanted to interrupt the Senator for. I have page 53, and it does not contain that statement.

Mr. TILLMAN. I got the first publication that was sent to the Committee on Appropriations, and I have not taken the trouble, having marked my copy, to go to the newer and later edition.

We have there the statement by the Secretary, who is, of course, at last directly responsible, for he is Mr. Shonts's superior officer, that the Canal Commission has in its employ a man of ability as a journalist and of long experience. I think in his own testimony he stated that he had been editor of the New York Herald or Tribune, or some such paper, and there is no doubt about his mental acumen and brightness. We found that out very readily when we began to cross-question him. They pay this man $10,000 a year. Yet he has never been to Panama and he has no special aptitude, as I can see, for any work that the Commission needs to have done. It is not, I believe—at least I have never heard it before—customary, to use the phrase of the Senator from Maine; it is an innovation in any Department of the Government, however important, to take the public money and employ a man at a high salary—twice what I get—to exploit its work and to defend it through the press.

It is very evident that his labor, from his own testimony, is comparatively light. The Commission meets only occasionally, all its meetings are short ones, and the mere keeping of the minutes and the other ordinary work of a secretary, I think, could be done by any first-class clerk in this city at $2,000 or $3,000, which would appear to me to have been ample for such a thing or even for a first-class newspaper man. I presume that we have on the newspapers in Washington as bright a class of men as this country affords, and some of them get very high salaries—William E. Curtis, for one that I recall, and several others whose pay goes up into the thousands. But it is the purpose of employing this man that I am criticising or discussing; and he has a clerk whose sole duty appears to be, according to his own statement, to read some hundred and odd leading newspapers from all over the United States, of all the cities, and mark every article that is for or against the Canal Commission's work, in praise of it, or in criticism of it, and anything that strikes him as important he submits to the Canal Commission.

So we find that the process of hypnotizing public opinion or of misinforming the people is in progress here at a very great expense; and the first thing that struck me when this matter was brought out was that people who were entirely innocent and who need no defense would not take the trouble to be worried and put a $10,000 man at work upon the duty of defending them.

The Commission undoubtedly did this by Secretary Taft's approval and also that of the President, and I can not for the life of me see what justification there is for the public money to be spent in that way. The press representatives in Washington may some of them be dirty and low in their instincts, be disposed to lie or misrepresent.

It is charged by Secretary Taft that this crusade, I will say, was an organized one, that the effort to flyblow the work of the Commission and to belittle it, to confuse the public mind, had gone to such length that he felt it absolutely necessary to do something to defend the Commission and keep it from losing the confidence of Congress. There is mention made of a concerted, organized scheme of obstruction which would, as the Secretary feared, produce want of confidence, alarm the public mind as regards the probable ultimate cost of the canal, and in the end defeat it, or if not defeat it bring about a retardation of its construction that would be beneficial to these railroads that were mentioned as furnishing the fund.

Mr. GALLINGER. Hinted at.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. Bishop said he himself was offered $12,000 by this opposing organization, and he mentioned the three dead elements of opposition, the Nicaragua route, the Darien route, and the Tehuantepec route as being in the combine; but he was very tender and unwilling to locate the railroad opposition. Now, that is something which our Committee on Interoceanic Canals might, if it sees fit, find out, if it is worth while.

I asked Secretary Taft if he felt there was any instrumentality on earth that could defeat the construction of the Panama Canal now that the United States has gone about it, and he said he did not think it could, but that it would retard it, and that is all these people hope to do. If they are willing to pay $12,000 for Mr. Bishop to lead an organized movement of slander and abuse and misrepresentation and lying, and all that kind of thing, it is worth our while to see whether there is any conspiracy on foot here looking to befuddle the minds of Senators and Congressmen to get us confused.

I remarked, and I still think, that as soon as we get rid of the suspicion which is now abroad, that the Canal Commission and its head, the chief engineer, and Mr. Shonts and others occupying the higher places have gained the confidence of the country—and I hope they will if they have not already got it—that as soon as they shall have demonstrated their business capacity and their earnest zeal in carrying forward this great work successfully at the minimum of expense, all of this swarm of gnats, or mosquitoes, or whatever other simile you might use, of misrepresentation, will disappear entirely.

But I believe the newspapers of this country would be glad to publish the truth. One of them, the Herald, has now a special correspondent on the Isthmus who is sending home some very interesting reading, by the way, which I will bring to the attention of this body presently. While he is only a newspaper correspondent, I happen to know him personally, and I have not the slightest doubt that he is telling the God's truth as he sees it.

It looks like we are almost as far away from the Panama Canal as we were from the Philippines. We never could get anything from there, the trouble being that the language shut off the plaintiff in the case, and we were the defendants, and there never was any indictment brought that would go very far. We got into the administration of the water cure and some cold-blooded murders through that instrumentality, and there were very unpleasant incidents brought out in one way or another; but let us hope for God's sake, for the honor of the country, that we will have nothing of this sort in the way of dishonorable practices and peculation in Panama.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. TILLMAN. Certainly.

Mr. HALE. I think the Senator will bear me out in this statement. I think when the statement made by Mr. Bishop was put before the Committee on Appropriations there was this general feeling about it. In the first place, Mr. Bishop himself did not in any way hesitate or qualify or give any intention of a desire to conceal his relations to the Commission. He stated in answer to questions put by the Senator, by the chairman, and by me that his duty was as a historian, a literary editor; that his connection with the Commission, so far as any actual clerical or secretary's duties were concerned, was very little. When we followed him up he stated that his method of conducting this position as literary secretary and as historian was twofold—first, to accumulate information for the purpose of writing a history of the canal, which he will do in due time, and, next, to gather newspaper comments and intelligence from the press everywhere and disseminate that. We asked for what purpose, and I used the phrase, "Were you doing this to manufacture public opinion?" His reply was, "Not to manufacture," and I said the phrase was not used offensively, but Mr. Bishop means that it was done for the purpose of creating public sentiment.

Now, I think the feeling admitted universally was that it is an innovation; that for any branch of the Government to seek to make public sentiment by incorporating into its duties a press department that shall communicate with the newspapers for the purpose of creating public sentiment is what has never been done. Every great event in our history has been criticised mercilessly. Every great public man who has illustrated our history and our annals has been cruelly and mercilessly criticised, and has borne it, and has looked to time and the work that he has done to justify him. He has not felt it necessary to have a press bureau in order to create public sentiment. If Mr. Shonts is responsible, or if the Secretary is responsible for this departure from all usage heretofore, I am bound to say that I think they have made a mistake.

But, Mr. President, sensitive, as we should be, to any attempt of this kind to incorporate a press agency with a Department of the Government to manufacture or to make public sentiment, the newspapers ought to be ten times as sensitive as we are to anything of this kind.

Mr. TILLMAN. And I think they are.

Mr. HALE. The press of the country is a great estate. The newspapers make great mistakes and are sometimes cruelly unjust, both to men and to measures. But as a rule their purpose is high because the objects they seek are for the public good, and they are a great and beneficent power in the land.

But, Mr. President, if the Government or any part of the Government establishes as a part of its duties a press agency to create public sentiment through disseminating their statements and their reports to the press, you have got first a prejudiced press; you have got a selected press. The newspapers are selected to disseminate this intelligence and make this public sentiment, and at last, if you have an unscrupulous Administration, you have a hireling press.

The preference that is given by the selection of newspapers to disseminate the Government's views in order to make sentiment before the public is a thing that the newspapers ought to be more sensitive about than we, and we ought to be very sensitive. I think it was the feeling of the entire committee that this was an innovation, and a most unfortunate innovation.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator from Maine, in his usual forceful way, has stated in better terms than I could the feeling, as I gathered it, of every member who was present. We do not think that it is the business of any department of this Government to take public money to undertake to bamboozle us or the people either, or to defend themselves, whether they are accused justly or unjustly. They must rely upon the integrity of their motives and the purity of their administration to get the confidence of Congress and the good will of the people.

But, nevertheless, we have got this very thing which the Senator has condemned in such strong terms, and we are paying $10,000 for the luxury. I do not know whether it is an oriental method or not, but you know what is meant by the freedom of the press. I rather think this is a Russian method, or a kind of an importation from St. Petersburg as St. Petersburg used to be, by which certain things were inspired.

But Mr. Bishop has been very busy along that line, and when questioned specifically to point out some of the concrete things which his superiors felt were necessary for them to know, to give an illustration, for instance, of the kind of work he did for his money, he mentioned three newspapers as having published some four or five weeks or two months back some very false and erroneous statements in regard to what was going on and the attitude of this Commission, one being the Washington Post, one being the Savannah Morning News, and one being the Charleston News and Courier. I find upon examination that they are practically all three the same thing; that there is absolutely no difference in them except the little caption or starter. It is the same story, and I do not think them of sufficient moment to incorporate as illustrating the kind of ducks Mr. Bishop has been shooting. They are too pitiful and contemptible for anybody to have been alarmed at or to have given a moment's thought to, because the newspapers are teeming with such stories every day almost, written by Tom, Dick, and Harry for a dollar or two, and they go in one ear and out the other.

I have, however, here a somewhat more or less direct charge which occurred in the New York World of Sunday, September 10. It relates to the action of Chairman Shonts in letting the contract for the eating houses on the Isthmus, or the running, I will say, of the hotel privileges or commissary. I will have this, with the consent of the Senate, incorporated in my remarks without reading it.

